PUBLIC TO HAVE USE OF THE POOL

Board of Education Plans Wider Use of Swimming Privileges.

SCHEDULE OF CLASSES

Various Nights Set Apart for Men and Women—Gymnasium Will Also Be Open to Public—An Attendant to Be in Charge.

While the swimming pool was installed in the High School primarily for the purpose of making sure that every boy and girl might be taught the useful art of swimming, it is the desire of the Board of Education to make the pool serve the citizens outside of the school as far as may be without interfering with the original purpose. Plans have therefore been made for throwing it open to the public under certain restrictions. Already six or eight classes of women and girls are using the pool on Friday and Saturday. Gymnasium and pool are also in use, to a limited extent, evenings.

It is now proposed to open it to wider use in the evening, on payment of a fee that will cover the cost. On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, it will be under the charge of the Evening Recreation Committee. Tuesday evening will be men's night. On that evening, there will be two classes in the gymnasium, and the pool will also be thrown open to the use of individuals, from 7:30 to 10 o'clock. Wednesday evening is women's night. There will be similar classes in the gymnasium, and the pool will be open to individuals, as they register. The admission fee on either night is 15c.

Friday evening will be men's night on the group or "Club" plan. There will be a half hour period in the gymnasium followed by a half hour in the pool, preceded and followed by fifteen-minute periods in use of locker room for dressing and undressing.

Any group of congenial persons, not to exceed twenty-five, may select one of their number to act as treasurer and spokesman, who may apply in their behalf for the assignment of a period. The use of a period will not be reserved for the same club for more than ten weeks, if there are other applications on the waiting list. There are also vacant periods for women or girls' clubs on Saturday afternoons and possibly Monday or Thursday evenings. The fee for a period is $4 in the daytime and $4 or $5 in the evening, according to conditions. An attendant or instructor is always present in the gymnasium and in the pool when they are in use. Applications for Tuesday or Wednesday nights may be made to the attendant in the building. Applications for other periods should be made to Ralph S. Patch, at the High School, or by 'phone 894-M.

To keep the water in the pool pure and hygienic, the management is following the methods adopted by first class swimming pools in the colleges and elsewhere. As is the universal custom in the Y. M. C. A. swimming pools, the men use no suits in the pool. In the case of the women, the regulation one-piece suit is used, and all suits must receive the approval of the attendant before being used. A suit with rubber cap will be ordered for any one desiring it, on payment of cost, 93c. Every swimmer must take a shower bath with soap before entering the pool.

A Loomis-Manning water filter such as is used in filtering drinking water in the large hotels of New York city and Philadelphia and in Johns Hopkins Hospital, is in constant operation from 7 o'clock in the morning until the pool is closed at night, keeping the water of the pool in motion and purifying it. The capacity of the filter is such as to put through the water in the pool about twice daily; in addition to this, a measured amount of hypochlorite of lime, such as is used in sterilized water in the city water systems of New York and Philadelphia, is put into the pool each night. The effect of this is to sterilize the pool by killing whatever microbes may then be present, and by introducing into the water particles of chlorine gas which stand ready to kill whatever new microbes may find their way in. This makes the pool safe from all danger of contagion.

RETAIL BREAD PRICE MAY RECEIVE BOOST

Local Bakers Obliged to Purchase White Flour At Big Increase.

Those acquainted with the bakery business in Plainfield foretell a rise in the cost of bread and rolls in the near future, probably within the next week. When interviewed this morning, one local baker said that this action was prompted by the jump in the price of wheat, which at one time last week reached $1.56 a bushel. The price of white flour to the baker has increased from $4.25 to $7.75 a barrel and the price of rye flour has increased from $4 to $7.50 a barrel. In view of these facts bread from white flour is now made at about the same cost as the inferior product.

From 250 to 280 loaves can be made from a single barrel of flour and the increase of $3.50 a barrel on white flour has resulted in the cost of bread rising 1 1-5 cents on each loaf. This may necessitate an increase in the retail price of bread from five to six cents and of rolls from ten to twelve cents a dozen.

Although no local producer has announced the rise as yet, some increase is to be expected if the present cost of wheat and flour prevails another week. At the present time there is a standard weight for each loaf produced, but it may be decided to reduce the size of the loaf rather than boost the price a cent. Which of the two will prove the most acceptable to the public is a matter of conjecture which the bakers will have to decide among themsevles.

One thing is certain, however, and that is that the practice of home economy will come in for its just dues. Housewives who have heretofore bought one loaf a day will find that two will be necessary to supply the household if the size of the loaves is decreased and this extra expenditure will lead to the introduction of home-made bread into the family menu in many instances.

$150 FIRE DAMAGE AT W. H. CLARK'S HOME

The home of W. H. Clark, at 210 West Eighth street, was damaged by fire to the amount of $150, late Saturday night. Several members of the family were in the library when a slight explosion under the front stairs brought them to the hall, then quite thick with smoke. Fire headquarters was telephoned at 10:54 and the apparatus reached the scene in a remarkably short time. Chief Doane found a brisk blaze in progress, just creeping up the front partition, but brought it to a halt with the chemical engine. Two tanks were used in addition to several hand extinguishers, before the blaze was quelled. The fact that hydrant streams were not brought in is responsible for the small amount of damage.

The origin of the fire and the source of the slight explosion are not known definitely. Chief Doane believes the flames started in a barrel used as a trash receiver at the foot of the cellar stairs, but could advance no theory regarding the explosion.

The department was warmly complimented by Mr. Clark for its remarkably quick run. He said it seemed to him he had no more than hung up the receiver and ran to the porch before the auto apparatus was in front of the house.

FAKIR BANISHED.

Charles McKinley, of Summit, was arraigned before Recorder F. W. Hand, in the borough court, this morning, for soliciting in the borough Saturday night. He went from store to store telling a hard luck story about having a broken wrist. He had his hand hidden in his coat, twisted in a peculiar shape. Chief Weiss was notified and Marshal Hermann was sent to arrest the man. When taken to the station house it was found that there was nothing the matter with his hand. Sentence was suspended and he was given fifteen minutes to get out of town.

CHICKEN PIE SUPPER.

A chicken pie supper will be held in the First Methodist church, tomorrow night, from 6:30 to 8. Mrs. Harry Gee and Mrs. Nelson Hull are in charge and plans are made to serve one of the best menus that has ever been offered in the church. A nominal sum will be charged.

MRS. D. R. WEAVER DIES IN THE BORO

Well Known Resident Succumbs to a Lingering Illness.

Mrs. Mary J. Weaver, aged about 70 years, widow of David R. Weaver, died yesterday afternoon, at her home, 61 Manning avenue, following a lingering illness from complications of diseases. Her condition recently was such that her death was expected at any time. Mrs. Weaver was a native of Whitehouse, where she was married. She came to Plainfield not long afterward and had lived in the borough for many years. Her husband for a long time prior to his death was manager for Woolston & Buckle's paint store on North avenue and was well known in the city and borough. He was a brother to the late Peter V. Weaver, who was for a number of years a deputy sheriff in Union county.

Mrs. Weaver was a devout Christian and until her health prevented was an active member of Trinity Reformed church, being a regular attendant at the services. There survives a daughter, Mrs. Andrew Carpenter, of this city, and a sister, Mrs. Martha Mattison, of Whitehouse. The funeral service will probably be held at the late home on Wednesday and the burial will be at Whitehouse.

MORAL QUESTION BACK OF THE WAR

Dr. W. L. Saunders Addresses Plainfield Clericus on European Conflict.

The Plainfield Clericus was the guests today of Rev. C. H. Kues, rector of Holy Cross church, the borough, and the clergymen were entertained at the home of Dr. William L. Saunders, of Rockview avenue. Following a short business session, the clergy was addressed by Dr. Saunders, who spoke on the "Ethics of the War," taking his text from Isaiah, "Nations shall not lift up sword against nations neither shall they learn war any more."

Dr. Saunders said that if the moral character of the people was right there wouldn't be any war, and he added that President Wilson is trying to inculcate that idea in the minds of the people of this country. In his opinion the European war was the result of a moral question and he quoted from several authors to substantiate this assertion. After his talk, the clergymen were guests at dinner.

Those present besides Dr. Saunders were Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, Rev. C. H. Kues, Rev. C. H. Mallery and Rev. Henry Mesier, of this city; Rev. A. S. Phelps, of Bound Brook; Mrs. W. N. Jones, of Perth Amboy; Rev. Chapman Lewis, of South Amboy; Rev. W. S. Bayer, Rev. Mr. Virgin, Rev. L. E. Hubbard, of Elizabeth; Rev. R. E. Elliott, of Rahway, and Rev. Clarence Wood, of Roselle. The next meeting of the clericus will be held at St. Stephen's parish house, April 12.

EXPECT AUTO ENGINE TO ARRIVE THIS WEEK

The new Nott, 800-gallon capacity automobile fire engine for Plainfield, is at last on the way. Chief T. O. Doane has received a way-bill, showing that it was shipped from Minneapolis, Minn., on January 28, Thursday of last week. If the matter is followed up with the freight people, the engine should be in town before the week is over.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO HAVE INDOOR CARNIVAL

STATE CONFERENCE FOR POOR OFFICERS

Heads of Various Departments in the State Banquetted Here Saturday.

Members of the Executive Committee of the New Jersey State Association of Overseers of the Poor held the last of a series of meetings to prepare several amendments to parts of the poor laws in this city Saturday. The committeemen, together with several local men, were guests of Garret T. Dunham, of this city, at a banquet in the Queen City Hotel.

At the meeting matters of interest to the Poor Departments of the State were discussed and plans suggested for future development of the work.

The association is composed of overseers of poor in the various municipalities of the State and was organized primarily for the purpose of holding meetings of this kind at various intervals in an effort to establish efficiency. The following members convened here Saturday: Harry L. Parck, president; H. O'Neill, of Paterson, chairman; Anthony Sattler, of Elizabeth, secretary; William Baldwin, of Newark; Charles Moore, of East Orange; Garret T. Dunham, of Plainfield; Henry D. DeForest, former local overseer; John Cose, chairman councilmanic Alms Committee, and Councilman Charles C. Graves.

"BUFF" MOONEY HERE FOR A SHORT STAY

New York Fireman, Who is Hiking to San Francisco, Guest of Local Dept.

John Henry Mooney, the New York city fireman who started Thursday to walk from the metropolis to San Francisco and back, is the guest of the local department today. He arrived here Saturday night, intending to remain until this morning. Sunday always being a resting period in his schedule, but owing to the extremely bad weather he postponed starting for New Brunswick until tomorrow. In the meantime the men at headquarters, where he is holding forth, are showing him the kind of hospitality that will be hard to beat on the rest of his big cross-country hike. Chief T. O. Doane and Captain William Townley are acting as special sponsors. Mooney, who is only twenty-six years old, is making the trip in the interests of the proposed New York two-platoon system. He will explain its merits to fully five hundred fire chiefs before returning home. His presence in the various cities is calculated to stimulate interest in the proposition, not only for metropolitan benefit, but for the entire paid fire system in the country.

Mooney, who is known to his friends as "Buff," enjoys a reputation as a pedestrian. In 1911 he walked across the continent in eighty-one travelling days, beating Edward P. Weston's record by twenty-three days. On his present undertaking he will proceed by easy stages to the Southern States, thence across to San Francisco and the Panama Exposition which he hopes to reach by June. After remaining a short time, he will start back on foot, traversing the Northern States. There is no time limit attached to his return, as he has a year's leave of absence from the fire marshal's office, to which he is attached.

Mooney left New York Thursday morning. He stopped over night at Paterson, and Friday was the guest of the Newark department. He came to Plainfield after a short visit in Elizabeth and will go from here to New Brunswick, thence to Princeton, Trenton, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Baltimore and Washington. His average walking distance a day is about forty miles. Mooney credits his ability to do this to the fact that he is in splendid physical condition and neither smokes nor uses alcoholic stimulants of any kind.

GEORGE L. RECORD LANDS ANOTHER PLUM FROM WILSON

Washington, Feb. 1.—The names of the appointees to the new Federal Trade Commission will be sent to the Senate this week by President Wilson. This announcement was made at the White House today. It was admitted that four members had been selected. They are W. J. Harris, of Georgia; George L. Record, of New Jersey; J. E. Davies, of Wisconsin, and E. N. Hurley, of Illinois. The name of W. H. Parry, of Washington, is under consideration, but it is believed some other Pacific coast man will be chosen for the fifth member.

DENIES THE REPORT HE IS TO BUILD

Christian Gloeckler Says That No Change is Contemplated at Present.

Christian Gloeckler, who owns the building at Front and Somerset streets, where for many years he conducted a saloon, denies the report published in another local newspaper on Saturday that plans have been filed for a one-story brick building to take the place of the old structure. He also denied that he had leased the property or had made any arrangements whatever looking to the improvement of the property or that any drug concern intended locating there.

Mr. Gloeckler admitted that some time ago he had plans drawn for a modern structure on the corner, but he added, the city through its proposed plans to widen Somerset street, which have never been carried out, has been responsible for his losing at least $30,000, for it was impossible for him to go ahead with his original plans until he was sure what the city proposed to do. In case the street was widened it would mean a loss in land to him and he would necessarily be obliged to change his building plans. Mr. Gloeckler said that he had received many offers both to lease and purchase his property, but that is as far as they have gone and he assured a representative of The Daily Press that there was not a word of truth in the story published in another local newspaper.

Mr. Gloeckler naturally feels aggrieved over the treatment accorded by the city, believing that a great injustice has been done him in the past. He says that he pays hundreds of dollars in taxes to the city and yet is not given as much consideration as a man who does not own a dollar's worth of propery and pays nothing more than a poll tox.

ATLANTIC CITY COUPLE MARRIED IN THIS CITY

The young couple were received into the Baptist church in Atlantic City while Dr. Hudson was pastor there and as a consequence came to this city to be married.

The committee is preparing a report which will be presented at the next quarterly meeting of the church.

AFTER THE TAXI MEN.

Upon the sugestion of Mayor Calkins, Chief of Police Kiely, this morning, ordered the taxi men to stop blocking North avenue. When the Mayor arrived at his office they were lined up three deep in one spot, out from the curb, and other vehicles using the street had to make a wide swerve to get down the street. The chief sent a man over, and the taxis were soon lined up on the side of the street.

VIOLENT BATTLE IN CARPATHIANS

German Statement Says Russian Superior Forces Cause of Withdrawal.

AGAIN FIGHT IN SERVIA

French War Office Says That Artillery and Infantry Stopped German Attack on Trenches Southeast of Ypres.

Berlin, Fev. 1.—The German statement said:

"The passes through the wooded mountain districts of the Carpathian ranges have been the scene of the most violent fighting. After four days of heroic fighting our troops succeeded in throwing back the Russians from Uzsok pass, although subsequently our men had to give up the advanced line they were holding along the ridge, and retreated to another position which was taken up on another ridge in the rear. This movement resulted from the fact that the Russians had superior numbers."

The war office announced that there had been no developments in the western theatre during the past twenty-four hours.

Amsterdam, Feb. 1.—A Vienna despatch says that news from Sofia declares heavy gun firing has been heard south of Irongate, on the Danube. This is believed to indicate that hostilities have been resumed in eastern Servia.

Paris, Feb. 1.—The French War Office gave out the following statement today:

"The day of January 31, like the preceding one, was marked by artillery combats which were particularly intense in the regions of the north. To the southeast of Ypres the Germans attempted an attack on our trenches north of the canal. This attack was immediately stopped by the combined fire of our artillery and infantry.

"All along the front of the River Aisne, from the junction of this river with the Oise and as far as Berry Au Bac, our batteries succeeded in a certain number of engagements in demolishing some German trenches which were being built.

"In Champagne, to the northeast of Mesnil Les Hurlus, we have consolidated our positions around a small forest, of which we became masters the day before yesterday.

"In the Argonne the day has been one of relative calm. The Germans apparently lost heavily in the recent fight on the front. At Woevre, Lorraine, and in the Vosges there is nothing important to report."

Petrograd, Feb. 1.—A communication issued late last night by the Russian general staff reports further progress in East Prussia and desperate fighting on the left bank of the Vistula. In the region around Borjimow the Russians claim to have recaptured a trench lost to the Germans on the preceding day and declare counter attacks of the Germans were repulsed everywhere except in one of the Russian saps, which the Germans captured. The statement follows:

"In the forests to the north of Gumbinnen and Pillkallen our troops, continuing the conflict, have made progress at some points.

"On the left bank of the Visutla, on January 30, a desperate combat was under way. In the region of Borjimow the Germans, who had captured one of our trenches on the preceding days, were attacked by us after nightfall. After an extremely tenacious struggle we succeeded, with the aid of a bayonet charge, in dislodging the enemy from the trench. We almost annihilated the entire companies of Germans, captured three officers and more than sixty soldiers and also took a rapid-firing gun.

"In the course of the day the enemy made a new attempt to drive us from our advanced trenches, but was everywhere repulsed, after a bloody struggle, except in one of our saps, where some elements of the enemy succeeded in establishing themselves.

"An examination of prisoners disclosed the fact that the Germans in their attack of the 28th upon a part of our trenches at Borjimow had employed four regiments of infantry, some of which were composed of seasoned men.

"Our artillery on the left bank of the Vistula continued to shell the positions of the enermy with perceptible advantage to us. It demolished a German outpost and some German field works, damaged certain German trenches, put three machine guns out of action and silenced some of the enemy's cannon.

"In the Carpathians the fighting continues along the front between Mount Dukla and Mount Wyszkow. Generally speaking, our positions along this front are secure. As to

WITNESSED TRAGEDY IN NEW YORK OFFICE

Dunellen Young Men Close at Hand When Man Was Stabbed.

Russell Brakley, son of Mrs. Helen Brakley, of Front street, and Benjamin Cole, son of Captain and Mrs. B. A. Cole, of Washington avenue, both of whom are employed in the office of the Vacuum Oil Company, at No. 61 Broadway, New York, were witnesses of the tragedy of Saturday afternoon in which William B. Irvine, aged twenty-five, a clerk in the employ of the oil company, stabbed Joseph F. McLoughlin, twenty-six, another clerk, twice in the left side just below the ribs from which wounds he died a few minutes later.

According to an interview held with Brakley, yesterday afternoon, Irvine had been plaguing McLoughlin during the greater part of the morning and McLoughlin had finally challenged him to a fight on the roof of the building after office hours. Irvine, being a smaller man than McLoughlin, didn't say whether he would accept the challenge or not. At 1 o'clock he put on his hat and coat and in company with another clerk left the office to go home. In the corridor he pushed the button signaling the elevator to stop at the floor and in the meantime other clerks who were through with their work of the day commenced to congregate. Before the elevator came along, McLoughlin came rushing out of the office at Irvine exclaiming: "Are you coming up to the roof?" and with those words he aimed a blow at Irvine. Dodging the blow, Irvine as quick as a flash drew a combination pencil sharpener and eraser out of his pocket and before Benjamin Cole, who was standing only a few feet away, or any of the others realized what he was doing he had stabbed McLoughlin twice. McLoughlin reeled back, exclaiming: "I've been stabbed," and with that he ran back into the office and fell in the arms of Assistant Manager L. J. Callahan, where he expired. His last words were, "Irvine stabbed me."

In the meantime Irvine, unmolested, not realizing that he had mortally wounded McLoughlin, calmly stepped into the elevator with his companion and descending to the street went to his home in Jersey City, where he has a wife and child. Shortly after his arrival there he was called up on the telephone by his manager telling him that he was wanted at the office. Believing that he was summoned to give reasons why he should not be discharged and never suspecting that he had killed McLoughlin, Irvine determined to return to New York and put up a strong fight to retain his position.

When he opened the door of the office and on stepping in was confronted by officers of the law, intuition apprised him that the worst had happened and in a horrified voice he exclaimed: "I am guilty." He was then shown McLoughlin's body and he broke down, weeping bitterly.

Among the witnesses of the tragedy who remained in the building and saw the affair through was Russell Brakley. Benjamin Cole, the other local witness, realizing that McLoughlin had been badly wounded and not caring to be mixed up in the affair had hurriedly left the building.

Brakley heard McLoughlin's last words. He was present when a half dozen or so of patrolmen came flocking into the office and later when District Attorney Perkins, who succeeded Mr. Whitman, arrived. He saw Irvine when he returned to the office and the pathetic scene that followed.

"I hope that it will never be my lot to witness such an affair through again," Mr. Brakley said during his interview of yesterday afternoon. "Shortly after Irvine's arrival," Mr. Brakley said. "I was seized with a sickening desire to leave the office and picking up my hat and coat I started for the door, but I had not covered half the distance to the door when an officer asked me where I was going. Home, I replied. Not yet young man, he said, you are one of the witnesses. Later I learned that the known witnesses of the tragedy were not the only ones to be prohibited from leaving the building, as the police upon their arrival permitted no one to leave. The last words of Mr. Brakley to the reporter, yesterday afternoon were: "I hope I may never see a pencil sharpener again," were very significant of how he was affected by the entire affair.

The witnesses of the tragedy who were around when the police arrived have been placed under $100 bonds, which were furnished by the company. The other witnesses will be placed under bonds on Monday.

SAYS NO BLUNDER NEED BE FEARED IF SHIP BILL PASSES

Washington, Feb. 1.—Attention of opponents of the ship bill was called by the White House today to the fact that the bill did not designate the character of the ships to be bough under the proposed law, or prescribe the countries from which they were to be acquired. Secretary Tumulty said it was preposterous to believe that the administration would blunder into international complications through the purchase of interned vessels. The declaration was regarded as highly significant and was immediately passed along the Congress. By many Senators it was interpreted as being virtually a pledge that the merchantmen of Germany and Austria now interned in American ports would not be taken over should the bill become law.

BRYAN ISSUES STATEMENT ON PENDING SHIP BILL

Washington, Feb. 1—Following verbal denials of the report that certain of the belligerent nations had submitted protests to the American government against the passage of the Ship Purchase Bill, Secretary of State Bryan today issued an official statement flatly denying that such action had occurred. The statement follows:

"No nation has protested against the passage of the shipping bill and it is not likely that any nation will or would since the bill does not necessarily raise any diplomatic questions. It is not proper for the State Department to discuss at this time the manner in which the authority conferred by the bill will or should be exercised. We assume that the authority conferred on the President and those who will be associated with him in the matter will be exercised properly, and with due regard to the nation's welfare."

WITH ROLL OF BILLS HE APPLIES FOR A LODGING

Among the vagrants who applied at the borough police headquarters, Saturday night, was an individual who gave his name as Charles Collins and said he hailed from Hartford, Conn. When Chief Weiss came back from an errand he found the visitor asleep in the courtroom and examination revealed that he was under the influence of liquor.

When searched a roll of bills was found in the stranger's pocket and his coat was filled with the best brand of cigars. Upon recovering from his stupor, yesterday, he demanded to be let out and when told that he was held to await trial on a charge of drunkenness became indignant. Arraigned before Recorder Hand he was given twenty minutes to get out of the borough and proceeded on a leisurely gait to the Somerset street bridge, at the same time complimenting himself on the nearness of the boundary line.

PROTECTING BUSINESS MEN.

Chattanooga, Tennessee, has recently passed an ordinance which regulates an abuse that is prevalent in Plainfield, and which the Business Men's Association has urged the Plainfield City Council to correct. It protects the legitimate business men of Chattanooga from the fly-by-night fakirs in such a way that the latter class will give the city a wide berth in the future, unless their goods have real merit.

The ordinance in question is one "defining 'transient merchants,' licensing their sale of wares, and providing penalties for the violation of its provisions." The transient merchant is one who "engages in the vending or sale of merchandise at any place in the City of Chattanooga, Tennessee, temporarily, and who does not intend to become a permanent merchant at such place, and who, for the purpose of carrying on such business, hires, leases, or occupies, either in whole or in part, a room, building, or other structure for the exhibition and sale of such goods, wares and merchandise."

The act provides that such merchant shall take out a license stating the character of the business, and how long he wishes to engage in it and providing for the payment of a fee of twenty dollars for each day for which he makes application to remain in the city. If a citizen complains that a merchant doing business in the city comes under the transient class, although the latter claims to be there permanently, the city may require a bond of $1,000, which shall be forfeited in case the merchant proves to be a transient.

If a transient licensee is convicted of fraud or misrepresentation in the sale of goods, or of adulterated food, drink or drug, or food deleterious to health, the license is to be revoked. It is provided that any person who does not get such a license shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be liable to a fine of not less than $2, nor more than $50.

An ordinance to cover a similar situation in Plainfield has been prepared for introduction in the City Council, and it is due the local business interests, who pay taxes and who are identified with the city's growth and future, that they be given protection equally as good as that given in Chattanooga. If it is necessary to procure a law covering the case prior to the passage of a local ordinance, there is no time like the present for getting busy on that, for the Legislature has just started its work, and such a bill could be passed after due deliberation and thought.

When the exigencies of politics decreed that Judge Isaac P. Runyon must be succeeded by a Democrat on the Somerset County District Court bench, there were expressions of genuine regret from nearly all of the bar of that county, and from scores of litigants who had been before him. There was an effort made by a number of those who realized how well he had presided in the court to have Governor Fielder reappoint him, regardless of politics, and not a few Democrats and Progressives added their pleas to those of the Republicans. The Somerville Unionist-Gazette sums up the matter ably, when it says, "In his retirement from the District Court bench of this county, Judge Isaac P. Runyon will carry with him the respect and esteem of lawyers and laymen who came before him. He was the first judge of that court, formulated its rules and has conducted its business with dignity and despatch. The people could not ask more from a public servant. His successor, William F. Vosseller, has been practicing law here for a number of years and is popular and capable. If he can administer justice with as much satisfaction as Isaac P. Runyon he will meet the requirements of that portion of the public who find it necessary to settle their difficulties in court."

If the work of destroying German and British battleships keeps on at the same pace that it has been going since the war started, there will be no more of them left when peace comes than there are in the United States Navy at the present time. That being the case, why worry about a big navy now? Instead Congress can see to it that we build vessels in the future at the same rate of speed as the other great nations of the world. Just now a big navy is not seriously needed for the United States is not going to mix up in any foreign war. Even if we did, the other fellows would be so busy looking after affairs nearer home that they could not spare enough ships to send over here to make more trouble than our present navy could care for.

The agent of the Nott Company gives an explanation of the non arrival of the new fire engine for the city which is much at variance with the understanding of the members of the councilmanic fire committee. It is a very nice thing to have improvements added to the engine, but what the residents want is more fire protection, and they might wait indefinitely for improvements which should be added frequently by every up to date concern. As for the agent personally standing a $500 loss to give the city a better engine, it seems to us that this is a remarkable exhibition of civic pride which would warrant the expenditure by the city fathers of a like amount for a monument. If we were in his place we think we would be able to find another use for the money.

The interest which the Senators from the States far removed from the sea coast show in opposing President Wilson's shipping bill is remarkable. Senator Smoot, of Utah, talked nearly twelve hours against the act, although he failed to explain how the control of vessels by the government is going to interfere with the welfare of the people of his State.

ONLY ONE IN NEGATIVE ON LOCAL OPTION VOTE

Rev. John Sheriden Zelie called the attention of the congregation in Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday morning to the local option bill now before the Legislature. He took occasion to commend Senator Carlton B. Pierce for his attitude in the past in voting for the bill, and said that the liquor interests were arrayed against the bill and against Mr. Pierce.

After explaining the matter, Dr. Zelie asked all who favored the passage of the bill to rise, and with a very few exceptions all in the congregation stood up. When a chance was given for a negative only one man was seen to rise, and he was a well known citizen.

BILLY BRIGGS' COMPANION FOR TWELVE YEARS IS DEAD

William Briggs, of Albert street, is today mourning the loss of a friend who has been his constant companion for twelve years. She passed away after a short illness Friday night and interment was made yesterday. Mr. Briggs is a well known fancier of fox terriers and the deceased had been his helper in training the canines.

The victim of death's grim reaper was a bantam hen, valued by the owner at $200. She had earned a local reputation for her acrobatic feats and was widely known among those who had seen her perform. The hen made her debut in the Y. M. C. A. five years ago in connection with the annual circus, then one of the most looked forward features of the Association's retinue.

Besides riding on a fox terrier in bare-back fashion the hen could walk a tight-rope, roll a barrel and sit on a hoop while one of her dog companions leaped through.

According to Mr. Briggs the talented member of the feathered tribe was the only performer of her sex in the show business.

"PEG O' MY HEART"

PEG AND MICHAEL

It will appear serially in this paper.

The play ran 604 consecutive nights, or about two years, at a New York theater, scoring one of the greatest hits of the past decade.

The story, like the play, was written by J. Hartley Manners. It is full of heart interest. It is witty and clever. Every line of it will entertain you.

A romping, madcap, bewitching Irish girl is turned over to the care of aristocratic English relatives.

They dislike her, but Peg holds her own with jaunty pride, and in the end, by her generosity and big heartedness, wins them over, and, what is more, wins her fortune, and, what is still more, wins a very gallant lover

GARZA PUT AT HEAD OF TROUBLED MEXICO

President Does Not Recline Upon a Bed of Roses.

The new provisional president of Mexico, General Roque Gonzales Garza, is enjoying no softer bed of roses than did his predecessor, General Eulalio Gutierrez, who practically threw up the job and fled from Mexico city to head a new revolt. Gutierrez, according to his own account, was obliged to flee from the capital. He had sought aid from the Carranza forces to help him resist the control that Villa and Zapata had established over every branch of the government, making Guiterrez a mere figurehead.

The political situation in Mexico changes with kaleidoscopic swiftness and has been complicated by the reported intention of General Villa to establish an independent republic in northern Mexico. There are at present three governments in Mexico, all pretending to be legitimate, and opposing them are three separate revolutionary movements.

GENERAL ROQUE GONZALES GARZA.

Martial law has been proclaimed in Mexico City by General Garza, who evidently believes in stringent measures. The new provisional president first came into prominence with the forces of Madero in the movement that drove Diaz to exile. He held the title of major under Madero and has since been actively concerned in every phase of the prolonged civil warfare in Mexico.

Garza is about thirty-six years old, a graduate of the law school in Mexico City and has been practicing law for years.

His brother, Federico Gonzales Garza, was for several months governor of the federal district under Madero. Roque and his brother joined Villa soon after Huerta came into power.

After President Madero was murdered General Garza made a scathing speech against Huerta and Felix Diaz in congress and afterward was in such imminent danger that a large escort of personal friends took him to the border. Thence he went to Washington, where he remained for a time, and then returned to Mexico.

ROBINSON VS. OSBORN.

Among the Supreme Court cases listed for trial at the present term in Elizabeth will be that of John V. Robinson, a contracting builder of Rahway, against Lloyd L. Osborn, of Berkeley avenue, in which he seeks to recover for the building of the home occupied by the defendant. Mr Osborn, it is said, claims that the contract was not fulfilled, while the plaintiff declares that it was. Fire Chief T. O. Doane, who made an inspection of the dwelling for the contractor, has been called as one of the principal witnesses by the plaintiff.

"Home Dressmaking Week"

"I make my own clothes now," said a Bamberger shopper some time ago with utmost satisfaction. "I never dreamed that I could do it until I bought a pattern and tried. And now," she laughed, "I'm getting rich on the money I save." The man who heard, smiled to himself, then looked sober and said, "Why not?"

The "Why not?" has resulted in the inauguration of a brand new movement at the Bamberger store—HOME DRESSMAKING WEEK. This event starts Monday. It will not only offer many materials needed in the making of garments at special prices, but made-up garments of Barmberger materials will be displayed in the yard goods departments, and an adept lecturer will tell women how to make clothes economically. There are many other interesting features, among them patterns and fashion publications being given away free. Home Dressmaking Week is destined to be a big event. Be sure to come to the store this week.

DAILY LECTURES

Every woman who is interested in home sewing will be glad to know that as a special feature for Home Dressmaking Week we have engaged the services of

CHAPTER XXIII.

"I shall help you to run away."

"LISTEN to me," said McCan. "The spring thaw is here, an' the crust is comin' on the snow. It's the time to travel. I would run with no less a man than you."

"But you can't run," Smoke contradicted. "Your backbone is as limber as thawed marrow. If I run, I run alone. The world fades, and perhaps I shall never run."

Said Snass: "Your partner is dead My hunters did not kill him. They found the body, frozen in the first of the spring storms in the mountains. No man can escape. When shall we celebrate your marriage?"

And Labiskwee: "I watch you. There is trouble in your eyes, in your face. Oh, I do know all your face. When you are happy the corners of your mouth turn up. When you think sad thoughts they turn down. When you smile there are three and four wrinkles at the corners of your eyes. When you laugh there are six. But I cannot count them now.

"I have never read books. I do not know how to read. But Four Eyes taught me much. And in his own eyes I have seen the trouble of the hunger for the world. He was often hungry for the world. Is the world so good that you, too, are hungry for it? Four Eyes had nothing. But you have me."

She sighed and shook her head. "Four Eyes died still hungry for the world. And if you lived here always would you, too, die hungry for the world? I am afraid I do not know the world. Do you want to run away to the world?"

Smoke could not speak, but by his mouth corner lines was she convinced.

Minutes of silence passed in which she visibly struggled, while Smoke cursed himself for the unguessed weakness that enabled him to speak the truth about his hunger for the world while it kept his lips tight on the truth of the existence of the other woman.

Again Labiskwee sighed.

"Very well. I love you more than I fear my father's anger, and he is more terrible in anger than a mountain storm. You told me what love is. This is the test of love. I shall help you to run away back to the world."

* * * * * * *

Smoke awakened softly and without movement. Warm, small fingers touched his cheek and slid gently to a pressure on his lips. The one word "Come" was breathed in his ear. He sat up carefully and listened. Close at hand he could distinguish the light regular breathing of Snass.

Labiskwee tugged gently at Smoke's sleeve and he knew she wished him to follow. He took his moccasins and German socks in his hand and crept out into the snow in his sleeping moccasins. Beyond the glow from the dying embers of the fire she indicated to him to put on his outer footgear, and while he obeyed she went back under the fly where Snass slept.

Feeling the hands of his watch, Smoke found it was 1 in the morning. Labiskwee rejoined him and led him on through the sleeping camp.

"Now we can talk," she said when the last fire had been left half a mile behind.

In the starlight, facing him, Smoke noted for the first time that her arms were burdened, and, on feeling, discovered she carried his snowshoes, a rifle, two belts of ammunition and his sleeping robes.

"I have everything fixed," she said, with a happy little laugh. "I have been two days making the cache. There is meat, even flour, matches and skis, which go best on the hard crust, and, when they break through, the webs will hold up longer. Oh, I do know snow travel, and we shall go fast, my lover."

Smoke checked his speech. That she had been arranging his escape was surprise enough, but that she had planned to go with him was more than he was prepared for. Unable to plan immediate action, he gently, one by one, took her burdens from her. He put his arms around her and pressed her close, and still he could not think what to do.

"God is good," she whispered. "He sent me a lover."

Yet Smoke was brave enough not to suggest his going alone. And ere he spoke he saw all his memory of the bright world reel and fade.

"We will go back, Labiskwee," he said. "You will be my wife, and we shall live always with the Caribou people."

"No, no!" And her body, in the circle of his arm, resented his proposal. "I know. I have thought much. The hunger for the world would come upon you, and in the long nights it would devour your heart. Four Eyes died of hunger for the world; so would you die. And I will not have you die. We will go on across the snow mountains on the south traverse."

"Dear, listen," he urged. "We must go back."

She pressed her mitten against his lips to prevent further speech. "You love me. Say that you love me."

"I do love you, Labiskwee. You are my wonderful sweetheart."

Again the mitten was a caressing obstacle to utterance. "We shall go on to the cache," she said with decision. "It would be a great wrong to you to go back. I—I am only a wild girl, and I am afraid of the world, but I am more afraid for you. You see, it is as you told me. I love you more than anybody else in the world. I love you more than myself. The Indian language is not a good language. The English language is not a good language. The thoughts in my heart for you, as bright and as many as the stars—there is no language for them. How can I tell you them? They are there—see!"

As she spoke she slipped the mitten from his hand and thrust the hand inside the warmth of her parka until it rested against her breast. Tightly and steadily she pressed his hand in its position. And in the long silence he felt the beat, beat of her heart and knew that every beat of it was love. And then slowly, almost imperceptibly,

"We will go back, Labiskwee. You will be my wife."

still holding his hand, her body began to incline away from his and toward the direction of the cache. Nor would he resist. It was as if he were drawn by her heart itself that so nearly lay in the hollow of his hand.

So firm was the crust that they slid along rapidly on their skis.

"Just here, in the trees, is the cache," Labiskwee told Smoke.

The next moment she caught his arm with a startle of surprise. The flames of a small fire were dancing merrily, and crouched by the fire was McCan.

"I was minded you'd run without me," McCan explained when they came up, his small peering eyes glimmering with cunning. "So I kept an eye on the girl, an' when I seen her cachin skis an' grub I was on. I've brought my own skis an' webs an' grub. Will we be startin' now?"

Labiskwee looked swift consternation at Smoke, as swiftly achieved a judgment on the matter and spoke.

"McCan, you are a dog!" she hissed and her eyes were savage with anger. "I know it is in your heart to raise the camp if we don't take you. Very well. We must take you. But you know my father. I am like my father. You will do your share of the work. You will obey. And if you play one dirty trick it would be better for you if you had never run."

Daylight found them in the belt of foothills that lay between the rolling country and the mountains. McCan suggested breakfast, but they held on.

Labiskwee explained to Smoke her knowledge of the country and the way she planned to baffle pursuit. There were but two ways out, one west, the other south. Snass would immediately dispatch parties of young men to guard the two trails. But there was another way south. True, it did no more than penetrate halfway into the high mountains; then, twisting to the west and crossing three divides, it joined the regular trail. When the young men found no traces on the regular trail they would turn back in the belief that the escape had been made by the west traverse, never dreaming that the runaways had ventured the harder and longer way around.

Glancing back at McCan, in the rear, Labiskwee spoke in an undertone to Smoke. "He is eating," she said. "It is not good."

Smoke looked. The man was secretly munching caribou suet from the pocketful he carried.

"No eating between meals," he commanded. "There's no game in the country ahead, and the grub will have to be whacked in equal rations from the start. The only way you can travel with us is by playing fair."

By 1 o'clock the crust had thawed so that the skis broke through, and before 2 o'clock the web shoes were breaking through. Camp was made and the first meal eaten. Smoke took stock of the food. McCan's supply was a disappointment. So many silver fox skins had he stuffed into the bottom of the meat bag that there was little space left for meat.

Enough food for a month, with careful husbanding and appetites that never blunted their edge, was Smoke's and Labiskwee's judgment. Smoke apportioned the weight and bulk of the packs, yielding in the end to Labiskwee's insistence that she, too, should carry a pack.

Next day the stream shallowed out in a wide mountain valley, and they were already breaking through the crust on the flats when they gained the harder surface of the slope of the divide.

"Ten minutes later, and we wouldn't have got across the flats," Smoke said when they paused for breath on the bald crest of the summit. "We must be a thousand feet higher here."

But Labiskwee, without speaking, pointed down to an open flat among the trees. In the midst of it, scattered abreast, were five dark specks that scarcely moved.

"The young men," said Labiskwee.

"They are wallowing to their hips," Smoke said. "They will never gain the hard footing this day. We have hours the start of them. Come on, McCan. Buck up. We don't eat till we can't travel."

In the higher valley in which they now found themselves the crust did not break till 3 in the afternoon, at which time they managed to gain the shadow of a mountain where the crust was already freezing again.

Black darkness came on, after a long twilight, at 9 o'clock, when they made camp in a clump of dwarf spruce. McCan was helpless. The day's march had been exhausting, but in addition, despite his nine years' experience in the arctic, he had been eating snow and was in agony with his parched and burning mouth. He crouched by the fire and groaned while they made the camp.

In the night came wind and snow, and through the day of blizzard they fought their way blindly, missing the turn of the way that led up a small stream and crossed a divide to the west. For two more days they wandered, crossing other and wrong divides, and in those two days they dropped spring behind and climbed up into the abode of winter.

"The young men have lost our trail, an' what's to stop us restin' a day?" McCan begged.

But no rest was accorded. Smoke and Labiskwee knew their danger. They were lost in the high mountains, and they had seen no game nor signs of game. Day after day they struggled on through an iron configuration of landscape that compelled them to labyrinthine canyons and valleys that led rarely to the west. The terrible toil and the cold ate up energy, yet they cut down the size of the ration they permitted themselves.

One night Smoke was awakened by a sound of struggling. Distinctly he heard a gasping and strangling from where McCan slept. Kicking the fire into flame, by its light he saw Labiskwee, her hands at the man's throat and forcing from his mouth a chunk of partly chewed meat. Even as Smoke saw this her hand went to her hip and flashed with the sheath knife in it.

"Labiskwee!" Smoke cried, and his voice was peremptory.

The hand hesitated.

"Don't!" he said, coming to her side.

She was shaking with anger, but the hand, after hesitating a moment longer, descended reluctantly to the sheath.

McCan sat up, whimpering and snarling.

"Where did you get it?" Smoke demanded.

"Feel around his body," Labiskwee said.

BRIDAL GOWN.

Charming simplicity marks this wedding gown of time-honored white satin and real lace. The waist line is very high and girdleless, the bodice and sleeve of lace on one side has an over bodice of the white satin and a garland of artificial orange blossoms crosses the right shoulder. The lace is draped on the skirt in an unusual and extremely graceful manner. Here wide lace flouncing is gathered in a deep peplum at sides and back but becomes a scarf at the front where it is crossed loosely over the satin skirt and draped up at the back where it disappears under the watteau pleat of satin which also forms the square train.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

In addition to the legitimate attractions scheduled for appearance at the Plainfield Theatre, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday of this week, feature photo-plays will be presented today and tomorrow and also Thursday. The special screen production for today and tomorrow will be Robert Hilliard's greatest success, "A Fool There Was," a play that quickens the pulse and grips the heart. The popular serial, "The Master Key," is also scheduled for tomorrow, the succeeding episode being shown every Tuesday. Thursday's feature film will be an elaborate production entitled "When Broadway was a Trial," and in addition to this there will be the current installment of the Plainfield Theatre's second serial, "The Trey of Hearts." The latter picture is always shown on Thursday. Remember that the Plainfield Theatre offers only the very best and the very latest in the moving picture world and that popular prices prevail for both afternoon and evening performances.

William Anthony McGuire's play fashioned after the now famous song of a like title, "It's A Long Way to Tipperary," tells the story of a young Irish singer who on the eve of joining his much loved regiment, is wrongfully accused of treason to his country. As it should be in all good plays, virtue finally triumphs and valor is rewarded. Allen Doane, the hero, will sing his way into your hearts whether ye be Irish or not. You'll see it presented by an excellent company of artists under the direction of Gus Hill, at the Plainfield Theatre, Friday night.

The Daily Press will be glad to have its attention called to any misleading or untrue statement, if such should appear at any time in an advertisement in its columns.

ZUDORA

Ninth Episode Shown at Proctor's February 3, 1915.

"Kidnapped," or "The Mystery of the Missing Heiress."

Soon after Zudora's thrilling escape from the clutches of Chang, the Chinese hypnotist, in which John Storm and the mysterious Jim Baird played no small part, the sudden, strange disappearance of a child, destined to inherit millions, became the talk of the town. Zudora, like every one else, became interested in the case and determined if possible to solve it, although her uncle, Hassam Ali, busied himself with other things, often being mysteriously absent from the house for days at a time.

It was at this time that a certain Madame Duval, the beautiful, but somewhat mysterious woman, who was in the confidence of Chang in Episode Eight, was introduced to Zudora. Oddly enough, the girl, having been under Chang's hypnotic influence at the time, did not recall ever having seen her. Feeling a strange attraction for her new acquaintance, Zudora returned her call, although had Jim Baird known of it, the friendship of the two might have awakened some misgivings in his breast, for he evidently distrusts the charming fair one.

During Zudora's visit at Madame Duval's she was much puzzled at the coming and going of many strange guests, the mysterious conferences held and the frequency with which her hostess was called away. It was during one of these absences, that Zudora idly glanced at a newspaper on the table before her. An item in the personal column caught her eye and her fertile brain did the rest. Hardly waiting to say goodbye to Madame Duval she sets forth on what she believes is a clue to the whereabouts of the missing child. Nor is she far off the scent, for the hint she had received from the "personal" leads her to a deserted freight caboose in a little used railroad siding. Listening at the door she overhears the kidnappers discussing plans to get their victim in a safer place.

In the meantime Jim Baird has also been investigating certain clues, which have come into his possession. John Storm, also, informed by Zudora in a hasty note, of what she has learned, begins an investigation on his own account. Thus all three are eagerly hunting for the missing heiress. But it is Zudora, who first learns the whereabouts of the stolen child. Watching her opportunity, she is about to liberate the little one, when three members of the gang, returning suddenly and finding her, seize both Zudora and their captive, and imprison them in the old caboose, where Zudora had first overheard their plans.

Meanwhile Madame Duval, who has some mysterious connection with the forces that are opposing Zudora, becomes worried at the delay in bringing her plans to a successful issue. Acting under instructions evidently, the gang are seen placing an infernal machine in a car filled with gunpowder, which is next to the old caboose in which Zudora and the kidnapped child are imprisoned. An engine hooks up with the train and slowly moves off, hauling the caboose with it. In a few moments, the explosion is certain to take place and it seems that nothing can save the kidnappers' victims, unable to get out, from being blown to atoms.

But it is not to be. Jim Baird, who by some psychological instinct or perhaps because he is never really out of touch with Zudora's doings, always seems to be on hand at the time of Zudora's direst need, appears on the scene, just as the train is starting. Instinctively, he seems to sense the danger. Running swiftly forward, he makes a flying leap upon the rods at the side of one of the freight cars, climbs upon the roof of the powder car and makes his way to the caboose. He sees Zudora's terrified face at the window, and the sight lends him wings. Clambering down between the cars he uncouples the caboose from the train. And not an instant too soon. For hardly has the train gone half a city block before there is a tremendous explosion and the powder car disappears in a great cloud of white smoke.

It is but the work of a moment for Baird to batter in the door of the caboose and assist the frightened Zudora and her helpless companion to the ground. He dashes into the caboose again, hoping to find some evidence against the kidnappers. He has hardly finished his hurried search, when there is a sudden explosion.

Down the track comes running John Storm, too late to aid his sweetheart and frantic with apprehension. He comes up just in time to see Zudora and her little charge descend from the caboose and the next instant he holds her close in his arms. When they turn to thank Jim Baird, the man to whose heroism and resourcefulness they owed their rescue, it is to find him gone. He has vanished as utterly as the destroyed powder car.

Animal Jingles

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

BY ALICE CREW GALL

Portia Porcupine

The children of the neighborhood of which I'm going to tell,
Were well trained children, and they all behaved exceeding well.

Excepting Portia Porcupine, who was most impolite;
In spite of all her folks could do, her manners were a fright.

She'd point at things (which, as you know, is not the thing to do);
She "talked back" to her elders, and she made faces, too.

Then at the table—Oh, dear me! You should have seen her eat;
She always used her fingers for her pie and for her meat.

One day she had a lesson. A gray wolf chanced to see Miss Portia eat her meal and said: "Ha, there's the pig for me.

"I'll take her off and eat her up; a young pig will taste fine."
But Portia screamed: "I'm not a pig; I'm Portia Porcupine."

"I can't believe you," said the wolf, "for why under the sun
If you're not an ill-mannered pig should you behave like one?

"But if you are a Porcupine, you'd better mend your ways,
Or someone else will eat you for a pig one of these days."

I know that all the girls and boys who read of Portia's fright
Will mend their manners if they're bad and try to be polite.

Adventures in Matrimony

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Mother, can you mend the lining in my overcoat sleeve this afternoon? That bob-sled ride comes off tonight, and I'll need all my woolens."

His mother reached out her hand for the coat, as Bob threw himself into a wooden rocker with a feather cushion, and sat watching the mending operation, bent forward with his elbows on his knees and his hands clasped in front of him.

"Was bob-sled riding the proper caper in your day, mother?" he asked, looking at the alert face before him. A reminiscent smile was the only answer.

"Tell me about it," demanded the son, who had seen that smile before and knew a story lay behind it.

She paused in her work, and looked at him a moment over the top of her spectacles.

"I suppose you know that John Kingsley and your father were paying court to me at the same time," she began, dropping her eyes to her work.

"Yes," came encouragingly from Bob.

"Well, it was nip and tuck between them for a spell. I couldn't tell which one I cared for, and went with the one who asked me first, to the apple bees and parties. The young folks had been talking about a bob-sled ride ever since the first snow fell that winter, but before enough came to cover the ruts it thawed every time, so it was January before the sleighing was good enough to make it nice.

"The plan was to ride to a town eight miles away, have an oyster supper and ride home. Both boys had spoken of taking me, but I had put them off. The day before the party father brought home two notes for me, when he went to the store for the mail. I knew the handwriting of both boys and could easily guess what was inside. Which invitation should I accept? I could not decide, so I flipped a copper. Heads was for Jim Saunders and tails for John Kingsley."

Bob chuckled audibly. "Oh, mother, who would ever have dreamed it of you!"

"I wrote a note to Jim, saying I received John's note first," continued Mrs. Saunders, "which was not true. I only read it first. Jim was nettled. He knew his note was in the first mail after the party was decided on, so he would not go in the bob-sled with the rest, but took his two-year-old colt and new cutter and asked Molly Maple, a new girl who had moved here six months before.

"It was a cold, moonlight night and the colt wanted to go. As Jim tried to pass the load, coming home, our driver cracked his whip over the colt, just for fun, as he dashed by. The colt was afraid of a whip and began to rear and plunge, then dashed off in a straight run down the road. 'I believe that horse is running away,' said John. 'Let's hurry along.' The driver whipped up the horses and I, anxiously watching, soon saw the cutter ahead, then discovered that it was standing still.

"John called, 'Here comes Molly down the road; something's happened!' He sprang over the side of the sled as the team stopped, and I after him. The frightened girl was wringing her hands and crying, 'He's killed! The cutter struck a tree and he was thrown out. He's killed!'

"I could run fast in those days and away I sped up the road. I shall never forget the awful clutching at my heart as I saw Jim lying face up in the moonlight. I knew then which one I cared for. Kneeling in the snow I loosened his overcoat and listened to see if his heart was beating. I could hear it faintly. He was not dead. I sat down and took his head in my lap and began loosening his clothing and chafing his hands. I was bending over him when he came to, and our eyes met. Everything was settled between us in that look.

"Here's your coat," she added, handing it over.

There was silence for a moment as she finished speaking. Then Bob said:

"I am going to take John's daughter to the sleighing party tonight."

Household Hints

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES

To Unfortunate Sufferers From Biliousness, Malaria or Any Form of Ague—Buy dried raisins—those on the stem are best; boil them until they are soft and pour off the water. Take a half cup of this, warm, about a half hour before breakfast and as many times during the day as convenient and the strength of one's stomach will permit. In addition to this keep a plate of dried raisins near you as you would candy, and eat as many as possible. Before going to bed drink another half cup of the tea, warm and somewhat weakened. At this time of the year the decaying vegetation is especially hard on malaria victims. Let them keep out of the night air as much as possible, sleep on the second floor and open their windows from the top, never the bottom. If these simple rules are observed and the raisin remedy is faithfully adhered to, I can promise relief from one of the most prevalent and enervating diseases to which people are heir.

For Cold in Lungs—Take clean piece of cotton to fit chest or back. Spread with lard, then grate over a little nutmeg. Put on a few drops of oil of peppermint. Warm and apply to affected parts. Very good to prevent pneumonia.

THE TABLE

Roast Beef Hash—Chop remains of cold roast beef fine, season to taste, add minced onion, cook slowly (adding little water or milk) until mixture thickens. Have ready baked individual pastry shapes, fill these with hash, dot with butter. Place in oven until browned. Serve hot.

Onion Kuchen, No. 1—Make dough same as for any kind of kuchen. When it has risen ready to put in the tin (rolled quite thin), have the onions cut up rather coarse and let simmer very slowly in a large spoon of fat (don't let it fry to get brown). The onion can be got ready the day before if preferred. As soon as kuchen dough is put in the tin spread the onion all over it, add one cup cream and two eggs beaten and added to the cream; pour over cake and bake.

Onion Kuchen, No. 2—Proceed same as No. 1. Peel and cut up a nice pumpkin, stew it same as for pumpkin pie. Spread it on dough after putting in the tin, then add onion (to be cooked and got ready same as No. 1), then one-half cup good sweet cream, with one egg beaten and added to cream; pour over and bake. The kuchen made this way should not be allowed to raise again after being put in the tins, as that makes it soggy.

Thanksgiving Spice Cake—One cup bread sponge, one cup sugar, one cup raisins (chopped), one-half cup lard, one egg, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon allspice, one-half teaspoon cloves, one-fourth teaspoon salt; flour enough to make soft cake batter. Cream lard and sugar, add sponge; then egg (beaten), sour milk, raisins, spices and salt; lastly add flour and soda sifted together. Bake in loaf.

Hot Slaw—Cut half head cabbage fine, stew half hour, drain water off, add one tablespoon butter, four tablespoons vinegar, pepper and salt. Serve hot.

Nut Bread—One-half cup brown sugar, one-half cup granulated sugar, one cup sweet milk, one egg, two tablespoons melted butter, one cup chopped nuts, one-fourth teaspoon salt, three cups sifted flour, three teaspoons baking powder. Let raise three-fourths hour and bake three-quarters of an hour.

Popovers—Two eggs, one cup milk, one cup flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt. Beat eggs some, add milk to eggs. Into another bowl put flour and salt, pour milk and eggs gradually into flour, beating all the time. After smooth, beat with egg-beater for a minute. Put into well greased gem pans and bake in hot oven forty minutes. If not thoroughly done they will fall, but when properly baked are very large and light.

RUNAWAY JUNE

BY GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER AND LILLIAN CHESTER

By special arrangement for the Daily Press a photo-drama corresponding to the installments of "Runaway June," may now be seen at Proctor's Front Street Theatre each Thursday. By arrangement made with the Mutual Film Company it is not only possible to read "Runaway June" each week, but also afterward to see moving pictures illustrating our story.

THIRD EPISODE.

June Finds Work.

CHAPTER I.

DOWN the dark boulevard from Brynport weaved and bumped and rattled a lone taxicab, with a high powered limousine steadily gaining on it. A black Vandyked man in the limousine began to toss something out of the window as he passed the taxi at breakneck speed. He smiled as he heard a loud report like the explosion of a revolver, then another. He knocked on the driver's window, and as the car came to a stop he looked behind. The taxi had drawn up. He hastily replaced under the seat the hamper in which he had broken to bits all its porcelain and glassware. A tall, gaunt girl, distinctly a maid, was out, impatiently surveying the flat tires of the taxi, when the limousine, its bright dome light suddenly flashing up, backed alongside. The black Vandyked man stepped down.

"Perhaps I can offer your passengers the use of my machine," he suggested.

That relieved young woman opened the door of the taxi and poked her head inside.

"There ain't anything else we can do, Miss Junie," she whispered.

"I suppose not," came a sweet voice from the taxi, and the face of a beautiful young girl appeared in the window. She started as she saw the black Vandyked man, Gilbert Blye! He stood hat doffed, politely waiting their acceptance.

"Perhaps I can offer the use of my machine."

"You'd better go, miss," husked the taxi driver. "This old tub'll be here tomorrow morning."

June Warner slowly stepped down.

"Thank you," she managed to murmur.

"Sorry of you not to mention it. The favor is to me," Blye gallantly returned, while the maid began to transfer from the taxi to the other car arm load after arm load of unpacked clothing.

Around the curve behind them there flashed another limousine and a runabout in time for the occupants to see Gilbert Blye assisting June into the luxurious limousine. They also saw the eight cylinder machine leap forward. Blye, unconscious that they were being pursued, as was the girl, thought that he heard a shout as they gathered speed, and he looked back in time to see first the runabout and then the limousine swerve and slow down and to hear two loud bangs. He grinned. His driver grinned. The taxi driver grinned. Then they whizzed away.

"Why, you are the little runaway bride, the girl in the watch!" said Blye, leaning forward.

"Yes." And June blushed.

She felt the black eyes of Gilbert Blye fixed upon her. Could it be possible that he had followed her? Oh, no! Still, he had her address in her watch and her portrait.

"You were kind enough on the train, Mr. Blye, to offer to let me buy my watch, and I'll take it now, if you please."

"I'm very sorry I haven't it with me. But I shall see you another time, I am sure." He came back from the forward seat and sat with her.

Back near the abandoned taxi there was a frantic group. Ned Warner, his face as set as if it had been chiseled from marble, stood in the center of the road with his fists clinched until his nails dug into his palms. There could be no doubt now that Gilbert Blye's pursuit of Ned's wife, June, was deliberate and purposeful.

June's father strode slowly up and down, his lips compressed and his brows black. He passed Ned half a dozen times, but they did not exchange a word.

Bobbie Blethering and the driver of the Moore limousine had sprung out to repair their respective tires, but Iris Blethering, who had indulged in a few violent sobs as a preliminary to further action, suddenly discovered the economic waste. "Here, Bobbie," she called, "get back and help Jerry and let our car go. There's room for all of us in the limousine."

Up came Mrs. Blye's auto.

"You're to jump in with Mrs. Blye, Ned, and go straight on!" Iris shouted. "Get right in! Don't waste a minute!" And she fairly shoved the grim young husband of June Warner into the seat by the side of the determined wife of the man with the black Vandyke. The electric rolled away at its utmost speed.

At Blye's club the limousine stopped, while the black Vandyked man alighted. June smiled as she bade him good night, but she was very thoughtful nevertheless and troubled. Blye stood on the steps of the club and gazed after the receding car with a smile of satisfaction.

The limousine sped on to the address which Blye had given the driver. June studied the house earnestly. It was a smart looking building. The windows were brilliantly lighted, and in the parlor were three young ladies in rather striking evening dress. June gave the driver the address of a modest hotel.

Halfway to their destination June changed her mind. The modest hotel, she remembered, had a blazing lobby, and there was no way to pass in or out without being stared at. She gave the driver another address. Marie saw June's panic in her face. She found the little hands of June cold with nervous collapse.

"East!" she snapped to the driver. "I don't know the number. I'll tell you when we get there."

A few minutes later they stopped in front of a dingy looking building with no light in the vestibule. Marie jumped out and rang the doorbell. A woman came to the door. They exchanged a few brief words, and Marie ran down to the limousine.

"It's all right, Junie. Mrs. Boales has a nice back room for you and a cot for me."

June stepped from the car with a sigh of relief. A home of any sort was welcome now. It had been a long and exciting day.

"I know the room, Miss June," said Marie, sweeping past with her arms full of fluffles.

* * * * * * *

Blye was in front of his club with a gray mustached, jovial looking, pink faced man when the car returned.

"Where did you take her, Scatti?" Blye asked.

"She wouldn't stop at Mother Russel's," began Scatti confidentially "She"—

"We know that," interrupted the gray mustached man, Orin Cunningham.

"There was no number on the house, boss, but I can find it."

"Drive us there," directed Blye. Down on the dingy east side street he tried earnestly to pin down Scatti's dizzied memory. Up and down Blye moved, seeking in every window for some sign of the runaway bride. Suddenly his eye caught the glint of something in a vestibule. He ran up the steps. The glittering object was a buckle on a dainty little slipper, one which June's collie had carried down to the taxi for her when she had stolen her clothes and Marie from her father's house. He jotted the number of the house in a memorandum book.

CHAPTER II.

JUST where one turns from the Concourse into the narrow lane of the interminable Mott street construction work the Moore limousine overtook Honoria Blye's electric. Mrs. Blye let Ned alight. She drove home. Her husband had long since preceded her. From a secret drawer of his desk he took some papers and stuffed them in his pocket; then he called the abnormally ugly Blye maid to help him with a trunk.

They were in the hall with the luggage when Honoria let herself in. She seized the situation at a glance and without a word laid hold of the trunk. But Blye, aided by Scatti, dashed away.

Ned Warner meantime had driven straight to the apartments which he and June had fitted up. He leaped rapidly through the telephone directory, called a number and delivered his message. At the other end of the wire a red faced man listened and nodded, then called in from an adjoining room three men, who by some strange coincidence were lean and long and lanky. One was smooth faced and cadaverous of cheek, and one wore a sparse, haphazard black beard trimmed to a point.

There was a knock at the door. Three detectives had come from a private agency. Ned had given them a miniature of June.

Meanwhile Mrs. Blye in the presence of the parrot was also giving instructions to detectives. She gave them a photograph of Gilbert Blye and warned them that there was to be no publicity.

June, busy with her own thoughts, presently found the dark eyes of Marie fixed steadily on her in the glass. She missed Marie's red gums, which were always showing, but there was no smile in the French Canadian girl just now.

"Why did you leave him?" asked the maid.

"Money, Marie. Ned gave me some money."

"We were all so glad that Mr. Ned was going to be so good to you," Marie pathetically observed, "and you ran away from him because he was. You should go back. My sister's husband beats her."

June shook her head. "Get me a newspaper, Marie," she requested.

June had a new problem to confront now. She must earn a living, and it was a subject which she had never considered except in the vague haze of romance. When Marie returned with the paper she studied the want ads. with curious interest.

Meanwhile Blye and Orin Cunningham drove to the house where Blye had first directed June.

"Send Tommy down," directed Blye, pacing the floor thoughtfully.

Scatti, storing many things in his mind, turned his swarthy face toward the window and presently saw Tommy come into the room, the vivacious brunette girl whom June had seen. Scatti saw Cunningham rise and the three conversing earnestly. Blye showed Tommy the picture in the lid of the little gold watch. Tommy was not highly pleased from the very beginning. The men grew stern, and then Scatti saw them reduce her to submissiveness. She walked away and presently came back wearing an evening wrap of creamy colors. The three hurried out and got into the car. They drove down into the dingy east side street where June lay in the sleep of blessed rest. Blye had Tommy take careful note of the house.

CHAPTER III.

JUNE bustled quite cheerfully about her toilet the next morning and chose a little dark gray suit as being the least conspicuous, for now she was to be a working girl.

Suddenly there was a wheezing and a rustling at the door and a scraping as if some one were bending to listen at the keyhole, a silence and then a knock. It was Mrs. Boales.

"There's a young lady to see you, Miss—Miss"—

"Justin," snapped Marie, who had given that name by a brilliant flash of intellect.

"Yes, Mary," wheezed Mrs. Boales.

"That wasn't the name the young lady gave. First she said Moore, and then she said Warner, and then she said that Justin was right, she guessed, but she said 'June' every time, and she brought this slipper. Is it yours?"

"Who is the young lady?" asked June.

"Miss Thomas, Miss—ma'am." Mrs. Boales' constantly roving eye came to rest on the solitaire and the plain gold band on June's finger. "She said she came to see you about a position."

June cast down her eyes in troubled thought. Blye—he had said he would send some one for her in the morning Was there no evading the man's kindness? How had he— Absurd! Of course he had got her address from the driver of the car. She went down the stairs in worried concern, but in the doorway of the parlor she stopped in astonishment as she saw her caller. For a moment the two beautiful young women stood studying each other in admiration; then the brunette swept forward with a gracious smile.

Later June called up the stairs, "I'll be back some time this afternoon, Marie." Then June went out with Tommy Thomas!

* * * * * * *

Honoria Blye, sitting at her parlor window and exchanging the thoughts of the morning with her green feathered familiar spirit, saw loafing across from her house a long, lean, lanky man with a sparse black beard. Presently the doorbell rang, and one of the wide, low detectives came in with an air of great exhaustion.

"Nothing doing, ma'am," he reported. "Blinky Peters and I watched your husband's club all the time. Sneaky Tavis has shadowed Warner's apartments, and I'm to go let him get some sleep."

"Are you sure my husband and that girl haven't left the city?" she asked.

"They didn't go from any regular railroad station," stated Bill Wolf, with conviction.

Ned Warner at about the same time received a report of similar discouragement from the long, lean, lanky detective. There had been found no trace of June Warner nor of Blye.

Without thought of detectives, but keeping a watchful eye lest she should see Ned or her parents, June went boldly forth. She was thoughtful as Tommy Thomas ushered her into a waiting hansom, for this friend of Gilbert Blye's was expensively gowned and seemed to live in unusual freedom.

In one of the big department stores June was taken up to the manageress of the French salon; then Tommy went away, and presently June, whose face and figure, carriage and manner, had been grimly inspected and approved, was being instructed in the art of parading in a gown and of displaying the proper degree of elegant insolence to impress customers.

A sleepy looking colored maid came in, and some girls brought in gowns shrouded in white bags.

"The canary, Maud," ordered the manageress, poking her head between the curtains, and the sleepy colored maid slowly took down the bag containing the canary evening frock. "What is your first name, child?"

"June," answered that young lady.

"Your name here will be Therese," added the manageress. "You haven't done this before, have you?"

"No." June's voice was faint and weak. She had a queer feeling in her stomach, and her eyes began to widen again as she studied an appalling array of cosmetics.

"Never mind. I'll be in and make you up."

At last June was to know how it felt to earn one's own living. She had mingled exhilaration and depression in the contemplation of that remarkable experience.

As June peered out of her dressing alcove a middle aged man and woman paused in a vigorous argument. The woman wanted money, and the man would not give it. Then June was called and came out and paraded slowly down between the two long rows of chairs. There were a hundred or more women and some men. Occasionally one of the women beckoned to her and made her turn and walk away and come back.

She had displayed perhaps half a dozen gowns when the middle aged man and woman obstructed her passageway as she came out of the alcove. They were still in an energetic dispute about the money. A hundred dollars the woman wanted, and she had to have it! The man finally left her.

A lady from a group where a gray mustached man with a pink face and jovial eyes was standing came over and spoke to the woman. The woman listened, her eyes following June as she walked in a beautiful black velvet dinner gown. The woman spoke to a saleslady.

"I want that gown!" she snapped.

"Certainly, madam," said the saleslady.

"Tell her to take it off now," ordered the customer. "It's a charge account."

So June was unceremoniously rushed into her alcove and divested of the black velvet gown, while the charge account went up. The gown was taken away. The woman had a girl carry it to the credit department, said she had bought the gown, didn't care for it and wanted the money. $135.

The manager of the credit department expostulated with the woman as far as diplomacy would permit. It was not unusual to have credit customers bring back goods and demand cash, but it was unusual to have it done so quickly. However, she was a good customer, and her bills were always paid.

The woman rejoined her friend in front of June's dressing alcove and triumphantly displayed the money. The husband of the customer came up, furious. He had been to the credit desk and discovered the deception. A little group quickly formed around the middle aged husband and wife.

It was at this moment that Blye appeared by the side of the gray mustached man, and with him was Tommy Thomas! Blye nodded his head to Cunningham and said something to Tommy. She strolled with quite evident reluctance across the floor.

"Your turn, dear," said the manageress to June and frowned in the direction of the group.

"I give you everything you want," charged the man. "No woman in this town has more. You can go into any shop in New York and order what you like, and I pay your bills. Yet you graft on me!"

"You give me everything but money!" shrilled the woman. "I beg for every cent I get!"

To give on the one hand and to beg on the other! It was a striking illustration of the principle which had led June away from Ned. That the woman is and must remain an object of charity, depend upon the bounty of the man whom she marries! No matter how generous the man might be nor how penurious, the principle was the same.

The gray mustached man called the manageress.

"I would like to see that little white dress," he said, indicating June, who had on another frock.

"Certainly," replied the manageress. She hurried over to June and said, "Come, Therese!"

A warm hand caught June's wrist, and a voice said:

"You're stunning! What's the fight about?"

Tommy Thomas it was.

The two girls stood listening.

The gray mustached man rose.

"If this is the sort of attention I receive in this shop I will give it no more of patronage," he declared angrily to the manageress.

Blye, smiling, saw the superintendent enter and called his attention to the gray mustached man, and the superintendent hurried over and met Orin Cunningham, whose cheeks puffed with anger.

"What is the matter?" asked the superintendent.

"Matter!" blazed Cunningham. "I've been asking this saleswoman for half an hour to let me see that little white dress," he pointed to June, "and I am ignored, sir!"

The superintendent turned to the manageress. "Madam Effing, what is the trouble?"

"It's a new model," explained the manageress. "I can't get her to pay any attention to me."

"Then discharge her at once!" ordered the superintendent and turned on his heel.

Madam Effing stalked straight over to June.

"You are discharged!" she snapped.

"Oh!" June was stunned.

"No excuses, please!" grated the manageress.

"Madam!" called the vivacious Tommy Thomas, but madam only glared at her and stalked away, while June walked into her dressing alcove to know, with sympathy for all the other girls in her position, just how it feels to be discharged.

Meantime Tommy Thomas, the look of concern fading from her handsome countenance, hurried over and joined Orin Cunningham and Gilbert Blye. The three left the department.

When June emerged from her dressing alcove Madam Effing was there and without a word gave her a little yellow envelope. With this in her hand June walked out into the street, saddened with the realization that, after all, the way to independence is full of hardships and that bounty might have its advantages.

Gilbert Blye was waiting for her at the corner, suave, pleasant, smiling. She had never met a man who raised his hat with more courtly grace than he. He asked if he might walk with her a little way, and she saw no reasonable excuse to refuse him after his consideration of the morning. He sympathized with her, and he extended his walk to the door of her lodgings. He held her hand a moment overlong in parting, and the wheezing Mrs. Boales, her cold eye looking from the area window, saw him bending over her in smiling persuasion.

There were unhappy dinners in New York that night. Ned Warner, afraid to leave the headquarters he had established, had his dinner brought in by a thick thumbed waiter, who carried each course out into the hall and ate it himself, since Ned had scarcely touched it. June, her thoughts all on Ned and her father and mother, had her lonely meal in the little back bedroom with Marie to serve and to grieve over each untasted dish. John Moore and his wife, their faces gray, sat on opposite sides of the table, which had so suddenly become big, and sent back to round, black old Aunt Debby the delicacies she had prepared with such deep affection. June's collie, Bouncer, out in the shed nibbled perfunctorily at a chicken bone and rose whining at every sound. Bobbie and Iris Blethering, the latter June's bosomest bosom friend, disgraced the hollow butler by omitting their salad and dessert and having their coffee right at the table. Honoria Blye sat opposite the parrot and every time it squeaked shrilled at it to shut up. The abnormally ugly maid nearly had her head bumped for offering to remove the bird, and when during the offer she laid her hand on the cage the demon bit her finger until the blood came.

* * * * * * *

Bill Wolf, the flattest and widest of Honoria's detectives, later rang the Blye bell and bulked back to the dining room in excitement.

"Got him!" announced Bill.

Gilbert Blye's wife was already on her feet.

"My hat and coat!" she shrieked to the abnormally ugly maid.

"Is she with him?" demanded Honoria.

"I don't know. My partners are watching the front and back doors. Come!"

Honoria bundled the flat, wide detective into her electric and started the machine.

"Where?" she majestically demanded.

"Riverside drive! I'll show you the place!"

"Is he still in, Blinky?" demanded Bill Wolf, tumbling out of the machine and landing right end up.

Blinky Peters was too good a detective to answer in words. He gave an upward toss of his round head and a wink of his fishlike eye and walked into the building with an air of not having seen Bill Wolf at all.

"Fifth!" ordered Blinky, leaning over to whisper that magic word mysteriously into the ear of the curly haired elevator boy. The boy did not mind. He was used to all sorts. He sent up the elevator with a jerk. Out at the fifth floor. First door to the right. Now! A ring at the doorbell. Hush!

The door swung open, and immediately Bill Wolf pushed in. The others crowded after him.

"There he is, ma'am!" shouted Bill, plunging into the next room, and Honoria Blye saw in June Warner's drawing room the tall, lean, lanky detective with the sparse black beard, who was the caricature of her handsome husband! Ned Warner followed in from the reception room.

"What am I to understand by this, Mrs. Blye?" he inquired.

"You ought to know, you!" gruffly charged "Sneaky" Tavis, who had followed the others, and, whirling, he pointed at the caricature. "That's her husband!"

"Shut up!" squawked Mrs. Blye and went home.

Gilbert Blye at that time was quite far from the scene of Honoria's capture or even of Ned's wanderings. He was dining with Tommy Thomas, and a rather elderly woman, and a doll-like girl with swiftly advancing crow's feet at the corners of her eyes, and Orin Cunningham, and a heavy lidded, short haired, big man named Edwards, whom they called T. J. With the arrival of the coffee Blye told the time from a tiny gold watch, the only one he carried now.

"The runaway bride!" laughed Cunningham.

"I'm in a hurry," Blye explained. "I told you when we came here that I had to leave at 8."

"Of course we know where you are going," Tommy challenged him.

June was sitting in her lonely little bedroom waiting for Marie, whom she had sent out to a drug store for toilet articles. Mrs. Boales suddenly knocked.

"A gentleman to see Miss Justin," she announced, "a gentleman with a black beard and a diamond ring and a gold filling in one tooth. He says it's Mr. Blye. I lit the parlor lamp for him."

June wondered what she should do.

Ned Warner, riding aimlessly and disconsolately on a street car and looking out earnestly at every passerby, suddenly caught sight of one pedestrian who made his heart jump. Marie! She was jogging industriously along with a bundle under her arm and a very clear idea of direction apparent in her very speed. Ned ran after her. At the Boales door Marie heard the sound of running footsteps, turned with normal curiosity, saw Ned, let herself in at the door and closed it with a slam, snapped on the night lock and flew upstairs.

"He's coming, Miss June!" she cried. "Mr. Ned!"

Ned! June's heart leaped within her, and for a moment she was flooded with a mad impulse to run down and be folded in his arms and forgiven. No! She must be strong for her own sake and for his, for the sake of their ultimate mutual self respect and the fullness of the love which can be founded on that alone.

"Meet me at that little hotel to which we were first going," she directed Marie hastily, and, snatching her hat and coat, she hurried down the stairs and out of the back door.

June had forgotten Gilbert Blye absolutely, but he had not forgotten her. He had been requested to wait, and Mrs. Boales, having correctly guessed that June wanted the invaluable Marie present at the interview, had been kind enough to inform Blye to that effect. Blye saw June in flight and followed her.

Mrs. Boales answered a violent knocking at the door to find herself confronted by the wild eyed Ned Warner.

"Where is my wife?" he demanded.

"What's her name?"

"Warner, Mrs. Ned Warner!"

"No. There's a Mrs. Wompel here, but she says her husband's dead, and a Mrs. Smith. Her husband gets home every Saturday night. And—say, what's her first name?"

"June. She's here! I saw her maid just come in! Marie! Where are they?"

"That's her!" Mrs. Boales was pleased. "Some calls her Moore and some Warner and some Justin, but her name's always June. There's a black whiskered man here to see her now. Name's Blye. He's in the parlor." And she craned in at the parlor door with scarcely a shift of her position.

"No, he ain't! Has he dared to go up to her room in my house?"

Ned burst past her and sprang up the stairs.

"First door to the right!" yelled Mrs. Boales.

Nothing happened. Ned burst in at the first door to the right. The room was empty!

Then up climbed Mayme Bates, the maid.

"If it's Miss Justin you're hunting," said Mayme, "I saw her and a black whiskered gentleman go out of the back door not more than three minutes ago!"

Ned Warner plunged down the stairs faster than he had gone up and slammed out of the back door, to find himself confronted by the endless universe! To the right or to the left? And when he reached the alley mouth, which way then? Right or left?

In the meantime the driven June, hurrying aimlessly, looked back at every turning to see if the man she loved were following her.

At each turning a dark figure, quicker than she, sprang into hiding behind tree trunk or gatepost or doorway or corner, selecting each hiding place before he left the last. And the figure was Gilbert Blye, black Vandyked, swaggering of gait and smiling.

LEALS DROPPED ONE TO GOTHAM QUINTET

Tight Game Resulted in a Scrappy Decision for the Home Team.

In a closely contested game on the New York court, Saturday afternoon, the Leal School basketball team, of this city, succumbed to a 34 to 27 defeat administered by the Columbia Grammar School quintet, of New York city. The Gothamites indulged in some rough work at the expense of the athletes from the Skeeter State and this to some extent handicapped the localites.

At the culmination of one period of play the Plainfielders were one point behind in the race and fell back during the second session. Fast basketball predominated, the Manhattan youths performing cleverly.

ALL READY FOR OPENING OF SPORTSMEN'S SHOW

New York's National Sportsmen's Show will blossom forth revived and rejuvenated February 20, at the Grand Central Palace. There will be heads and horns of all North America's hoofed game antelope, deer, elk, moose and the bison, besides lots of live mammels and birds. There are at least, now, a hundred men who fish to one who hunts in "this neck of woods," and while the expert and finicky dry fly fisherman, with his finesse of fly casting with light tackle looms up large in the limelight he represents a small element compared to the hosts who land salt water fishes ranging from the toothsome tom cod to the royal tarpon.

At this coming old-fashioned Sportsmen's Show, which its manager, Captain J. A. H. Dressel thought up and started just twenty years ago, while Dave Aberorombie and the fly casting fans are doing their fine Italian hand work over a tank on the Palace roof the disciples of St. Peter, the fisherman, will be swapping fish stories in their snug harbor on the main floor of the big show. The United Anglers' League of Manhattan and Brooklyn, with tentacles like a devil fish reaching into all directions, will represent the amateur salt water fishing interests.

Dr. Benj. M. Briggs is the president and Gus Christmas, 107 Bushwick avenue, is the secretary. The league has 550 active members. In a fitly decorated space the league will hold forth in the Sportsman Show and its exhibition committee is headed by Dr. Carleton Simon, enthusiast, as chairman. Affiliated with the league, will be the famous Midland Beach Fishing Club and the new Gulf Casting Club of America. During the show the world-famous authority in piscatorial sport, Louis Rhead, will deliver two lectures on "How to Rig Up" for both fresh water and salt water angling. The league is the live wire of America in leading the work of getting legislation for the conservation of salt water fishes in American waters.

BERNARDSVILLE TRIP IS AGAIN A FIZZLE

North Plainfield Athletes and Their Friends Are Left Stranded.

The North Plainfield High School basketball team, accompanied by a large number of rooters, made a trip to Bernardsville, Saturday night, to keep a date arranged by Manager Duclos VanMater, but upon arrival it was found that through a misunderstanding the Bernardsville manager had expected the boroughites in the afternoon and had his team ready for the game. When the local party arrived at the hall it was practically deserted and it was impossible to stage a game as several of the High School players live out of town. Rev. T. A. Conover, rector of the chapel in which the games are played, made thing as pleasant as possible for the disappointed visitors and allowed them to dance for some time before starting on the return trip.

Those who composed the party are the Misses Jubilee Rowley, Marielle Dunham, Margaret Ewart, Margaret Brizzie, Lillian Spencer, Marian Chandler, Adelaide Ricketts, Theresa McCullough, Marian Blair and Anna Warnock, and Halbert Hutchinson, Sherman Chandler, Roscoe VanCamp, James Goodwin, Frank Dunning, Duclos Van Mater, Ralph Smalley, Elmer French, Edson Day, Warren Townley, Hyman Abrams, Ronald Conroy, Bob Hebert, Harold Lunger, Appleton VanMater and Jerry O'Connor. Miss Ethel Barnard chaperoned the party.

F. O. B. LEAGUE ON HOMEWARD TRAIL

Last Matches Scheduled Will Be Rolled Off This Week.

This week marks the finish of the F. O. E. Bowling League, three matches being scheduled. At present the Newark aerie leads the league and has a fine chance of retaining first honors. The Newarkers have two matches to play, both of which should prove easy, they being against Progress and Somerville. The Elizabeth team, which is making a strong bid for the top rung, will meet Progress in the last game of the schedule and will need all three games.

The Plainfield and Rahway teams, of the Elks' Senior League, will play this week on Thursday night at Rahway, while tonight the local Junior team will take a trip to New Brunswick.

There will be matches two nights this week in the Elks' House League, and the Park Club will hold its regular week-end competition. The Columbus Club League is also drawing to a close and unless something most unexpected happens, the Robins will lead after the last match has been played. They only need two games out of the remaining six to cop this honor, while the Sparrows need all the games left for them to play in order to make a tie.

BARACA PINNERS WON THREE FROM RAHWAY

The Baraca Class bowling team, of Dunellen, scored three victories over the Rahway Y. M. C. A. five at Dunellen, Saturday night. The home pinners had everything their own way in all three games, and split the pins in a far superior manner than its opponents.

The Rahway team's highest team score was 769, made in the first game when the Baracas hit for 828.

CITY TITLE GOES TO Y. M. C. A. FIVE

Hope Chapel Lost Second and Deciding Game for Honors Saturday Night.

Outclassing their opponents in every department of the game, and going at their very best, the Y. M. C. A. basketball aggregation copped the city championship from the Hope Chapel crew on the Chapel court, Saturday night, the final score being 66 to 15. This is the second and last game of the series, the first meeting being of a more interesting nature. Hope was never in the running from the first whistle to the last, as the passing and accurate shooting of the association players was too much for them even on their home court.

Burner and Glover played excellent games at guard and not only held the opposing forwards to one field goal between them, but also aided in the scoring department, Burner getting one field goal and Glover counting for six points. Taylor and Captain Brynairski started at forward and played the first half. Walls and Heron could not find the basket but the latter managed to get one from the field. In the second half Ricketts and Moulton played forward for the association team, and although Moulton did not score a basket he played a fine passing game and fed his teammates who piled up the score. Gavett was in the game at all times and was high scorer, geting twelve of the two-point variety.

Guy Snyder played the best game for Hope, getting two field goals and putting up a good exhibition at guard. Captain Tommy Heron was credited with six foul goals, while Anderson made the fourth field goal. This victory gives the association five the undisputed title of the city.

The Philadelphia team, of the Y. M. C. A. Employed Boys' Department, walloped the Boston quintet Saturday night, by a score of 38 to 2. ELKS VS. PARK CLUB.

The Elks' and Park Club bowling teams will play the first match of the new series, tomorrow night, on the Washington avenue drives. Each club won three games in the first match and it was decided to start another series instead of bowling the rubber off on a neutral court.

ATHLETE INJURED LEG IN Y. M. C. A. BASKETBALL GAME

Oscar Dilts, of Jackson avenue, a member of the Marathon basketball team, sustained a severe injury to his leg in the game at the Y. M. C. A., Saturday night. Although the injury was received during the first half of the contest, he finished the game and afterwards attended a party at the home of one of the members on Grant avenue.

Since then he has been detained at home under the care of Dr. Blair, who thinks the injury consists of a strain of the muscles and nerves, but does not entertain fear of any permanent results.

THE TRIP OF ALL STARS WAS FINANCIAL SUCCESS.

Each Player Who Made Tour to Honolulu Cleaned Up $1,321.95.

The most successful exhibition trip ever taken by a couple of ball teams was that completed by the All American-All National, who closed their long tour at San Diego Dec. 27.

Not only did the clubs have a wonderfully interesting journey to the west as far as Honolulu, but each man in the party cleaned up about $1,300 above all expenses. Frank Bancroft, the Reds' business manager, who was in sole financial charge of the trip, recently gave out the exact figures of the venture, which incidentally proved that Alexander of the Phillies was the most successful pitcher of the trip.

The two clubs started Oct. 18 and were gone ten weeks. They went over the Northern Pacific, playing in all the principal cities en route and in all the California towns of importance. They wound up their excursion with a trip to Honolulu, which was hugely enjoyed by all in the party.

The two teams played forty-four decisive games, of which the Nationals won twenty-three and the Americans twenty-one. In addition to these contests there were two tie games and four games with outside teams, all of which were won by the all stars.

Each team used four pitchers, whose records were as follows:

National.	W.	L.	American.	W.	L.
Alexander	10	4	Bush	6	4
Vaughn	6	3	James, St. L.	8	5
James, Boston.	3	5	Mitchell	3	5
Tesreau	4	2	Cole	4	5

The trip was so successful that each player received $1,321.95 for his share of the receipts. This was above all expenses of the trip except fare and board to Honolulu, which each player had to pay out of his own pocket. Of course all the boys spent some money in addition to their absolutely necessary expenses, but nearly every one reached home on New Year's day with close to $1,000 in velvet sewed away in his tick. Quite a good autumn's work.

Bancroft says that the boys behaved themselves perfectly all the way and put up great ball in every contest. There was no hippodroming, but they all played as if more than a little temporary glory depended on the result of each game. Of all the pitchers Alexander outshone the bunch. He pitched the most games and was always on deck ready to help out. Bancroft says that the American league players were a unit in declaring that Alexander is the best pitcher in the country, even having something on Walter Johnson.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Anna M. Albert, of Warrenville, to William M. Darling, of Bound Brook, formerly of Plainfield. Mr. Darling recently accepted a position as advertising manager of the State-Centre Record.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

"Every dog has its day," runs an old saying. Plainfield canines certainly had their full innings Saturday. Give the returns the "once-over" and see just what kind of bow-wows we have in our midst. (The foregoing refers to the four-legged variety).

Hope Chapel is no more. The team that in previous years gave the Y. M. C. A. outfit such a race for the city title was completely smothered by the association boys Saturday night. The Chapelites looked more like a bunch of novices at the pastime than the old reliable product of the Fourth street court.

Once more that Bernardsville trip had its hazards for the borough schoolboys. Last year the "Canadians" got stuck in the mud and this year they found the countryites stuck in bed when they arrived. Well, they had that much talked of trip anyway and everybody's happy.

A couple of days ago somebody was talking about an ice carnival in these diggings. Today an aquatic meet would be more appropriate.

Some of the feminine "finest" in basketball have threatened us with a "hair-pulling" and a few other chastisements for a little rub we administered to girls' exhibitions in these columns one afternoon last week. Well, we'll lift the ban temporarily and see what you can do at the Coulmbus Club Thursday night.

Take a glance at the bowling schedule for the week and see what the alleyites have on tap. They'll be burning the drives from now until Saturday.

Jimmy Callahan Gets Job As Sox Business Manager

JIMMY CALLAHAN, for some time manager of the Chicago White Sox, has been made business manager, and he will relieve Owner Comiskey of much of the detail of running the team. Callahan is popular with fans as well as the players, and retaining him with the organization is a wise move. It also means that Clarence Rowland, the new manager, will not be bothered with business affairs and can devote his energies to the playing department. Callahan will not be seen in uniform any more.

CLASS TEAM LEADERS.

The captains and managers of the girls' class basketball teams of the Plainfield High School, were elected Friday with the following results: Freshmen, Helen Peacock, captain; Florence Ryder, manager; sophomore, Dorothy Crane, captain; Elsa Palmer, manager; senior, Ruth Morris, captain; Margaret Eaton, manager. The freshmen team has arranged to play the North Plainfield Sophomores in the High School gym, February 13.

BOWKER PLANT EMPLOYES ARE VOLUNTARY PRISONERS

Indications are that the members of the New Jersey Legislature appointed to probe the conditions at Roosevelt, will begin their work today or tomorrow. Assemblyman William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, is a member of this committee. The sixth day of the strike at the Bowker plants in Elizabeth, passed yesterday without scenes of disorder or violence in spite of the bad weather conditions.

Two hundred employes of the Bowker Chemical Works passed Saturday night and yesterday within the factory. Everything possible was done to make the week-end as pleasant as possible for the voluntary prisoners and many of their wives and children visited them last night. The Elizabeth police are still stationed at the plant and good work is being done in maintaining order.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The World Film Corporation has released the five-part photo-play, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and it will be shown at Proctor's today and tomorrow. Alice eHgan Rice, the authoress, also wrote "Lovey Mary," and this picture is a composite presentation of the two themes which inter-act to comprise the story that forms the basis of the photo-play scenario. Mrs. Anne Crawford Flexner dramatized the books under the title "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," which was first produced in September, 1903. Beatriz Michelena plays the part of "Lovey Mary" in the photo-play. Miss Michelena, by her beauty and ability, has won great renown as a motion picture star, and is seen to advantage in this film. Blanche Chapman plays the part of Mrs. Wiggs.

WOMEN VOTE TO AID RELIEF PLAN

Monday Afternoon Club Appropriates $100 at Annual Meeting.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

Organization Also Decides to Abandon Annual Entertainment and Give An Informal Reception on April 22—Plans for Next Year.

The election of officers, presentation of reports for the past year and a discussion of plans for the coming year comprised the chief business at the annual meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance and considerable interest and enthusiasm were evidenced in the discussion of club work and the choice of officers.

An important action of the club was the decision not to give the annual entertainment this year on account of the apparent great need for relief in this city, and the women voted $100 to be expended by the executive committee for relief work where in its judgment it is most needed.

Instead of the annual entertainment the club will hold an afternoon reception on April 22, at which there will undoubtedly be combined some of the features of the musicale which was announced for March 29, and which has been given up because it comes in Holy Week.

The women in discussing plans for next year decided to continue the three departments of study, literature, art and civics, and it will be left to the executive committee to prepare the program as usual. The reports showed that the past year had been a successful one. The membership now is 187. Attention was called to the attractive features of this year's program to be presented by the different departments.

Mrs. Orton G. Dale, the retiring president who has served for two years, directed the business of the afternoon. The officers chosen for the coming year are as follows:

President, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite; vice-presidents, Mrs. John M. Whiton, Mrs. Frank O. Herring and Miss Emelyn B. Hartridge; recording secretary, Mrs. Maybury B. Mellor; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank W. French; treasurer, Mrs. F. Wilbur Cornwell. The committees will be announced later by the newly-elected president.

TWO DAY RAINFALL HAS BROKEN RECORD

Past Forty-eight Hours Has Been Productive of 4.12 Inches.

During the past forty-eight hours the precipitation record was greater than the average for any month during 1914, according to statistics compiled by Weather Prophet John Neagle. The total recorded was 4.12 from 8:45 Sunday morning to 8:45 this morning, while in the last year the average figure was 4:11, leaving a margin of one one-hundredth point.

Reports of temperature submitted for the month of January by Mr. Neagle are given as follows: Average, 33.3; normal, 29.4; excess over normal, 3.9; highest, 59 on the 18th and 19th; lowest, 10 on the 30th; greatest daily range, 27 on the 5th; least daily range, 5 on the 27th; highest record for January in twenty-eight years, 70 in 1906; lowest record for January in twenty-eight years, 13 below zero in 1904.

The precipitation records for the month follow: Total, 6.90; normal, 3.89; greatest amount of hours, 2.80 on the 12th and 13th; greatest number of hours with precipitation, 30; total snowfall, 2.2 inches; normal snowfall, 9.0; greatest monthly amount recorded in January during the past twenty-eight years, 1.68 in 1896; greatest twenty-four-hour rainfall recorded in January in twenty-eight years, 2.80 in 1915.

COUNCIL'S ACTION PLEASES THE MAYOR

His Recommendation for Public Hearings Adopted at February Meeting.

Mayor Leighton Calkins, in commenting on the action of the Common Council, last night, relative to the adoption of resolutions providing for a wider publicity of city and school budgets, said today:

"I am pleased with the action of the Council last night in acting favorably on my recommendation that the finance committee publish its tentative budget, and arrange for public hearings thereon. The Council also acted favorably on the recommendation that the Board of Education be requested also to have a public hearing on its own budget. Every reasonable effort should be made to secure the greatest degree of advance publicity about proposed municipal expenditures.

"It makes no difference whether the people attend public hearings on budgets or not. The essential thing is that they shall have the opportunity. I think it will be found that the school authorities will express themselves as willing to co-operate with the city to the fullest extent, in all these plans for enlarging the opportunities for the people to know about the details of their government."

COUNCIL ACCEPTS F. J. HUBBARD'S OFFER

He Will Provide City Assessment Maps for the Sum of $900.

The Common Council at its February meeting last night, accepted the offer of Frank J. Hubbard, civil engineer to make the survey, revise, print and bind the city assessment maps for the sum of $900. This action was taken in accordance with two resolutions offered by Mr. Claybrook, one providing for the survey, etc., for which Mr. Hubbard is to be paid $490 and the other for the revising, printing and binding the maps for which he is to receive $410. These maps are to conform to the requirements of the State Board of Assessors, according to a new law. In addition the sum of $125 was appropriated for the transfers of properties on the city maps, this work to be done under the supervision of Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett.

Councilman John H. Cose opposed the expenditure of $900 for making and revising the assessment maps without advertising for bids. He did not think that anyone of the councilmen would think of expending nearly $1,000 without first securing estimates. "There should have been two bids," said Mr. Cose, "and this thing looks suspicious to me. The whole thing is practically one job and yet it is divided in half bringing the expenditure under $500 so that it is not necessary to advertise for bids. I for one shall oppose the resolutions."

Mr. Cose was the only one to vote against these two resolutions, while he and Mr. Blatz voted against the resolution appropriating $125 for transfers on the city maps.

Mr. Claybrook explained the resolutions which provided for the $900 expenditure by saying that last year's Council authorized this work concerning the maps and Mr. Hubbard as well as Mr. Gavett had already accomplished much along that line. The Council had been able to get the State Board of Assessors to approve certain maps now in possession of the city and where it was originally thought that this work might cost the city possibly $2,000 or more, it will only cost $900 to secure assessment maps that will be approved by the State board.

VISITED LOCAL SCHOOLS.

Representing the Board of Education of Westfield, N. Y., A. H. Nixon visited Superintendent of Schools Henry M. Maxson at the Plainfield High School yesterday for the purpose of inspecting the new building on West Ninth street. The Westfield Board is contemplating the erection of a similar structure and it is proposed to adopt specifications such as those used here.

The McAll Auxiliary will meet Wednesday morning, February 3, at 11 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

WILL CELEBRATE "BOY SCOUT DAY"

Local Troops Ordered to Attend Services in Full Regalia.

APPROPRIATE SERMONS

Local Clergymen Have Consented to Make Comments on the Nationwide Movement—Universal Celebration.

Next Sunday will be Boy Scout Day. It will mark the beginning of the celebration of the fifth anniversary of the incorporation of the Boy Scouts of America. It will be observed simultaneously by Boy Scout council districts through the length and breadth of the land. Boy Scouts in Alaska will attend divine services on that day just as the Boy Scouts of Plainfield will do. Scouts in Cuba will worship in a body as will the Scouts of Hawaii and the Philippines. Ministers throughout the world, wherever the Stars and Stripes float, have consented to observe the day as Boy Scout Sunday.

Every boy in Plainfield is asked to attend church Sunday morning, whether he is a Scout or not. In those churches where Scout troops have been established, the ministers will have either sermons especially prepared to interest boys or will refer in some way to the Scout movement. In others, the day probably will be observed in a less formal way. All Scouts and scoutmasters and assistant scoutmasters will wear full uniform. They will sit as a body and where organists have prepared special patriotic music they are urged to

HERMAN SCHWED IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT

Business Men's Ass'n Elects and Plans for Dollar Day, February 24.

Herman Schwed was elected president of the Plainfield Business Men's Association, at last night's annual meeting, the other officers chosen being John J. Varley, vice-president; M. C. VanArsdale, treasurer, and George A. Ballantyne, secretary. The executive committee will consist of A. E. Force, chairman; Leslie R. Fort, Samuel Rothberg, Herbert Schuldenfrei and Kenneth Stuart.

The organization was shown to be in a sound financial condition, with fifty members. In accepting his new office, Mr. Schwed said that he believed that the association was formed to do a whole lot of good for the merchants, and he complimented the retiring president, A. E. Force, for his painstaking efforts in behalf of the organization during the formative period. Mr. Schwed repeated the often heard statement that there are too many organizations in Plainfield, but thought that none could be of more value than the one to which he had just been honored by being made president.

Henry Rosenbaum, as chairman of the committee arranging the third Dollar Day to be given on February 24, under the auspices of the association, said that $115 had already been collected to defray the expenses, and promises of more had been received. The committee is actively working on the plans and expects the day to be the most memorable yet in local merchandizing history. John S. Johnston was elected a member of the organization.

It was decided to hold a dollar dinner before the next meeting, which is scheduled for March 1, and a committee, of which Mr. Force is chairman, was appointed to complete the plans. The other members are A. F. LaRock, Samuel Rothberg and Leslie R. Fort.

SUDDEN DEATH OF CLARENCE E. TEEL

Prominent Resident Victim of Heart Failure in Borough Home.

A WELL KNOWN ELK

Died Before Medical Aid Could Be Secured—Was 56 Years of Age and Came Here From Easton, Pa.

Clarence E. Teel, one of the best known residents of the borough, died at his home, at 22 Craig place, shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon, following a sudden attack of heart failure, to which he had been subject for several years. He had been at the Elks' clubhouse on Watchung avenue, during the morning, as had been his custom since the building was erected, and left at noon time saying that he did not feel well. Shortly after lunch time, he informed Mrs. Joseph A. Haynes, with whom he lived, that he felt quite ill. Almost immediately afterward he fell into a comatose state and died before medical aid could reach him. Dr. P. J. Zeglio reached the house within a few minutes after being called but could render no aid.

Mr. Teel was a native of Easton, Pa., where he was born 56 years ago. He was employed by the New Jersey Central Railroad from the time that he was a young man, but left the company about twenty-five years ago to accept a position with the Peters Cartridge Company, of New York, at which time he established his home in Plainfield. He remained with the Peters' people until a few years ago, when he assumed the management of the Watchung Spring Water Company, from which he retired in December, 1913. Since that time he had been living a retired life, owing to the fact that he had experienced several serious attacks of heart trouble and acute indigestion, one of which occurred last winter when his life was despaired of for several weeks. He afterward regained his normal health and was apparently as well as usual when he left the house this morning.

When the famous Crescent Wheelmen organization was formed in the days of the bicycle craze, Mr. Teel was a charter member. He was an ardent cyclist and was one of the men responsible for the famous track built on Randolph road. In January, 1905, Mr. Teel was elected to membership in the Plainfield Lodge of Elks, an organization in which he exhibited more than ordinary interest. He passed through the various chairs to the position of exalted ruler and was the lodge's representative at the Los Angeles convention in 1909. Since the new clubhouse has been a fact he had been a member of the house committee and visited the place every day. He was one of the building committee that planned the structure and the Elks have always felt that they owed him a debt of gratitude for the time he devoted to producing the handsome new home.

During his residence in Plainfield, Mr. Teel had always made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Haynes, although he was not related. He was never married. The only relatives surviving are a half-sister, Mrs. T. Logan Murphy, of Truell Inn, and a half-brother, Jacob Mixsell, of Easton, Pa. His friends in the city and borough were numbered in the thousands and the report of his death came as a decided shock to all of them. No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral.

PRESIDENT SAYS THAT SHIP BILL WILL PASS

Washington, Feb. 2—President Wilson indicated today that the Ship Purchase Bill was not doomed to defeat. The President expressed the hope that the Progressive Republicans would support his measure when a few amendments are made to it that are not inconsistent with the purpose of the bill. He told callers that the measure ultimately would be passed, but made no reference to the developments in the Senate. He made it clear that he was willing to have the bill amended provided the amendments did not alter the original intents of the bill. Senators Kenyon, of Iowa, and Norris, of Nebraska, two of the strongest Progressive Republicans in the Senate held an early conference with the President and it is understood that a general course of action was agreed upon.

CHURCH OBJECTS TO ASSESSMENT

Trinity Reformed Congregation Protests Against Levy for Street Widening.

FAIL TO SEE BENEFIT

Treasury Department Grants Use of Land for Improving East Second Street—Contract for Annual City Reports Awarded.

Believing that the assessment made on its property on account of the widening of Madison avenue is unfair, Trinity Reformed church, through its pastor, Rev. J. Y. Broek, and the clerk, E. F. Sheppard, in a communication protested to the Common Council, last night, against the assessment. It was stated that the church was not represented at any of the hearings and that according to the notice received the assessment must be paid within forty days after December 20, 1914, or interest will be charged.

It was further stated that the notice was received on January 18 1915, leaving only thirteen days in which to pay such assessment. This was also considered to be unfair.

Inasmuch as Fred Endress has secured from the Supreme Court a writ of certiorari, to review the Madison avenue assessments, this will act as a stay, as explained to the Council last night by Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, and in his opinion the improvement will probably be delayed for a year. Mr. Reed was not prepared to give his opinion on the merits of the complaint made by Mr. Endress, but was inclined to believe

NOVEL ADVERTISING METHODS ADOPTED

Chamber of Commerce Officials Distribute Leaflets on New York Trains.

In connection with the plans launched by the local Chamber of Commerce to advertise Plainfield pamphlets of a self-explanatory nature were distributed to commuters on the 7:55 and 8:30 east-bound trains from this city, this morning. Information pertinent to the residential and commercial advantages of the city was included in the data on the circular and the novel idea met with universal approval.

Paul R. Burns, president of the Chamber, and Garret Keating, the secretary, were in charge of the work and several hundred of the leaflets were distributed. Included in the message they bore was the following:

"Get one family to make its permanent home in our city before May 1, 1915. Send to the Chamber of Commerce the names and addresses of all persons who in your opinion may be interested. Do this for our home town and start today."

PUBLIC HEARING PLAN IS ADOPTED

Council Votes for Wider Publicity of City and School Budgets.

Concurring with Mayor Leighton Calkins relative to his suggestion in his message as to a wider publicity of the city and school budgets, resolutions offered by Mr. Claybrook were adopted at the February meeting of the Council, last night, which will bring about this change. The resolutions provided that the finance committee be instructed to arrange for public hearings on its tentative budget covering the municipal departments under the control of the Council.

It was further adopted by resolution that the Board of Education be requested in like manner to arrange for public hearings on its itemized statement, or budget, of the amount necessary for the current expenses for the ensuing school year prior to submitting the same to the Board of School Estimate between May 15 and June 1. Copies of these resolutions will be sent to the finance committee and the Board of Education.

It is believed by giving wider publicity to these budgets an opportunity will be afforded every interested citizen to learn just how the city funds are to be spent and will result in the accomplishment of much good to the city and the Council and Board of Education.

Miss Ellen Doughty, who was slightly injured in the practice game at the Columbus Club, last night, is reported to be back at work this morning, none the worse for her experience. Miss Doughty ran up against one of the chairs on the side lines and injured her side.

French and British Smash Four Chief Forts at the Mouth of the Dardanelles — Germans Renew Fierce Offensive.

Paris, Feb. 2.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon:

"The day of February first was marked by an increase of intensity of the artillery duels. It was also noted by a series of German attacks of secondary importance which were all repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy in proportion to the forces engaged. In Belgium the Germans heavy artillery was shown a great deal of activity upon the whole front occupied by the Belgian troops and especially against the several points of support which the Belgians had captured long ago. From the Lys to the Somme a German regiment attacked an English post near Guinchy and succeeded in throwing back the English, but the British, after a series of counter attacks reoccupied the ground lost and then made some progress capturing some Germans trenches. The action referred to in the communication of February first, 11 p. m., as having taken place along the road from Bethune to La Bassee were particularly brilliant for our infantry. The number of German troops employed seems to have been at least a battalion. The two opening attacks were checked by us. The first succeeded in entering one of our trenches, but a counter attack made immediately with the bayonet permitted us to repulse the enemy. Some Germans alone succeeded in regaining their trenches. All the others were killed or made prisoners. Between the Somme and the Oise and along the front of the Aisne no important event has taken place with exception of a German attack upon Beaumon Hamel, which was not renewed. In the region of Perthes our progress continues. There is nothing new to report on the front of Lorraine and in the Vosges."

Berlin, Feb. 2.—The following statement was issued by the German foreign office today:

"In the western theatre of war except artillery duels which took place at several points, there were no decisive developments.

"In the eastern theatre nothing of importance has happened on the east Prussian front. In Poland, north of the Vistula, engagements with Russian cavalry occurred in the neighborhood of Lipno. Northwest of Serpez our attacks south of the Vistula are progressing. The following note, signed by the chief of army administration, was appended to the statement: 'The recent French official reports are pure inventions.'

Petrograd, Feb. 2.—All women have been commanded to leave Constantinople and the authorities are seizing all supplies of clothing and

WANTS BARBER SHOP OPEN EVERY SUNDAY

Dunellen Residents Petition Council But No Action is Taken.

The monthly meeting of the Mayor and Common Council was held in the Borough Hall, last night, and despite the inclement weather all of the councilmen with the exception of Mr. Craig were present. The recent election of Clarence T. Voorhees, of Lincoln avenue, as a member of Defender Fire Company, was confirmed and an application of the company to purchase 50 feet of one-inch garden hose for the use of the carekeeper of the apparatus was referred to the fire and water committee. A communication was received from T. J. Hedley, secretary of the New Jersey Mosquito Exterminating Commission, apprising the Council that the second annual meeting of the association is to be held at Atlantic City on February 22 and 23, and inviting the members of the Council to attend.

A petition was received from Vincengo Tozze requesting to be allowed to keep his barber shop open for business on Sunday mornings between the hours of 7 o'clock and noon. In joint connection with Mr. Tozze's petition was another petition signed by forty of the citizens recommending and urging that favorable action be taken on Mr. Tozze's petition on the ground, the petitioners said, that the opening of the shop on Sunday morning would be of great convenience and benefit to a number of the citizens. Mr Tozze's petition was referred to the law and ordinance committee.

The ordinance relative to the laying of a storm , or drainage sewer along Madison avenue was passed on its second and third readings and a motion was made and carried to have the ordinance published. Two other ordinances relative to the laying of storm or drainage sewers, one of which is to be laid along North avenue from Washington avenue to Bonegat brook and the other to be laid along Front street from a point 300 feet west of the intersection of Front street and Washington avenue in a westerly direction to Madison avenue, were passed on their first readings and ordered advertised.

Harry Boice, of New Market, was present in connection with the reopening of a ditch north of Walnut street. This ditch has been filled in causing the water which formerly ran through it to accumulate during stormy weather. This water stagnates and is a menace to the health of the section and Mr. Boice thought that some action should be taken by the Council towards having it reopened. Mr. Boice based his appeal on the ground that the ditch prior to its being filled in had been a common water course for twenty years. When asked for an opinion, Judge von Minden, the borough attorney, said that no person had a right to shut off a common water course. After A. G. Nelson, of New Market, who is a property-holder in the section; Lewis Schneider and Borough Engineer Churchill had spoke on the subject it was decided to notify the interested property-holders that unless the ditch is opened within a week the matter will be placed in the hands of Street Commissioner Smalley for action.

Abram G. Nelson, who is chairman of the Piscataway Township Committee, brought up the subject of the taking care of Centre street. Prior to New Market road being taken over by the county the borough had taken care of that thoroughfare from Centre street to the Augustus F. Samson property and the township had taken care of Centre street. This agreemen had automatically ended when New Market road was taken over by the county. He said the township would be willing to take care of either end. Mayor Latham thanked Mr. Nelson and told him he would place the matter in the hands of the street commissioner to report back.

Borough Engineer Churchill was authorized to go to Trenton and make a few minor corrections in the assessment map which is in the hands of the Board for the Equalization of Taxes.

Samuel M. Titus was awarded the contract of constructing a railing in the police department and of erecting a partition in front of the judge's desk. Mr. Titus' bid was $16.25. Other bidders were: Edward Daniels, $22, and J. Newton Apgar, $32.50.

Bills aggregating $862.04 were ordered paid if found correct and the books of Treasurer Stites were ordered audited at a cost not to exceed $75.

TO GIVE RECITAL OF AMERICAN SONGS

Percy Hemus and Miss Kinnaman to Appear Here on February 18.

An understandable song recital will fill our concert halls, says Percy Hemus, the New York baritone, who has attracted nation wide recognition with his propaganda for American songs. "Sing to the man who has never understood music," says Mr. Hemus,—"sing to him in a tongue he understands—let him feel it is understandable because it originated in the mind of a fellow countryman—interpret your songs so that he can understand them and then watch America grow."

Two years ago in New York, when the American baritone announced a recital of songs by American composers, many were skeptical but he convinced his hearers that America has produced artists and composers and now his annual recital is an event. The New York Times said after his second all American program "He is an institution."

In an article written by him in Musical America, Mr. Hemus says, "I sing American songs because I like them and through them can give a message to some who have never understood the term 'the art of singing.' A public that stands by me in attending my recitals proves that I am not alone in my love for American songs.

"Song belongs to the world—you cannot localize it. It is the universal language and the infant voice of America has been still long enough. We are musically young and realize it by the numerous reminders we have had in the past, but we should refuse to listen to a sleeping world that has been saying children should be seen and not heard,' for the child America is growing. If the singers of this country use judgement in singing American songs and only present texts and music that have merit, we will soon come in to our own, and the right to express our sentiments by the aid of music will be denied us by no man."

Mr. Hemus and Miss Kinnaman, contralto of the First Methodist church, will be heard here in a song recital of American songs by American composers, at the Park Club on Thursday evening, February 18, with Gladys Craven at the piano. The recital is given under the direction of Clifford A. Braider.

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO S. W. WORTMAN

Was Among First to Market Mushrooms in New York City.

Sylvanus W. Wortman, aged 76 years, died yesterday afternoon at his home on East Fifth street, following a week's illness with pneumonia. He was born at New Lots, Long Island, and was a successful farmer for many years. He made a specialty of growing mushrooms and was one of the first to market them in New York city many years ago. For a number of years Mr. Wortman lived at New Dover, coming to Plainfield about six years ago, at which time he retired from business.

Mr. Wortman was a member of Trinity Reformed church, being a regular attendant at the services. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Charles R. Baker, one brother, Alfred Wortman, of Gregg, N. C., and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Hycanp and Mrs. Emmo Speer, both of Brooklyn. The funeral will be held at the late residence Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, will officiate and the burial will be in Evergreen cemetery, Brooklyn.

OFFICER ADMITS HE DYNAMITED BRIDGE

Span Near Vanceboro, Partially Destroyed in Explosion Today.

Montreal, Feb. 3—Reports received here, this morning, from Vanceboro, say that the Canadian Pacific Railroad bridge on the main line, spanning the St. Croix River, was blown up early today by dynamite and at noon a man giving the name of Horne, and who is said to be a German army officer, was arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the destruction. He was taken into custody on the American side of the border by Deputy Sheriff Ross and refuses to give his army ranking. A plan of the bridge and dynamite caps were found in the man's pockets and he, this afternoon, willinging admitted that he did the trick.

The bridge is on the main line running from Montreal to St. John's and Halifax and a 400 foot span was partially wrecked. The explosion caused people living in that section to flee from their homes panic stricken and the railroad company is now engaged in transporting persons across the icy river.

The structure has a total length of nearly 1,200 feet and consists of three steel spans and granite piers. The portion destroyed was near the New Brunswick side of the river and connected the Canadian Pacific tracks with those of the Maine Central Railroad, over which the Canadian road has traffic rights between Vanceboro and Mattawamkeag. It was built about five years ago.

FRIENDS ENTERTAINED AT INFORMAL HOME RECEPTION

An entertainment was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Delehanty, Saturday night, a number of friends being the invited guests. The home was appropriately decorated with palms and cut flowers and a program of music and informal entertainment was enjoyed until a late hour when refreshments were served.

Mr. Halroy rendered several English ballads and Miss Anna Martin played the accompaniments.

WAR NEWS

bread. The recent bombardment by the French and British fleets at the mouth of the Dardanelles smashed the four chief forts guarding the entrance to the channel.

Renewal of a fierce offensive by the Germans in the region of Sochaczew and Bolimovo on the road to Warsaw is admitted in an official statement issued here today. The violence of the German attack compelled some of the Russian units to retire to the second line of trenches. The communication follows:

"On the right bank of the lower Vistula on January 31 our cavalry made a sudden and successful assault upon the German line along the front between Brezun and Lake Grezelejo, ten miles north of Sierpeo, capturing many officers and soldiers.

"The attempt of the Germans on the 30th to open an offensive movement in the direction of Lipno and Dobrzyn, supported by artillery fire was checked.

"On the left bank of the Vistula front at the villages of Makow and Dyblin the enemy was thrown back to the line of the villages of Weleze and Nasignewo, northwest of Wloclawek. The Gerbans in retreating abandoned at Makow many of their dead.

"In the course of the day of January 31 the enemy, after having concentrated in the region of Sochaczew, Bolimovo and south of Bolimovo, a large force of artillery developed active operations against our positions with very considerable forces. The German offensive was distinguished by great tenacity, advancing in close range strongly supported from the rear.

"After having concentrated a violent fire in the morning upon that region, the fierceness of the German offensive compelled some of our units to retire to the second line trenches.

"In the meanwhile a counter attack from another detachment of our forces drove the enemy from all the trenches occupied by him, inflicting upon him enormous losses.

"Simultaneously with this attack on Borjimow the Germans delivered a series of ferocious assaults against our front between the villages of Goumine, Bourgade and Moghely. These attacks were supported by very heavy artillery fire. Up to midnight of January 31 every one of these assaults were driven back by us, some by our rifle fire and some with the bayonet.

"But between midday and 2 p. m. of January 31, the Germans were successful in occupying a part of our trenches. In this they were helped largely by an energetic and sustained artillery fire.

"A little after 2 o'clock we undertook a general counter attack. This was successful, and as a result of it the enemy, the evening of January 31, retained but a little portion of our first line trenches, together with a certain chateau in the country."

GROUND HOG UP TODAY.

According to popular tradition, today is the standing date set for the appearance of the proverbial ground hog who is supposed to prognosticate the variety of weather coming this way for the next six weeks. He did not see his shadow this morning and accordingly, will remain on the surface, bringing mild weather with him for the rest of the winter. Mr. ground hog has been such a prevaricator in the past that the chances are ten to one nobody will bank seriously on what he predicts today.

THIS NATION FAIR, BRYAN DECLARES

Denies Discrimination Against Germany and Austria.

TAKES UP MANY CHARGES.

Business of Belligerent Operating on the High Seas, Not Duty of Neutral, to Prevent Contraband From Reaching an Enemy—British Naval Superiority Has Interrupted Trade.

The Wilson administration through Secretary Bryan has gone on record in a sweeping denial of charges that the United States government has been partial to the allies and unfriendly in its attitude toward Germany and Austria during the present war in Europe. The official repudiation of these intimations took the form of a letter written by Mr. Bryan to Senator William J. Stone of Missouri, chairman of the committee on foreign relations. It was prepared after several days of consultation between President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and Counselor Robert Lansing of the state department.

The letter is the most exhaustive document that has come from the administration since the outbreak of the war dealing with any aspect of the relations of this country toward that conflict. The letter contains about 6,000 words. Its length is due to the fact that it is intended as a categorical denial of the different charges that have been made and of the arguments current in German circles accusing the administration of unfriendliness to Germany and Austria-Hungary.

Mr. Stone an Interested Party.

Senator Stone was interested in having these charges answered for two reasons. First, there is a large German population in St. Louis, the chief city of his state, and, second, because he is chairman of the committee on foreign relations. Senator Stone wrote his letter of inquiry on Jan. 8, saying that he had received many letters from sympathizers with Germany and Austria, who believed the United States government had been showing partiality to England, France and Russia.

Secretary Bryan's letter concludes with the following declaration on the much discussed question of exportation of war munitions:

"If any American citizens, partisans of Germany and Austria-Hungary, feel that this administration is acting in a way injurious to the cause of those countries this feeling results from the fact that on the high seas the German and Austro-Hungarian naval power is thus far inferior to the British. It is the business of a belligerent operating on the high seas, not the duty of a neutral, to prevent contraband from reaching an enemy. Those in this country who sympathize with Germany and Austria-Hungary appear to assume that some obligation rests upon this government in the performance of its neutral duty to prevent all trade in contraband and thus to equalize the difference due to the relative naval strength of the belligerents. No such obligation exists. It would be an unneutral act, an act of partiality on the part of this government, to adopt such a policy if the executive had the power to do so."

PLAN TO SAVE SAILORS

British Adopt Water Bags to Reduce Explosion Casualties.

Efforts on the part of the British admiralty to reduce the number of casualties following the torpedoing or blowing up by a mine of its vessels has led to the adoption of a novel life saving device in the form of a rubber bag and worn by every member of that navy.

A description of the "water bottle," as the device is known in the English navy, was given by Captain Jespersen of the Danish steamship Canadia, arriving from Scandinavian ports after the worst voyage experienced by its commander during his ten years in the Copenhagen-Philadelphia service.

The device, according to Captain Jespersen, consists of a rubber bag divided in two parts, worn under the clothes, one wing covering the chest and the other the shoulders. A short tube or muzzle extends out through the clothing and enables the wearer, in an emergency, to put it in his mouth instantly and inflate the bag, while he is still able to use his hands freely.

GREAT GAME REFUGE CREATED

Lake Minnetonka Preserve Largest Near a City.

A game refuge containing 55,040 acres in the Lake Minnetonka district has been created by the Minnesota game and fish commission at the request of the Minnesota Game and Fish Protective league and lake residents.

The new preserve, which is intended to be a refuge and breeding ground for all birds and small animals, includes the area of Lake Minnetonka and eighteen sections of land in the northern part of Carver county. Eighty-six sections in all will be protected hereafter. It is near Minneapolis.

The land includes the heaviest wooded districts of Hennepin and Carver counties. The narrowest protected strip on the lake will be around Stubbs bay, where hunters will be kept half a mile from the shore.

ENJOYABLE PROGRAM FOR WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Social Hour Followed Business Session in Debele's Hall Last Night.

Following a business meeting in Debele's auditorium last night the members of the Women's League of St. Joseph's church enjoyed an excellent program of entertainment in which active workers of the organization participated. The social portion of the evening was devoted to vocal and instrumental solos, recitations and an hour of dancing followed with terpischorean music furnished by Miss Rose Cooper.

Vocal solos rendered by Miss Justina Smith were greatly appreciated and thoroughly enjoyed. She sang "If the Waters Could Speak as They Flow" and was forced to yield to encore, rendering "Will My Dreams Come True?" The rendition of a humorous selection by Miss Margaret Emmons, a solo "My Tipperary Rose," by Mrs. J. L. Aller, and a piano solo by Miss Elizabeth Harper, added to the program.

The gathering was a monthly affair conducted by the league and considerable routine business was transacted prior to the presentation of the social program.

A STRINGENT MEASURE.

Perhaps immediate desperate need is not indicated by the order which went into effect in Germany yesterday, under the terms of which all the stocks of corn, wheat and flour in Germany were seized by the Government, but it certainly shows grave concern. Business in these necessities is strictly forbidden, and the meat supply is to be conserved by the municipalities. It is reported that hereafter everything will be doled out by the government, which would indicate that Germany is being put on rations.

It was not so long ago that a warning was issued by the Federal Council that the people should husband their wheat flour. Now it is evident that there has not been sufficient economy, and the further action has resulted in a "safety first" program, though it is reasonable to assume that the German people have been forced to make sacrifices before now.

The food problem is a serious one for Germany, for up to the present time England has had command of the seas. Germany is feeling it though she may be in no danger of being starved into submission. With the taking over of the empire's food supply the question arises as to how the Allies will regard foodstuffs destined to Germany. Until now foodstuff not intended for consumption to the army was noncontraband. Now, however, all foodstuffs going to Germany become the property of the government. It may mean that grain shipments from the United States to Germany will become contraband.

One of the recommendations of the Economy and Efficiency Commission was that the State Labor Department and the Bureau of Labor Statistics be combined. If the program is carried out it may endanger the position of General Lewis T. Bryant, head of the State Labor Department, and the most conscientious and efficient official at Trenton, bar none. He has been appointed by Republican and Democratic Governors, and any political juggling which would do away with him would call forth a mighty protest from both workingmen and employers. Surely some method can be found by which the statistics department can be joined to the labor department, thus doing away with the head of the former, and lessening the cost of conducting that branch. This would keep General Bryant in office. The Newark Sunday Call aptly says in the matter:

The process of reform in the labor and building supervision laws of New Jersey which threatens to cost the State the services of Colonel Bryant cannot be regarded as a sound one. One system is as good as another if good men can always be found, but they are scarce, and once obtained should be kept as long as they will stay. A practicable plan for reducing expenses and the number of employes in the several departments concerned can be found which will retain Colonel Bryant's services, and no great amount of ingenuity is necessary, either.

Norwood, Massachusetts, has adopted a unique method of selecting a manager for the municipality, which had a population of 8,014 in 1910. The Selectmen, who govern the community, have decided that it would be better to have a single head to run it, and have let it become known, says the Engineering News that they want applicants for the position. The man who gets the job will be the administrative head of all departments of the town government, and must be "specially fitted by education, training or experience to perform the duties of" the office, but need not be a resident of Norwood when appointed. By a recent act of the Legislature, adopted by popular vote, the water, sewer, park and light boards and the office of tree warden of Norwood have been abolished. The executive duties of those boards will be exercised by the general manager, who will also make all repairs to the library and school buildings of the town and purchase all library and school supplies except books. It will only be a matter of time before the city without commission or city manager government will be so far behind the times that it will be difficult to attract desirable homeseekers.

Efficiency, like other means of good to the human race, has its legitimate uses and then it has an easy way of running into abuses. It may be tried on the wrong man and make a mess of things. He may either be too efficient or not susceptible to the finer refinement of efficiency and disaster follow. In Portland, Oregon, a citizen had his automobile stolen. The police combed the city and couldn't find the machine. Finally Sergeant P. H. Stahl found it. The discovery drove a valuable suggestion into his brain. He would drive the car through the streets and so give a practical test of the efficiency of the policemen on the beats. He would find out if they identified the stolen car on sight, as they ought. Before he went far he passed Policeman Klingensmith, who immediately recognized the missing car from the station house description. He called upon the driver to stop. Stahl, muffled up, wanted to make the test sure, and kept right on. Klingensmith pulled his gun, fired, and Sergeant Stahl was dead as a stone with a nice big .38 through his brain. There is such a danger as running a test for efficiency too far.

No better argument in favor of the re-establishment of the fire whistle could possibly be found than the sight of scores of little tots going to school yesterday morning in weather when they should have been kept at home. Had there been a whistle the customary signal could have been sounded, and the youngsters would not have had to brave the rigors of the nasties morning of the present winter.

Wonder what diabolical thing to add to the horrors of war will be thought up next by the Germans? The destruction of a ship load of supplies for the starving Belgians, merely because the ship flew the British flag, is inexcusable.

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

In your issue of Thursday of last week there appeared an article by Mrs. George P. Mellick in behalf of the institution known as the Woman's Exchange that in my judgment should be carefully read and thought over before that institution should be allowed to go out of existence for the want of support. While I am not as familiar as some, I know that this institution conducted as it has been in the past has been of help in many ways to a certain class that needs just this kind of assistance. In the first place, it rents a store that otherwise would be empty. It employs help that otherwise would be idle or forced to find other employment, which at this time and under the conditions would be a hard job. The bulk of its stock and merchandise is furnished from our own community. And I think while we are giving to everybody and helping worthy causes of other parts, we should be on the job right here in our own city with a part of our charity, and I for one am willing to donate a ten-dollar bill and I would like to see just ninety-nine other men come across with the like amount. This amount, I am told by Mrs. Mellick, will put the institution on a sound basis. Come now, let's be good fellows and dig down and help the women to the tune of a "ten spot" and save the Woman's Exchange from going out of business.

BOY SCOUT SUNDAY

join heartily in the singing.

The commissioner announced this morning that Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, chaplain of Troop 5, will preach at the morning service in the First Presbyterian church, a special sermon to boys, whether they are Scouts or not. Troop 7 will attend services at Bethel chapel. Troop 8, of the Crescent Avenue church, will attend services there; Troop 9, of the First Methodist church, will hear a service entirely designed by Rev. Charles M. Andersen to attract not only boys, but parents as well, who are interested in the welfare of the boys of Plainfield. Troop 10 will hear a special message from Rev. John Y. Broek, of Trinity church; Troop 11, of Grace P. E. church, is expected to attend services in uniform; Troop 12, of the First Baptist church, Rev. Philip B. Strong, pastor, will attend services; Troop 13, will listen to a Boy Scout sermon by Rev. E. A. Ralston, of the Netherwood Reformed church; Troop 14 will attend services in Hope chapel, and prospective troop, No. 15, R. D. Rice scoutmaster, will attend service in the Congregational church, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor. Scouts in Dunellen and Scotch Plains also will observe the day. The pastors' regular weekly announcements will give the hour of services and other information.

The observance of Boy Scout Sunday has a special significance at this time. The wonderful accomplishments of the Boy Scouts in the service of their respective countries at war have demonstrated that Scouts are pretty useful people to have around, whether in times of war or in peace, for indeed, the services of the European Scouts have been equally as meritorius in caring for the women and children refugees as they have been on the field of battle.

American boys are being taught the same kind of resourcefulness. Under the guidance of the Scout law, all races and creeds have been merged into a standing United States peace army of 300,000 strong, all standing for universal brotherhood and world peace. The value of the Plainfield Boy Scouts has been demonstrated on several occasions. In the way of public work they have inspected the entire city for the Board of Health, they have canvassed the city in behalf of the anti-tuberculosis campaign and they have been honored twice by being called to serve as a guard of honor for the veterans of the Civil War and Memorial Day. They have been called into active service on several occasions by Chief T. O. Doane of the fire department and their daily good turn has brought happiness and pleasure to a host of parents and others. It is therefore, fitting that Boy Scout Sunday should be observed with special services in the churches so that parents and boys who are not now Scouts may learn something about what the "Lad in Kahki" stands for. To this end the ministers of Plainfield have consented to co-operate with the Plainfield Boy Scout Council next Sunday.

On Monday evening, at Washington School Auditorium, there will be a rally of all Boy Scouts in the city. Every Scout in the city, whether in uniform or not will be present at 8 o'clock. At that time the Scout Council will have assembled in a body and Vice-President L. M. Leek will call the administrative body of the Scout movement to order. Secretary George T. Moore will read the minutes of the last meeting. The regular order of business will be set aside and acting President Leek will call for merit applications. The Scouts will approach, saluting, the Council and file their applications.

These applications will be received until 8:10. At 8.14 the commissioner's aide, Lawrence Sutton, of Troop 5, will sound the assembly on the bugle whereupon every Scout will stand at attention wherever he is stationed in the hall and will audibly recite the Scout oath. America will then be sung.

Immediately after this part of the program the various troops will repair to their rendezvous and a short address will be given by a Scout official. Following this there will be exhibitions by various troops.

Champion engineers patrol of Troop 5, John Richards, leader, and A. V. Searing, Jr., scoutmaster, will give a demonstration of the erection of a thirty foot field suspension bridge in less than three minutes. Red Cross patrol of Troop 5, Thomas P. Fitch, leader, will give a demonstration of firt aid. Troop 10, of the First Methodist church, Dr. R. S. Stevens, scoutmaster, and Caryl Dunavan, leader, will give a demonstration of tent drilling, and Troop 11, A. E. Sprowl, scoutmaster, will give a demonstration of signalling by the signalling patrol, John Causbrook, leader. Scouts will bring their campfire and tent settings and it is probable that other features of Scout work will be demonstrated, including many of those that made the last championship contest so thrilling.

This rally is planned to give parents who were not able to be present to see the work of the Boy Scouts at Parker Field last October, such an opportunity. There will be no admission charged, the entire exhibition being thrown open to the public to give it an insight into the work of the Scouts and the operation of the Boy Scout Council.

BORO ARRANGES FOR "NO SCHOOL SESSION SIGNALS"

Arrangements have been made with the North Plainfield Fire Department by D. Fred Aungst, supervising principal of the borough schools, for "no-school session" signals on days when it is thought advisable not to hold sessions. Up to the first of this year the Plainfield fire gong was the means of telling the parents of the city and borough when there would be no school, but since that has been abandoned there has been no signal.

It has not been necessary for any such alarm this year until yesterday, when it was decided that the kindergarten and primary grades of the borough schools would not meet. Many of the parents kept their children home because of the weather, but there was no way of telling whether there was school or not except by telephone.

The new system will be the same as the one formerly used. Five taps of the North Plainfield fire bell at 7:30 o'clock in the morning will signify that there will be no school at all and five taps at 8 o'clock that there will be no sessions in the kindergarten and first, second, third and fourth grades.

WILL LECTURE ON WAR EXPERIENCES

Prof. McElroy to Speak in This City on February Ninth.

Under the auspices of the Princeton Club, of this city, Prof. Robert McElroy, of Princeton University, will lecture at the Plainfield High School Auditorium on the evening of February 9. The subject of the lecture will be the experiences of the speaker in Germany and Belgium just prior to the opening of the present European war, and the entertainment should prove one of the biggest drawing cards at the High School Auditorium this year.

The lecture is free to the public, the Princeton Club and the Board of Education co-operating to give the people of Plainfield an opportunity to hear a very distinguished man speak on a very interesting subject.

Prof. McElroy, with a party of four women in his charge, was at a famous summer resort in Germany when the Austrian ultimatum darkened the horizon with war clouds. He will tell of the assembling of the German army, which he himself witnessed, and the transformation of the peaceful and quiet Fatherland into an armed and bristling camp of 4,000,000 men.

Prof. McElroy rendered valuable assistance to other American and British residents, whom the mobilization caught within the belligerent territory, and was himself arrested by the German soldiers as a suspect. While the capacity of the auditorium is large, it is expected that there will be but few vacant seats when the lecture begins next Tuesday night.

SERGEANT A. R. TRANCHARD APPOINTED QUARTERMASTER

Sergeant A. R. Tranchand was appointed Quartermaster Sergeant of Company K by Captain Peterson, Saturday night, and Private McGoldrick was elected to fill the vacancy of corporal left by Tranchand last Monday, when he was elected sergeant.

Quartermaster Tranchand was a senior duty sergeant in Company K for nine years and in 1911 was compelled to go South because of ill health. Since his return he has again become an active member in the company.

FAREWELL BANQUET FOR EDWIN R. SMITH

Pleasing Affair is Given at Hotel Waldorf Last Evening.

Edwin R. Smith, who has been in charge of the specification and shop order department of the Saurer plant of the International Motor Company, and who severed his connection with the concern yesterday, was given a farewell dinner at the Hotel Waldorf, last night. The affair was arranged by several of his associates and was attended by the department heads from the Saurer shop together with several business associates and close personal friends. Covers were laid for forty-three persons in all.

The affair was strictly informal and each of the guests assisted in making it a success. Mr. Smith made an address in which he expressed regret in severing the business ties he had in Plainfield, but at the same time declared that the friendships he had made would continue with him in his new position. Several officers of the company made reply, taking occasion to compliment Mr. Smith on the success which he has attained in his calling and impressed upon him that though he would be far away from Plainfield in the days to come, he would always be with them in memory. Vocal selections were contributed at intervals with Frank Wadsworth presiding at the piano. It was nearly midnight before the affair broke up. The dinner was a full course affair and reflected credit on the cuisine department of the hotel.

Mr. Smith resigned from the International Company to become European representative for the Fitchburg Machine Works, of Fitchburg, Mass., a concern which specializes in big lathes. He left for Fitchburg last night, where he will remain under instruction for several weeks, after which he will proceed to England, establishing headquarters at London. The English government has purchased a large number of machines from the Fitchburg company and it will devolve upon Mr. Smith to direct their installation and successful operation in the arsenals. Mr. Smith came to Plainfield from Shirley, Mass., and during his residence here made scores of steadfast friends in both the city and borough.

PREPARING FOR A SIEGE

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

BURLESQUE AT COLUMBIA.

New York's very latest amusement fad is high-class burlesque. For several years past this form of amusement has been undergoing such vast improvement it has been brought up to a standard of excellence that has placed it among the really worthy things of the stage. The suggestiveness that formerly characterized it has been completely eliminated and the better class of theatre-goers are crowding the Columbia Theatre in New York to the very walls at every performance. This house, which is located at the corner of Broadway and Forty-seventh street, was erected about five years ago and is one of the most comfortable and luxurious in the fashionable theatre district of the city.

The shows are changed every week and for this reason the Columbia has acquired a regular clientele that attends week in and week out. Burlesque is unlike any other form of amusement seen on Broadway. It is created simply to make its patrons laugh and for this reason its comedy elements are of the broad, rollicking kind that begins with the rise of the curtain and continues until the last word is spoken. Each show has its own complement of comedians and gifted vocalists besides a large chorus made up exclusively of pretty, shapely, vivacious girls who sing all of the latest popular melodies and perform all of the up-to-date dances with the charm of the true professional. And these shows are produced with magnificent scenery and costumes and with all of the latest devices in stage mechanism.

To the brilliant shows and the moderate prices is the great business at the Columbia attributable. For the week of February 8, one of the best of these burlesque shows will be given, when Ben Welch, an exceedingly popular comedian, will be seen with his big company of over fifty people. Two one-act satires, one called "Love Water" and the other "Frisco, 1916," will be produced, and during the action a long and varied vaudeville bill will be given. This Columbia Theatre has come to be regarded as one of the "sights of the town," and the performances that are given on its stage are as much talked about as any of the sensational productions for which double prices are charged.

"THE CLEVER ONES."

The Punch and Judy Theatre, New York, produced a new play on Thursday evening, Jan. 28. It was "The Clever Ones," a comedy by the celebrated English author, Alfred Sutro, whose "Walls of Jericho" and "The Perplexed Husband" are especially remembered. "The Clever Ones" was first seen at Wyndham's Theatre, London, last season and was very successful there. This play is an example of Sutro's well known skill for poking fun at some advanced phase of contemporaneous life. In this instance he satirizes the tendency of psuedo-intellectuals, the idle highbrows, who go in for any sort of fad that will help them pass away the time. A large cast of well known actors will appear, including many seen in the previous production at the Punch and Judy Theatre.

"SINNERS."

"Sinners," at William A. Brady's Playhouse, has an advance sale of greater proportions than any in the history of the structure, so that the management is moved to announce reservations for any performance up to that of June 1. "This," says Mr. Brady, "has been the most instantaneously successful play I ever produced. It took 'Bought and Paid For' three full weeks to get into a stride that lasted two years at the Playhouse, where 'Sinners' sold out entirely at its third performance and has not failed to repeat that feat ever since. Of course, I thought it a good play beforehand, or I should not have produced it. But I am free to say that the chain lightning speed with which it 'got there' rather took me off my feet." It is probable that a series of extra matinees will be arranged presently in order to relieve the congestion somewhat.

"EXPERIENCE."

The topic of genuine theatrical news interest in New York has been the sensational success of George V. Hobart's "Experience" at the Casino. Already a solid and established hit, "Experience" was running nearly four months at the Booth Theatre, when transferred to the famous temple of merry music at Thirty-ninth and Broadway. There were grave doubts, on the part of old-timers who in more than a quarter-century had seen nothing but melodic pieces on the Casino stage, that a spoken drama would succeed. Once the show was on the actors confronted the great spaces of the Casino in all three levels packed to capacity with eager and enthusiastic humanity. The manifestations were those of an extraordinary first-night. Not in years has the Casino had a success of such early proportions, or of such promise for pleasant and profitable continuance. The entire cast is seen, intact, and the unusual scenery and effects, on the big Casino stage, have for the first time full scope.

"TWIN BEDS."

"Twin Beds," the highly amusing farce by Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayo (author of "Baby Mine"), has had the longest run of any play produced in New York this season and is still running at the Fulton Theatre, New York, while a second company is successfully presenting the play on tour. Selwyn & Company will send at least four companies of "Twin Beds" on tour next season.

"UNDER COVER."

"Under Cover," by Roi Cooper Megrue, described as "the play that has everything," is still in evidence at the Cort Theatre, New York, where it has been since last August. No end of the run is in sight.

"THE LIE."

"A great play by a great dramatist, humanized by a great actress," is the general verdict on Margaret Illington in "The Lie," by Henry Arthur Jones, which is attracting large and enthusiastic audiences to the Harris Theatre, New York.

"THE SHOW SHOP."

No play produced in New York this season has leaped into such instantaneous favor as James Forbes' irresistibly funny comedy, "The Show Shop," which Selwyn & Company produced at the Hudson Theatre and in which the author of that comedy classic, "The Chorus Lady," is said to have excelled himself. The one fear expressed by the "wise ones" on the opening night was that the ordinary layman would not be able to appreciate the rich humor of Mr. Forbes exposé of stage life. But successive audiences have been laughing harder and longer than even the "understanding" professional first-nighters. And the sentiment and charm of the love story are proving irresistible.

"TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT."

Unalloyed mirth, bewitching bevies of beautiful girls, tinkling lilting melodies, dazzling spring and summer costumes, irresistible comediennes and comedians, and a wealth of novel scenic effects, are some of the many allurements that contribute to make the London Gaiety musical production, "Tonight's the Night," at the Shubert Theatre, such a pleasing bouquet of genuine entertainment. The Messrs. Grossmith and Laurillard have assembled a host of England's favorite musical comedy idols for this production, which has had its initial presentation here instead of in London. Some well known entertainers in the all-star cast are George Grossmith, Emmy Whelen, James Blakeley, Lauri de Frece, Fay Compton, Iris Hoey, Davy Burnaby, Robert Nainby, Peggy Kurton, Madge Saunders, Gladys Homfrey and Leslie Henson. A few of the tuneful airs supplied by Paul A. Rubens and which are now being whistled about town, are "The Only Way," "Boots and Shoes," and "Round the Corner." The piece is in two acts and four scenes.

"MISTRESS NELL."

At the Strand Theatre, Mary Pickford, the idol of the screen, is presented in the charming romantic drama, "Mistress Nell," by George C. Hazelton, Jr., which has for so many years enthralled audiences throughout the country as a stage success. "Mistress Nell" is considered the greatest heroine of historic and romantic drama, and, as personified by Mary Pickford, is a character of delightful femininity combined with the dramatic force inherent in all the work of this gifted star. The play is laid in the times of King Charles II of England and is dominated by the heroism and gallantry that marked that brilliant period. The subject is beautifully costumed and the settings faithfully illustrate the imposing environment of the period. Di Cota, the world's greatest xylophonist, will be heard in classical selections. His rendition of the most difficult compositions are said to be marvelous. The vocal soloists appearing this week are all newcomers to the Strand.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The combination of Alice Hegan Rice's two stories, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and "Lovey Mary," delighted capacity audiences at Proctor's Theatre, yesterday afternoon and last night, when the picture version was shown under the former title. The photo-production is even more complete, than either the book or the dramatization, as several big circus scenes, which heretofore only have been hinted at, are shown. All through the showing, yesterday, there was mingled laughter and applause, and it is safe to say that "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" is the peer of the present series of feature films being shown at Proctor's. It will be repeated this afternoon and tonight and "movie" devoties, who like homely comedy, pathos and unusual scenes cannot afford to miss the presentation. The vaudeville bill for the first half of the week received its share of the commendation. It is headed by Mlle. Sabina and Robert Bronner in a classical dance offering equal to Broadway's best. Ray Monde has the audience guessing from start to finish, and closes amid a whirlwind of applause. It must be seen to be appreciated. The other numbers are Charles and Ada Latham, in a comedy sketch; Laird and Thompson, singing comediennes, and Louis Leo, equilibriest.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

In the Will Fox production, "A Fool There Was," as presented at the Plainfield Theatre, yesterday afternoon and last night, local moving picture "fans" witnessed one of the most vivid and realistic photo-plays ever seen in the city. The story is based on Rudyard Kipling's famous poem, "The Vampire," and is exactly as the stage version in which Robert Hilliard scored the greatest success of his career. Edward Jose plays the part of the fool who abandons family and friends for the sensual creature in the guise of a woman as portrayed by Miss Theda Barra. If you were not numbered among those who witnessed "A Fool There Was," yesterday afternoon or last night, make certain to visit the Plainfield Theatre when it is shown again this afternoon or tonight. Al G. Field's Greater Minstrels will hold the boards at the Plainfield Theatre, tomorrow afternoon and night, and Thursday will bring another big feature film, "When Broadway Was a Trail."

Firing the very soul with patriotic enthusiasm, Gus Hill's elaborate production of William Anthony McGuire's play of love, war and adventure, entitled "It's A Long Way to Tipperary," made beautiful by never ceasing mother's love and sacrifice; filled to the brim with thrilling dramatic action, pathos and sweet Irish song, depicting the horrors of war, stirring all nations and people to love and loyalty to country, yet offending none; rivaling the success of the song that inspired it, comes "It's A Lng Way to Tipperary," to the Plainfield Theatre, Friday evening.

According to the advance reports, "The Little Cafe," which will be presented in the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday night, is one of the greatest sent on the road. It was a whole season at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York city, and is being played in only a few of the principal cities. "The Little Cafe" is the work of Ivan Caryll and C. M. S. McLellan, who wrote "The Pink Lady" and "Oh, Oh, Delphine." The music is said to be of the scintillating character that keeps everybody in good humor from the rise of the curtain to the final drop. "The Little Cafe" also promises a real plot, a thing seldom encountered in musical comedy. The story was taken by the author from Tristan Bernard's French farce, "Let Petit Cafe." The original company of over 100 will present the piece. This most successful modern musical comedy will be offered in this city exactly as it was given for the run of nearly a year in Manhattan. The original company of over 100 people remains intact. It was produced in this country by Klaw & Erlanger after the manner of their artistic presentations. The cast includes Joseph Monahan, Marjorie Gateson, Blanche Morrison, R. H Woodley, Roy Hoyer, John E. Young, Maxfield Moree, Helen Larkins, Bessie Stewart, Marie and Irene Cattell, Margaret Anderson, Irene Medora, Grace Weeks, Harry Depp, Albert Stuart, Maurice Cass, William Doyle, Edna C. Munsey, Colin Campbell and F. Stanton Heck.

OBJECTS TO ASSESSMENT

that it was of a technical nature.

The annual statement of the Firemen's Pension Fund was received and filed. A communication was received from the Plainfield-Union Water Company informing the Council it would install three hydrants as ordered, and at the same time calling the attention of the Council to the fact that its contract with the city expired May 1, 1912.

The Treasury Department, to whom application was made for the use of a portion of Federal lands to widen East Second street, between Watchung avenue and Church street, granted the request in a letter received last night.

Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported receipts for the month of $268.02, and expenditures of $76.32, the balance, $199.70, being turned over to the city treasurer.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of fifteen permits during the month and Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported that he had granted nine sewer permits during the same period.

Mr. Claybrook offered a resolution, which was adopted, arranging with L. C. Morgan, of Trenton, for copies of all legislative bills, at a total cost of $10 for the session. Another resolution offered by the same member and adopted awarded the contract for printing $1,000 copies of the city's annual reports to the Sabbath Tract Society, its bid of $250 being the lowest received.

Mr. Claybrook reported back the communication from the George M. Clarke Company in reference to insuring the city employes and it was filed.

Mr. Edgar, chairman of the fire committee, stated that he had received word that the city's new auto engine was shipped on January 28 from Minneapolis by the Erie Railroad. The Council adjourned to meet on Monday evening, February 15.

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

PEACH BASKETBALL HAS DEVELOPED INTO ONE OF OUR MAJOR SPORT ISSUES

Popular Scholastic Sport Was Originated in 1891—Dr. Naismith the Father of the Pastime—Yale Team First to Dribble—First Exhibition in 1892.

Basketball should now be classed as a major branch of sport in view of the fact that the game is more than twenty-one years old. Twenty-three years ago the game originated in Springfield, Mass.

One day in December, 1891, a staff of athletic instructors at the Springfield Y. M. C. A. College met in the office of Dr. Luther Gulick, athletic director, and announced that they were in need of some new mode of exercising.

Dr. Gulick asked for suggestions from his colleagues. His object was to inaugurate a sport that would serve as a perfection in scientific physical development. He named lacrosse and soccer as examples from which to pilfer ideas.

Mentioning these two sports will give any person a clear idea how the ball and the nets were carried out in the promotion of basketball. Dr. Gulick spoke of lacrosse as being an ideal sport for scientific physical development, but made it distinctly clear that he hoped to abolish the use of clubs. His idea was to have action without brutality.

Professor James Naismith of the staff at Springfield carefully absorbed the suggestion from Dr. Gulick and responded with an idea which appealed to the members in attendance. Naismith introduced the game of basketball, and every volume printed about the sport bears his name as the father of the game. Professor Naismith gave the idea and the other instructors saw that it was kept at home.

From what has been told of the first attempt at the sport there were numerous amusing scenes. An association football was utilized at the inauguration in the gymnasium. The game was first planned to involve innumerable participants. No thought had been given as to the rule regarding the use of fists in batting the ball about the floor. As a result several of the participants in the first contest left the game with mouse-colored eyes. Goals were not considered at the start. The object of the game was merely to race about and jab the ball.

After almost giving up the game with its first failure to bring out scientific elements, goals were considered. Peach baskets were the objects first to be seen on the exterior of the building. Professor Naismith and a fellow instructor each brought one of the cast-off fruit receptacles into the gymnasium. A basket was placed on the floor at each end of the hall.

It required but one attack on each basket to show what little chance the woven willows had of withstanding the onslaughts of the pursuers of the so-called basketball. Some person present removed the perplexity by hanging the baskets at a height where they could not be reached by the men playing the game.

All this experimenting featured the holidays for the students at Springfield in 1891. On January 15, 1892, the first exhibition of basketball took place between two class teams. Peach baskets were erected on posts, but difficulty was found removing the ball from the receptacles following each shot. The bottom was removed from each of the baskets in order to keep up the spirit of the game.

This pastime became quite popular at Springfield during the season of 1892, and in the following year it was taken up by the majority of the Y. M. C. A. athletes. In 1893 goals were made of iron hoops, from which nets were suspended. At first the nets were woven so as to retard the drop of the ball, but in recent years they have been arranged so as to permit the ball to pass through to the playing floor.

In 1895 several athletic associations of the country adopted the sport. At the end of the year 10,000 persons were recorded as having taken up the pastime in this country. It started with thirteen rules, which were formed by the officials at Springfield.

In recent years the men on the intercollegiate committee have arisen to heated discussions over the question of abolishing the dribble. According to records, the Yale men first brought about this offensive style. During the winter of 1897 the Blue played the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A. team, of New York, in New York, but was beaten. In this game, which attracted a large crowd and served to increase the interest of the sport, Al Sharpe and his men featured their attack by dribbling, although they were unable to record any field goals. Up to this time the Yale players used what was known as the underhand shot from the scrimmages. Sandy Shields and his men adopted an overhead shot, which is now used by almost every player in the game.

The teams in the West also shot underhand at the baskets until the Eastern teams invaded Western cities and spread more modern conceptions of play.

"SILENT WORKERS" NEXT OPPONENTS OF Y. M. C. A.

One of the best attractions of the season for the Y. M. C. A. basketball team is scheduled to be played Saturday night in the association gym, when the "Silent Workers," from the Trenton School for the Deaf, will play here. None of the players on this team can talk and it is one of the fastest aggregations in the State. The team makes a trip every year in this section and last year the local manager booked them for the first time.

The game last year was interesting throughout, the locals winning by a small margin and another good game is expected this year. Holiday prices will be charged for this game and there will be the usual preliminary game.

ELKS' HOUSE GAMES.

Two matches are scheduled for tonight in the Elks' House Tourney. The Causbrook and Cose fives will meet in the first game and will be followed by the Stout and C. Woolston teams.

The Plainfield Junior Elks' bowling team dropped another peg last night, when it gave up the odd decision to New Brunswick on the latter's drives. The locals have been holding fourth place for the past two weeks, but now the New Brunswick crew has caught up and there is a fourth place tie, each club having won a dozen games and lost fifteen. Plainfield lost the first two games played last night, the second one by five pins.

The local pinners rolled their worst game at the start, totalling only 789 against New Brunswick's 846, the highest score of the match. The best scores made in this game by Plainfield were credited to Waldorf and Causbrook, the marks being 191 and 162 respectively. Carberry led the home pinners with a 183, while McCloskey, with his 147, was the low pinner for New Brunswick.

The second game was the hardest of the three and Plainfield gave its opponents a good scare, although they finally dropped back and lost by a five-pin margin. The scores were 845 to 840. Causbrook bowled 200 in this game and Waldorf registered a 190, but a 140 pulled the team total down below that of the Brunswicks.

Although Carberry started the last game off with the highest score of the match, a 202, Plainfield came out a winner by 20 pins. Townley hit highest in this game, securing a 198 and Waldorf was second with a 186. The scores of the games were 825 to 805.

The results follow:

NEWARK EAGLES PROBABLE WINNERS OF F. O. E. LEAGUE

Three victories for the Newark bowling team, of the Eagles' League, tomorrow night, against the Progress five, will probably give them the permanent hold on first place which they now occupy by a small margin over the Elizabeth Acrie. The match tomorrow was postponed from last week and the Newarks finish up the league Friday night at Somerville.

Elizabeth plays Thursday night, but the Newarkers would have to take a big slide down hill to give the Betsytown team a chance to tie. The local has played its last game and stands in fourth place.

WILL SEND CHAMPION MARE TO SCOTLAND FOR BREEDING

Robert A. Fairbairn, a director in the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, is going to send his champion Clydesdale mare Harviestoun Baroness to Scotland next spring to be bred to one of the best sires there, probably Apukwa. Harviestoun Baroness is the dam of the Clydesdale colt that Mr. Fairbairn sold for $5,000 as a yearling last season to F. L. Ames, of Boston.

She has won championship prizes in Scotland, Canada and the United States, and is regarded as one of the great mares of the breed.

P. H. S. VS. PRINCETON.

The Plainfield High School basketball team will meet the strong Princeton High School five on the local court tomorrow afternoon, and one of the best matches of the season is expected. Plainfield is now going at its best and will undoubtedly give the Princetonians a hard game, especially on their home court. The locals are looking for their seventh straight victory. The game will start at 3:30.

NORTH PLAINFIELD QUINTET FACES SOME TOUGH SLEDDING IN REMAINING GAMES

The North Plainfield High School and Leal School basketball teams will meet in their second Interscholastic League contest of the season tomorrow afternoon, in Saengerbund Hall. The boroughites are the favorites in this game, having defeated the private school aggregation on the latter's court and will have the advantage of their home floor tomorrow. The outcome of the game may or may not have an effect on the league title, but if the borough team should defeat Plainfield in the next game it would be necessary for the latter five to defeat Leal's again. Leal's may spring a surprise and make the North Plainfield quintet accept defeat, which would practically hand the title to Plainfield.

Both teams will use their regular men tomorrow and a good game is expected. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

The teams will lineup as follows::

N. P. H. S.	Leal's.
Conroy	Stewart (Capt.)

Townley	Dickerson

MERRY FIGHT UNDER WAY FOR THE TITLE

Weekly Averages Show That Murray and Wright Are Going Good.

The weekly averages of the Masonic Bowling League show that Wright, of the Essex team, and Murray, of the Tyrian leaders, are still fighting for first place honors and the former leads Murray by eleven pins, his average being 175.17. The first Plainfielder in the list is John Cose, of the Anchor five, who is sixth, with an average of 172, having played thirteen games. Harry VanEmburgh, of the same team, is eighth, having an average of 167.8.

The first member of the Jerusalem team to place is H. Blimm, who is some distance down the list with a mark of 161.4 in nine games. The Tyrian team, of Elizabeth, still has a firm grip on first place and it looks as if it would remain the same. Lafayette is second and Anchor has dropped from fourth to sixth. Jerusalem players still have a safe hold on last place with Azure a few games in advance.

"TABS" TOOK CLOSE ONE FROM CLOVERS

Battle Royal in Columbus Club Last Night Had Many Thrills.

In a lively game of basketball the "Tabs" defeated the "Clovers," on the Columbus Club court, last night, by a score of 26 to 18. The "Tabs" took the lead from the start and the "Clovers" never caught up to them the score in the first half being 16 to 8 in their favor. In the second period the "Clovers" held their opponents to 10 points and got the same number themselves.

Kyle and Miller did the scoring for the "Tabs," the former being credited with four field goals and 6 from the fifteen foot line, while the latter caged 6 field goals. Powers and Taylor put up the best games for the "Clovers."

SECOND APPEARANCE OF SPEEDY TEAM IS ASSURED

John Gates, the local basketball promoter, has arranged another double-header for local enthusiasts to be played on the Saengerbund Hall court, Tuesday night, February 16. The menu gives every indication of being a spicy one and the contests will no doubt be well patronized. The St. Christopher quintet, an aggregation that smothered Plainfield's finest here a couple of weeks ago, will appear in the main attraction against Glover's all stars.

The preliminary engagement will be played by the local Nonpariel five and the Elizabeth Speedboys. A reception and dance will follow.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

AGITATION FOR COLLEGIATE CODE.

Recent occurrences on scholastic basketball courts both in this city and other municipalities in New Jersey has resulted in a somewhat disconnected agitation to have High School teams drop the A. A. U. code of rules and adopt the intercollegiate regulations. The move is steadily chrystallizing and should come to a head before next season. It is realized that the growth of the popular indoor sport tends toward the intercollegiate style rather than that now in vogue and frequent protests against the stricness of the present code have been lodged here this winter by out-of-town leaders. The dribble, by far the most picturesque factor in college basketball, cannot be developed under the A. A. U. code which tends to discourage basketball other than the passing game. The movement is one that should be encouraged and local coaches should put a finger in the pie before the time for the expression of opinion is past.

NO GLORY IN THIS VICTORY.

Although the Y. M. C. A. basketball team vanquished the Hope Chapel quintet in the final game of the city title series Saturday night the championship home coming falls far short of being the brilliant achievements of past seasons. The Chapelites were outweighed and consequently outplayed by the Association quintet and the Y. M. C. A. boys will have to go elsewhere to seek spotlight honors for 1915.

FISHING LICENSE A GOOD THING.

Many vigorous protests have been lodged by the followers of Isaac Walton against the imposition of a State tax on fishermen, and while to the casual observer these claims may seem well grounded anyone looking into the question in a broad way will find wisdom in the act of the legislators. The preservation of the finny tribe, which will be made possible with the license fees, will enable the fisherman to spend a profitable half holiday by catching a fair mess of the millions of fish with which New Jersey streams have been stocked. If this work was not undertaken he would become disgusted with fishing depleted streams. The time has passed when mere protective measures will provide for an increase in our fish and game and the accepted policy in order to keep a supply is to provide a substantial stocking each year.

A Perth Amboy sport scribe, referring to the installation of the new showers in the Hope Chapel gym, says: "Can now bathe in Plainfield." If he had to trudge through the contribution of Jupiter Pluvius here yesterday he'd be further convinced. Still, we are at a loss to know what he thought Plainfielders did before they had shower baths in Hope Chapel.

Our representatives on the Elks' Senior Bowling League circuit are certianly trying to make sure of the cellar berth. If many more casualties are encountered the Plainfielders will be slipping through the cellar flooring.

This year marks the silver anniversary of the orgination of basketball. That's why they're charging silver quarters to witness the interscholastic tilts. Last year fifteen cents turned the turnstiles in the schoolboy halls.

FORMER LOCAL DIRECTOR CANNOT DESERT SWIMMING

Tom Whitaker, formerly physical director of the local Y. M. C. A., and recently swimming instructor at the Missouri Athletic Club, in St. Louis, has found it impossible to shake "the tie that binds" him to the aquatic game and is now coaching the Reading Athletic Club during his spare moments. Whitaker recently deserted the profession of aquatic coach to assume a business career, but he found that he could not remain away from the sport and is now working out every night with the Pennsylvania swimmers.

Under his expert instruction the new charges are fast becoming proficient in the art of water navigation and Captain John Farrington is confident they will soon be able to give the foremost teams in the Middle Atlantic district some real competition. Whitaker is the holder of several championships for water events in the Middle Atlantic district.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, straggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—Adv.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

MAJOR MARTIN SET UP A HIGH TALLY

Tyrian Five Took Two Out of the Three Games Rolled Last Night.

Major William B. Martin, formerly of this city, but now of Elizabeth, set a new high score mark in the Masonic Bowling League, last night, on the Elks' lanes, and almost equalled the high score mark of the alley, which is 277, made last year. Major Martin is a member of the Tyrian five which is at present setting the pace in the league and is also secretary of that organization. Last night the Tyrian team came to this city to bowl the Anchor five and went back home with two victories and a stronger hold on the top rung. In the second game of the match, he pinned his very best and tallied 269, breaking Wright's mark of 256.

The local team was completely outrolled in the first two games, but managed to annex the last one when the visitors rolled their poorest game of the match. Martin rolled a 149 in the first game and Kohlenberger's 205 was the highest of the game. Dayton rolled 186 for Anchor with Runyon scoring a 157. The score of the first game was 857 to 791. Martin's high score in the second game and Runyon's low mark, which was 95, left no doubt as to the winner of the match and the scores were 919 to 795. John Cose took Johnson's place and rolled 172, while Iremonger went up to 192.

Cose's 196 in the last game was the highest and Dayton registered 181, Runyon getting 179. Martin hit for 193, but his team was lacking nine pins at the end of the game.

BLANCHARD WINS TOURNEY.

The ping-pong tournament which was conducted by the College League, of the Y. M. C. A. Boys' Department, was finished last week. Davis Blanchard, of the Navy team, was the winner, defeating his teammate, George A. Jackson, in the finals. In the team score the Navy scored 65 points in the tournament, while the Army scored 15. The standings of the team to date is as follows: Navy, 343; Army, 367.

HANS WAGNER IS THE ONE GREAT STAR WHO NEVER COMMERCIALIZED GREATNESS

Hans Wagner.

Hans Wagner is the one great baseball star who never commercialized his greatness. None of baseball's side lines ever appealed to him. He has ignored dozens of attractive stage offers; advertising concerns have vainly offered him big sums for the use of his autograph or picture; newspaper syndicates and magazines have made him the biggest kind of inducements to "write" for them; but despite his frugal nature the famous German has kindly refused every proposition.

COLUMBUS CLUB ATHLETES WILL HAVE SHOWER BATHS

Those interested in athletics at the Columbus Club are anticipating the installation of three new shower baths, authorization for which was given last night by the board of trustees. Where baskebtall is played it is always essential to have some bathing facilities and for some time past an agitation has been brewing for this need in the West Front street club.

The new features will be installed in the third floor and will have both hot and cold water. Athletics are being promoted on a large scale at the Columbus Club just at present and each night the bowlers and basketball players will find a need for the showers.

CLEAN SWEEP REGISTERED BY HERMANN PINNERS

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE RESOLUTION PASSED

One Assemblyman Opposes Action but Changes His Vote Later.

The Assembly cast a unanimous vote last night for the Woman Suffrage resolution. One Assemblyman was in the opposition but he asked to change his vote, thus making the vote of the House unanimous. Assemblymen Peacock and Hammond of Mercer county; Martin and Iobst spoke in favor of the resolution. Assemblyman James Hammond, Republican, from Mercer county, made a strong speech based on what he called democracy in the larger sense. "This democracy demands that one half the adult population shall not be denied a voice in the government," he declared.

An interesting explanation of the Anti-Suffrage movement was offered when he explained the natural conservatism of women. In Sacco, Maine, the first saleswoman so horrified the other townswomen that they would not go near the store where she sold merchandise. The first woman medical student was also shunned by those of her own sex; and so illustrations might be multiplied of cases that at first shocked and then became useful commonplaces of daily life. Women who have reached out after useful work have always been opposed until the community became accustomed to the idea.

There was only one speech against the resolution—that of Assemblyman Charles W. Olstrom, Democrat, Hudson county. His main argument was that women would not enjoy telling their age as required under the Geran law. Mr. Ostrom, though opposed to Woman Suffrage, voted for the submission of the question to the people. Monday, February 1, 1915, will long be remembered in the neighborhood of Trenton as the "Rainy Day." The storm did not, however, seem to lessen the attendance of women in the gallery and a ringing applaused greeted the final decision.

It was difficult at times to hear the speakers on account of an unruly steam pipe. The sergeant at arms was unable to secure order from this inanimate disturber of the peace. The steam pipe continued to groan at intervals throughout the hearing, showing at times an almost human intelligence.

Among the Suffragists present were Mrs. Garrison, chairman of the legislative committee; Mr. and Mrs. Newton, of Nutley; Miss Ogden, of Elizabeth; Miss Pope and Mrs. Billington, of Jersey City, and a delegation from Plainfield, which included Mrs. E. F. Feickert, State president, and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Riley. Mrs. Oliphant and a number of Anti-Suffragists also attended the evening session of the Assembly.

February Sale of Furniture

(ORIGINAL)

Furniture could not be more stoutly made than is the furniture in this sale.

Every piece is made to endure; every chair built for ease; every table planned to make sitting at it comfortable; every joint mortised into one piece with the whole.

SERVICE is the fundamental characteristic of Wanamaker furniture, which is the best the world is producing.

You may take any piece of it for granted. It is exactly what it appears to be, the whole $964,000 worth of it, which we are offering at savings of nearly a quarter of a million dollars. It may be used.

And this month is one of but two months in the year when it may be bought at the lowest prices furniture so good ever sells for.

And the furniture is good to look at. You will never get tired of it.

Even in details like the matching of woods and grains and finishes in the suites, this sale is unlike any other.

It is not enough for Wanamaker furniture that pieces should very nearly match—they must match beyond any question.

Not merely in finish, but in design.

You will not find here any odd lots thrown together and called a suite. Each Wanamaker suite is a true suite. And the price of it couldn't be lower unless something were left out of the goods—which isn't done.

It is worth coming miles to see these finely matched-up pieces; best America has turned out to sell in quantities at moderate prices.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Like Weary Ghosts In a Dead World.

M'CAN strove to struggle, but Smoke gripped him cruelly and searched him, drawing forth from under his armpit, where it had been thawed by the heat of his body, a strip of caribou meat. A quick exclamation from Labiskwee drew Smoke's attention. She had sprung to McCan's pack and was opening it. Instead of meat out poured moss, spruce needles, chips—all the light refuse that had taken the place of the meat and given the pack its due proportion minus its weight.

Again Labiskwee's hand went to her hip, and she flew at the culprit, only to be caught in Smoke's arms, where she surrendered herself, sobbing with the futility of her rage.

"Oh, lover, it is not the food!" she panted. "It is you, your life. The dog! He is eating you, he is eating you!"

* * * * * * *

It was a morning stark still, clear blue above, with white sun dazzle on the snow. The way led up a long wide slope of crust. They moved like weary ghosts in a dead world.

"Something is going to happen," Labiskwee whispered. "Don't you feel it—here, there, everywhere? Everything is strange."

"I feel a chill that is not of cold," Smoke answered. "Nor is it of hunger."

"It is in your head, your heart," she agreed excitedly. "That is the way I feel it."

A quarter of an hour later they paused for breath.

"The air is getting thick and heavy," said Labiskwee. "It is hard to breathe."

"There be three suns," McCan muttered hoarsely, reeling as he clung to his staff for support.

They saw a mock sun on either side of the real sun.

"There are five," said Labiskwee, and as they looked new suns formed and flashed before their eyes.

"By heaven, the sky is filled with suns beyant all countin'," McCan cried in fear.

Which was true, for, look where they would, half the circle of the sky dazzled and blazed with new suns forming.

McCan yelped sharply with surprise and pain. "I'm stung!" he cried out then yelped again.

Then Labiskwee cried out, and Smoke felt a pricking stab on his cheek so cold that it burned like acid.

And then a shot rang out, strangely muffled. Down the slope were the young men, standing on their skis, and one after another they opened fire.

"Spread out!" Smoke commanded. "And climb for it! We're almost to the top. They're a quarter of a mile below, and that means a couple of miles the start of them on the down going on the other side."

"Thank the Lord," Smoke panted to Labiskwee, "all these suns spoil their aim."

"It shows my father's temper," she said. "They have orders to kill."

"How strange you talk!" Smoke said. "Your voice sounds far away."

"Cover your mouth," Labiskwee cried suddenly. "And don't talk. I know what it is. Cover your mouth with your sleeve, thus, and do not talk."

From the crest, looking back, they saw the young men stumbling and falling on the upward climb.

"They will never get here," Labiskwee said. "It is the white death. I know it, though I have never seen it. I have heard the old men talk. Soon will come a mist unlike any mist or fog or frost smoke you ever saw. Few have seen it and lived."

McCan gasped and strangled.

"Keep your mouth covered," Smoke commanded. McCan had sunk down, squatting, on his skis, his mouth and eyes covered by his arms.

"Come on, make a start," Smoke ordered.

"I can't move," McCan moaned.

"Let him be," Labiskwee muttered harshly.

But Smoke persisted, dragging the man to his feet and facing him down the long slope they must go. Then he started him with a shove, and McCan, braking and steering with his staff, shot into the sheen of diamond dust and disappeared.

Smoke looked at Labiskwee, who smiled, though it was all she could do to keep from sinking down. He nodded for her to push off, but she came near to him, and, side by side, a dozen feet apart, they flew down through the stinging thickness of cold fire.

Brake as he would, Smoke's heavier body carried him past her, and he dashed on alone, a long way, at tremendous speed, that did not slacken till he came out on a level, crusted plateau. Here he braked till Labiskwee overtook him, and they went on, again side by side, with diminishing speed, which finally ceased. The lethargy had grown more pronounced. The wildest effort of will could move them no more than at a snail's pace. They passed McCan, again crouched down on his skis, and Smoke roused him with his staff in passing.

"Now we must stop," Labiskwee whispered painfully, "or we will die. We must cover up—so the old men said."

She did not delay to untie knots, but began cutting her pack lashings. Smoke cut his, and, with a last look at the fiery death mist and the mockery of suns, they covered themselves over with the sleeping furs and crouched in each other's arms. They felt a body stumble over them and fall, then heard feeble whimpering drowned in a violent coughing fit and knew it was McCan who huddled against them as he wrapped his robe about him.

Their own lung strangling began, and they were racked and torn by a dry cough, spasmodic and uncontrollable. Smoke noted his temperature rising in a fever, and Labiskwee suffered similarly. Hour after hour the coughing spells increased in frequency and violence, and not till late afternoon was the worst reached. After that the mend came slowly, and between spells they dozed in exhaustion.

Smoke awoke with lips touching his lips. He lay partly in Labiskwee's arms, his head pillowed on her breast. Her voice was cheerful and usual. The muffled sound of it had vanished.

"It is day," she said, lifting the edge of the robes a trifle. "See, oh, my lover, it is day! We have lived through, and we no longer cough. Let us look at the world, though I could stay here thus forever and always."

"I do not hear McCan," Smoke said. "And what has become of the young men that they have not found us?"

He threw back the robes and saw a normal and solitary sun in the sky. A gentle breeze was blowing, crisp with frost and hinting of warmer days to come. All the world was natural again. McCan lay on his back, his unwashed face, swarthy from camp smoke, frozen hard as marble. The sight did not affect Labiskwee.

"Look!" she cried. "A snowbird! It is a good sign."

There was no evidence of the young men. Either they had died on the other side of the divide or had turned back.

There was so little food that they dared not eat a tithe of what they needed, and in the days that followed, wandering through the lone mountain land, the sharp sting of life grew blunted, and the wandering merged half into a dream. Smoke would become abruptly conscious to find himself staring at the never ending hated snow peaks, his senseless babble still ringing in his ears. And the next he would know, after seeming centuries, was that again he was roused to the sound of his own maunderings. Labiskwee, too, was light headed most of the time.

Came a day when it turned cold and a thick snow, that was not snow, but frost crystals of the size of grains of sand, began to fall. For three days and nights it continued to fall. It was impossible to travel until it crusted under the spring sun, so they lay in their furs and rested and ate less because they rested. So small was the ration they permitted that it gave no appeasement to the hunger pang that was much of the stomach, but more of the brain. And Labiskwee, delicious, maddened by the taste of her tiny portion, sobbing and mumbling, fell upon the next day's portion and crammed it into her mouth.

Then it was given to Smoke to see a wonderful thing. The food between her teeth roused her to consciousness. She spat it out and with a great anger struck herself with her clinched fist on the offending mouth.

It was given to Smoke to see many wonderful things in the days yet to come. After the long snowfall came on a great wind that drove the dry and tiny frost particles as sand is driven in a sandstorm. All through the night the sand frost drove by, and in the full light of a clear and wind blown day Smoke looked with swimming eyes and reeling brain upon what he took to be the vision of a dream. All about towered great peaks, and from the tip of every peak, swaying, undulating, flaring out broadly against the azure sky, streamed gigantic snow banners, miles in length, milky and nebulous, ever waving lights and shadows and flashing silver from the sun.

Labiskwee sat up among the furs.

"I dream, Labiskwee," he said. "Look. Do you, too, dream within my dream?"

"It is no dream," she replied. "This have the old men told me. And after this will blow the warm winds, and we shall live and win west."

Smoke shot a snowbird, and they divided it. Once, in a valley where willows budded standing in the snow, he shot a snowshoe rabbit. Another time he got a lean white weasel.

"It is summer in the lower valleys," said Labiskwee. "Soon will it be summer here."

The days lengthened, and the snow began to sink. Each day the crust thawed, each night it froze again, and they were afoot early and late, being compelled to camp and rest during the midday hours of thaw when the crust could not bear their weight. When Smoke grew snow blind Labiskwee towed him on a thong tied to her waist. And when she was so blinded she was towed by a thong to his waist. And, starving, in a deeper dream, they struggled on through an awakening land bare of any life save their own.

The time came when the last food was gone. The high peaks receded, the divides became lower, and the way opened promisingly to the west. But their reserves of strength were gone and, without food, the time quickly followed when they lay down at night and in the morning did not arise. Smoke weakly gained his feet, collapsed and on hands and knees crawled about the building of a fire. But, try as she would, Labiskwee sank back each time in an extremity of weakness. And Smoke sank down beside her, a wan sneer on his face for the automatism that had made him struggle for an unneeded fire. There was nothing to cook, and the day was warm.

A SMART SCARLET HAT WITH UNUSUAL TRIMMING.

What little trimming there is on this hat appears to be sliding off—but the effect is decidedly chic. The hat is a new spring model made of rough straw in vivid scarlet shade and the bunch of conventionalized grapes is scarlet also. The heavy trimming accentuates the tilt of the hat on the head.

Satisfactory Test of Sentiment.

The prohibition cause lost nothing in the fight before Congress, for the majority vote which was cast for Constitutional Prohibition indicates very clearly the growth of popular sentiment and points unerringly the way the country is destined to go sooner or later. A few years ago there would have been scant attention given such a movement by the Federal Congress. It would have been difficult to bring the matter to a vote, but a great change has come over the people of the various States as regards their views on the liquor traffic; many who formerly felt it should be merely regulated now believe the traffic to be an unmixed evil and that it should be destroyed; many who formerly favored local option and regulation now favor prohibition and the absolute and complete destruction of the liquor traffic, and as this sentiment is becoming a dominating factor in many of the States, it was a most reasonable thing for members of Congress to heed its demands. The people back at home have much to do with the way Congressmen vote—and it is right that this should be so—for Congressmen are the servants and not the masters of the people.

The vote of the Tennessee Congressmen, which was unanimous for the prohibition resolution, is conclusive of what they think of their State's real attitude on the question. It shows that they have accepted as absolute the decree as rendered by the people in the last election, when they cordially ratified the prohibition pronouncement of the Democratic party and in doing this said to the world that prohibition is a fixed policy of the State.

The test that has been made in Congress of the strength of the prohibition sentiment in the United States must be eminently satisfactory to all sincere advocates of the cause, for it indicates the approach of the day when the liquor interest will be subdued and the liquor traffic suppressed.—Nashville (Tenn.) Tennessean.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Announcement has been made by the Anti-Saloon League of America that a prohibition campaign would be waged during 1915 and 1916 in almost a dozen States, New York included.

The statement says:

"States in which campaigns will be waged are New York, Texas, Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, Idaho, Nebraska, Iowa, Arkansas, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio and possibly others.

"New York State will witness a lively fight in the present legislature over prohibition, as two bills representing the views of the temperance forces will have to be either defeated or adopted. One prepared by the allied forces will call for State-wide prohibition. It will be sponsored by Assemblyman E. C. Gillett, of Penn Yan. The Optional Local Prohibition bill of the Anti-Saloon League will be fathered by Senator Samuel A. Jones, of Norwich, and Assemblyman Henry S. Howard, of Watkins."

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 2.—Alabama will become a prohibition State July 1 under two related measures, which became law January 22 without Executive approval. Within a few hours after Governor Henderson had vetoed the bills both Houses voted down his proposal and repassed the bills by overwhelming majorities. The vote in the House on repassage was 73 to 29. In the Senate it was 24 to 10. The prohibition measures re-enact the Prohibition law repealed in 1911 after it had been in force two years.

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 2.—The South Carolina House of Representatives has passed a bill authorizing a referendum next September on State-wide prohibition. The measure now goes to the Senate.

Household Hints

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES

Beneficial Bath—Procure at a drug store a bag of sea salt. Take a cup of this salt, dissolve it in enough soft water to thoroughly saturate an ordinary bath towel. Let towel dry. After a regular tub bath, use the "salted" towel to dry the body. Refreshing as well as beneficial.

For Cold on Lungs—Chop six onions, put in spider over hot fire, add same quantity rye meal and enough vinegar to form thick paste. Stir thoroughly five or ten minutes. Put in two cotton bags large enough to cover lungs, apply as hot as patient can bear, changing and reheating the poultices until perspiration starts from chest.

Cough Medicine—Get 5-cent package hoarhound, same of mullin, put in about two quarts of water and steep (not boil) down to about one quart. Turn into clean salt sack, squeeze out liquid, then add one quart New Orleans molasses and 5c rock candy; boil down until like syrup. Put it in three or four-ounce bottles that children can handle. When the little ones have a cough or cold set a bottle where they can reach it and tell them to help themselves. It is fine for croup, as you can give big doses and very often, because you know there is nothing in it to hurt. The mullin quiets and the molasses physics, which is very good in colds. (Keep in cool place.)

Cough Remedy—One ounce each of syrup of squills, syrup of tolu, syrup of wild cherry, and paregoric. Take one teaspoonful every three or four hours. It is very good for croup.

For Constipation—One teaspoon powdered rhubarb, one teacup water (full), one teacup granulated sugar; simmer these, then add one teaspoon peppermint, one teaspoon baking soda. You will find this excellent to give children as a cathartic once a week; one teaspoonful before breakfast. (Keep in cool place.)

DEVICE FOR KEEPING THE CURTAINS CLEAN

For those who take to sleep with their bedroom windows open, the problem of keeping the curtains in a presentable condition is trying. It has been solved by putting small hooks in the outer edge of the side lintels above the middle sash.

Before retiring loop each curtain over its hook by the cord.

This admits a free current of air, and the dampness in no way harms the draperies. It is also a good plan to adopt this method when sweeping the room.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

When cleaning fish use a tablespoon for scaling instead of a knife, and see how much better it is. Scales don't fly, and much quicker.

In Place of Shoe Trees—After taking off shoes, pack them with pieces of newspaper crumpled up in wads; shoes will stay in perfect shape.

Pumpkins frozen before they are cooked are ruined. When they begin to rot, cook several, put them through colander into granite pan and freeze solid; when you want to make a pie, cut out a chunk, thaw, and make as usual; you cannot tell it has been frozen and it will keep until late spring if not allowed to thaw out. It is also a help to the busy farmer's wife for unexpected company or hired help.

THE TABLE

Molasses Pudding—Mix together one-half cup sugar, one-half cup molasses, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one tablespoon melted lard, one cup sour milk with one teaspoon soda. To this add one cup chopped nuts. Mix all to a stiff batter with flour. Put in greased pan, steam 4½ hours. Serve hot. Sauce: One cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, one-half cup vinegar, two tablespoons cornstarch, salt, 2½ cups water (boiling), juice and rind of one lemon. Mix all together except water, then pour boiling water over gradually. Boil five minutes. Serve hot.

Delicious Dessert—This dish is not only good to the eyes, but good to the taste. Take one and one-half pints milk; when it boils put in two tablespoons flour, two of cocoa, three or sugar thinned with a little milk. When done add one teaspoon of vanilla, put in deep bowl to mold. When wanted, turn upside down in flat dish. Whip five or six tablespoons of cream until it stands alone, sweeten and put over top. Slice red jelly thin, lay a slice here and there over top of cream.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

By ALICE CREW GALL

Harold Hippopotamus

I wonder how you'd like to hear of Harold Hippopotamus,
Who plagued and teased his little friends, and always made a lot of fuss.

A Hippopotamus can live as well in water as on land;
They all can swim like anything (they're made that way, you understand).

So every morning Harold went down to the river for a swim,
And almost always he would coax his little friends to go with him.

And when he'd get them down there he would tease them till they got provoked;
He ducked the smaller children in the water till they almost choked.

He kept this up till finally an Alligator who lived in
The river said: "I'll give that Hip a taste of his own medicine."

So next time Harold teased his friends the 'Gator grabbed him by the toe
And said: "Unless you promise me you will be good, I swear I won't let go."

And Harold was so scared that he was glad to promise, and I'm pleased
To say the lesson did him good, and from that day he never teased.

You see that no one really likes a teasing child, so let us try
To do to all our little friends exactly as we'd be done by.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Night had fallen. The long shadows of the pines crept across the road that skirted the edge of the forest. The sunlight had turned to a red glare in the west, against which the tree trunks were etched in distinct lines. A team was climbing the hill.

"So you're going to teach in Morse's school?" remarked the old man, slapping the lines on the horses' backs as they toiled up the stony road.

"I teach in District No. 9," replied the girl at his side.

"Yes, that's Morse's school," rejoined her companion.

"Why do they call it Morse's school?" she asked.

"Oh, he runs it mostly. Of course there are two more directors, but they do as he says. You see, he owns the sawmill and the store and a big farm, and most of the houses at the Corners, and he takes a great interest in the school teachers," and the old man grinned, looking at the girl at his side out of the corner of his eye.

"Has he children in school?" she inquired.

"No," he chuckled. "He ain't married. That's why he is so interested."

He drove up to a frame house near the general store. The Corners was a discouraged looking attempt at a village, set in a clearing hugged about by the somber pines.

Mrs. Thorn, the landlady, was very garrulous, and it was not long before Muriel Fisk knew the entire history of Joe Morse, the catch of the surrounding country. She was told of the teachers of this same school whom he had made love to, proposed to, and made ridiculous by announcing at last that he "didn't mean anything serious."

"I thought I'd tell you, Miss Fisk," added the motherly woman. "I can't bear to see you made game of. I knew your father. I'd never have a thing to do with him if I were you."

"Thank you, Mrs. Thorn. I shall be on my guard," answered the girl.

That evening Morse called, left the key to the school house, presented the contract to be signed, and incidentally looked the ground over, deciding that a season of rare enjoyment was ahead of him.

To Mrs. Thorn's disgust, Muriel went out riding with Morse the following Sunday, and he called during the week.

She had been teaching about a month and the girls in the neighboring farm houses had become familiar with her face and had grown accustomed to seeing her with Morse. They saw them pass one Sunday as they watched from behind the parlor curtains.

As they drove through the fragrant pine woods Morse slipped his arm around the girl's waist.

"I see history is beginning to repeat itself," remarked Muriel, removing the arm with a degree of indifference that was utterly new to him.

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"Do you for one moment suppose I have been at the Corners a month and not heard what a conquering hero you are? Why not vary the monotony by having one sensible friendship?"

"You carry your own little fire extinguisher right with you," he laughed. His eyes glowed. Here was a foe worthy of his steel.

He was silent for some time and his companion was enjoying the quiet beauty of the woods, when he suddenly threw his arm around her and kissed her cheek. The red flamed to her face, but if he expected a demonstration he was disappointed. She said nothing. They neared a clearing around a farm house and she said:

"I would like a drink of water."

"Let me get it for you," he said, handing her the lines. He sprang out and disappeared in the house. Muriel climbed out and was busily engaged feeding the pony clover when he returned.

When he wished to help her into the buggy she said, "I am going to walk back. I ride only with gentlemen," and she started toward the Corners.

"Miss Fisk," he cried, "I promise on my honor that you shall not be annoyed. Please get in."

"Really, I prefer to walk. I am a good pedestrian," she answered without looking back. He turned the horse and soon caught up with her. "Are you determined? It's four miles to town, and through the woods."

"I love the woods, and four miles are nothing," she replied.

"Then I will walk with you," and he jumped out, trusting the horse to follow.

The next Sunday she declined to ride with him.

He called on her the following week and told her that she interested him more than anyone he had ever met, only to be answered with a laugh. "Is that reflex action? Habits of speech become very strong if persisted in for years." He could make no impression. Soon it became town talk that "Joe Morse had met his Waterloo," and a buzz of excitement it made.

"He spends his evenings proposing to the teacher," Mrs. Thorn reported, "and she certainly is enough for him."

Muriel had a ride or two with him before school closed, for now her dominion over him was complete. She even allowed him to take her to the station when she left and as she cheerfully waved goodby he could not guess whether the future held any possibilities for him or not. He could only hope.

ONE way to provide an estate is to buy life insurance today.

Of 10,000 persons dying in New York state during three months only 3,351, about one-third, left any estate whatever.

Of the heads of families only one-half left an estate.

The other half left nothing--not even a savings bank account.

New York is no different from New Jersey in this regard.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS

Treasurer's Statement Shows Balance of $2,224.27—Total Membership is 769—Committee Chairmen Named for the Year.

The election of officers, presentation of reports for the past year and the appointment of committee chairmen were features of the annual meeting of the Plainfield Country Club held at the Hartridge Auditorium, last night. All the reports showed that the past year had been the most successful in the club's history and the prospects for the coming year are unusually bright.

S. D. Lounsbery, treasurer, reported total receipts for the year to be $27,709.91 and expenditures of $24,887.25, in addition to which there was spent $2,139.47 for general improvements in the club property, which included nearly $1,800 for the building of a drive. The present balance on hand is $2,224.27.

The club has a total membership of 769, which includes 360 active members, 23 non-resident, 111 associate and 275 junior associate, which is a slight increase over the membership of a year ago.

During the evening S. D. Lounsbery, William T. Kaufman, R. H. Cox and J. P. Stevens were re-elected trustees for the coming year. Afterward the trustees met and re-elected these officers: President J. P. Stevens; vice president, William T. Kaufman; secretary, Dr. F. E. DuBois; treasurer, S. D. Lounsbery.

President Stevens then announced the chairmen of committees for the year as follows: Greens, Julius E. Erickson; house, R. H. Cox; golf, W. Lester Glenney; tennis, S. W. Merrihew; building, Arthur M. Collens.

The club is planning for an active season and a little later an attractive schedule of events will be announced comprising all of last year's features and some new ones. It has not yet been decided whether the Junior Metropolitan tournament will be held here or not. Since the inauguration of the tournament it has been held each year on the local club's course, but this year it was thought best that some other club entertain the boys. Thus far no bid has been put in for the event, and it is possible that it may again come to Plainfield.

The course is now pronounced to be one of the best in the country, being the full length, while the clubhouse, since it was enlarged, is provided with every convenience for the comfort and enjoyment of the members.

COURT DECIDES MARRIED WOMAN IS NOT LIABLE

Elizabeth, Feb. 3.—The question as to whether or not a married woman who purchased goods in her husband's name, and did not pledge her personal estate in payment therefor was liable was decided in favor of the defendant in a suit started yesterday afternoon in the Circuit Court, in which James McCreery & Co., New York merchants, were plaintiffs, and Mrs. Florence Morrow, formerly of Plainfield, was defendant. The amount involved was $254. A nonsuit was ordered by Judge Speer. Mrs. Morrow, it was said, was living in Plainfield with her husband at the time. The case was decided under the new married woman's act.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETS.

The monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held in the Chamber's office in the Babcock building, West Front street, at 8:15 tomorrow night. Matters of importance are to be taken up at this meeting, including the report of the ash and garbage disposal committee.

"GOOD THINGS TO EAT."

A sale of "Good Things to Eat" will be held under the auspices of the Loyal Daughters of Hope Chapel Bible School, at 180 East Front street, February 6, beginning at 10 o'clock. Home-made bread, fresh crisp cookies, layer cakes, confections and fancy articles will be on sale.

FILED DELINQUENTS.

Tax Collector George F. Brown, of the borough, placed on filed at Somerville, Monday, a list of over 150 names of delinquent taxpayers in the borough.

SESAME CLUB.

The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. R. Moyer, 721 Kensington avenue.

FRIENDS COME TO AID OF EXCHANGE

George S. Clay Contributes to Fund to Save Local Institution.

William L. Smalley's urgent appeal in behalf of the Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work and his offer to be one of one hundred men to give $10 toward the support of this worthy institution, has found a ready response among the friends of the Exchange. President George S. Clay, of the Common Council, today in a communication to the Daily Press says that he will be one of one hundred to give $10 to save the Exchange from going out of business.

"I can be counted on as one of the one hundred—only 98 to come forward," says Mr. Clay. "I should be sorry to see that useful institution close its doors."

The annual meeting of the Exchange will be held on Tuesday morning, February 9, when it is expected that definite action regarding the institution will be taken. If a sufficient number of public spirited citizens come forward and contribute the required amount the Exchange can be continued, otherwise it will be necessary to close the business.

As previously stated the Exchange has been the means of providing work for many Plainfield women who have had no other way of supporting themselves and their families and in case the business is discontinued it will result in a hardship to these women. For this reason it is the hope not only of the officers of the institution, but his many friends that it may not be closed.

$5,000 TOWARD NEW NETHERWOOD CHURCH

Erection of New Edifice May Be Started Next Summer On Present Site.

Through the will of the late Susan P. DuBois, the Netherwood Reformed church has received a bequest of $1,000, the money to be turned over to the trustees of that edifice to erect a new building within five years. Last week the Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed Church made an appropriation of $4,000 toward a new church building in the East End.

Plans are now underway for the establishment of a fund for the raising of sufficient money to build the church during the coming summer. It is proposed to erect a church costing between $10,000 and $15,000 and to locate it on the same site on which the present structure stands.

BOARD OF HEALTH WANTS APPROPRIATION OF $8,500

Dr. T. S. Davis was re-elected president of the Plainfield Board of Health at a meeting held in the local headquarters last night, and the officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows: Secretary, Dr. H. D. Corbusier; treasurer, S. H. Voorhees; plumbers' examining board, William Addis, Sr., Den J. Galbraith and Edward McCann. During the month 138 cases of communicable diseases were reported, measles being the leading one with a total of ninety-seven cases.

Twenty-four rooms in fourteen buildings were disinfected, three court prosecutions were conducted, three permits were granted. It was voted to request the Council to set aside $8,500 for the health work during the ensuing year.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE BRIDGE.

A bridge party, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the Equal Suffrage cause, will be held in Columbus Hall tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The event was originally scheduled to take place in the home of Mrs. Lipscomb in Belvidere avenue, but the indications are now that a large number will attend and it has been deemed advisable to secure the larger quarters.

INJURED BY FALL

Warren Townley, of Grandview avenue, while working on Sherman avenue, Monday afternoon, fell and sustained a painful injury to his foot. Mr. Townley fell into a pile of sand in the cellar of a new house. He turned his ankle, straining the ligaments.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Resolutions were passed Monday night at the borough Board of Health meeting, which will be presented to A. E. Kenney, the retiring president. Mr. Kenney has been at the head of the board for the past nine years.

AMATEUR PLAYLETS SCORED A BIG HIT

St. Mary's School Alumni Entertained in Local Hall Last Night.

A large audience, composed of relatives and friends, attended the reception given by the members of the Alumni Association of St. Mary's Parochial School, last night, in the school hall. The affair was the first of a series of entertainments which will be conducted from time to time and was a success in every way. The next event will be given in the near future and will be on a larger scale.

Musical solos by the Misses Elizabeth and Sarah Schuck were beautifully rendered and a vocal solo by little Miss Mary Maher was the feature of the evening. The little singer has a clear soprano voice of remarkable sweet tone. A "Mock Trial," written by Father Bogan, proved very amusing, each member of the cast taking his part to perfection. The cast included the Misses Mary Welsh, Sarah Schuck, Mary Cumiskey, Katherine Deady, Frances Russ, Helen Hagan, Mary McAfee, Nora McCarthy, Bessie MacAlvanah, and the Messrs. Edward Sullivan, Jack Gallagher, John Regan, Frank Green, Edward McCann, C. Ward and B. Miller.

"An Interrupted Burglary," a comery in one act, kept the audience in continuous laughter. In this breezy little skit, Miss Josephine Murphy, takes the part of the railroad president's daughter, and by many clever and ingenious manoeuvers entertains three burglars in her home until help arrives. The cast was coached by Walter Sherwin, who is now playing in Ben Hur, and the results last night revealed the careful rehearsing the members had gone through. Those taking part were Miss Josephine Murphy, and the Messrs. Garret Keating, Frank Donnelly, William Sullivan, Jack McCarthy and Jim Kyle.

After the plays dancing was enjoyed by those present and music was furnished by Prof. Squires and Dunn, of Jersey City.

METHODIST LADIES' AID GIVES CHICKEN SUPPER

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the First M. E. church, gave the second of a series of suppers in the church dining room, last night. More than one hundred delicious meals were served to those attending and the committee feels that its efforts were properly responded to when the weather conditions are taken into consideration.

The members of the society, whose names begin with letters from G. to R., had charge of the affair, and made chicken pot-pie, the piece de resistance, although all the embellishments were provided. They included tomato bisque, mashed potatoes, French peas, turnips, lemon tarts and coffee. Mrs. Harry Gee was chairman of the supper committee and Mrs. Arthur Osmun had supervision of those preparing the meal. Young women members of the Ladies' Aid Society acted as the waitresses. The proceeds from the affair will be added to the society's general fund.

The third supper in the series will be given some time in April and will be prepared and served by the members of the organization whose names run from R. to Z.

The blaze was extinguished with a pail of water and the total damage will only be about $5.

JAIL TERMS FOR TWO STEIGMANS

Sentences Levied by Judge Haight Are Upheld by Higher Court.

GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Louis Steigman, of This City, and David Steigman, of New Brunswick, Were Arrested Here Last Summer on State Warrants.

In the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Judge Wooley, today, upheld the sentences of Louis Steigman, of 131 East Fifth street, this city, and his brother, David, of New Brunswick, who were given prison terms by Judge Haight, in the United States District Court, in Newark, June 22 last, after being found guilty of conspiracy and the concealment of assets. Louis was sentenced to serve one year and six months in the Essex county penitentiary at Caldwell, and his brother was given a term of one year and five days. W. B. Weinberg, of New York, counsel for the brothers, took an immediate appeal, which was decided this morning.

Pending the consideration of the application to the higher courts the brothers were released in $2,000 bail each, furnished by a local merchant, and have been at liberty since last June. They will be re-arrested and taken to Caldwell to start their terms at once. The conviction of the Steigman brothers was secured by Walter D. Hetfield, Jr., of the firm of Reed & Hetfield, and William Newcorn, of this city, counsel for the creditors, who assisted United States District Attorney Walter C. Bacon in the prosecution.

Louis Steigman formerly conducted the Surprise store in West Front street, and his brother owned a dry goods store in New Brunswick. It was charged that during the three months between September and December, 1913, the firm bought goods amounting to $8,700 while it was stated that there had come into the hands of one of the trustees, Francis J. Blatz, $1,800. In March, 1913, Louis Steigman is said to have stated that the assets were $5,500.

She was devoted to her two sons, Charles D. Clark, with whom she lived, and James H. Clark, of East Fifth street. These are the only surviving relatives. WILL MAKE SURVEY OF THE EAST END

Civic Association Will Also Seek More Permanent School Facilities.

The meeting of the East End Civic Association was well attended, last evening, in spite of the storm. A number of new members were elected, and by a resolution the wives and daughters of members were given membership in the association. The executive committee announced that the next meeting, on March 2, will be a school meeting, to which the Mayor, president of the Board of Education and superintendent of schools and also members of the Netherwood Residents' Association will be invited. The purpose will be the consideration of larger and more permanent school facilities for the eastern sections of the city.

The president was instructed to appoint a committee to make a general survey of the East End of the city, and report concerning conditions and needs at some future meeting. A special committee was appointed to confer with the freeholders regarding the caring for the water from the streams which converge at Leland and North avenues, which in time of high water flood the streets. The committee on health was instructed to confer with the Board of Health, the City Council and the other civic associations concerning the necessity for a public collection of garbage and ashes.

Numerous complaints were made that the trolley cars, when late, do not stop to take on passengers. The committee on public service was instructed to take this up with the Public Service Corporation. The need for sidewalks on the cross streets between Leland and Netherwood avenues was discussed, there being none from Front street to North avenue, a distance of over half a mile. This was referred to the committee on streets to be brought before the Council.

At the close of the business session the members were entertained by a journey to San Francisco and back, illustrated by numerous lantern slides.

APOPLEXY IS FATAL TO HENRY S. ALTAI

Former Well Known Newspaper Man Expires in His Office in Newark.

Henry S. Altai, aged 52 years, widely known in this city and throughout Union county, died yesterday at his desk in the office of the Altai Sales Company on Broad street, Newark, of which he was president. Death was due to apoplexy. Mr. Altai had been a frequent visitor in this city, where he had many friends.

Mr. Altai was a member of an old Hungarian family. He studied at the University of Hungary and during the Bosnian war served in the Hungarian army. Shortly after his marriage to Miss Clara Davies, daughter of a prominent Hungarian painter, twenty-two years ago, the couple came to this country.

For a time Mr. Altai was editor of a German newspaper in Elizabeth, and later became interested in the Rosedale and Linden Park cemetery concern at Linden and at one time operated automobile touring cars abroad, having an office on 42nd street, New York. He was a member of the Orange Lodge, B. P. O. E. Among his other activities was that of society editor for the New York German Herald. MAYOR WARNS ALL PROPERTY OWNERS

Plenty of Idle Men Ready to do Snow Removing That Has Been Neglected.

Numerous complaints were lodged this morning with the city authorities concerning the negligence on the part of certain property holders in removing ice and snow from the sidewalks and the protests have caused Mayor Calkins to issue the following warning:

"The city ordinances require owners or tenants, as the case may be, to remove all ice and snow from sidewalks within twelve hours of daylight after same forms or falls thereon. Persons violating the ordinance, on conviction, are subject to a fine. The Chief of Police has been instructed to report all violations promptly.

"There would seem to be no excuse for failure to comply promptly with a reasonable regulation in these times when honest men are looking for honest work. A telephone call to C. O. S. headquarters is all that is necessary. Miss Skillman, who is in charge of the work of the commission for the unemployed, will furnish men on application. Telephone number 103."

NON-SUPPORT CHARGE DISMISSED BY COURT

Albert Gaub, a machinist, of Johnston avenue, was arraigned before Recorder F. W. Hand, this morning, on a non-support charge preferred by his wife, Emma Gaub. Judge William G. DeMeza was the counsel for the defendant and S. S. Swackhamer represented the borough. The latter brought forth much evidence, stating that the defendant had forced his wife out of the home at 12 o'clock one night and then wrote her letters of repentance asking her to return, which she refused to do.

The opposing side claimed that Mr. Gaub had provided a home for his wife and after much debate Recorder Hand dismissed the case.

CHECK GERMANS BEFORE WARSAW

Russian Statement Says That Enemy Have Been Driven Back.

ITALY HOLDS TROOPS

Said to Have Ordered All Reserves to Hold Themselves in Readiness—Artillery Battle Reported in France—Zeebrugge Bombarded?

Petrograd, Feb. 3.—That the Russian army has been successful in the region of Warsaw and in the Carpathians is the statement made in the official report from the front, issued today. It is also stated that the Germans are sending an army to assist the Austrians in the Carpathian mountains. The statement follows:

"The engagements in the region of Mlawa have continued favorable to our troops. On the left bank of the Vistula the battle on the roads from Bolimow proceeded on February 1 with considerable intensity. A large number of heavy and light batteries participated energetically in the engagement.

"The German attack on the morning of the second north of Borjimow was repulsed with great losses for the enemy. A violent combat was begun south of the village of Goumine, where we recaptured advanced trenches which we lost January 31. The possession of a small farm still is undecided.

"South of the Pilica, near Dounaietz, the enemy increased the intensity of his bombardment, coning, along the broad front at Dukla of the enemy's troops to make progress were without success.

"In the Carpathians the conflict continued January 31 and February 1. Our forces advanced, fighting, along the broad front at Dukla pass as far as the lower San, having crossed the principal ridge of the mountain range in the region of Jasliska and Mezo Laborcz, where we took a battery of six cannon, two mortars, a number of rapid firers and numerous prisoners. An offensive movement undertaken by the enemy southeast of Uzsok pass was repulsed with enormous losses.

"News relative to the transportation of German troops to the Carpathian front finds confirmation in the fact that on February 2, southeast of Beskid pass, we destroyed a battalion of the 224th German regiment, a remnant of which, notably battalion and company commanders and twenty soldiers, were made prisoners."

Paris, Feb. 3.—The Italian Parliament at its meeting on February 18 is expected to vote authority to the Cabinet to take any action in regard to the war which it may deem necessary at any time, says a despatch from Rome to the Petit Parisien. All members of the reserve who have not already been summoned to the colors for manoeuvres have received notification to hold themselves in readiness at any time.

The War Office issued the following statement this afternoon:

"There is nothing to report north of the Lys. Between the Lys and the Oise in the sector of Nouvete, which is west of Lens, our batteries silenced a sharp fire by the enemy's infantry. The Germans launched fire boats on the River Encre, before Aveluy, north of Albert. These engines of destruction were stopped by us before any explosion occurred.

"Our artillery has continued to secure excellent results in the valley of the Aisne. We have advanced slightly, taking some prisoners, in repulsing a counter attack west of hill No. 200, near Perthes.

"In the Argonne a second German attack took place yesterday near Gagatelle, about 6 p. m. It was repulsed like that already reported in last night's official communication, which took place at 3 p. m.

"Calm prevailed yesterday on the front from the Meuse to the Vosges. In Alsace we are fortifying our positions on the ground gained to the south of Ammertzweiller."

Amsterdam, Feb. 3.—The sound of heavy gun fire was audible at Flushing yesterday, from the coast of Flanders. Another bombardment of the Germans at Zeebrugge by the British and German war vessels is believed to have taken place.

Complaints are being made in many districts of Germany over the increasing scarcity of the war bread, the wheat and potato meal product prescribed by Germany for her people owing to a lack of potato meal.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—The War Office today issued the following:

"French attacks against the German position near Perthes were repulsed yesterday. On the rest of the western front only artillery duels occurred. Nothing new is reported.

"From the East Prussian frontier,

TERRORS OF WAR IN WINTER.

Cold Is One of the Most Dreaded Enemies of Armies.

With the winter a frightful enemy appeared upon the scene of embattled Europe, for cold has always been one of the most dreaded enemies of armies. Cold conquered and drove back Napoleon in his Russian campaign, from which he returned with but a handful of men out of 600,000, and it has also defeated many lesser generals. Few persons realize what a tremendous part the weather plays in the drama now being enacted on the continent of

SERVIAN SENTINEL OF WINTER CAMP.

Europe and how the general results depend on conditions liable to obtain during the winter. History shows that some of the greatest losses to armies have come not from the guns of the enemy, but from the grim, cold winter.

There are bitter cold days in the Servian mountains, and the illustration shows a typical winter camp scene in Servia with a sentinel standing still like a frozen statue. These are the days that try men's souls, and the outcome of the war will depend in a large measure on which side has the best winter soldiers.

CAVE DWELLERS IN THE TRENCHES

How the Soldiers Live In Underground Burrows.

NOT since the pleistocene age has cave dwelling been so general in Europe as today. There are hundreds of thousands of men, on and off the firing line, who burrow into the earth for shelter from the enemy's fire and the weather's inclemency.

Vast underground cities have been built. In Galicia a newspaper correspondent saw a hill which had five tiers of caves, in rows of forty each. The entire establishment sheltered 2,500 men.

The men in their letters write of their caves with as much feeling as they would of home. Though snow and rain beat down without, the winds howl and great guns boom, the cave is always snug and warm, especially if it has been possible to gather enough straw for the floor and bed.

A letter from the front from a German captain, who is terse and laconic, says of trench life:

"We are as wet as young dogs, as dirty as swine, hairy as monkeys and keep singing with the enemy 320 feet away. We live in caves, which are now and then destroyed by shells of the enemy. When that happens we crawl out like so many rabbits and continue to live on pigs, steers, hens, goulash and rice. We cut our hair stair fashioned, write by light of candles, upon which we do the cooking at the same time.

"We are now our own antediluvian ancestors and gladly anticipate a bayonet attack for the relief it gives us through a change of air."

This is a war of trenches, writes a French correspondent. There are hundreds and hundreds of miles of them from Switzerland to the sea. These are the homes and the battlefields of the soldiers, and they are safer than any fortress in these days, when heavy guns have taken to growling about the land. Namur stood three days' bombardment. The trenches on the Aisne have survived nearly three months' cannonade.

Two or three miles to the rear of the firing line is a ditch six or seven feet deep. Drop into it, and you feel as if you were in a rabbit warren. This is the subterranean passage that leads to the subterranean city of the bearded, long haired and begrimed soldiers who are the pride of France. Halfway you scent an appetizing odor and hear cheery voices and laughter. They come from the kitchens—great chambers excavated out of the earth and roofed with timber. Here are the real "marmites" calling the hungry soldiers to dinner. They are well cared for in the trenches. Their meals—when they have time for them—are hot and plentiful. They have wine and cognac and coffee and tobacco.

We are bidden to share their meal, but our guide is eager to get to the front and hurries us once more into the passage. Ten minutes and we reach the first line of trenches, which run east and west, almost at right angles. These are the trenches of the reserves—men who were in the front line two days ago and are having a rest before they return.

It is wonderful what ingenuity and labor can accomplish out of the most unpromising material. I used to think that the Japanese were the only people who knew how to convert a ditch into a home. But the French are quite as clever. Here is a trench with head cover formed of crossbeams overlaid with branches and earth—a sure protection against shrapnel if not against the ponderous "marmite." It has a long bench of telegraph poles. There are little cupboards for cartridges and kit; picture postcards are fastened to the walls; there are ramps for reclining chairs or couches and drains to carry off the rain.

Classified advertising does not work miracles—it merely brings logical results. And these are more to be desired than miracles.

F. J. Empson, of Sydney, Australia, inventor of the wonderful Graduola device.

At the offices of the Aeolian Company in London, Mr. Empson gave the first demonstration of his wonderful invention for controlling the tone of the phonograph

Copyright, 1915, The Aeolian Co.

The Interesting Story of

The Aeolian-Vocalion

THE Aeolian-Vocalion is a new musical instrument of the phonograph type. Its greatest feature, the vital feature of any musical instrument, is its tone—the hitherto unapproached fidelity with which it reproduces the distinctive quality of every voice and instrument. But, in addition, the Aeolian-Vocalion possesses another feature of revolutionary character—one that adds immeasurably to the value of the instrument by putting its extraordinary tone under the direct personal control of its owner. This immensely important and absolutely unique accomplishment in connection with the phonograph, is the result of a single, brilliant invention, the story of which is so fraught with human interest that its brief relation is justified.

The Birth of a Great Invention

As the largest manufacturers of musical instruments in the world and originators of many of the most notable innovations in the music industry, The Aeolian Company has had a wide experience with inventions and inventors. The open-minded policy of this house, its dissatisfaction with ends achieved and constant striving for better and still better results, and its courteous and equitable treatment of all with whom it deals, are proverbial in the music trade. This attitude brings to it practically all who have inventions of value in connection with the art of music, and is largely responsible for its position in the forefront of musical development.

Of temporary discomfort to himself, however, was the fact that The Aeolian Company was but little known to an inventor from Australia who arrived in London, England, late in the summer of 1912 with a phonograph containing a revolutionary invention.

This man had purchased a phonograph of leading make for his home in Australia several years before. He was intensely musical, however, and from the first his instrument had failed to satisfy him. Wonderful and interesting as it was he felt keenly its inability to reproduce certain of the finer and more subtle musical effects. But most of all it left him nothing to do. Even had its playing been absolutely perfect, it was always the same and the intense desire that he felt to exercise his interpretative instinct by introducing the slight modifications needed to give the records new meaning and interest, remained unsatisfied. It was a marvelous mechanical instrument but still only mechanical.

Fortunately, however, this man possessed rare inventive genius. Instead of finally discarding his phonograph or resting content with its limitations, he devoted himself to overcoming them. He sought a means by which the wonderful records of the world's master artists could be heard again and again without monotony—a means for introducing the subtle and changing shades of expression with which the musician himself varies each performance.

To make a long story short, his efforts met with signal success, and after securing letters patent on his invention he sailed for London, confident that he need but show it to the manufacturers of phonographs to arouse their enthusiasm and secure its immediate adoption.

The Inventor Finds Recognition

In London, however, he met with an experience unfortunately not unusual for an inventor. He found so much difficulty in getting a satisfactory hearing from phonograph manufacturers that, finally becoming discouraged, he made his arrangements to return home, and had he not just at this period met a friend who gave him good advice, the wonderful results of his labors would have been lost to the world, temporarily at least.

This friend was well acquainted with the management of The Aeolian Company in London, and strongly urged that before giving up he submit his invention to this house. Unable to assure him of its adoption, he was at least able to promise a courteous reception and careful consideration of what he had to offer.

That he not only received courteous and intelligent consideration, but that the immense value of his invention was recognized by people ever awake to improvement is shown in the following cablegrams, destined to be of such extraordinary importance to music lovers, that passed between the President of The Aeolian Company and the manager of its London house a little over two years ago.

Tremaine, New York
Have been offered exclusive rights for very remarkable talking machine, different from and superior to any machine have ever seen. Propose sending inventor to America to submit his instrument for your approval.
(Signed) Mason, London

Mason, London
As we are not at present considering manufacturing talking machines, do not see how instrument can interest us. If you think it sufficiently exceptional to send under circumstances, do so, but secure option on invention before inventor sails. (Signed) Tremaine, New York

Inventor with machine sailing Saturday. Mauretania.
(Signed) Mason, London

On the following Saturday, Mr. F. J. Empson, the inventor, arrived in New York. He was met at the pier by representatives of The Aeolian Company and an audience arranged with the officials of the Company for the following Tuesday.

It was a highly interested and expectant gathering that met in the Directors' Room at Aeolian Hall at the appointed time.

The skepticism born of wide experience was tempered by a knowledge of the conservatism of the London officials. Mr. Mason's cablegram had expressed unusual enthusiasm and the inventor faced a sympathetic, though highly critical audience as he began to play his phonograph.

That afternoon will never be forgotten at Aeolian Hall. As the different department heads left the room after Empson had finished, each one realized that a new epoch had dawned for the phonograph—that in this wonderful invention was the feature that the phonograph had hitherto so greatly needed.

A New and Better Phonograph

Were the patents sound—were they fundamental? These were the important questions. The Aeolian Company was thoroughly familiar with the phonograph—had already experimented with an idea of finding means for improving its tone, and knew what it could accomplish should it be decided to enter the field.

When Mr. Empson's patents were found basic the matter was settled. The Aeolian Company took up its option, the inventor, gratified beyond measure at the recognition his genius had received and at his treatment, sailed for home, and the great organization, recognized as the most powerful force in the music world, set itself seriously to the task of making a new and better phonograph.

This was more than two years ago. The rest is another story in itself. No man and no body of men in the world were so well equipped for the task of improving the phonograph as the men constituting the expert staff of The Aeolian Company. Not only artists and musicians of exceptional capabilities, but scientific, mechanical engineers comprise this staff. While in addition, the greatest authority on sound alive today, is a permanent consultant, and the most perfectly equipped laboratory in existence for photographing and analyzing sound-waves, is at this company's command.

The result of the Aeolian Company's entrance into the field of phonograph manufacture might readily have been foreseen. In The Aeolian-Vocalion, its new phonograph, recently announced, this Company has produced an instrument that is not only fully up to the high standard of its other celebrated products, but one that is unquestionably the most perfect as well as most interesting phonograph the world has ever seen.

The Aeolian-Vocalion is now upon the market. It is on exhibition and sale only at Aeolian Hall. It is made in a wide variety of beautiful models, costing from $90 upwards. Descriptive booklet will be sent upon request. Informal demonstrations daily at 11 and at 3, in the Vocalion Salons. Admission free.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 3, 1915.

AN UNUSUAL POLITICIAN.

Shortly after election a dinner was given at Trenton in honor of State Chairman Bugbee, of the Republican party, at which he astonished the large assemblage there gathered by stating some plain truths about what was expected of the Legislature. He had sized up the feeling of the people about the campaign pledges which had been made, in such a way that there was not a person in the crowd of politicians within his hearing who did not gasp in astonishment at his perfect frankness. He told those present that they were starting off in a way that was altogether wrong, by filling a lot of unnecessary offices as rewards for political service.

Mr. Bugbee must be an unusual sort of a man, and one whom independent voters in the State can follow with safety. His latest statement will make some of his predecessors put on their thinking caps, and wonder if he is not about right, after all. Here is what he has had to say about using the influence of his office for party purposes:

I was not elected to serve as the dispenser of patronage or as a member of the Legislature. I not only have no desire to become a political dictator, but I would be unjust to the party if I permitted myself to be forced into a position where I would be under the suspicion of being one.

The State chairman is expected, as the Trenton Times says, to urge upon the majority in the Legislature that they carry out the party's platform pledges. He was a member of the same State convention that adopted the platform, and as the chosen leader of his party is under an obligation to the voters who gave endorsement to the platform to see that its promises are fulfilled. That Mr. Bugbee has been doing, but thus far without the hearty co-operation he was entitled to receive.

New Jersey has had too much of political bossism where men chosen to lead have assumed the right to attempt to dictate legislation and control official appointments. That day has passed and the "Board of Guardians," whose interference a former Governor so hotly resented was long ago retired. State chairmen are no longer expected to become legislative lobbyists or attempt to browbeat legislators into voting for political or corporation schemes.

Mr. Bugbee's plain statement of his conception of his duties and obligations ought to relieve him of the pressure that has been put upon him to "get behind" bills and use his influence in favor of office-seekers, for he does not regard his position as one that requires him to become either a lobbyist or a dispenser of political patronage.

Being a legislator is a cinch. If you don't believe it ask William N. Runyon about his job as Republican whip in the House of Assembly. He gets the magnificent salary of $500, and all he has to do is give up the biggest part of ten weeks time during the session, including evenings, to hearing all the cranks who have "isms" they wish to expound; hearing some of the long winded people who want freak legislation passed, spend hours saying litte or nothing; listening to the pleadings of the office holders whom everyone thinks should be legislated out of office except the office holders themselves; reading letters and telegrams and petitions signed by hundreds of people who happen to be interested in some one bill, such as the local option measure, and to making himself generally agreeable to the populace, including his scores of admiring friends from Plainfield who visit him at Trenton. Of course little things like personal business or social affairs must not be permitted to interfere with his service to the State. Yes, indeed, it's a fine job. It's such a fine one that a man of Judge Runyon's standing probably would not think of taking it, if he were fully familiar with the duties prior to election.

INTEREST WANING IN WORK OF LOCAL BOARD OF TRADE

Three members, including Secretary Lamar VanSyckle, John A. Gaffney and Jacob Sachar, turned out to the meeting of the Plainfield Board of Trade last night, in the Exempt Firmen's Hall, and after waiting an hour for the arrival of enough to constitute a quorum the faithful trio left the place muttering something about Jupiter Pluvius soaking civic pride. This is the second meeting in the past two weeks that has been postponed because of the lack of a quorum and the Trade Board appears to be nearing the stage of complete collapse.

For sometime past there has been a waning interest manifested in the work of the once flourishing body and it has been well nigh impossible to bring out more than a half dozen. Last month a special public mass meeting was called and when the speaker of the evening appeared he found an audience of ten visitors and three members awaiting him. The meeting had to be called off.

SIDEWALKS IMPROVEMENTS SUGGESTED TO COMMITTEE

The attention of the councilmanic committee on streets has been called to the broken stone driveways which cross the sidewalks in many places, as being very unpleasant to walk upon besides ruining rubbers. It is suggested that the property owners be required to have the sidewalks made continuous by laying concrete walks across these driveways.

It is also requested that all the pipes and other culverts in the gutters at driveways be removed so that vehicles may enjoy the use of the entire width of the roadway. It is probable that the committee will consider the advisability of introducing a resolution or ordinance requiring these improvements to be made. There are a great many driveways at which crushed stone is substituted for flagstone or concrete and where culverts are used in the gutters.

"CONFLICTS OF CONSCIENCE IN MODERN FRENCH DRAMA"

Despite the inclement weather, yesterday afternoon, a large and enthusiastic audience listened to the second of a series of lectures given by Madame F. Berkeley Smith, at the home of Mrs. Harry G. Runkle, of West Eighth street. "Conflicts of Conscience in the Modern French Drama," was her topic and she treated it in four different plays.

The conflict between self-gratification and friendship in "La Pronciesse Loiss Tairee," by Edmund Rostand; the conflict between love and duty to one's country in "Ronee Vaincu," by Parodi; the conflict between filial love and patriotic duty in "Bom La Couromee," by Francois Coppee, and the conflict between success, honor, love on the one side and a self-imposed duty on the other in "La Fille de Roland," by Vormio.

Speeches were made by those present including "Bud" Kline, Jim Walker, Fred Koller, Ex-Fre Chief William McCullough, Levi Kline, William Taylor, William Campbell, Howard Woolston, Fred Krausse. GERMAN NAVAL RAID ON ENGLAND VIVIDLY TOLD BY EYEWITNESS

Like Alps Falling Down, Accompanied With Roar of an Avalanche of Rocks.

Lived Through Eternity In Few Minutes—Facades of Hotels Now Like Caves.

WHAT a German raid means to the inhabitants of an English coast town is strikingly set forth in the article which follows—a description of the recent raid on Scarborough by William Romaine Patterson, who witnessed the German attack:

The clock was ringing 8 on the morning of Dec. 16, 1914, and I was about to sit down to breakfast when I heard a startling sound seaward. A dense, low lying and farspreading mist covered the North sea, so dense that I could scarcely discern across the lovely South bay the old, square, solitary, ruined tower, last remnant of Scarborough castle, which stands up roofless and forlorn on the promontory like a great empty tooth.

In a moment there began a terrific cannonade, and I knew that we were being bombarded. The front door, which is of glass, was burst open, and I ran to close the two outer doors. As I was in the act of fixing the bolts I stood for a few moments amazed and dazzled by what I saw. Straight opposite and only about a quarter of a mile or less from the shore there was a blazing line of flashing lights.

The mist and the sea had become suddenly illuminated and iridescent, and beneath the layer of fire I saw the long, pale, gray hull of a huge battleship.

Like Alps Falling Down.

Shells were already beating and bursting on the town and roaring over the roofs. As I closed the door I heard a terrific crash. The roof of the neighboring house had been struck; another shell fell on the pavement, tearing up masonry and ironwork, and still another in the gardens opposite, where it dug a hole in which an ox could be buried. Roar, crash and detonation succeeded each other or came simultaneously, because two other warships were shelling the town further north and delivering their broadsides at varying ranges.

The torrent of noise is wholly indescribable. It was as of the Alps falling down. Dante's hell never heard such a din. It was like the roar of an avalanche of rocks, and during a bombardment one is more an ear witness than an eyewitness. I felt a smell of burning and rushed upstairs to find that the drawing room chimney had been set on fire by some splinters of shrapnel from the roof, and I was driven from the room by the smoke.

I went to the two upper stories and found the windows shattered and a fragment of shell lying on my bedroom floor. I looked out, and now the cliffs and the town were covered by thick yellow smoke, through which roared the thunder and shot, the lightning of the guns. The feeling of helplessness was made more intense by the knowledge that Scarborough did not possess one single cannon and by the fear that before assistance came the entire town might be obliterated. On one side a tremendous fusillade as if an entire arsenal were exploding upon us, and on the other no response except the response of quivering houses, falling masonry and the cries of the dying.

Since the range varied, some of the shells traveled more than three miles inland. A horse grazing in a field was halved. A man whom I knew was decapitated as he fled along a street. The child Jackie Ryalls, fourteen months old and a favorite in the neighborhood, was killed at the same instant with his nurse. I have seen the room to which she had rushed with him for safety. She had just entered it and had laid him on the bed when a shell came through the ceiling. As she was wrapping him in the blankets and telling him that all was well their heads were blown open. The iron bed was twisted like the wire of a soda water bottle, and the entire room was smashed like a glass dish.

It was now 8:12, and already we seemed to have lived through an abridged eternity. It was not until a few hours afterward that the results of the nerve strain began to be felt. I take no credit for the fact that in the midst of the bombardment I sat down and ate a brief breakfast. It was the most practical thing to do because in the event of the house falling or in the event of a landing covered by the bombardment we civilians might be ordered to trek inland.

My friends and I gathered together a few valuables and prepared to go out by the garden. Debris was already falling from the roof, and the roadway inland was specially dangerous because the shells were sweeping up a broad avenue. At the furthest end of that avenue a postman delivering letters and a serving maid who was receiving them were killed by the same shell. A few paces from my door another shell went straight through a large house, crossed the garden, penetrated the garden wall, crossed the road and killed a caretaker who was standing in a room of a house opposite.

Suddenly the cannonade ceased. I guessed that the battleship—it is now known that she was either the Moltke, sister ship to the Goeben, or the Von der Tann—was turning in order to deliver the broadside from her starboard guns. My surmise was correct, and the energy of the second bombardment was even more furious than of the first.

Foe Knew Town.

It was during the brief interval that some people imprudently left their houses. Thus a lady was killed on the pavement only a few yards from where I live. It is clear that the enemy was familiar with the topography of the town. His first efforts, frequently renewed, were directed against the wireless station, but they all failed. It was only because he was afraid of the arrival of an avenging fleet that he rushed seaward before he had time to destroy every home in Scarborough.

The hotels, too, received special attention. The facades of some of them now look like caves. A gentleman living in the Grand hotel had gone for his bath, but when he returned his bedroom had disappeared. All at once there was a silence, a silence so strange and unearthly that you could have heard a worm crawl. The Germans were going back home at full speed into the mist, sowing as they went a vast crop of mines.

The streets and parades became full of people gathering up fragments of shells. There was no panic, but an immense curiosity. Some climbed the Castle hill to find the old walls churned and crushed like cheese, others went to the harbor to find peaceful fishing boats torpedoed and the old lighthouse tottering.

The German newspapers immediately announced that Scarborough is "a fortified place." There is not one word of truth in it. There would be as much justification in bombarding Atlantic City, Newport or Bar Harbor. When a German sees the word "burg" in any form he immediately thinks of a fortress, and indeed the old Saxon name does mean scar, a rock, and burgh, a fortified position. But it is only in etymology that Scarborough is fortified, for the old guns were long ago dismantled.

100,000,000 OF US SOON.

Population Will Pass Mark at 4 p. m. April 2, Says Statistician.

At 4 p. m. April 2 the population of the United States will have reached and passed the hundred million mark, according to C. D. Sloane, geographer of the census bureau, who estimates the population at that hour will be 100,000,059.

J. S. McCoy, actuary of the treasury department, however, calculates the population will be 100,016,000 on Feb. 1. The disagreements in the estimates arise from the different systems of computation employed.

In the census bureau the direct increase, as shown by the difference in population in 1900 and 1910, is taken. By that system the country would contain 100,399,318 persons on July 1, 1915, and more than 108,000,000 on July 1, 1920.

Actuary McCoy arrives at his conclusions, on which treasury statements of the per capita wealth are based, by including in his calculations what he calls the factor of second differences. His effort is to show the natural increase within the increase as figured by the census bureau. By that system he estimates the continental population on Jan. 10 last at 99,875,000, Feb. 1 100,016,000 and July 1 100,725,000. On July 1, 1920, Mr. McCoy estimates, it will be 109,799,000.

GRADE CROSSING DEATHS.

Increase In Number During Last Year. Fewer Auto Accidents.

Highway railroad grade crossing accidents last year cost 199 lives in New York state, as compared to 134 the year previous and 107 in 1912. The annual report of the National Highways Protective society gives these figures for the year and does not include in the compilation those who were trespassers on railroad property.

One hundred and thirty-three persons are shown to have been seriously injured, of which 66 per cent were pedestrians. Analysis of the fatality list shows that thirty-five persons met their death while crossing tracks in automobiles, as compared to thirty-eight in 1913 and fifteen in 1912. Persons riding in wagons across the tracks and who met their death were thirty-one, as compared to thirty in 1913 and forty in 1912.

The report declares that not a single fatality is recorded as the result of trolley and train collision.

In making their annual reports the railroad companies show that carelessness is still rampant. One company maintains that during the year no less than ninety-five automobiles were driven right through railroad crossing gates, and it is claimed 70 per cent of the cases happened within the limits of Greater New York.

TITLE TOURNEY MAY GO TO MARION CLUB

Women's Golf Championship Date Set Tentatively for June 7.

It is probable that the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, will be chosen for the scene of the tri-city matches for the Griscom Cup and for the Women's Eastern Golf Association championship. Although the dates were not fixed, the time selected probably will be beginning with Monday, June 7.

Custom leaves the selection of the course and the dates with the association having jurisdiction over the district in which the two big competitions are held, by and with the consent of the two other associations involved. It is understood that Merion is entirely satisfactory to both the Women's Golf Association, of Boston, and the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association.

Regarding the time, however, there may be a change in that if it is the wish of the metropolitan women to hold their championship tournament at Sleepy Hollow, so that there will be a week between it and the Eastern championship and the Griscom Cup matches. In case of June 7 being chosen, it is not unlikely that the women's metropolitan championship will be set for May 2 and the days following, which would bring about only one day of conflict with any other attraction in the district, the Tuxedo invitation tournament.

SPORTING NOTES

Palm Beach golf tournament opens next week.

The ice skaters are cutting the surface at Saranac Lake this week.

Tom Lipton is sighing for the return of the good old days when he had first page.

Johnny Sumers and Sergeant Basham will furnish the English sports with a revival of boxing at Liverpool tomorrow night.

A Chinaman, Wah Kai Chang, has been chosen manager of a University of Chicago track team. He is himself some sprinter.

The six-day grind at Chicago forecasts a boom in cycling in the Middle West. Newark has long been the mainstay of the game.

The game associations are making big plays before many Legislatures for the benefit of hunters and fishermen.

Frisco will come onto the sport chart strong in three weeks, when the first of the half hundred scheduled events will be held.

Thirty-two clubs will be represented, it is expected, at the national ski tournament at Duluth, on Saturday.

George Tuchey is putting over some crack wrestling matches at Boston, filling Mechanics' building every week.

Ad Wolgast has quit talking, he says, and will actually get into the ring against Joe Mandot on February 14.

Frank Gotch has found a wrestling wonder, he claims, and he is putting him through a course of sprouts.

Ring followers are pleased at the signing up of Johnny Kilbane and Kid Williams for a bout on February 24. Johnny must scale at 122 ringside.

George Lurich, the big Russian wrestler, committed his second quit last week in Boston, forfeiting to Lemle. The Bohemian gave him too much of his own medicine, which was abuse.

WESTFIELDERS BOWED TO ROSELLE YOUNGSTERS

The Westfield High School basketball team met defeat at the hands of the Roselle High School team on the latter's court, yesterday afternoon, the final score being 26 to 17. The contest was a fast one, especially in the initial period when the Westfielders held their opponents to a one point lead, the score being 12 to 11 at the end of the half.

In the last half, Westfield scored only six points against its opponents' fourteen and the playing was slower than in the previous period. For the winners Davies and Benedict were the main scorers, while Captain Paul Traynor made nine of his team's points. Each team has now won a game, Westfield annexing a win the first time they met on the Westfield court. Westfield's next game will be against North Plainfield High School, at Westfield, next Friday night.

The score follows:

HARRY SMITH RELEASED; TO NAME JOHN HUMMEL

Newark, Feb. 3—Harry Smith, who managed the Newark Indians the last two seasons, and who won the pennant in 1913, was yesterday unconditionally released, according to notice sent out by Charles Ebbets, Jr., president of the Newarks. Smith is a free agent, but has no plans for next season. He may catch on with a major league club as coach of pitchers, as he formerly was a high-class catcher, and was once player-manager of the Boston Nationals.

Smith's fate was assured when the International League recently voted to do away with bench managers. He probably will be succeeded by Silent John Hummell, if the Superbas decide to turn him over to Newark, or Eddie Zimmerman, third baseman of the club.

WAGNER A "HOLDOUT."

Pittsburgh, Feb. 3—Barney Dreyfuss made another attempt to get Hans Wagner to sign yesterday afternoon, and once more was repulsed. Wagner is the only member of the Pirates who is not yet signed for this season. Neither Wagner nor Dreyfuss would make any statement as to the reason for Honus' unwillingness to put his signature to a contract. It was rumored that Wagner had decided to retire from baseball. Dreyfuss is reported to have cut Wagner's salary, and rather than play at the reduced figure the big German is ready to quit the game.

GOLFERS BEST AT 34.

Harold H. Hinton, in the British golfing magazine, of which he is the editor, has ventured to give an opinion as to the age at which a golfer should reach the height of his game After reviewing the careers of such golfers as Bardon, Braid and Taylor among the professionals, and John Ball among the amateurs, the former British champion says first that the period between 27 and 37 should be considered the golfer's prime. Then he becomes more definite and sets 34 as the exact age.

MINISTERS SEEK ARRESTS.

Cincinnati, Feb. 3—A delegation of Methodist ministers presented to Prosecutor Campbell, yesterday, a letter from James N. Gamble, in which demand was made that the prosecutor have arrested, indicted and punished, Gunboat Smith and Jim Flynn, who participated in a boxing contest at the Ohio National Guard Armory, Monday night.

Swimming News and Notes

Written for the Daily Press by LOUIS P. HANSEN.

As an outcome of the recent visit of the Montreal A. A. A. swimmers to New York, there is promised a trip of some of the New York A. C. watermen to Canada for the indoor championships of that country. Dr. Mackay, manager of the Montreal team, and a prominent figure in water sports across the border, talked the matter over with Arthur McAleenan now in full charge of the Mercury Foot aquatic forces, and the latter spoke confidently of sending a few entries at least for the title events So eager was Dr. Mackay to secure these entries that he offered to use his influence in having the meet scheduled at the time most convenient to the New York organization.

The team of the Brookline H. S., of Boston, will again bid for interscholastic honors at the national meet coming off at Princeton on February 13, and Matthew Mann, the coach, believes his boys can repeat the sweeping victory they scored last year. Besides Leo Handy, who won the 100 and 220-yard swims, and A Wales, who took the plunging title, he has two speedy sprinters in Prendergast and Untersee, and he thinks the quartet alone can total enough in points to defeat any rival squad.

Yes, but Matthew Mann must have overlooked both Robert Dippy and Gilbert Tomlinson, the Philadelphia schoolboys, who are credited with doing the century under a minute, and the furlong around 2:30. If Tomlinson and Dippy live up to expectations, it looks as though the Philadelphia schoolboys would carry off the honors.

The New York A. C. is to be congratulated for its good work in reviving the junior championships in this district. There are so many swimmers at present in the field that the most promising newcomers at times go through the season without winning a prize, for the handicap events are not enough to reward all hands. This is very discouraging to a lad's ambitions. With the junior events in sight, instead, there will be new stimulus among the developing material toward greater efforts, and the sport is bound to profit thereby. Nothing better for swimming could have been done than the resuming of the class championships.

The recent defeat of Maisack, of the Pittsburgh A. C., by Buckland, of Pittsburgh University, in back stroke swimming, places the collegian among the likely candidates for a place in the National A. A. U. test. Maisack has figured more than once in the big race, and now that Buckland has taken his measure conclusively it seems reasonable to believe it is his turn to score, even though there appears no immediate prospect of his threatening the laurels of the peerless Hebner of Chicago.

The second event of the metropolitan series of championships will take place at the natatorium of the New York A. C., on Saturday, the 220-yard swim. The fastest swimmers in the district are booked to start in this event, and a lively contest is expected. The preliminary heats will take place on Friday night.

At the same time, the junior 220-yard and 50-yard championships will be fought out, and a large number of entries are expected for both contests.

All those who have never won a championship are eligible for these events.

Great progress is being made among the High School watermen of late, and there seems to be a number of very fast men developed among the furlong swimmers. O'Sullivan, of De Witt Clinton, is improving constantly, and is now the mainstay of the Clinton High Swimmers. Luke, of Lawrenceville, has also proved to be a star at this distance. But it is a question whether or not these swimmers will be able to hold their own again Dippy, Tomlinson and Handy.

RAHWAY "BILLS" HERE.

Dropping two games out of three on the alleys of the Jersey City Elks, the Paterson Elks, who have long been contenders for first place with the New Brunswicks in the Elks' Senior League, dropped back to third place, being passed by the Elizabeths, who, on their own drives, took three close games from the Rutherfords. The New Brunswick five is still in the lead. The first game at Jersey City, last night, was a hummer, the Jersey City five, with 934, showing the way by five pins. In the next contest the home five increased the pact a little, coming through for 976, while the visitors were there for 936. The final contest saw Jersey City drop back to 875, and Paterson won by thirty pins with 905. Wright rolled 231 and 210 for Paterson, and had an average of one pin less than 200. Elks' five dropped the last two games and the first match of the second series of games between these two clubs on the Park Club alleys, last night. The first game was won by twenty-six pins, the scores being 856 to 830, but the home team rolled their lowest score in the first game and followed this mark up with tallies of 888 and 897, which could not be touched by the visitors.

After the first frame of the initial game, the Elks were in possession of a good lead and continued to keep this up, being sixty-seven pins ahead at the end of the fifth frame. Chief Kiely hit the wood for a 199, which was the highest of the game, and Nash was the next highest with 178. The largest score registered by the home pinners was 176. The Park Club pinners led throughout the second game, being sixty-three pins to the good at the end of the game. The scores were 888 to 825. The final roll was the best of the match, thirteen pins separating the totals of the teams. BRUGGY GOOD ADDITION TO DE NERI COMBINATION

Frank Bruggy, formerly a member of the Gloversville basketball team of the New York State league, but who is now playing with the De Neri club of the New Jersey League, played against Trenton, last night, and scored three field goals at guard while his forward counted for the same number.

In speaking of Bruggy's playing, a Trenton paper says: "If there was one player on the De Neri team that showed to advantage it was Bruggy who comes to the Eastern League from the New York State League. He is a big strong fellow and appeared to be untiring. He looks like a good addition to the Duddies."

'SMATTER BASEBALL FANS.

It's about time someone pinched the baseball bug's tail and started things rolling in this vicinity. In other years the Hot Stove League took to the open long before Mr. Ground Hog snatched his annual squint at the surrounding country, but there seems to be a hush overspreading the dope this year.

THAT BIG WORD "IF."

IF North Plainfield loses to Leals this afternoon, the Intercholastic League will be all over but the shouting.

IF North Plainfield wins, the boroughites will be one game behind the Plainfielders and some interesting competition will be on the menu at P. H. S. Lincoln's Birthday.

IF anyone should happen to apply for a tip, we'd tell them that North Plainfield was in line to administer a spanking to the private school cherubs.

From the returns we have heard handed down from the Plainfield five's practise on the Columbus Club court the other night we have been led to suspect that the Elizabeth girls are due for a drubbing in more ways than one. The club officials have put all the good furniture in the safe and started padding the floor since the feminine artists invaded the rendezvous. They also tell us that one of the players was sent home in Dennis O'Brien's horse drawn taxi the other night.

There's no use talking, something radical will have to be done with these basketball promoters who are raising their prices sky-high. One magnate who is planning an exhibition in Saengerbund Hall informs us that the gate fee will be fifty cents, five for the game and forty-five for the dancing. He's innocent.

Those who have remained away from the Y. M. C. A. basketball exhibitions in the past because they feared that visiting squads would be affected by too much lung work, can visit the Association gym without entertaining the slightest guilt Saturday night. All the shouting in the world will not disconcert those silent workers.

New Evidence Constantly Being Published.

Since the long succession of Plainfield reports were first published in the local press there has been no looking back. Plainfield evidence continues to pour in, and—better still—those whose reports were first published many years ago, verify all they said in a most hearty and unmistakable way. Read the experience of Mrs. E. Dorflinger, of 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J. She says: "The first symptom of kidney trouble was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were gradually giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and getting a box at Randolph's drug store, I began using them. Before long I improved and I continued taking Doan's Kidney Pills until I was cured." I hold just as high an opinion of them now as when I gave my former endorsement recommending them. The cure they made has been permanent."

SOUTHPAWS WHO COULD HIT HARD

Many Famous Left Handers Became Famous Batters.

RICHMOND WAS THE FIRST.

Original Portside Flinger Remained In Game For Swatting Ability Long After He Ceased to Pitch—George Van Haltren Another Example. Mike Donlin Started as Boxman.

One of the inexplicable mysteries of baseball is how and why so many left handed pitchers become famous as great batsmen after their days of usefulness as hurlers are over. And, on the other hand, baseball history gives the names of very few right handers that became noted as willow wielders and held jobs as such after their days of effectiveness as boxmen were over.

The very first left handed pitcher the game ever had and the father of all the tribe, Dr. Lee Richmond, was a famous swatsman and was used in the outfield by several teams because of his ability to hit the ball and hit it hard. Mike Tiernan, the great hitter of the New York Giants back in the eighties and nineties, was signed by the New York management because of his wonderful hurling for the Jersey City club, then a member of the old Eastern league. Tiernan didn't do much pitching for the Giants, for his pitching arm went wrong early in the season of 1886, but his batting eye made it possible for Mike to hold his job. In a short time he was a fixture on the team and for many years afterward was considered one of the best batsmen in the country.

Cap Anson of the Chicago Nationals brought George Van Haltren all the way from California, believing he had in him the greatest lefthander the game ever had. George lasted about three seasons in the pitcher's position, batting much better than he pitched during the time. He came to the front as a finished batsman while a member of the New York Giants; in fact, he was their star hitter for many years. Van lasted nearly a score of years in the game after he lost his pitching ability.

One of the game's most famous batsmen pushed into the game by the pitching route was Jesse Burkett, the man who led the National league for three seasons. He received his first job with the New York Giants through his ability to pitch, having stacked up wonderful pitching for Worcester, then in the old Atlantic league in 1889. Burkett was a strictly left handed person, so much so that he had heaped upon him the appellation of the "Human Crab." However, Burkett failed as a pitcher, but he could swat the ball in a manner most delightful. In three seasons of his career Burkett batted .400 and over.

Elmer Smith of Cincinnati was considered one of the greatest left handers in the game from 1887 until 1892, and he was a wonderful hurler. In 1893 Elmer quit the pitching game and took up swatting the ball as a means of livelihood. It was the best move he ever made during his baseball career, for by his effective hitting he held good jobs for many years on some of the big teams, notably Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. Billy George was signed by the New York club as a pitcher back in the late eighties. Billy was a horrible pitcher, but as a batter he stuck in the game for years and years.

When Cy Seymour was first discovered he was a pitcher of no mean reputation, and New York signed him as such. Cy wasted about five years in trying to be a pitcher. He possessed a batting eye that was worth a mint of money to any team, but New York didn't find it out until Cy opened their eyes to the fact by swatting the curves of all Manhattan hurlers to the four winds when a member of the Cincinnati Reds, the team that the New York management dumped Cy on with an N. G. tag attached to him. After starring for Cincinnati for several seasons and hitting a .300 clip Seymour came back to old New York, where he ended his big league career as a regular player. For seven seasons he batted .300 and better.

Mike Donlin was taken out of a bush league out in California during the season of 1899 by the St. Louis Nationals. Donlin didn't pan out as a hurler. In one game he passed nine men to first and hit a few more, but he made four base hits, and this gave Tebeau his cue. The young recruit could hit, and so Patsey tried young Mike in the infield. He made four errors at short in one game. When he was tried at first he wasn't there, but in the meantime Donlin was swatting the ball in all directions.

Patsey got desperate and tried Mike in the outfield. He held, but it was because he showed the stuff that pleased his manager. Donlin made thirteen errors in less than fifty games in center field, about twice as many errors as a finished outfielder would make in three times that many games, but what would any manager do with a young bear who could swat the ball for .329 in his first season in the "big show?"

Other notable examples are Theodore Breitenstein, Jesse Tannehill, Jake Weimer, Sam Crawford and Harvey.

LITTLE BITS OF SPORTING CHAT

Rule Limiting Number of Players Not Popular.

IT MAY BE DISREGARDED.

Major League Clubs Have Usually Had From Twenty-five to Thirty Men on Their Rosters—Many Men Are Under Contracts—Barney Dreyfuss Tells of Trading Player For Stogie.

The opinion is rapidly gaining ground in baseball circles that the twenty-one player rule in major leagues will never be seriously enforced. This regulation would require an enrollment somewhat along the following lines: Pitchers, 8; catchers, 4; infielders, 5; outfielders, 4. At the beginning of the 1913 season the American league club rosters contained the following number of players: Athletics, 29; Washington, 25; Cleveland, 26; Boston, 25; Chicago, 31; Detroit, 30; New York, 25; St. Louis, 29. The National league list was about the same.

A number of the clubs require strengthening before the opening of next season if they are to be drawing cards and money makers. Almost without exception these clubs have a large percentage of their present squads under contracts which cannot be ignored. How they are to be relieved of those players not wanted and where desirable and seasoned new material is to be secured and carried under the twenty-one player rule is something that is keeping managers and magnates awake these nights.

Barney Dreyfuss goes the Federal league's "ball player for a dog" story one better. The Feds are laying great stress on the allegation that some club in organized baseball once traded a real honest to goodness athlete for a prime canine. This is part of its evidence that the national commission is in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

"It's too bad Rube Waddell is dead," said the Pirate mogul, in commenting on the "dog" stories. "If Rube were living he could go on the stand and swear that he was once traded for a Pittsburgh stogie. Yes, it's true.

"Rube was with the Pirates at the time, and we were tired of him. Clarke gave him to Chicago, and he came to the office to see me about it. He said he was perfectly willing to go to the Windy city, but he wanted half of the purchase money.

"'Here, take it all, Rube,' said I, and I pushed toward him a stogie. Stogies in those days sold four for a nickel. On his way out of the office he was served with an attachment of the wages for a bill of $10 he owed a tailor for a pair of pants. Yes, Rube would make a good witness for the Feds."

It is questionable if any league in the history of baseball was ever better fortified at shortfield than is the American circuit at this time. Nearly every club has a competent man for that important position, and several of them rank with the greatest performers the game has ever seen.

Jack Barry, Owen Bush, Buck Weaver and George McBride are finished artists in short. Chapman of the Clevelands did not have a good year, yet he is a grand ball player, and Peckinpaugh of the Yankees played at a high standard last season and is pretty sure to show as well if not better in the coming campaign.

The most promising of the new comers undoubtedly is Scott of the Red Sox. That young man not only filled Heinie Wagner's shoes, but he showed flashes at times which created the impression that in due time he will be in a class by himself.

Lavan of the Browns has a lot of ability and is coming fast with every season, his most marked improvement being in his hitting.

Knowledge of golfing once saved a man's life. Two men, who wielded driver and mashie on a municipal links during their spare moments, were working on a building—one on the roof and the other on the ground. Suddenly the fellow on top lost his grip on a huge wrench he was using, and it dropped like a plummet for the skull on the chap below. 'Twas a tense moment. Did the fellow on the roof yell, "Hey, look out," or something equally bromidic? He did not. He just yelled, "Fore"—and the man below ducked instantly, and in time.

Marshall Irritated Magee.

Cy Marshall of the Phils has jumped to the St. Louis Feds, which shows where Jim Gaffney pulled a bone. Jim should have purchased Cy from the Quakers to irritate Sherwood Magee into slamming homers. At the opening of the season in Philadelphia last spring Cy closed one of Sherry's eyes, and Sherwood Nottingham took it out on Rube Marquard by sweeping two of his shoots into the left field bleachers for homers.

Collins' Batting Average.

Eddie Collins' batting average for eight years with the Athletics averaged .338. His highest was .384 in 1912, and his poorest work was done in his second year out, when he hit for .273.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

QUESTIONS TO SUFFRAGISTS

Editor of the Press:

In the Press of the 23rd instant a long series of "questions to suffragists" is propounded, and, if your readers are not tired to death with the pros and cons of the question, I shall with your permission answer some of the questions with which I am more or less familiar. Some of these questions have been frequently and adequately answered in our local papers, but Mrs. Brock and Mrs. Cassatt, the Pennsylvania Antis, who ask these questions, have not had the blessings of a Plainfield education on this important subject!

I will state the questions so as to show whether they are fairly answered.

Have Women Rejected Suffrage?

The Antis ask, first: "Why have 97 women out of 100 rejected Woman Suffrage for 65 years, and why do less than one-twelfth the women workers believe in 'votes for women?'" Answer: (a) They have not, and (b) nobody knows whether they do or do not. Time and again the Antis have asserted that this or that percentage of women favored Suffrage, 10 per cent. being the favorite allowance. In a newspaper discussion with me, Miss R. A. Lawrence (who is sponsor for the present string of questions) quoted Dr. Anna Howard Shaw as authority for the admission that only 8 per cent. of the women favored the reform! In reply to an inquiry from me the allegation was denied as absolutely untrue, and that no method of ascertaining the fact had ever been introduced. Dr. Shaw has since confirmed her denial to me verbally. We also had the fairer testimony of Mrs. A. P. George, a prominent Anti, when she spoke here to the effect that 10 per cent. favored it, 10 per cent. were opposed, and the remaining 80 per cent were "on the fence"—a fact which she deplored. There is no proof for her figures. That you see is very different from 10 per cent. favorable and all the rest, 90 per cent. to 97 per cent., depending on the mendacity of the claimant opposed. No, ladies, 97 per cent. have never rejected Suffrage in 65 years, or in any other period. All who are in favor are not in societies, as you well know. The same answer applies to the question (b) about the women workers.

Suffrage In Colorado.

Second. "Woman Suffrage, you claim, will bring better labor conditions. Colorado has had Woman Suffrage for 21 years. Why, then, is Colorado the only State in the Union that has called for Federal aid in suppressing anarchy and riot twice in ten years—in 1904 and 1914?" Answer: This charitable question assumes and implies that the women voters of Colorado, not necessarily Suffragists, were to blame for the labor riots and bloodshed in one mining camp in one county. It has remained for women of the East to cast this outrageous aspersion on the voting women of Colorado. Even in the height of party rancor in that State no man of prominence has made such a charge, whilst in the debates at Washington, the Senators and Representatives have time and again testified to the gracious and uplifting influence of the women voters. Were the implication less serious the logical Anti answer would be that only 10 per cent. of the women are Suffragists and the balance, voting against their own wishes, brought wreck and ruin on the State. Suffragists do not claim that Suffrage will better all labor conditions. That is a figment of the feminist-anti brain, which by reiteration some of the cult are now thinking they think it true. If there are 90-97 per cent. of the Jersey women opposed to Suffrage, why did they not prevent conditions which led to the recent shooting of workingmen at Roosevelt? Do you not see the folly of such reasoning when your ox is gored? Hardly a State but has had its labor riots, burnings and murders, where, in some cases, the State authorities have handled them, while in others owing to location or other unusual conditions Federal help was needed.

Women In Suffrage States.

Third. "Woman Suffrage will bring 'economic independence,' you declare. (Do we really, now?) Why then does the census show three times as many women laborers on farms in Colorado and Wyoming after 21 and 45 years of Woman Suffrage, as are similarly employed in Nebraska and Nevada, where women do not vote? Why, too, are there eight times as many independent women farmers in the two male suffrage States as in the two States where they have votes? These are all neighboring States of equal density of population."

Answer. To anyone who knows these States intimately, these questions are perfectly "screaming," although just what they are intended to demonstrate is a conundrum. As to density, are they equal as stated? Well hardly, seeing that they run from less than one to the mile in Nevada to 15 to the mile in Nebraska. But that is about as accurate as an Anti figures when she's working against Suffrage.

While the States named are not far apart geographically the farming conditions in Nebraska, compared with the other three, are as far apart as the poles, and the population density has no bearing on the question. Nebraska is a prairie garden early settled by the building of the Union Pacific Railroad. In 1910 it had a rural population of 881,362, with nearly 130,000 farms, on which corn, wheat, alfalfa, hogs, horses and beef cattle are raised, calling for labor to which women are not fitted, and women are seldom seen in the fields. Nevada is a mining State with a rural population of 68,000 and only 2,689 farms, 23 per cent. of which started since 1900. At it has voted for equal Suffrage it is now no longer available for the use the Antis were trying to make of it in the "question." Colorado and Wyoming are Rocky Mountain States, not fitted for the farming prevailing in Nebraska. From what I have seen yearly in Wyoming for many years I am sure there are very few women farm laborers in that State. The question does not state the number, but if the figures given are correct, they are undoubtedly due to the character of Colorado farming, including fruit and vegetable raising, which cuts no figure in Nebraska, as I have shown. Farming in Colorado is pretty well confined to the irrigated valleys suited to raising apples, peaches, cherries, berries, melons, sugar beets and alfalfa, most of which afford light work for women and girls at certain seasons of the year. No such conditions exist in Nebraska, and if in Nevada and Wyoming, it must be on a very restricted scale. So what has Suffrage got to do with it, anyway?

Labor In California.

Fourth. "Why does a woman call the condition of labor 'hopeless' where (in California) women vote?" Answer. Mrs. Edson, the lady quoted, gave the reason, but did not blame the woman vote, well knowing that the poor labor conditions existed there long before the women got the vote (1912) and that such conditions could not be changed in the brief period of two years. How about the "indirect influence" which the boasted 90 per cent. of Antis failed to exert to improve those conditions in half a century? This question is about as sensible as the other.

Woman Suffrage and the Saloon.

Fifth. "Woman Suffrage will rout rum, you allege. (We don't.) Then why has no State ever gone dry with 'votes for women,' until the last election, although eleven have done so by the moral influence of women on the votes of men only? Where were the women voters of Colorado on November 5, 1912, when that State defeated prohibition by a majority of 40,897 votes. * * * Does this not prove that most of the women who will vote are against the very temperance that all women desire and have secured under male suffrage?" Answer. It takes wonderful assurance to ask this last question in view of the fact that not only Colorado, but also the Suffrage States of Washington, Oregon and Arizona voted for State-wide prohibition on November 3, 1914. As to prohibition, Suffragists have never been identified with that party or any other. We, and I include the women who have the vote, exercise our independent choice on temperance questions, some being for local option (as in Colorado prior to last election, and still in Illinois, Idaho, Utah, California, etc., Suffrage States), and others for some form of prohibition. In spite of the despicable efforts of the Antis to prove the contrary, amounting to practical falsehood, although put in question form as above, a very large proportion of women are of high morality, and although we have not been able to prove in advance what women would do with the saloon when they got the ballot, the results have been most gratifying to temperance people who follow the facts, and staggering to the organized liquor interests who apparently did not expect such results. I have frequently pointed out in these columns how inside of six months after getting the vote the women of Illinois came to the support of the temperance party, closing over 1,000 saloons and adding 22 counties to the "dry" territory of that great State. Shame, say I, on any organization, men or women, who will keep on decrying and traducing the splendid Christian womanhood of our Suffrage States for the ignoble purpose of influencing votes against equal suffrage. I don't much mind their calling names, making faces and shaking out little socialist banners in aid of their campaigns of calumny and deceit, but when they deliberately misrepresent the attitude of their voting sisters toward one of the burning moral questions of our time, my whole manhood cries out against them in righteous indignation.

Not the least interesting result of giving the ballot to women is their somewhat unexpected attitude toward the saloon. Under Woman Suffrage all of the western States where women vote have made advances toward closing the saloons, notably Illinois, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California, and as above stated three of these States and Arizona voted for State-wide prohibition last November. The western people, like the southern people, will not temporize with the liquor business, but if one form of control fails another will be tried out. In these contests the women will be found on the side of temperance and good order for the protection of their children and their homes. It is well recognized that this attitude of the women voters will hurt the cause of Suffrage in the non-Suffrage States and lose it many votes among those who believe in licensing saloons. The liquor interests, correctly reading the signs of the times, are not only working against all forms of prohibitory laws, but are the most determined and best organized enemies of Suffrage. Whilst there is probably no formal alliance between the two prominent foes of Suffrage, there ought to be no doubt that their ends and aims are alike, no matter how much the Antis may disclaim the connection. The Anti paper, The Woman's Protest, for November, stated that "a Suffrage leader is reported to have said: 'The Anti-Suffragists have spent thousands of dollars.' If she refers to the woman's Anti-Suffrage organizations she is mistaken, as usual, for the very excellent reason that the Anti-Suffragists, as they know full well, did not have 'thousands of dollars' to spend." What other organizations were spending money and working to defeat Suffrage? None but the liquor interests and their papers have so far been heard from. The Anti papers hotly disavow relations with the traffic, and so they well may, but as time advances it is a safe guess that the same two opponents will be the only active agencies working against Suffrage in New Jersey this year, and the Anti cause will be the beneficiary of all the money spent and efforts put forth by the traffic forces. Both parties are in the same boat as to the result, and no amount of denial from heaquarters or elsewhere can alter the fact.

Why Do Women Avoid Wyoming?

Sixth. "Why has the colonization of Wyoming been so sadly neglected for 45 years, and why are there only 100 women to every 168 men in that State? Why women avoid Wyoming wants explanation." Answer. Yes, and you ought to know the reason without trying to delude the public into thinking that Woman Suffrage is the explanation. The reason why Wyoming is sparsely settled, and why it probably will remain so is due to no fault of the men or women of that State, but is entirely a matter of aridity, altitude and climate. The Union Pacific crosses the "roof of the world," the Rockies, at an elevation of 8,000 feet and until a smart Anti can run some distant river 5,000 to 8,000 feet up hill to water those mighty, rolling, bleak plateaus, lengthen out the summer six weeks, and raise the temperature all the year round, Wyoming will not gain rapidly in farms and population. In spite of its natural drawbacks, the rural population increased nearly 103,000 or 74 per cent., and the number of farms 80 per cent. between 1900 and 1910.

Who Endorse Suffrage and Anti-Suffrage?

Seventh. "Suffragists are endorsed by all the unstable elements in our population—the Socialists, the I. W. W., and the Feminists. Do Suffragists, in turn, indorse socialism, sabotage and communism?" Answer. No, not yet, but you say we are coming to it. Do the Antis endorse all the vicious elements of society which unite with them in fighting Woman Suffrage? Col. Roosevelt says that in the Michigan campaign the saloons were headquarters for the fight against Suffrage. I have seen no denial from President Dodge, or any other Anti.

Is Suffrage "Worth While?"

Eighth. * * * "If Suffragists cannot prove 'Votes for Women' are worth while, how can they show any reason why Woman Suffrage should not be rejected?" Answer. This question can be answered in many ways since "worth while" is a relative term, and its importance depends on the views of those who pass upon it. Again, it is not obligatory on those who want the vote or advocate the vote that they should furnish that or any other proof. If we freely give the ballot to the uneducated and untrained masses who come here from Europe and the isles of the sea without demanding such proof from them, we surely ought to have gumption enough to know that the better half of our people, our mothers, sisters and daughters, will make their votes "worth while" when they vote shoulder to shoulder with the men on all questions bearing on the best interests of the country. I have proved their moral power in Illinois in the fight for prohibition; I have shown that in one day the Suffrage States added four more States to the prohibition column, and in spite of the fact that, for local reasons which can easily be explained to the reasonable, California voted against State-wide closing, yet under local option the first time the women went to the polls, they helped to close hundreds of saloons. The great weekly paper, "The Argonaut," published in San Francisco, which was opposed to Suffrage, has repeatedly said that the prohibitory law put up at the last election was so drastic and unwise that in a wine-growing State like California it could not pass, but that if the remaining saloons do not mend their methods, prohibition is sure to come. The good women of California have not in two years of voting become panderers to vice and crime, although to read the last issue of The Woman's Protest you might believe they had.

It would make this letter too long to enumerate the good already done in many ways in the Suffrage States, so it must suffice to say that their representatives in Congress are unanimous in praising the good work accomplished—not a dissenting word has been spoken so far as my reading of the Record has disclosed.

Colorado Suffrage Blameless.

Since writing the above John A. Matthews is reported as saying to the Elks that he did not blame the Suffragists in Colorado for conditions prevailing there, but claimed they had not improved conditions. A day or two ago old Mother Jones was quoted in The Sun as saying that mining labor conditions in West Virginia and Michigan, non-Suffrage States, are just as bad as in Colorado, and she knows the West. Has any Suffragist held the Antis responsible?

What Some Men Are Doing.

In obedience to the teachings of Prof. Treitchke and Gen. von Bernhardi, or certainly in harmony with those teachings, Belgium, France, Poland and Galicia have become the human slaughter houses of Europe. Men and men only are at the head of the various nations involved and so far men only are held responsible for the inhuman senseless butchery. Yet, if we believe the Anti-Suffragists those men are innocents compared with the women of America who want a voice in the law making machinery of their own land. But what evil have they done? Have they broken up their homes? No. Have they neglected their children? No. Have they disrupted the Church and taken their offspring out of the day and Sunday-schools? No. Have they crowded the bar-rooms and patronized the gambling dens? Ask the saloons of the Suffrage States, and you will get their emphatic No! Oh, but New Jersey is different. The population is denser, and we cannot trust the women of this old State with the ballot. Why?

Yours truly,
ALEX. MILLAR.

CHAPTER XXV.

Wonder of Women.

LABISKWEE lay in a stupor, her breathing so imperceptible that often Smoke thought her dead. In the afternoon the chattering of a squirrel aroused him. Dragging the heavy rifle, he wallowed through the crust that had become slush. He crept on hands and knees or stood upright and fell forward in the direction of the squirrel that chattered its wrath and fled slowly and tantalizingly before him. He had not the strength for a quick shot, and the squirrel was never still.

So profound was his weakness that he lay like dead through the night, nor did dreams disturb him.

The sun was in the sky, the same squirrel chattering through the trees, when Labiskwee's hand on Smoke's cheek awakened him.

"Put your hand on my heart, lover," she said, her voice clear, but faint and very far away. "My heart is my love, and you hold it in your hand." A long time seemed to go by ere she spoke again. "Remember always there is no way south. That is well known to the caribou people. West—that is the way—and you are almost there—and you will make it."

And Smoke drowsed in the numbness that is near to death until once more she aroused him.

"Put your lips on mine," she said. "I will die so."

"We will die together, sweetheart," was his answer.

"No." A feeble flutter of her hand checked him, and so thin was her voice that scarcely did he hear it, yet did he hear all of it. Her hand fumbled and groped in the hood of her parka, and she drew forth a pouch that she placed in his hand. "And now your lips, my lover. Your lips on my lips and your hand on my heart."

And in that long kiss darkness came upon him again, and when again he was conscious he knew that he was to die. He was wearily glad that he was to die.

He found his hand resting on the pouch. With an inward smile at the curiosity that made him pull the drawstring, he opened it. Out poured a tiny flood of food. There was no particle of it that he did not recognize, all stolen by Labiskwee from Labiskwee—bread fragments saved far back; strips and strings of caribou meat, partly gnawed; crumbles of suet; a hind leg of the snowshoe rabbit, untouched; a hind leg and part of a fore leg of the white weasel; a wing, dented still by her reluctant teeth, and a leg of the snowbird—pitiful remnants, tragic renunciations, crucifixions of life, morsels stolen from her terrible hunger by her incredible love.

Three Days, With No Further Food, He Fought West.

With maniacal laughter Smoke flung it all out on the hardening snow crust and went back into the blackness.

He dreamed. The Yukon ran dry. In its bed, among muddy pools of water and ice scoured rocks, he wandered, picking up fat nugget gold. The weight of it grew to be a burden to him till he discovered that it was good to eat. And greedily he ate. After all, of what worth was gold that men should prize it so, save that it was good to eat?

He awoke to another sun. His brain was strangely clear. No longer did his eyesight blur. The familiar palpitation that had vexed him through all his frame was gone. The juices of his body seemed to sing as if the spring had entered it. Blessed well being had come to him. He turned to awaken Labiskwee and saw and remembered. He looked for the food flung out on the snow. It was gone. And he knew that in delirium and dream it had been the Yukon nugget gold. In delirium and dream he had taken heart of life from the life sacrifice of Labiskwee, who had put her heart in his hand and opened his eyes to woman and wonder.

He was surprised at the ease of his movements, astounded that he was able to drag her fur wrapped body to the exposed thawed gravel bank, which he undermined and caved upon her.

Three days, with no further food, he fought west. In the mid third day he fell beneath a lone spruce beside a wide stream that ran open and that he knew must be the Klondike. Ere blackness conquered him he unlashed his pack, said goodby to the bright world and rolled himself in the robes.

Chirping, sleepy noises awoke him. The long twilight was on. Above him among the spruce bows were ptarmigan. Hunger bit him into instant action, though the action was infinitely slow. Five minutes passed before he was able to get his rifle to his shoulder, and a second five minutes passed ere he dared, lying on his back and aiming straight upward, to pull the trigger. It was a clean miss. No bird fell, but no bird flew. They ruffled and rustled stupidly and drowsily. His shoulder pained him. A second shot was spoiled by the involuntary wince he made as he pulled trigger.

The ptarmigan had not flown. He doubled and redoubled the robe that had covered him and humped it in the hollow between his right arm and his side. Resting the butt of the rifle on the fur, he fired again, and a bird fell. He clutched it greedily and found that he had shot most of the meat from it. The large caliber bullet had left little else than a mess of mangled feathers.

Still the ptarmigan did not fly, and he decided that it was heads or nothing. He fired only at heads. He reloaded and reloaded the magazine. He missed; he hit, and the stupid ptarmigan, that were loath to fly, fell upon him in a rain of food—lives disrupted that his life might feed and live.

The first he ate raw. Then he rested and slept, while his life assimilated the life of it. In the darkness he awoke, hungry, with strength to build a fire. And until early dawn he cooked and ate, crunching the bones to powder between his long idle teeth. He slept, awoke in the darkness of another night and slept again to another sun.

He noted with surprise that the fire crackled with fresh fuel and that a blackened coffeepot steamed on the edge of the coals. Beside the fire, within arm's length, sat Shorty, smoking a brown paper cigarette and intently watching him. Smoke's lips moved, but a throat paralysis seemed to come upon him, while his chest was suffused with the menace of tears. He reached out his hand for the cigarette and drew the smoke deep into his lungs again and again.

"I have not smoked for a long time," he said at last in a low, calm voice. "For a very long time."

"Nor eaten, from your looks," Shorty added gruffly.

Smoke nodded and waved his hand at the ptarmigan feathers that lay all about. "Not until recently," he returned. "Do you know, I'd like a cup of coffee; also flapjacks and a strip of bacon."

While the one cooked and the other ate they told briefly what had happened to them in the days since their separation.

"The Klondike was breakin' up," Shorty concluded his recital, "an' we just had to wait for open water. Two polin' boats, six other men—you know 'em all, an' crackerjacks—an' all kinds of outfit. An' we've sure been a-comin'—polin', linin' up, an' portagin'. But the falls 'll stick 'em a solid week. That's where I left 'em, a-cuttin' a trail over the tops of the bluffs for the boats. I just had a sure natural hunch to keep a-comin'. So I fills a pack with grub an' starts. I knew I'd find you a-driftin' an' all in."

Smoke nodded. "Well, let's get started," he said.

"But you're feeble as a kid baby. You can't hike. What's the rush?"

"Shorty, I am going after the biggest thing in the Klondike; and I can't wait, that's all. Start packing. It's the biggest thing in the world. It's bigger than lakes of gold and mountains of gold, bigger than adventure and meat eating and bear killing."

Shorty sat with bulging eyes. "In the name of the Lord, what is it?" he queried huskily. "Or are you just simply loco?"

"No, I'm all right. Perhaps a fellow has to stop eating in order to see things. At any rate, I have seen things I never dreamed were in the world. I know what a woman is—now."

Shorty's mouth opened, and about the lips and in the light of the eyes was the whimsical advertisement of the sneer forthcoming.

"Don't, please," Smoke said gently. "You don't know. I do."

Shorty gulped and changed his thought. "Huh! I don't need no hunch to guess her name. The rest of 'em has gone up to the drainin' of Surprise lake, but Joy Gastell allowed she wouldn't go. She's stickin' around Dawson waitin' to see if I come back with you. An' she sure swears if I don't she'll sell her holdin's an' hire a army of gun fighters an' go into the caribou country an' knock the everlastin' stuffin' outa old Snass an' his whole gang. An' if you'll hold your horses a couple of shakes I reckon I'll get packed up an' ready to hike along with you."

BLUE TULLE AND CHARMEUSE.

Exquisitely airy and dainty is this evening frock for which blue charmeuse has been used to add weight and substance to the diaphanous tunic of tulle. The main part of the blouse is made of the heavier material and gathered into a girdle of the same. A noticeable feature of this frock is a distinctly normal waistline. A very full and very wide tunic of delicate blue tulle hangs over an underskirt of the silk and is trimmed in straight bands of the same material in graduated widths. This design would be a very good one for the use of the home dressmaker.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Al. G. Field's Greater Minstrels will hold the boards at the Plainfield Theatre, this afternoon and tonight, bringing back all the old favorites in the black face world, together with many new ones and up-to-date features. The Theatre's attraction tomorrow afternoon and night, will be another great photo-play entitled, "When Broadway Was a Trail." The continuation of the immensely popular serial, "The Trey of Hearts," will also be shown tomorrow. This narrative grows more interesting with each succeeding episode and it is without doubt the most fascinating continued story being shown in Plainfield. Legitimate attractions will be at the Theatre both Friday and Saturday. On the former the offering will be Gus Hill's latest musical comedy production, "It's A Long Way to Tipperary." Saturday, matinee and night, Messrs. Counihan and Shannon will offer the current musical comedy success, "The Little Cafe." The company comprises a cast and chorus of seventy-five people, while three cars are required to transport the scenic and costuming effects. Watch this space for the special feature photo-plays and other attractions to be seen at the Plainfield Theatre in the near future.

"The Little Cafe," a mirthful musical comedy will be presented at the Plainfield Theatre, on Saturday, matinee and night. It ran for nearly a year at the New Amsterdam Theatre in New York city, and those who saw it remember with delight its many surprises, the quaintness of song and the drolleries of action which lend strength to the claim that it is indeed the last word in musical comedy. Klaw & Erlanger, the producers, have given this musical comedy a mounting and background of stunning richness while the refreshing humor and wit of the lyrics and lines of C. M. S. McLellan, combined with Ivan Caryll's enchanting musical numbers, make up what will prove to be the musical sensation of the theatrical season in this city.

The Daily Press will be glad o have its attention called to any misleading or untrue statement, if such should appear at any time in an advertisement in its columns.

Animal Jingles

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

BY ALICE CREW GALL

Cora Camel

When Cora Camel wakened from her sleep each morning she Would pout and fret and whine around, as cross as cross could be.

And almost always she would come to breakfast with a frown;
She'd toss her head and jerk her chair, and sulkily sit down.

She wouldn't speak a pleasant word to anyone till she
Had had a second helping of milk toast and cambric tea.

At last her father said: "See here, I've had enough of this;
Till you can get up cheerfully, you'll stay in bed, young miss."

But Cora stamped her foot and cried, "I cannot stay in bed;
I'm going to a tea party this afternoon," she said.

And though she cried, her father said, "I'm sorry, but you see
A child that cannot smile at home should not go out to tea."

This was so true that Cora did not have a word to say,
So she just had to go upstairs and stay in bed all day.

Next morning when she wakened up, though she felt cross, she said,
"It doesn't pay to scowl and frown, and so she smiled, instead.

Now if you feel cross when you wake, stay in your room awhile
Before you go to breakfast and just practice on a smile.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Dick, I wish you would put your toilet articles in the bathroom. There isn't room for your toothbrush in here; we are cramped for drawer room," said Nell Morton one morning soon after they had begun housekeeping.

"I gave you all but one drawer in the chiffonier and this small drawer in the dresser, and I propose to suit myself about what I keep in them," said Dick gaily.

"How absurd!" exclaimed his wife. "You have been living in a boarding house, where you had no bathroom space of your own. Now we have plenty of shelf room in the cupboard and there is where you will use your brush. Then there is your bath towel in the crowded closet. That belongs on the rack with your hand towel."

"Crowded closet is right," said Dick, with some heat. "It's as much as your life's worth to enter it. I can't find anything. It begins to look as if marriage is a regular German invasion. I want my part of that closet, and I don't want an avalanche of skirts descending on me every time I get a garment."

"Surely then you get my point about the towel. I'll rearrange the closet today and give you the right-hand half. A man must have only one article on a hook and the hooks must be wide apart, or he can never find anything," said his wife loftily.

"I'll give in about the towel to reward you for divying up on the closet room, but I insist on keeping my toothbrush where I please, just for the sake of principle," said Dick, with a grin.

"In other words, you'll take the tax off of everything but tea," said Nell, tossing her head.

"That's just it. If I get a corner in a bureau drawer where I feel that I can do as I please, perhaps from that vantage ground I may be able to spread out after awhile," rejoined Dick, wrestling with his collar button.

"Oh, you are dreadfully abused. I was going to ask if it would be possible to keep your brushes and comb somewhere else besides on the top of the dresser, but you are liable to fly to arms, I suppose, if I ask you to put them in the bathroom." Nell had a note of real impatience in her voice.

"Look here, Nell; is this house yours or ours? That's what I want to know," asked her husband with something of her tone.

"Why Richard! A woman always decides how a house is to be arranged. I don't go down to your office and dictate how you shall have things," replied the wife in surprise.

"That's different. You would have a perfect right to do so if you were my business partner. That's just the point I'm making. This is the place where both of us are to live our lives, and one can't lay down arbitrary laws for the other to follow. Each must live his own life."

Nell swept out of the room, her head in the air. She was angry—angry at Dick. It frightened her. But was her pretty home that she took such pride in to be made hideous because Dick insisted on having all sorts of things in wrong places? A man knows nothing about the arrangement of a home; he should not interfere. Dick was always wanting books and papers "handy," and what he called "handy" was to her disorder.

As she was moodily washing the dishes her husband stuck his head in the kitchen door. "Well, I'm off, Nell," he called.

She dried her hands and followed him to the door to kiss him goodby and watch him out of sight, but this morning he did not turn and wave when he reached the corner. This was a distinct shock to her. He was angry, too. Only a month married and both of them had been angry.

When Dick sat down in the pleasant living room that evening he found his paper and the magazine he had been reading the night before on the library table. He looked up with a smile of appreciation at his wife, who was watching to see if he noticed the innovation.

"Thank you, dear. That's as I like it. I think it gives a home a cozier appearance to have reading matter around. It looks as if someone living on the premises likes to read. Don't you think a room that looks as if it was used is more homelike than just a formal array of furniture carefully dusted?"

"Yes, Dick," she answered.

(Note—The further experiences of Nell and Dick will be related from time to time.)

Household Hints

UP-TO-DATE RECIPES

Pig's Foot Scrapple—Very good, nice for lunches. Singe and scrape the pig's feet perfectly clean, and boil very tender in salted water. Use a generous portion of tenderloin; when boiled very tender, remove all bones and put through a food chopper; strain liquid you boiled the meat in, add vinegar, salt and pepper to taste. Ready for use when cold.

Carp, Jewish Style—Clean, salt and pepper carp, cut into two-inch pieces and let stand. Have one carrot, one parsley root and a little cabbage; all this cut fine like noodles. Chop fine six or seven onions. Put spoonful of butter in kettle, add quart of water, simmer vegetables and onions first; when tender, add carp and simmer half hour. When done, form fish nicely on platter, garnish all around with vegetables, pour over sauce and serve.

Carp in Jelly, Jewish Style—Simmer carp, following instructions given above, adding two or three leaves of gelatine soaked first in a little cold water. Boil gelatine with fish for fifteen minutes. Strain vegetables, pour clear sauce over fish and set in cold place to thicken. Serve with olive oil and vinegar. Both of these dishes are cheap and delicious.

Apple Potpie—Peel, core and slice tart apples as you would for pies, until you have about three pints of sliced apples. Then take one quart flour sifted with two teaspoons baking powder. Add one heaping tablespoon lard and one teaspoon salt. Mix well, add water to make soft dough, roll out dough about one-fourth inch thick, then cut in squares about three inches wide. Now place in a large granite or aluminum kettle one pint of boiling water and a lump of butter. Cover bottom of kettle with layer of apples, add layer of dough, and so on until all is used, having a layer of dough on top. Add just a little water on each layer of apples as you fill kettle. Now cover and boil 25 or 30 minutes. Serve with rich milk and sugar. When there is any left over put a little butter and lard in a skillet, turn potpie in this and fry brown, adding a little sweet cream just before serving.

Devil's Food Cake—One cup granulated sugar, two tablespoons cocoa, one egg, two tablespoons shortening, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon lard, one cup sour or buttermilk, one teaspoon soda, 1½ cups flour (exact); flavor with vanilla. Icing: One cup pulverized sugar, two tablespoons cocoa, enough hot coffee so it will spread easily (about two tablespoons); vanilla flavoring.

BUTTER ECONOMY

By using the following recipe one pound of butter will double its weight and cut your butter bill almost in half:

One pound butter, two pint bottles milk, one heaping teaspoon gelatine, two teaspoons salt.

Take top cream of two pint bottles of milk and add enough milk to make a pint. Soak gelatine in two tablespoons milk 10 minutes; place dish over hot water until gelatine is thoroughly dissolved. Cut butter in small pieces and place same in a dish over hot water until butter begins to soften; then gradually whip milk and cream and dissolved gelatine into butter with a dover eggbeater. After milk is thoroughly beaten into butter, add salt to taste. Place on ice or in cool place until hard. If a yellow color is desired use butter coloring.

The Man With The Black Vandyke

He's a sinister figure that drops like a shadow on the lives of Ned Warner and June Dark, polished, mysterious, his polite attentions seem a constant menace. At every turning he crosses the path of the beautiful runaway bride.

"Runaway June" has never before been published. It was written for America's greatest newspapers. SUPERINTENDENT ISSUES REPORT FOR BONNIE BURN

Superintendent J. E. Runnells, of the Bonnie Burn Sanatorium, has issued a report for the month of January showing that twenty-three patients were admitted to the institution during that month, eleven women and twelve men. Eleven patients were discharged, seven men and five women, and there were four deaths, two of each sex.

On January 31 there were ninety-five patients in the sanatorium, the largest number present at any time.

SIXTEEN MERIT BADGES AWARDED TO BOY SCOUTS

Sixteen additional merit badges were won by Boy Scouts last evening when the Court of Honor of the local Boy Scout council sat in regular session at Scout headquarters in the First Presbyterian chapel. Examiners present were J. W. Aughtiree, A. V. Searing, Jr., and the commissioner. Subjects passed were as follow:

Caryl Dunavan, leader, Troop 9, electricity, machinery and camp sanitation; Harold McKay, Troop 5, machinery; Henry Hannigan, Troop 5, surveying, signalling, pioneering, pathfinding, public health, machinery and art; Jack Faucett, Troop 5 pioneering, pathfinding, signalling, machinery, first aid to animals and surveying.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The bill at Proctor's Theatre for the last half of the week, commencing tomorrow, will be headed by a musical playlet, entitled, "The Bachelor Girls," described as "a midsummer musical breeze in one act." Seven people, six of whom are girls, are required to interpret the budget of songs and comedy work in the skit. Special scenery and handsome costumes are among the accessories. Other number on the program will be Howard Chase and Company, in his own original farce comedy playlet, "When Ignorance Is Bliss;" Clara Illig, eccentric comedienne; Al Grossman, black face comedian, and Dell & Gliss, novelty musical clowns. The photo-play pictures will include the third episode of the George Randolph Chester serial, "Runaway June," tomorrow afternoon and night, and the fourth episode of "The Exploits of Elaine," Friday afternoon and night. The continuation of "Zudora," the picture story of the wonderful girl detective will be displayed this afternoon and tonight. Keystone comedies, Pathe weeklies and other up-to-date features are in evidence on all other days when no special mention is made. The Proctor offerings always give from two to three hours continuous entertainment and is unquestionably the biggest value for the money to be had in Plainfield.

CO-OPERATION OF THE CITY URGED

Board of Education Seeks the Enforcement of Child Labor Statutes.

PROVISIONS OF LAW

It is Now Illegal to Employ Children Under 10 Years of Age or Those Between 10 and 16 Years During School Hours.

The Board of Education invites the co-operation of the public in enforcing the child labor law and the compulsory school attendance laws, which were passed at the last session of the Legislature at Trenton, and which are now in force in this city.

To those of the public who are not yet familiar with the provisions of these laws, the following summary statement is made:

It is illegal for any person to employ any child under ten years of age in Plainfield.

It is illegal for any person to employ any child between the ages of 10 and 16 during school hours, or to employ such child before or after school hours, unless a certificate has been granted to the child by the attendance officer of the Board of Education, certifying that the child is over 10 and under 16 years of age, and that the child wishes to work outside the regular school hours, in order to help support its family or itself.

After such certificate has been issued, the child may be employed out of school hours between 6 o'clock in the morning and 7 o'clock in the evening, selling papers, blacking shoes, running errands, or engaged in other light employment not prohibited by law for children under 16.

It is unlawful to employ any child during school hours between the age of 14 and 16 unless and until the child has procured from the attendance officer of the Board of Education, a certificate showing that the child is over 14 years of age and has finished the fifth grade of the public schools.

Any person employing a child in violation of these laws in Plainfield is liable to a fine of $50 and to imprisonment for ninety days. The parents of the child so employed are also liable to prosecution.

The only safe course of action for any person in the city employing children under 16 years of age is to first see that the children they employ have the necessary certificates from the attendance officer of the Board of Education.

Certificates may be obtained on application to Miss Margaret C. Holly, the attendance officer, at her office in the High School, room 155. Such application should be accompanied by proof of the age of the children for whom the application is made, and satisfactory evidence that the children have complied with the provisions of the law providing for attendance at school, and a certificate from the school medical inspector that the physical condition of the child is such as to enable the child to work without injury to its health. Parents and employers are warned that the provisions of these laws will be strictly enforced.

MRS. J. A. PETERKIN ELECTED PRESIDENT

Loyal Daughters' Circle Hold Annual Meeting at Home of Mrs. Geo. Bomann.

Officers were elected and reports presented at the annual meeting of the Loyal Daughters' Circle, of the King's Daughters, held at the home of Mrs. George Bomann, on Evergreen avenue, yesterday afternoon. The reports showed that the circle had had the most successful year in its history. It was voted to make the usual pledge of $200 toward the support of The Day Nursery and other work of the city union.

During the year the circle supplied a considerable quantity of milk to needy families and in some instances helped worthy families to pay their rent. In addition the members have been making a great many garments for The Day Nursery and the Charity Organization Society to be distributed among needy people.

This circle is probably one of the strongest in the city. It has an active membership of 35 with twelve honorary members. Mrs. John A. Peterkin was re-elected president yesterday for the tenth consecutive year. The other officers chosen were as follows: Vice president, Mrs. George Bomann; secretary, Mrs. P. V. Martin; treasurer, Mrs. Walter Cahoone; trustees, Mrs. Stuart H. Patterson and Mrs. John A. Peterkin. Following the business session yesterday afternoon there was a social hour.

JOHN E. NICOL GETS SECRETARIAL PLUM

Popular Local Newspaperman Named by Congressman Capstick.

Congressman-elect John H. Capstick, of Morristown, made the announcement today that he had named John E. Nicol, the well known local newspaper man, to act as his secretary when he assumes his seat in the House of Representatives next month. The appointment dates from March first and between that time and the present, Mr. Nicol will resign his position with the Elizabeth Daily Journal, with which he has been connected for the past three years. His selection came unsolicited and was made with the full sanction and approbation of the County Republican Committees in both Union and Morris. In this city especially, the announcement met with general approval.

The fact that Mr. Capstick comes from Morris county is one reason why he decided upon the secretary from Union. In this way, the Congressman is better enabled to keep in touch with his constiuents in all parts of the district. Mr. Nicol will prove of unusual value in this respect as his acquaintance throughout this county is one of the broadest of any man in the newspaper game. Since establishing himself at Elizabeth, all his work has centred about the Court House and in this way he has come in constant contact with officials and people of all classes, an experience which is invaluable in successfully discharging secretarial duties at Washington.

Mr. Nicol began his newspaper career in Plainfield and has made his home in this city for the past twelve years, residing at the present time on Richmond street. Previous to coming to Plainfield he was located at Elizabeth for several years, then being in the employ of the Elizabeth Times when it with under the management of the late William W. St. John. His native place is Wilkes Barre, Pa. Mr. Nicol's first position in Plainfield was in the circulation department of the Courier-News, graduating from there to the city news room.

He remained in this capacity for three years after which he was connected with the Daily Press editorial department for one year. He resigned the latter place in order to become Court House reporter and county political writer with the Elizabeth Journal. He is a member of Plainfield Lodge of Elks; Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., and several social organizations. All his friends in this city unite in wishing him a sucessful term in his new position.

Prof. McElroy to Lecture Under Auspices of Local Princeton Club.

At this time, when the world is still so absorbed in the titanic struggle which is drenching Europe with blood, Prof. McElroy's lecture will have a special interest for everyone, being, as it is, a record of the actual observations and experiences of an eye-witness to the events which marked the beginning of the greatest war history has ever known.

It is understood that during the lecture, Prof. McElroy will give his impressions of the historical causes which lead to the war, though not in any spirit of partisanship.

Prof. McElroy is an eloquent and gifted speaker, who, in addition to his scholastic attainments which have made his name well-known all over the country, has a reputation as one of the best lecturers on the faculty of any of our universities.

The doors will open at 7:30 and the entertainment will begin promptly at 8 p. m.

POOR OVERSEERS WANT LIFE JOBS

Introduce Legislative Measure for Tenure of Office Act Amendment.

NEXT MEETING HERE

"Stone-pile" for Non-supporting Husbands Advocated by Overseers at Session in Newark City Hall Yesterday.

Overseer-of-the-Poor Garret T. Dunham, of this city, is a member of the legislative committee of the New Jersey Association of Overseers of the Poor, which is taking under advisement a bill to be introduced in the Legislature placing the office of overseer of the poor under the tenure of office act. The present term of the overseer, both in Plainfield and elsewhere, is five years, and the new enactment would change this to a life appointment under the proper regulations providing for the removal under the tenure of office act for cause. This was discussed at the meeting of the association held in the Newark City Hall, yesterday.

The responsibility of relatives toward indigent members of their families was also discussed and on the suggestion of the legislative committee it was decided to ask for a supplement to the 1911 poor act to the effect that brother and sister, stepfather and step-children shall be mutually responsible for each other, provided their circumstances permit giving support to indigent members of their families.

The supplement further provides

SAURER SHOP GETS ANOTHER BIG ORDER

Latest Call for Trucks Will Keep Local Plant Busy for a Year.

Several large orders recently secured by the Saurer plant of the International Motor Company have been added to within the past few days by one of even larger proportions than at any time before. Rumor has it that the trucks called for are meant for European shipment, but if this is so, the company is not cognizant of the fact. All orders now being filled are for New York purchasing agents, that city being the point of consignment.

It was stated by an official at the Clinton avenue shop today, that the latest big order will now keep the local plant busy for fully a year. The present force of employes will be noticeably increased as soon as the needed material for production is received. This was called for as soon as the latest order was booked. More than 500 men are now working full time in the factory, while several departments are compelled to put in overtime to keep ahead. Practically all the work now being done is on five-ton trucks, this style of vehicle being in demand throughout the country.

AMATEUR BLACK-FACE STARS TO APPEAR IN A BENEFIT

The end men and soloists for the minstrels to be given for the benefit of the Recreation Committee will be chosen at the next rehearsal on Friday night, in the Franklin School Auditorium.

Sewell Ulrich, who is coaching the production, is going to put on many new features in the coming show. Some of the stars of the High School show given in November will appear in leads and also many outside of the school will give their aid in making the minstrels a success.

The show is to be given in the High School Auditorium about the middle of March and a dance will follow the performance. All those who wish to join with Mr. Ulrich in making the benefit a success should report at the Franklin School, Friday night, at 7:30 o'clock.

Notice.

All members of Plainfield Lodge, B. P. O. E., No. 885, are requested to meet in the lodge room, at 7:30 sharp tonight, to attend the funeral of our late brother, Past Exalted Ruler Clarence E. Teel, the services taking place at his home, 22 Craig place, at 8 o'clock.

Knights of Columbus Members Plan Many Attractions for Week of Festivities.

Plans have been completed for the indoor fete of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, which will open in the Columbus Club, on West Front street, Saturday night, continuing for one week. COMPROMISE IN CLARK WILL CASE Instrument Disposing of $103,000 is Withdrawn From Court.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Following a compromise out of court, the terms which could not be learned, the fight brought by Marguerite Clark Wessells, and George Wesley Clark, both of Carmel, N. Y., to break the will left by Heman Thomas Clark, brother of Walter and Charles Clark, of Plainfield, which is on file for probate here and disposes of an estate of about $103,000, has been withdrawn and the executors, designated under the will, have been asked, by Surrogate Ketcham, to hand up a decree which will be signed by the court allowing it to be admitted to probate.

Green, both, also, of Garretsville, O., each, $125; the Greenwood Union Cemetery, of Rye, N. Y., $200 for the caring of his grave; Marguerite Clark Wessells and George Wesley Clark, daughter and son, each, $100.

The residue equally between two sisters and three brothers, Nettie A. Kert and Margaret C. Lavin, both of Portchester, N. Y.; Walter and Charles Clark, both of Plainfield, and John S. Clark, of Patchogue, L. I.

The will, which was executed on August 4, 1914, was signed in the presence of three witnesses, and nominated the two sisters, Nettie A. Kert and Margaret C. Lavin, as well as one of the brothers, Walter Clark, as the executors.

Objections to the probate of the will were then filed by the son and daughter, who charged, among other things, that their father, at the time of the making of the document, if it was made at all, was not in his right mind, and that the execution of the document was obtained by fraud and undue influence practiced upon the decedent by the residuary legatees as well as by Rose Noethiger, and other persons whose names to the contestants were unknown. A trial of the issues were asked to be reviewed by a jury under the new Surrogate's Court jury law. This, by the surrogate, was immediately granted to them.

JANUARY TERM ENDS.

RUSSIANS TAKE TOWN OF SKEMPE

Capture Commanding Officer of Battalion, Three Other Officers and 100 Men.

GERMAN LOSSES HEAVY

Hand to Hand Fighting in Terrific Engagement at Village of Goumine—German Forces Constantly Supplied With Troops.

Petrograd, Feb. 4.—The following statement was issued by the general staff of the Russian army today:

"In East Prussia our troops have strengthened their position near village of Gross Medunischken on the left bank of the Angerapp. On the left bank of the Vistula our counters have been more frequent. We took by assault the town of Skempe, east of Lipno, and repulsed an attack on the village of Blino. In this fighting we captured the commanding officer of the battalion, three other officers and 100 men. An engagement of particular severity took place at the village of Goumine, where after hand to hand fighting, we repulsed the furious attacks of the enemy. The Germans sustained immense losses, but they continue to bring fresh troops forward. The fighting in the Carpathians continues and engagements are becoming more and more tenacious in character."

Paris, Feb. 4.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon:

"To the north of the Lys there was an artillery combat yesterday, this being particularly violent in the region of Nieuport. At Notre Dame, De Lorette, southwest of Lens, a German attack on the afternoon of February 3 was rolled back by our artillery, which likewise arrested a bombardment against the road between Arras and Bethune. In the region of Albert and of Quesnoy, on Santerre, we destroyed several block houses. Throughout the valley of the Aisne there was an artillery combat in which we gained the advantage. The three attacks reported last night against our trenches in the region of Perthes, Mesnil, Les Hurlus and Massiges were made by forces of the enemy equal to a battalion at each point. The troops engaged in the first two were dispersed by our artillery, the third to the north of Massiges took advantage of the explosion of a mine to force itself forward. The entire position was retaken by us. New trenches were built by us at a distance of several yards from those which the German mines had wrecked. The day was calm in the Argonne. In the Woevre and in the valley of the Seille we obtained some success in advance guard engagements and dispersed some convoys of the enemy. In the Vosges there were some encounters between ski patrols and our troops made some slight progress to the southeast of Kolschlag, northwest of Hartmannsweiler Kopf. A thaw has begun."

Berlin, Feb. 4 (By wireless).—The following statement was given out at German headquarters today:

"On the front between the North Sea and Rheims, there were only artillery duels yesterday. Renewed French attacks near Perthes were repulsed with losses to the enemy. North and northwest of Massiges, northwest of St. Memehoul, the Germans attacked yesterday. They stormed three successive trenches, one behind the other, and occupied the main trench position on a front of two kilometres. All the French counter attacks continued during the night were repulsed. Seven officers and 601 soldiers were taken prisoners. Nine machine guns, nine smaller guns and much material were also taken. In the central Vosges the first fight of German ski troops against the French chassuers resulted successfully for the Germans.

"In East Prussia the feeble Russian attacks against the German positions south of the Nenel River were repulsed. In Poland, north of the Vistula, there were skirmishes of small mixed detachments connected with the cavalry fights already reported. South of Sochaccew repeated night attacks by the Russians failed as a result of their heavy losses. The German advance in the Bolimow region is progressing in spite of violent Russian counter attacks.

"In the Carpathian mountains for some days the Germans have been fighting shoulder to shoulder with the Austro-Hungarians. The Allied troops obtained a series of good successes in the snow covered mountainous country."

Amsterdam, Feb. 4.—Austro-Hungary will levy a new war tax, according to a rumor in Parliamentary circles in Vienna. The report states that the new taxes will be imposed especially on beer and matches.

PLAN FOR BOROUGH'S ANNIVERSARY EVENT

Announcement of Some of the Speakers and Other Arrangements.

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the Board of Trade to consider the feasibility of the celebration of the twenty-ninth anniversary of the birth of the borough on March 23 has been rapidly completing arrangements for the event since the first meeting.

The event will be held in the local theatre and will be in charge of Mayor E. B. Latham. Among those whom the committee has secured to speak thus far are George W. Day, of the Weekly Call, whose subject will be "The Formation of the Infant Years of the Borough," and President Augustus F. Todd, of the Board of Education, who will speak on "The Board of Education and the Schools." The committee also hopes to secure J. Y. Wilson and a number of others to make short speeches dealing with the past, present and future of the municipality.

Borough Clerk W. P. Deering will compose a poem about Dunellen as she is today and what she will be twenty years hence. Mr. Deering's daughter, Miss Mildred Deering, will recite the poem.

W. H. Fuller, one of the committee, has been designated to look after the musical end of the program and he reports that local talent is responding heartily to his solicitations. As to the refreshment end of the program suffice it to say that the good housewives of the borough will see to it that there are good things a-plenty to eat.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nelson have been blessed by the arrival of a baby.

AWARDED CONTRACT.

Contractor Samuel M. Titus has been awarded the contract of erecting a house for a New York party on Greenbrook road, adjoining the property of J. G. Tetlow. The house will be of the same type of architecture as the Dunellen Home and Investment Company house on Washington avenue tenanted by W. M. Fowler. Contractor Titus has sub-contracted the mason work to Firman H. Glse.

Mrs. F. Percy Vail, of New Market road, will entertain the Afternoon Card Club tomorrow afternoon.

W. N. APGAR IMPROVED.

Willard N. Apgar has practically recovered from the effects of his long illness. He was able to go to Muhlenberg Hospital at Plainfield, yesterday, to visit his brother, J. Newton Apgar.

George W. Churchill, of Washington avenue, who was stricken with illness last week on a train en route to Jersey City, is slowly recovering from the effects of the attack.

WATCHFUL WAITING.

The farmers are playing the waiting game as concerns the disposal of their wheat crop of the year just past. With complacency they are watching the quotations of wheat soar towards the $2.00 mark, at which figure, it is said, they have entered orders to sell.

Emanuel Appert, of Dunellen avenue, is suffering with a severe cold.

Edward Reusch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reusch, of Washington avenue, has been ill the past three or four days with a sore throat.

Joseph Hill, foreman of one of the construction gangs of the Central Railroad, took his men to Atlantic Highlands, yesterday, where they will be kept busy for a week or more in repairing the draw-bridge over the Shrewsbury River.

John M. Dayton, overseer of the poor of Piscataway township, is ill with a bad cold.

Lillian R. Nagle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Nagle, of Main street, has been ill since Saturday with appendicitis Dr. Longbotham is administering the ice treatment to which the young lady appears to be responding nicely.

Leo Osborn, of Piscataway, who has been ill with a light attack of diphtheria, is well along the road to recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. William Clark and daughter, of Plainfield, have been visiting Mr. Clark's father, Charles Clark, of Centre street, since Friday.

Bertram Walters, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Walters, of Washington avenue, who was operated upon for mastoiditis about three weeks ago, is getting along very nicely.

DRIVE CABLE BREAKS.

The main drive cable at the plant of the Levgar Structural Company broke yesterday morning. The cable was temporarily repaired. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the whistle blew for ending the work of the day in order that the cable might be repaired permanently.

TAKES ANOTHER OFFICE.

William W. Giddes, the local attorney at law with an office in the First National Bank building, has found it necessary to rent the office adjoining his present quarters, which was recently vacated by Real Estate Agent John Fedderman. A doorway will be cut between the two offices.

JR. O. U. A. M. TO BUILD.

At a special meeting of W. G. Holton Council, held in Junior Hall on Tuesday, it was voted to purchase a lot on Front street, just west of George W. Day's home, from the Runyon estate. The lot has a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 150. A new hall will be erected by the Juniors on this lot when their present property can be disposed of.

REMOVE GARAGE.

The garage located in the rear of the house at the corner of Lincoln and Dunellen avenues, formerly tenanted by Clifford Fenner, was moved yesterday afternoon by Isaac V. Smalley to the rear of George F. Giles' home on North avenue. The garage was placed on logs, which were used as runners, and hauled over the ground by a team of horses. Those who saw it start out had their doubts as to whether the cumbersome looking outfit would reach its destination but the team pulled it over the snow with surprising ease.

ASSESSMENT HEARING.

Borough Engineer Churchill was given a hearing Tuesday evening by the Mayor and Common Council of the Borough of Bound Brook in the matter of making an assessment map for Bound Brook. Action on awarding the contract was postponed until the next meeting of the Council.

CULVERTS WORKED WELL.

Street Commissioner Isaac V. Smalley made a thorough job when he cleaned out the various culverts about town after the severe rain storm of a couple of weeks ago. This was attested to by the heavy deluge of Sunday night and Monday morning.

PLAN TO SAVE $2,500.

Upon the suggestion of Mayor E. B. Latham and the collecting sewage committee it was decided at an informal meeting of the councilmen held after the regular meeting of the Council on Monday evening to do away if possible with the necessity of laying sewer pipe under the Chestnut street crossing of the Central Railroad, and Borough Engineer Churchill was instructed to see what could be done about the matter. Mr. Churchill has since worked out a plan in which all the sewage matter collected on the south side of the track can be taken care of by the pipe to be laid under the Grove street crossing of the railroad, saving the borough $2,500.

CONDITION OF MR. APGAR.

The condition of J. Newton Apgar showed a further slight improvement last night and this morning.

John Daniels, of First street, was a recent visitor at Newark.

FANWOOD CANINES WILL SPORT TAGS

Council Adopts Ordinance Providing for Licensing of All Dogs.

An ordinance, providing for the licensing of all dogs, was adopted by the Fanwood Borough Council at the February meeting held last night, and will go into effect May 1. A fee of $1 per year for males and $2 per year for females has been fixed and all residents of that municipality who harbor canines will be compelled by law to take out the necessary credentials. For some time past the borough has been annoyed by the presence of numerous stray dogs within its limits and the new restriction is designed to do away with a large portion of the trouble. Apparently homeless canines have been rooting chicken coops recently and the Council has been held responsible for the reimbursement of chicken owners who have suffered losses.

A matter which has been brought up many times came to notice again when Councilman Britton offered a resolution calling for the placing of traffic posts at the following points: Martine and North avenues, Martine and South avenues, and South avenue and Terrill road. All are important junctions and several accidents have occurred due to the lack of regulations. The matter was referred to the street committee to report at the next meeting. A communication was received from the Township Committee stating that Charles Elliot, the new township engineer, had taken charge of the matter of the disputed boundary line between the borough and township in the Graceland section and would rectify the maps at the earliest possible date.

The committee on lights, water and fire was given power to act on the petition of residents of the west end of the borough asking for a fire hydrant at the corner of Midway place and Terrill road. The petitions of F. A. Manikin for a hydrant on Martine avenue, near King street, and residents of South avenue for one near Fourth street, were rejected. Upon motion it was decided to pay half the telephone bill of William Lidgate, with the understanding that he receive calls for and deliver them to Marshal Logan in case he was needed. The treasurer reported cash on hand of $3,876.63, and also that the borough books will be audited, following the yearly custom, next week. Bills totalling $426.75 were ordered paid, while two bills for professional services rendered by Dr. F. W. Westcott, were held up as certain items were not clear to the Council.

Superintendent Neilson has received the mite boxes for children to save their pennies in during Lent and will distribute them on Sunday, as will be the case in the other local churches.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society of All Saints' Episcopal church, are holding the weekly meeting at the home of Mrs. James Carter, on North avenue, this afternoon.

The activities of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church have been temporarily discontinued owing to the illness of Mrs. E. J. Reeder, who is president of the society. As soon as Mrs. Reeder is about again the monthly meetings will be resumed and the social that was postponed from January 28 will be held.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Junior League held at the home of Miss Grace Thompson, on Martine avenue, yesterday afternoon. The time was spent in sewing for foreign and domestic missions.

Funeral services for George P. Meredith, a colored resident of the "Big Woods" section of the township, were held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Bethel Baptist church and were in charge of Rev. E. W. Hamlette.

After holding the pennant several months, which is awarded to the Epworth League having the largest delegation at the district rallies, the local league was forced to surrender the bunting after the rally held in North Plainfield on Tuesday night, the Bound Brook league having the largest representation.

Owing to the recent adoption of a number of new ordinances the Borough Council is going to have pamphlets of the ordinances printed and distributed to the residents.

As a result of the recent rain and snow the residents of the Terrill road section of the township are going to petition to the Board of Freeholders to have the drainage conditions remedied. All of the gutters in the borough and in Plainfield, just over the boundary line, drain into a large brook, which empties into Green brook. Recently a real estate company blocked the ditch where it came into Plainfield for a distance of a few feet so as to prevent water from this place from draining through their property with the result that the water backs up onto local property and does considerable damage. Several new residences are uninhabitable owing to the prevailing conditions in that section and it is with the hope of

WILL DISCONTINUE NIGHT SCHOOL WORK

Dunellen Board of Education Finds Interest Has Been Lacking.

At the meeting of the Dunellen Board of Education, last night, it was decided to discontinue night school. The attendance of the school has dwindled to twelve pupils, all of whom are foreigners. The school will be discontinued this week.

President A. F. Todd suggested that in view of the approaching annual meeting of the Board to be held on March 9, that the various committees should get together and see if they cannot economize in their financial requirements for the year without reducing the efficiency of the departments of the school.

A communication was received from County Superintendent Brewster Willis inviting the members of the Board to attend the annual meeting of the Middlesex County School Board Association to be held in the Hotel Kline at New Brunswick, on March 6, and ten signified their intention of attending.

Principal Guy H. Rentschler proposed that the present course in reading taken by the various grades of the schools be supplemented by a classical course, the idea being as soon as the grades have gone through the regular reader thoroughly to give them further training by the reading of classical works. In addition it is believed that the reading of these books will instill a desire for literature in the mind of the scholar. The Board thought well of the proposition.

Mrs Mary K. Corwin, of Long Island, was engaged as a substitute teacher. The superintendent's report showed a percentage of attendance of 89 per cent. during the month that is past.

FIGHT TO BE RENEWED.

Washington, Feb. 4.—When the Senate convenes today it will be with the understanding of the Democratic leaders that the actual fight on the administration ship purchase bill will be renewed by the motion to recommit the measure to the Commerce Committee with instructions that it is reported back immediately with amendments. On this motion Democratic leaders are confident of a tie vote in the Senate which with Vice-President Marshall's vote, assues them success.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE ATTENDED BY MANY Interesting Addresses Are Heard on Agricultural Topics.

The Farmers' Institute, which was held in Friendship Hall, New Market, yesterday, was largely attended by agriculturists and others interested in farming. After luncheon, Prof. F. C. Minkler spoke on "Strawberry Culture," and the other address of the afternoon was on "Corn and Alfalfa Production," by Mr. Roberts. In the evening, John H. Voorhees spoke on "Commercial Fruit Production." "Practical Poultry Farming" was the subject of the closing address by A. L. Clark. Throughout the day and evening there were informal discussions.

NO INDICATION OF ANY CONSPIRACY IS FOUND

Washington, Feb. 4.—Unofficially but authoriatively it was declared today that the Department of Justice has about despaired of finding any indication of a conspiracy to raise the price of wheat. The investigation has been pressed vigorously but has failed, it is said, to divulge any evidence of criminality. While Attorney General Gregory today declined to discuss the matter it was declared on unquestionable authority that a report will be sent to the White House in the near future. It is considered practically certain the inquiry will be dropped.

Trained Army Nurses Make Dainty Dishes For the Invalid Soldiers.

The life of a soldier even during the present terrible war is not without its mitigations, and one of the great blessings of wartime is the nurse. She is indeed the angel of the troubled pool.

The Revolving Cat.

Little Susie has always been deeply interested in mechanical toys and numbers several among her choicest possessions. Recently the family cat, having apparently eaten something which disagreed with her, began a mad race around the room, leaping chairs, diving under sofas and turning somersaults. Susie's mother, much frightened, seized her small daughter and mounted a convenient table. But Susie remained unscared. Clapping her hands in glee, she shouted, "Wind her up again, mamma; wind her up again!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Church Sticks.

The "church stick," which from about 1650 down to 1725 was so common an article of church furniture, was a stave about four feet long and about an inch thick, to one end of which, in some cases, was fitted a rabbit's foot, while from the other end hung a rabbit's tail, the former to give a rap to unruly boys and sleeping men, the latter to tickle into wakefulness the dozing sitters.

THE RED PERIL.

The annual fire loss due to incendiarism alone in New York city exceeds the total fire loss of London and, although New York has three fire fighters to London's one and they are better paid and equipped than the English firemen, the English city had but 4,403 fires last year with a total loss of $3,945,000, as compared with the American metropolis' 23,868 fires and a total loss of $12,470,000. Lest these figures be insufficient for comparison, the aggregate loss by flames in this country is $2.68 per capita while in London it is only 52 cents per inhabitant. Germany's loss before the war was even less—20 cents per capita or less than one-tenth our own loss. No account is taken in these figures of the greater loss of life in the United States.

The red peril costs the average American family (taking the usual standard of five to a family) $13.40 every year. The prevalence of skyscrapers, the survival of many ancient wooden structures and the presence of a large uneducated foreign population in the cities may be advanced as causes for our American predominance in this very undesirable leadership over other nations. On the other hand, our firemen are more numerous, better trained and better equipped, while our streets are broader and building conditions would seem to be superior here over European cities. So we must look elsewhere for the secret of our pre-eminence as a nation of the red peril.

One of the real underlying causes of America's large fire loss is recklessness in building, in inspection, in regulation and in enforcement—all due to what foreigners call our natural wastefulness growing out of the plenty with which resources have always been thrown about us. But the chief reason for our great fire loss must be admitted to be the failure of our American people to realize the full import of fire prevention.

Only lately have we awakened to this idea of prevention. The movement has been launched as a national propaganda. It is moving slowly, far too slowly. Instead of being indolent, we ought to and we must arise quickly to our duty to prevent the red peril. We need a more general observance of fire prevention days and we need greater observance of fire prevention rules which include removal of waste, careful building, efficient inspection, safety guarding and determined enforcement of the proper regulations. London has 81 fires to each 100,000 population while New York has 300 and the comparison holds good on down the list of cities in this country and other nations of the world. It is worth a whole lot of serious thinking; are the American people doing it?

Plainfield is fortunate in many things. We are all proud of the city, and know that we have the best government that is possible under the old and cumbersome Mayor and Council method. If evidence of the public spirited service that is being given without any desire or thought of emolument is wanted, Plainfielders need but point to members of the City Council, the Board of Education, the Playground Commission, Shade Tree Commission, the Board of Health and others who are serving the city. It is the Board of Health that has particularly been called to the attention of the public now, because of the request made at the meeting held on Tuesday night, at which time it was voted to ask the Council for $8,500 to carry on a year's work. We do not believe that there is another community the size of Plainfield in the State, if in the country, where such excellent health conditions prevail as in Plainfield, with such a minimum of expense. The active and energetic citizens who are giving their time to directing this work, and who have asked for such a small sum, are entitled to the thanks of every Plainfielder for their example in trying to keep the tax rate down.

William L. Smalley and President George S. Clay of the City Council, have come forward with an offer to be two of 100 men to give $10 each to keep the Women's Exchange alive. It is to be hoped that the suggestion, originally made by Mr. Smalley, will result in the necessary funds being raised, and that the Exchange will be made permanent. This worthy cause certainly should not be allowed to stop its good work and nothing would give us greater pleasure than to record in a few days the fact that one hundred residents have promised $10 each to keep the work up. Who will be the next?

Next week is to be a big one in the history of the Boy Scouts of America. The important part which this movement plays in the life of the boys of Plainfield is more or less known to the residents of the city, but with attention especially focussed on their work during the next ten days, it is particularly timely that the Daily Press tell in detail some of the things that are being done. We have arranged for a contributed editorial for Saturday's paper by a leader in the Boy Scout movement, and it's a corker.

No gentle reader, the office cat did not walk across the linotype keyboard yesterday in the war dispatches. Wolaszyelowiczka is the name of a town for which the Germans and Russians were fighting. Incidentally, perhaps some reader can tell us how to pronounce it.

OVERSEERS WANT LIFE JOBS

that overseers shall be empowered under proper procedure to go outside of the county to compel such relatives as the law provides for to give support.

The bill of Assemblyman Garfield Pancoast, of Camden county, was indorsed as a step in the right direction. The bill, known as the "Stone Pile Bill," provides that husbands found guilty of non-support shall be sentenced to prison at hard labor and be given work in a quarry. For their work they are to receive 50 cents a day for the support of their families

It was decided not to go further than just indorsing the basic idea of the bill, that work be given and paid for. The members hesitated about the State Prison provision, as being somewhat drastic. It was stated that it would be better to have a provision to send negligent husbands to workhouses at least in such counties that have institutions of that kind. The question then arose as to what could be done in counties where there was no workhouse. Under the present laws, it was explained by several of the members, the husbands could not be given work outside if sent to the county jail. The law holds the sheriff, who has charge of the jail, responsible for his prisoners. These officials would therefore decline to send prisoners out and at the same time be liable for their safekeeping.

The members decided to propose an amendment to the bill of John B. Kates, of Camden county, which they indorsed. The bill provides for the appointment of an assistant overseer of the poor, but fails to provide that the assistant shall receive a remuneration for his services.

Notwithstanding the poor weather the session was well attended, bringing together officials from many municipalities in various part of the State.

The question of better co-operation between private charities and the overseers engaged a large part of the discussion. President Bark, in broaching the subject, said:

"The time has arrived when something must be done to put a certain restraint on private charities. There is an almost complete lack of co-operation which has a tendency to pauperize the people rather than give actual relief. This is best known by the fact that with the increased activity of these private charities the expenses of the various poor departments throughout the State have increased out of all proportion to the relief afforded.

"The trouble is these societies take their work up with great enthusiasm and in an earnest endeavor to accomplish good, and later on many drop out, leaving matters on the hands of the official poor departments. I would propose that a law be passed making it mandatory for these societies and social workers to get a permit for relief work and to report every case to the poor department."

Overseer Frank Maybe, of Montclair, expressed doubt that such a course would be lawful, as the State could not stop private bodies or individuals from spending their money as they see fit.

Mr. Bark rejoined that whatever creates an evil comes under the bar of the law. These societies were creating an evil condition and, therefore, a curb and a certain supervision would, in his opinion, be perfectly proper.

In taking up Mr. Bark's remarks on misdirected charity, Mr. Maybe pictured to the members the conditions in Montclair.

"There is not a town," Mr. Maybe said, "where charity has been more foolishly dispensed than in Montclair. For a time it was so bad that some families were receiving support from three different organizations, without one body knowing that the other had already stepped in."

Secretary C. L. Stonaker, of the State Charities Aid and Prison Association, laid the blame for conditions to the door of the societies in that they had always asked the overseers to co-operate with them, but never asked to co-operate with the overseers.

He urged the members to meet in New Brunswick when the State Charities will hold their annual convention there. It was decided to hold the next meeting at he call of the chair at Plainfield, on the suggestion of Overseer Dunham, of this city.

ANNUAL METHODIST CONFERENCE MAR. 24

Speculation Rife as to Probable Changes in Pastorates.

The fifty-eighth annual session of the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will convene in St. Luke's church, Newark, Wednesday morning, March 24. Bishop Thomas S. Henderson, of Chattanooga, Tenn., will preside. He officiates in place of Bishop Luther B. Wilson, thus maintaining the theory of the itinerancy of the preachers.

Although the program for the conference has not been definitely arranged, it is expected that this will follow closely the program of 1914. A conspicuous feature of this was the concentration of the entertainment and address features into one day, Friday of conference week.

Speculation is, of course, rife among both the clergy and laity concerning the probable changes to be announced at the conference, but there does not appear any prospect of many this year in Plainfield.

The most important assignment to be given by the presiding bishop will be that of district superintendent to succeed Rev. Dr. George W. Smith, superintendent of the Jersey City district. He will have completed a term of six years in this office and under the rule of the discipline is ineligible for reappointment. It is expected that one of the younger men of the conference will be named for this place, but up to this time, particular mention of candidates has been conspicuous by its absence. Dr. Smith, will, according to his present plans, return to pastoral work.

BIG INCREASE IN COUNTY'S STATE TAX CONTRIBUTION

Elizabeth, Feb. 4—Notice was received by County Collector Leavitt from State Comptroller Edwards, that Union county's 1915 contribution to the State school tax fund will amount to $451,521. This is a large increase from 1914 when the total was $429,995.63. The 1915 tax will be due January 20, 1916, and the jump means a proportionate advance in the money to be raised by the different municipalities by taxation.

In 1913 the county's assessment for State school tax was more than $22,000 below 1914. In 1912 it was $390,286.33; in 1911, $365,687.29; in 1910, $342,772.31. In 1909 it was down to $320,715.27, and in 1908 to $251,798.80.

CLARK AND KITCHEN TO LEAD.

Washington, Feb. 4—A caucus of the Democratic members of the House of Representatives is scheduled for this afternoon, when the ceremony of endorsing Champ Clark to succeed himself as speaker of the 64th Congress will be the main business. It is believed the Speaker will accept the chair in the next Congress. Claude Kitchen, of North Carolina, will get the place of floor leader of the majority, now held by Oscar Underwood, who goes to the Senate in March. The caucus will have its contentions, however, for there are several big fights for places on the ways and means committee, which is the tariff-making and steering body of Congress. There are six vacancies and many candidates, and it will take some clever picking to satisfy all sections.

WHAT WILLIAM MAKEPEACE THACKERAY THOUGHT OF US

New York, Feb. 4—In a big collection of original letters and manuscripts of William Makepeace Thackeray, which were put up at auction here today, is an interesting letter written by the great author during his lecture tour of America.

"I have received your kind letter at Washington, where I passed some three weeks pleasantly enough. * * I saw the two Presidents (they came together to my lecture) and dined at the White House in the reign of the late sovereign, Mr. Fillmore. Then I went away into Virginia, crossing the pretty Rappahannock (where you know the Esmond family had their estates). It gave me a queer sensation to see the place, and I fancied the story was actually true for a minute or two—and that one might ride over yonder hills and come upon the old Mansion House, where the little Colonel lived with his jealous wife. * * * * I have come away from the South not so horrified as perhaps I ought to be with slavery, which in the towns is not by any means a horrifying institution. * * * * It is the worst economy, slavery, that can be, the clumsiest and most costly domestic and agricultural machine that ever was devised. Uncle Tom's Cabin and the tirades of the Abolitionists may not destroy it, but common sense infallibly will before long. * * * * The luxury of New York is prodigious; and surely Solomon in all his glory of the Queen of Sheba when she came to visit him was not arrayed so magnificently as these New York damsels."

LITERARY

There are three articles dealing with the motor in war and peace in the February Scribner. Charles L. Freeston, author of "The Passes of the Pyrenees" and "The High Roads of the Alps," writes of "The Motor in Warfare—Power and Speed." It is the motor that has speeded up the present great war, that has made it possible to move millions of men in less time than it used to take to move thousands. "It is not too much to say that practically the entire control of the tactics on both sides has been carried out by means of motors, including those of aeroplanes, and the armies could no more have gone into the field without gasoline than without ammunition for the guns and victuals for the men." The article is illustrated with types of motors in actual use at the front.

FEBRUARY FURNITURE SALE

Beginning Monday, February 1, we offer our most complete stock of Furniture at February Prices. When we say February prices we mean prices that are different—a bona fide reduction. This means a substantial profit to the "Greater Plainfield" consumers. Every item reduced bears a special price mark in red. Just compare these with the original price tags and see how much you can save on Furniture, Rugs, etc., for your entire home or for a single room as the case may be. Perhaps you won't need furniture for a few weeks until you locate in your new home or until house cleaning and re-arranging time. Well, storage is free here on any number of pieces you purchase. Your money in the bank wouldn't do for you, in several years, what it will do for you in the few weeks invested here in the advance of your need. Isn't it worth while then to grasp the opportunity?

Nearly every item in the department has received its quota of red ink. Within the limits of newspaper space at our disposal it is impossible to convey but a slight intimation of what a visit to the department will reveal. We wish, however, to especially announce for this beginning week

"CATCH AS CATCH CAN"

- Proctor's Theatre -

Scene from "The Deep Purple," at Proctor's Theatre, Monday and Tuesday.

The World Film Corporation's latest release, "The Deep Purple," in which Clara Kimball Young is starred, based on the drama of the same name by Paul Armstrong and Wilson Mizner, will be shown at Proctor's Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, February 8 and 9. The New York underworld; the perfidies of the Tenderloin; unmitigated crookedness in the shape of blackmail; white slaving; fraud; gambling; gun-play; murder. These are the environments in which the unsophisticated innocents from the country suddenly finds itself and from which in the end it emerges unscathed. It is a play of startling incidents and dramatic contrasts; a thriller in the literal meaning of the word. It is moreover true to life and free of any nauseating sex theme or suggestions—there is nothing of the white slave traffic in it, nothing offensive; nothing unclean. It is a probable story of metropolitan life; logically unfolded; and the people of the drama are the actualities of commonplace existence, as the police-court records and the newspapers, day by day, amply attest.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The offerings at the Plainfield Theatre for the remainder of the present week include the photo-play production, "When Broadway Was a Trail," to be shown this afternoon and tonight; Gus Hill's latest comedy dramatic production, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," tomorrow night, and the big New Amsterdam Theatre musical comedy success, "The Little Cafe," Saturday matinee and night. Feature photo-plays will hold the boards all next week and it will be advisable for all devotees to keep the following attractions in mind: Monday and Tuesday, afternoon and night, David Higgins' greatest success, "His Last Dollar;" Wednesday and Thursday, Max Figman's big comedy hit, "What's His Name;" Friday and Saturday, the greatest of all motion picture sensations, "Alice in Wonderland." The last named feature photo production is being handled throughout the United States by Messrs. Counihan and Shannon, who secured the sole rights at great expense and in competition with many other managers. Popular prices will prevail when all photo-plays are presented.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

"90 IN THE SHADE"

Bright and alluring as the radiant isles of the Pacific is the new musical comedy, "90 in the Shade," which is now in the second week of its successful engagement at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York. Daniel V. Arthur, well known in the fields of music and drama, is the sponsor for the attraction, and he has presented at the Knickerbocker one of the best companies possible to get together for the rendering of musical comedy of high order. The organization is headed by Marie Cahill and Richard Carle, both metropolitan favorites who have been identified for several years with the best of musical comedies. Supporting them are Edward Martindel, Victor Morley, Fred Walton, Pedro de Cordoba, Florence Dillon, Jean Newcombek, Eleanor Henry, Dorothy Arthur and others. The book of "90 in the Shade" was written by Guy Bolton, the music by Jerome Kern and the lyrics by Harry B. Smith. The comedy is in two acts which are laid in one of the Philippine islands. The characters are partly natives and partly Americans. Unlike most comic operas "90 in the Shade" has a well-defined and engrossing story, and humorous situations are frequent. The music is very novel, principally for the reason that the composer has imbibed in his work much of the beautiful flavor of the native Filipino music. There are 19 musical numbers and Miss Cahill and Mr. Carle each have songs that are bound to become memorable.

EDITORS TO HEAR BRYAN.

RICHARD DUERSCHNER DIES IN TROY, N. Y., HOSPITAL

Word has been received here of the death of Richard Duerschner, formerly of this city, but late of Troy. He died in a hospital in Troy this week from complications of diseases. Mr. Duerschner was about nineteen years old and was a pupil in the North Plainfield High School for several years. From here he went to Allentown, Pa., where he began preparation for the ministry. Since leaving Plainfield he has frequently been a visitor here.

TO CONDUCT AN EVENING OF SONG AND BIBLE STUDY

Following the week of prayer which the Park Avenue Baptist church observed in January, weekly meetings in charge of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, have been held at the homes of the members in various parts of the city. These meetings which are very informal and often include the discussion of some subject of special interest, have been largely attended and helpful to a marked degree.

Tomorrow evening, Dr. Hudson will conduct an evening of song and Bible study at the home of John C Evans, 1231 Lenox avenue. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in the story of the Gospel as told in Scripture and song.

SHERIFF SEBRING MADE DEFENDANT IN A SUIT

Sheriff Charles P. Sebring appeared Friday as defendant in a suit brought by Allen & Palmer, attorneys, of Berardsville, for money said to have been lost to clients by an illegal postponement of a sheriff's sale. The two firms represented by Allen & Palmer had received judgments against Blazure. Executions were issued and Sheriff Sebring served papers and made a levy on the property, which consisted of a house and lot.

He advertised the property for sale and adjourned the sale for the first time on November 9 and again on November 19, under a sheriff's privilege. On November 23, the day the sale was to have taken place, the plaintiff's attorneys, Allen & Palmer, had a case in Morristown and the sale was again adjourned by the sheriff, this time to November 30. On this date the sale was postponed again. In the meantime Blazure had gone through bankruptcy and the United States District Court enjoined Sheriff Sebring against disposing of the property. Allen & Palmer claimed that there was a purchaser for the property and that their clients were deprived of their judgment by the sheriff's action.

Judge D. H. Beekman, before whom the case was being tried, requested Allen & Palmer to file a brief within 10 days and gave Angleman & Gaston, counsel for Sebring, 10 days in which to answer.

FIELD MINSTRELS PLEASE.

The Al. G. Field Greater Minstrel Company drew capacity audiences to the Plainfield Theatre, yesterday afternoon and last night, on the occasion of their annual visit to this city. The show was up to the standard set by the Field aggregation for twenty-nine years and the applause was almost continuous from start to finish. The company is having its yearly three-day lay-off in this city and the members of the troop are taking occasion to visit nearby places. Many of the minstrels were given the customary reception at the Elks' Club last night, a feature to which they look forward whenever appearing locally.

ARRANGING BOX PARTY.

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, is one of the many local men interested in the production of "It's A Long Way to Tipperary," to be produced at the Plainfield Theatre, tomorrow night, and has arranged a box party to witness the performance. It will number about twenty in all, several of the members being city officials. "It's A Long Way to Tipperary" is a war drama from the pen of Walter Maguire and is one the lines of "Held by the Enemy," "Shenandoah" and "The Heart of Maryland," plays that were big successes a few years ago.

EXAGGERATED REPORT.

Reports of the death of Robert Cashman printed in local papers last August, were contradicted yesterday afternoon, by Mr. Cashman himself, who personally called at this office. The story last fall told of Mr. Cashman's death, due to an accident in Marshalltown, Iowa. In speaking to a reporter, yesterday, he said that he had been injured, but was far from being deceased. Mr. Cashman is at present visiting his sister, Mrs. A. Scott, of Whitewood avenue, but intends to return to the West in the near future.

DEBATE POSTPONED.

The debate of the Y. M. H. A., of Morris county, and the local Y. M. H. A., which was scheduled to take place on February 7, has been indefinitely postponed, because of the inability of the former to be present.

BOROUGITES ENJOYED STRAWRIDE LAST NIGHT

One of the first strawrides of the year was held last night, by a number of young people of the borough. The sleighing was excellent and the party made Westfield their destination. Upon arrival at that place they enjoyed refreshments. Returning the party went to the home of Miss Dorothy Langford, of Compton avenue, where the festivities were continued until a late hour.

The affair was arranged by the Misses Dorothy Langford and Theresa Sharretts. Those who made up the party were the Misses Dorcas Bowman, Dorothy Langford, Annette VanMater Theresa Sharretts, and Frederick Harrington, Gresham Sharpe, Augustus VanDeventer and Duclos VanMater.

MOTIONLESS CROWD SAW LEAGUERS MAKE ASSAULT ON BASKETBALL GAME

Leals Smeared in Burlesque Exhibition by Score of 53 to 15 —N. P. H. S. Slid Along in Easy Style to a Gift Verdict —Game Bore a Slight Resemblance to Basketball.

North Plainfield High School basketeers gained one of their easiest victories of the season, yesterday, on the Saengerbund Hall court, when they took their second game of the interscholastic basketball championship series for the city title against the Leal School quintet, the final score being 53 to 15.

The exhibition given by the private school boys was far from being anything like the game that they put up against the borough lads last December, when the "Canadians" won a three-point verdict, and one would hardly realize it to be the same team

The enthusiam typical of games of this sort was also absent, and not more than fifty followers of both sides were present to witness the battle and, still worse than this, not a single cheer was given by the cohorts of either team throughout the entire game. These things, however, did not seem to have any effect on the North Plainfield team, as the ball passed down the floor from player to player, finally to be lodged in the net of the maroon and black.

In the first few minutes of play the game was carried on in lively fashion and neither side could score, but Captain Abrams soon broke this up when he caged a neat field goal from in front of the basket. The score at the end of the first period was 20 to 10, Leal's scoring four baskets and two fouls.

In the second period, Leal's was outscored by twenty-eight points, the winners running up thirty-three points to the Front street delegation's five.

Townley led the attack of the "Canadians," registering eleven field goals and three fouls and hardly missing a shot. Captin Abrams also played a fine game, showing some good work in passing and registering two baskets. Day, who was put in for the last four minutes, added six points to the score during his stay in the game.

Schneider played the best game for the Leal team, registering four baskets, and Stewart played a good game at forward.

The score follows:

The second contest of the year between the North Plainfield and Westfield High School basketball teams will be staged on the latter's court tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. As the boroughites defeated the Westfielders by one point in Saengerbund Hall a good game is expected. There will be dancing after the game and a large crowd will accompany the local team. The teams will lineup as follows:

LOOKS LIKE LEGALIZED BOXING FOR JERSEYITES

Trenton, Feb. —Assemblyman Jacob J. Singer, of Hudson county, believes his bill, Assembly No. 188, which would legalize boxing in the State, has a good chance to pass the House if it is reported out by the committee on miscellaneous business, where it now rests.

Mr. Singer has obtained a mass of data from Charles J. Harvey, secretary of the New York State Boxing Commission, showing how the Frawley law has worked out in the Empire State.

Backed by these facts and figures Mr. Singer expects to be able to convince at least thirty-one Assemblymen that boxing properly conducted will be a benefit to the State at large. If he can corral thirty-one votes he will have one over a majority.

John Duffy's fine rolling for the Parrot team, of the Columbus Club Bowling League, last night, against the Quail, was largely responsible for his team taking two of the three games played and holding third place. Duffy's three scores were, in the order rolled, 212, 200, 208, which gives him an average of 206.2 for the match.

The initial roll was the best of the night, the Parrots taking the verdict by five pins, the scores being 870 to 865. Duffy chalked up his highest mark, which was the best of the match, and Tobin followed it with a 186. Doyle, of the Quail, hit for 203, and Moynihan's first mark was 180. The Quail fell down in the second game and only tallied a total of 723, while their opponents hit for 821. The Quail's highest mark in this roll was 170, made by Moynihan, while Duffy was again high score man.

Cannon's 202 in the last game helped materially in defeating the Parrots, for although Duffy kept up his good work and scored a 208, his team-mates did not do so well and seventy points seperated the scores at the end of the match. The marks were 851 to 781.

NEW BRUNSWICK WANTS JUNIOR GOLF CHAMPS

Golf enthusiasts of New Brunswick have started a movement to have the Metropolitan junior golf championships held in that city. New Brunswick has never held such an event and as the matter is still undecided as to where the matches shall be played this year, the New Brunswick Country Club will stand a good chance of being awarded the champs.

Plainfield has had the Junior champs for the past three years and they will probably not be held here again this year. Holding the event in New Brunswick would give the home golfers more of a chance to compete and would aid this branch of sport in that city. At present there are five offers from various clubs.

BOROUGH GIRLS AT KEARNY.

The North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team will play the second game of the season with the Kearny girls at that place tomorrow afternoon. Miss Ethel Barnard, who is coach of the team, will be unable to accompany the team, and the Misses Edna French and Mary Robley, teachers in the Somerset School, will take the trip. The boroughites won the first game played on Saengerbund Hall court early in the season.

GAME NOT POSTPONED.

The Newark team in the Elks' Bowling League will roll at New York tomorrow night and will be made up of Williams, Hinton, Leick, Van Ness and Erler, rolling in that order. This will be the first match for Van Ness in the Elks' League.

PLANNING TO ORGANIZE PATROLMEN'S BALL LEAGUE

The organization of a baseball league by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, of this section of the State, is being discussed and it is probable that a ten-team circuit will be formed in the spring. Last year several of the forces in this vicinity, including Newark, Elizabeth, New Prunswick and Plainfield, had good teams and good games were played, although there was no league. The Newarkers probably had the best team, defeating the others at least once or twice.

The places that have been mentioned to be represented in the league that is being planned are Elizabeth, Plainfield, New Brunswick, Paterson, Jersey City, Trenton, Camden, Newark, Hoboken and Passaic.

COLUMBUS CLUB GAME.

The Columbus Club basketball five will play a team composed of Battin High School players, in the double-header scheduled for tonight on the West Front street court. After the games dancing will be enjoyed by those present and music will be furnished by Prof. Squires and Dunn. The local team will lineup as follows: Linke, Coffey, Taylor, forwards; McAfee, center; Caulfield, Carty and Kilbride, guards.

HARD GAME FOR P. H. S.

The Plainfield High School basketball team will play the South Side High School five, of Newark, at that place, tomorrow afternoon. The Newarkers have been playing a fine brand of ball lately as have the locals and a fine exhibition is expected.

ELKS' MATCH POSTPONED.

The bowling match between the Plainfield and Rahway teams, of the Senior Elks' League, which was to be played in this city tonight, has been postponed by the local captain because of the death of Clarence Teel. No date for the match has been set.

CHANGE LEAGUE DATE.

Plainfield and Paterson Senior Elk pinners will meet in Paterson, on February 12 instead of February 11, as scheduled.

KONETCHY A FEDERAL.

"Big Train" Will Stick Even if Law Prevents His Playing.

Ed Konetchy, the big first baseman who jumped from the Pittsburgh Pirates to the Pittsburgh Federal league team, says he will stay put even if the law prevents him from playing. An attempt will be made by his former employers to get an injunction restraining him from rendering service to his new employers, and if the injunction is issued Koney will be unable to play in Pittsburgh.

ED KONETCHY.

However, the "Big Train" is not worried as he has been assured that he will draw his salary whether he plays or stays at home. He had a batting average of .249 last season, a heavy drop for him. As a first baseman he stood second, having made but eight errors in 154 games during which he made 1,576 putouts and ninety-three assists.

Koney attributes his poor showing with the bat last year to the fact that he was unpopular with the fans and was the subject of unjust and severe censure. With better surroundings he declares that he will again be in the .300 batting class. His jump to the Federals was a severe financial blow to the Pirates, as it is reported that McGraw was ready to pay $25,000 to get Konetchy for the Giants.

1915 Schedules Same as in 1913.

The schedules of the American and the National league for 1915 will be the same as for 1913 except in so far as changes in the calendar will affect it. The opening will be on April 14. The fans need only dig up the 1913 schedule to learn how the teams will play in 1915.

NEW JERSEY AT THE EXPOSITION

State Building to Be Dedicated With Appropriate Ceremonies March 13.

OFFICIALS TO ATTEND

Princeton Alumni Assigned Quarters and President Wilson Will Be Greeted by Many of the "Old Boys."

That New Jersey is to be one of the features of the Panama Exposition is evidenced by the preparations that have been made by the Exposition's officials for the dedication of the New Jersey building on March 13. The event will be one of the gala features and in addition to the Exposition officials many others will participate in the ceremonies. Three bands will be furnished by the Exposition and noted orators will tell of the wonders of Jerseyland.

Colonel Mahlin R. Margerum, who is in charge of New Jersey's interests, is one of the most sought after men in California today, and ever since his arrival both he and Mrs. Margerum have been the recipients of many invitations from officials and social leaders. The colonel by his tact and diplomacy has won many friends for his State.

The alumni of Princeton has been given quarters in the New Jersey building and when President Wilson arrives he will be greeted by many of the "boys" who wore the orange and black in the days of yore.

The New Jersey building is situated on the bay and the windows of the presidential suite look out toward the rugged sides of Mt. Tamaplias and to the west the chief executive will have a splendid view of the Golden Gate. In the rear of the building has been placed a mammoth relief map of New Jersey. It is built on an accurate scale of two inches to the mile and every contour is shown, each creek is engraved. All railway and trolley lines with the actual grades are shown. The State's public highway system has been worked out in detail. The model is 29 feet long and 16 feet wide. This model is the most scientific and faithful picture of the earth's surface ever attempted on such an immense scale. New Jersey is the only State in the Union that is completely surveyed. Elsie de Wolfe, famous artist and decorator, of New Jersey and New York, makes the comment that the art of the Exposition will have material effect on the artistic taste of the American people. She says that the beauty of the work will prove an inspiration and act as a stimulus to a higher standard in architecture and color effect in the building of ordinary dwellings.

"HELLO, SAN FRANCISCO!" "HELLO, NEW YORK!"

Talking by Telephone Across the Continent Told In Story and Picture—Father Knickerbocker Salutes Miss California by Word of Mouth Over the Wire.

LESS than forty years ago, Alexander Graham Bell, standing in a little attic at No. 5 Exeter Place, Boston, sent through a crude telephone, his own invention, the first spoken words ever carried over a wire, and the words were heard and understood by his associate, Thomas A. Watson, who was at the receiver in an adjacent room. On that day, March 10th, 1876, the telephone was born, and the first message went over the only telephone line in the world—a line less than a hundred feet long. The world moves a long way ahead in the span of one man's life. On Monday afternoon, January 25th, this same Alexander Graham Bell, sitting in the offices of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, at New York, talked to this same Thomas A. Watson in San Francisco, over a wire stretching 3,400 miles across the continent and part of a system that includes 9,000,000 telephones, connected by 21,000,000 miles of wires.

In that same memorable year of 1876, Dom Pedro de Alcantara, Emperor of Brazil, visiting the first telephone exhibition at our first great national show, the Philadelphia Centennial, picked up the receiver, listened as Professor Bell talked at the other end of the room, and, amazed at the wonder of the thing, cried out: "My God—it speaks." Had Dom Pedro lived to see the Panama-Pacific Exposition he could have heard Professor Bell talking to him, not merely from the other end of a room, but from the other side of a continent.

The Panama-Pacific Exposition itself, planned to celebrate the completion of the Panama Canal and the joining of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, will mark a still closer welding of the East and West. When its gates are thrown open on February 20th, San Francisco will not only be nearer to New York through a shortening of its water ways, but will be in constant and instantaneous touch with it through the medium of speech. It is a curious fact, too, that this second great feat of engineering, this other canal, this even more intimate connection between the two seaboards, has been completed in the same year. Quietly, almost unnoticed, but steadily and bravely, while the gigantic steam shovels were cutting their way through the earth in the South, the engineers of sound and electricity were weaving their magic webs through the air and pushing on toward the Golden Gate. Their work has been less spectacular, it has excited little attention, but these men have met obstacles as hard to overcome as the Culebra slide, and they have conquered them. The long dreamed of Transcontinental Line is no longer a dream. New York can talk to San Francisco.

The Transcontinental Line Open.

Monday, January 25, 1915, has taken its place among the momentous dates in the annals of science and human progress. On that day, in the presence of groups of prominent men on either coast, the Transcontinental telephone wires were given their first public test, and the completion of the line was formally celebrated. Distinguished men in the offices of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company in San Francisco conversed freely with distinguished men on the Atlantic seaboard, and one more great chapter in the history of telephony was finished as Bell, sitting in the offices of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company in New York, talked to Watson across a continent.

There was no hitch in the programme, or any doubt as to the immediate success and practicability of the new line.

Those who talked over the telephone did not raise their voices above the usual conversational pitch, and the replies came back from across the continent, clearly and instantaneously. There was no more effort, delay, or indistinctness than in talking across a table. Professor Bell says that he thought out the telephone in Salem. A fitting place for its conception—there is witchcraft in it, and the most blasé of business men in the offices of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company on Monday felt something akin to uncanniness at the thought that his voice had gone across thirteen states, shot over prairies and through forests, hurtled through cities, climbed the Rockies, skimmed across the desert and reached the Pacific coast, and the answer had come back to him in an eye-wink.

A Dramatic Moment.

There have been few more dramatic moments in the history of science than when the venerable Professor Bell lifted the receiver from its hook and called to Watson, the friend and fellow-workman of his youth, in far away San Francisco. There was a wonderful story in that first "Hello," a marvelous tale of miracle-working, of heroic struggle and sublime achievement. Few men have seen so great a dream come true, probably no two men before, in all the history of the world's discoveries and inventions, ever lived to see such magnificent results from work in which they had been the pioneers. Hardened telephone users as all of those present were, and accustomed to big events as most of them were, a hush that was tinged with awe, an almost solemn silence, fell on the assemblage as the great inventor talked to his associate. Every one felt that he was taking part in an epoch-making event, that, in the future, school children would be made to learn January twenty-fifth as one of the big dates in the world's scientific, commercial, and political history, one that ranked with that other day when "What wonders hath God wrought" was flashed over Morse's wire.

In the Space of a Lifetime.

Most wonderful of all, perhaps, in the minds of those present at the opening of the new line was the fact that this achievement, the crowning glory of so vast and complex a system, had taken place within the space of a man's lifetime. On March 10th, 1876, Professor Bell, working away at the simple telephone he had invented, called to his comrade, "Mr. Watson, come here, I want you," and Watson heard that first of all telephone message over the wire. In New York on January 25th, 1915, the same voice was talking and, in San Francisco, the same ear was listening, as on that spring day thirty-eight years ago, but under what different conditions! Then the struggling young inventor and his associate had just succeeded in producing the only telephone in the world and in talking over a few feet of wire. Ahead of them were years of ridicule for their invention, indifference to their plans, and opposition to their efforts. On this other great day they saw their simple contrivance as part of a vast system joining together the country's greatest and most distant cities and serving the uses of 100,000,000 people. Not many men have seen so great a fulfilment of their early ambitions, no other invention has ever taken so great a stride in so brief a time.

It has been a tremendous stride, for when Bell invented that first feeble receiver, it was the beginning of telephones. There had been nothing like it or anywhere near like it in all the ages. It was a creation—as far as scientific apparatus was concerned, it was made out of nothing. More than that, this crude instrument—just capable of transmitting speech the length of a room—was all Bell gave to the art of telephony, but it was enough. The American Telephone & Telegraph Company and its associated companies have done the rest.

The Real Problem.

Just what this "rest" means can be fully appreciated by those only who know the difficulties to be overcome by the telephonic engineer and the subtlety and delicacy of the forces with which he has to deal. The very minuteness of things makes his task herculean. Instead of having to figure on immense weights and masses, he is baffled by infinitesimally small fractions. His energies are devoted to conservation, and conservation of the most intense kind.

It was, perhaps, little more difficult to string wires from Denver to San Francisco than from New York to Denver, but the actual construction of the line was the least of the engineer's troubles. His real problem was to make the line "talk," to send something 3,000 miles with a breath as the motive power. In effect, the voyage of the voice across the continent is instantaneous; if its speed could be accurately measured, a fifteenth of a second would probably be nearly exact. In other words, a message flying across the continent on the new Transcontinental Line, travels, not at the rate of 1,100 feet per second, which is the old stage-coach speed of sound, but at 56,000 miles per second. If it were possible for sound to carry that far, a "Hello" uttered in New York and traveling through the air without the aid of wires and electricity, would not reach San Francisco until four hours later.

But, while the telephone is breaking speed records, it must also guarantee safe delivery to these millions of little passengers it carries every few minutes in the way of sound waves created at the rate of 2,100 a second. There must be no jostling or crowding. These tiny waves, thousands and thousands of varying shapes, which are made by the human voice, and each as irregular and as different from the other as the waves of the sea, must not tumble over each other or get into each other's way, but must break upon the Pacific coast just as they started at the Atlantic, or all the line fails and the millions of dollars spent upon it have been thrown away. And in all this line, if just one pin-point of construction is not as it should be, if there is one iota of imperfection, the miles of line are useless, and the currents and waves and sounds and words do not reach the end as they should. It is such tremendous trifles, not the climbing of mountains and the bridging of chasms, that make the Transcontinental Line one of the wonders of the ages.

The engineer in telephony cannot increase his motive power. A breath against a metal disk changes air waves into electrical currents and these electrical currents, millions of which are required for a single conversation, must be carried across the continent and produce the same sound waves in San Francisco as were made in New York. Here is a task so fine as to be gigantic. In his "History of the Telephone," Herbert N. Casson says that the energy set free by cooling one spoonful of water one degree, would operate a telephone for ten thousand years. It was to nurse and coax this baby current of electricity three thousand miles across the continent, under rivers and over mountains, through the blistering heat of the alkali plains and the cold of snow-capped peaks, that has taken the time and thought and labor of the brightest minds of the scientific world.

Solving the Problem.

Never has been such a skillful and patient lot of trained nurses, though, as this invalid of a current has had. Beginning with that first timid step in Boston, thirty-eight years ago, they have led the weakling on, mile after mile, to city after city, till it has reached the other coast.

Who did it? Who made this wonderful achievement possible? Ten thousand men, beginning with Bell and Watson tinkering away at that first crude telephone in an attic, forty years ago. It has taken an army of thoughtful, conscientious, patient men, keen of brain and skilled of hand, striving day and night for the one great end—the perfection of a system and the conquering of time and space.

In office, laboratory and shop, under the earth, high up in the air, they have thought and experimented and toiled, always aiming toward this idea of universal service.

There has been no isolated problem, literally as well as figuratively the development and perfection of the system has been "all along the line." The fight, this new "Winning of the West," has not been a duel, to be won by a single inventor struggling for the solution of some one big problem, but a battle, a campaign, in which thousands have helped to overcome a thousand hindrances and imperfections and difficulties.

When the telephone left the hands of Bell and Watson, it was "an essentially perfected instrument" in the eyes of the law, that is, it did what was claimed for it—it talked—but that was all. The diaphragm was simply an animal membrane tied around a piece of wood and in touch with a magnet. From this acorn the oak of the Bell System, nation wide, has grown. From this small beginning the Transcontinental Line has been evolved, and it has been an evolution. In the words of President Theodore N. Vail, it is "the cumulative effect of improvements, great and small, in telephone, transmitter, line, cable, switchboard, and every other piece of apparatus or plant required in the transmission of speech." In all the 3,400 miles of the line there is no one spot where a man may point his finger and say, "Here is the secret of the Transcontinental Line; here is what makes it possible to telephone from New York to San Francisco." Rather, it is the perfection at every point that has brought this about. It is the development of the transmitter at New York that makes the receiver at San Francisco do its work so well; it is the improvements in the receiver at San Francisco that cause the transmitter at New York to perform its functions so admirably; it is the perfecting of every inch of line and every bit of mechanism between them that enables the instrument at New York to talk and that at San Francisco to hear.

The Magnitude of the Task.

In spite, however, of the fact that, compared with the electrical problem, the mere engineering task of constructing the line may appear simple to the scientist, no one can run his finger over the route of the new line on the map without being impressed with the magnitude of the undertaking. The data and figures are tremendous.

ACROSS LAKES AND ALKALI SINKS ANOTHER PROBLEM WAS ENCOUNTERED IN HAULING POLES.

The line crosses thirteen states, it is carried on 130,000 poles. Four hard-drawn copper wires, .165 inch in diameter, run side by side over the entire distance, establishing two physical circuits and one phantom circuit. One mile of a single wire weighs 435 pounds, the weight of the wires in the entire line being 5,920,000 pounds or 2,960 tons. This, of course, is the transmission wires alone. In addition to these, each physical circuit uses some 13,600 miles of fine hair-like insulated wire, 4-1,000 of an inch in diameter, for its loading coils.

Simply to string this immense amount of wire across the continent, to set the poles and insure insulation, to conquer the innumerable difficulties offered by land and water, forests, mountains, deserts, rivers and lakes, was in itself a task of no mean magnitude. The Panama Canal is hailed as one of the greatest achievements of the world's workers, as it is, but the almost invisible lines of the Bell System, considered simply as to labor and cost, constitute a monumental achievement.

The Canal was begun nine years ago and has cost $310,000,000; within the same space of time the Bell Company has spent twice that amount in its engineering construction work alone.

Two Leaders in the Work.

The building of the Transcontinental Line depended on the solution of no one isolated problem, nor will the glory of it be given to any one isolated individual, but there are a few names that will always stand out above the rest in connection with it.

OVER MOUNTAINOUS COUNTRIES PATHS HAD TO BE MADE BY TEAMS DISTRIBUTING POLES.

There must be great generals for armies that win such victories. For many years this line from ocean to ocean has been the dream of Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the goal toward which he has pushed and toward which he has steadily led his associates and the army of his employees. Not the dream of a dreamer, but the prophetic vision of a practical, forceful, capable man, a man of unlimited business energy and knowledge, who could see anything in telephony except impossibilities. He not only cannot see them, but will not admit that they exist; he does not find the word "impossible" in his dictionary of engineering terms.

Almost from the beginning of the telephone, his energy and enthusiasm, his dauntless optimism and ambition in everything relating to its perfection and promotion, and his idea of "universal service," have dominated the company and made enthusiasts of every one connected with it in great things or in little.

At his side through most of these years has been a slightly built, lithe, keen-eyed man, who never has to be told but once when a great thing is to be done. A nod, and a line goes to Denver; a word, and it stretches to the Pacific coast. That is John J. Carty, Chief Engineer of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. A leader among the scientific men of all nations and honored by their rulers for his distinguished services in engineering accomplishment, his wide knowledge, his keen judgment, and his indomitable energy have combined to make him one of the great factors in telephone achievement and advancement. He is the wizard of the wires. Long ago he said this great thing could and should be done, and through the great banks of silence that separated the East from the West, this Goethals of electricity has been cutting his way, year by year, until the great canal of human speech is done.

Others have played big parts in this drama of human endeavor and achievement, and thousands have given their share of thought and labor, but, whoever is forgotten or remembered, the names of Vail and Carty will be linked with this new triumph of science as long as man talks to man.

There has been no greater achievement in the history of the Bell Company, none in the history of telephony, few in the history of the world. The gain to science is great. Immeasurably more precious, however, is that to the nation, and incalculably greater are the benefits to commerce and society.

What the Transcontinental Line means to the future of the country, what it will bring about by drawing the East and West closer together, how much of increased prosperity and happiness these thousands of miles of wire will insure, no man can gauge.

What It Means to the Country.

One of the most prominent of the guests who talked over the longest of long-distance telephones at the celebration, said:

I thought I had gotten over wondering at the miracle of the telephone, but what I have just done amazes me as much as the first words I heard over the wires many years ago. Even now I can hardly conceive that it is possible. I have talked over long distances many a time before, but this is far beyond the limit. Chicago I am used to, even Denver; but this talking from the Atlantic to the Pacific gives one a thrill. It appeals to the imagination—it is a theme for poets.

What it means to the country, it is impossible to estimate. For one thing, it is a final blow to sectionalism—it has put a seal on the fact that there is no longer East and West, North and South. Not even the railroads or the new canal have done or can do so much toward bringing the States closer together and uniting them more firmly, not only in commerce, but in thought and language. Provincialism will become rarer and rarer, localisms, dialects—all such things that depend on isolation—are getting to be an impossibility in the United States, and the telephone has been the greatest agent in bringing about this desirable condition. It is hard for people to get very far apart when they are in such constant touch with one another, and I know of nothing which is doing more to strengthen the bonds between individuals and communities than the network of wires the American Telephone & Telegraph Company is spreading over the country. So much importance do I attach to this idea, that, extreme as the statement may seem, I believe quite firmly that, had the telephone system reached its present perfection previous to 1861, the Civil War would not have occurred. The wires would not have let the North and South drift so far apart.

Universal Service.

The new Transcontinental Line is a concrete exemplification of the possibilities of universal service and a justification of the arguments for a single system. Under no other plan would such a line be possible. This line, 3,400 miles long, and joining the Atlantic and Pacific, is part of the great Bell System of 21,000,000 miles of wire, connecting 9,000,000 telephone stations located everywhere throughout the United States. Comprising this system are the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and its associated and connecting companies, thousands of them, giving instant and perfect communication among 100,000,000 people.

The opening of this line is the culmination of the Bell idea of universal service—in presenting it for the use and convenience of the public, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company renders an account of its stewardship. It has fulfilled its promise and, not only in itself, but as an earnest of what is to follow in future development, this nation-wide line proves that it is the intention of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company to make it possible for every man who can talk, to talk over the telephone to every man who can hear.

The Transcontinental Line is a culmination of an art that was born in the United States, the high-water mark of a science that was created and has been developed entirely by American genius and enterprise. It is the highest achievement of practical science up to to-day—no other nation has produced anything like it, nor could any other nation. It is sui generis, it is gigantic—and it is entirely American.

Critical Moments In Nature.

Destiny often is determined in a flash. What Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis calls "critical moments in nature" occur constantly, but since time began these moments have passed unnoticed save by those able to see and seize the opportunities presented and so shed new light upon the world of the unknown.

Galileo found a lens in the eye of an ox and gave the world the telescope. Watts saw steam lift an iron lid and the theory of steam power was born. Columbus, sailing in search of a new passage to the Far East, noticed an unknown wood drifting near his vessel and discovered a new world. Alexander Graham Bell, leaning over a crude machine connected by wire with a similar instrument in another room heard the sound of a twanging reed come over the wire and gave the world its greatest known means of intercommunication. Each man recognized a "critical moment in nature" and so made destiny.

The completion of the Transcontinental Telephone Line, however, is the result of the seizure of hundreds of "critical moments in nature." One after another these moments came to the men who have been struggling to solve the mysteries of an art that was unknown thirty-eight years ago. And because they were able to see the significance of the moments that arose, they have now succeeded in bridging the continent with a talk highway that puts east and west within speaking distance and eliminates the barriers of distance in the United States.

FORESTRY IN WARTIMES.

German Cavalrymen Not Allowed to Tie Horses to Trees.

Under the title "Forest Notes" the department of agriculture includes two paragraphs with a bearing on the European conflict, in a statement issued recently. They are as follows:

"The propellers of aeroplanes such as are used in the present European war may be made of selected ash, which is both strong and light, and will not split under vibration or shock, or of built up layers of spruce with mahogany centers. The framework of the machines, too, is made generally of wood, spruce being much used on account of its straight grain and freedom from hidden defects.

"It is said the German invaders of Belgium, whatever else they may have destroyed, have been careful not to injure park trees. The cavalrymen, so report goes, are forbidden to tie their horses to trees for fear that the animals will gnaw the bark. Germany was the first nation to apply forestry on a large scale, some of the crown forests having been under scientific management for over 100 years."

SKIN OF THE FRUIT.

It Is Wise Not to Eat Apples or Pears Without Peeling Them.

Some people say that an apple does not taste right when the skin is removed. Some even go so far as to say there is danger in eating fruit that has come in contact with the steel of the paring knife, as the acid in the fruit is apt to produce some poison when it comes in contact with the metal. But whether these things are true or not, there is still greater danger in eating apples without peeling them.

The skin of the apple has always been more or less infested with germs of different types, and now our modern methods of fighting insects by spraying the trees are liable to leave poisonous deposits on it which will do our stomachs serious harm.

Arsenate of lead, lime and sulphur wash and a number of other spraying compounds used by fruit growers have been found to remain in considerable quantities on the skin of apples and pears until ripe and placed on the market. The action of such chemicals upon the tissues of the human body is very injurious.

Spraying the trees is giving us more perfect fruit and getting the grower better prices, but if you value your health you should never eat apples or pears without first removing the peels. —New York American.

NAPOLEON VALUED TIME.

He Might Have to Lose Battles, but He Would Not Lose Minutes.

After forcing the army of Sardinia back toward Turin, Napoleon had scarcely taken possession of the beautiful Palace Salmatori, at Cherasco, thirty-five miles from the Piedmontese capital, when an aged marshal from the Sardinian side came and informed the little general of the French that the king was about to propose terms of peace.

"Terms!" shouted the young commander in chief in startling tones, as he pounded the desk, "it is I who name terms. If you don't accept them at once Turin is mine tomorrow!"

Although the directory, sitting in far away Paris, had reserved the right for themselves and their trained diplomats to accept or reject terms, the young general could not delay operations for weeks while messengers were sent back and forth between the camp and the capital, so Bonaparte took it upon himself to arrange an armistice. He called a halt to all sparring for time by drawing out his watch and, tapping the dial with his forefinger, ordered them to sign immediately, remarking:

"I may lose battles, but I will not lose minutes."—Condensed From "In the Path of Napoleon," by James Mangan.

His Indorsement.

The late Lord Roberts once sent his orderly to the bank to cash a check, says Pearson's Weekly, and the clerk wanted it indorsed.

"What for?" demanded the soldier.

"Well, it's the rule, and I can't pay you the money until you do indorse it," he was told.

"Oh, all right," grumbled the messenger. So he took back the check and bit the end of a pen in deep meditation for a minute or two. Then he wrote this:

"I beg to say that I have known Lord Roberts for several years, and he has proved himself times without number to be as brave as a lion, but always kindly considerate to those who serve under him. And I have, therefore, great pleasure in respectfully indorsing his check."

Difficulties of Pronunciation.

What is the most difficult English place name for a foreigner to pronounce? That is a question suggested by a writer in the London Observer. He plumps for Southampton as the most difficult "port of call" for the Frenchman bound for England. Obviously it cannot be spelled phonetically, as there is no "th" in French. We all have these little international difficulties. But the Frenchman gets over the sea to Southampton by calling it "Sudonton."

"The Pear Is Not Ripe."

Bourrienne asked Napoleon before the expedition started if he had really determined to risk his fate in Egypt. "Yes," was the reply. I must first dazzle these gentlemen by my exploits."—Table Talk and Opinions of Napoleon Buonaparte.

A CHARMING VELVET GOWN.

A great many beautiful costumes of velvet have been worn in this year's theatrical productions, but no more charming velvet gown has there been than this graceful creation designed for a young actress this season. The material is soft, clinging chiffon velvet and the lines, exquisitely graceful, have that quality of distinction and refinement that appeals to the woman of conservative taste. The gathered tunic is draped at the front and the surplice bodice is carried around to the back of the waistline. The long sleeves and the bit of dark fur at the collar give the gown much dignity, and the picture hat of dead black brings out the delicate color of the velvet.

BISHOP MATTHEWS ATTENDS WOMAN'S AUXILIARY MEETING

The Right. Rev. Paul Matthews, the new bishop of the diocese, paid his first visit to St. Paul's Episcopal church, Westfield, yesterday, when the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions of the Protestant Episcopal church, in the Diocese of New Jersey, held its midwinter meeting in St. Paul's church. The opening session began with a short address at 10 o'clock, which was conducted by Bishop Matthews, assisted by Archdeacon Shepard and Rev. J. A. Smith, rector of St. Paul's.

Following the devotional service a short business meeting was held, after which luncheon was served by the Woman's Guild in the parish house. The afternoon session began at 2 o'clock. One hundred and twenty-five delegates from the upper division of the diocese attended the meetings. The secretary of each society read a report of the past year's work and told of the amount of money raised by her society and of articles contributed to mission work. Mrs. Hunter, of Raleigh, N. C., and Deaconess Sabine, of Alaska, delivered addresses at the meeting in the afternoon.

NORICDA'S LONESOME END.

New York, Feb. 4—One of the most complicated will cases in the history of the New Jersey courts is that of Lillian Nordica, who died on Thursday Island, while on a tour of the world, leaving two wills. In the second will made just before her death, she cut off her husband, who is seeking to have the first will recognized. Complication arises as to whether she lived legally in New York or New Jersey. And, further it may yet be necessary to investigate the circumstances of the will which she made on Thursday Island just before her death. The most pathetic letters that a great star has ever written are those of Nordica to her husband. The woman who for so many years had been idolized in America and Europe, passed much of her time in utter loneliness, facing the prospect of failure on her world tour. "They say hope springs eternal," she wrote, "but in my case I find I have lost heart and faith, and only can plod along day after day, only too happy when night comes, and I count one day less to live on this earth."

CANADIAN PARLIAMENT MEETS.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 4.—When the Canadian Parliament today, opened its session, the principal business on the minds of each of the members was the appropriation of additional war funds. Fifty millions have already been voted, and it is expected that $100,000,000 more will be appropriated immediately. The session will be confined exclusively to legislation connected with the war, such as tariff changes to raise additional revenue, and appropriations for the expeditionary forces. It is believed that a stamp tax will be formulated and adopted to raise additional war revenue, patterned after the new tax now in force in the United States.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

BY ALICE CREW GALL

Orlando Ostrich

Orlando Ostrich lived upon an Ostrich farm, and he Was miserable, for he was as envious as could be.

He used to say: "I wish I had a voice like Julia Jay,
Or nice short legs like Dora Duck; I hate to look this way."

And though he was well-fed and clothed, no matter where he went,
He always envied someone and increased his discontent.

One day as he was sulking 'round, complaining of his fate,
A lot of men came walking through that Ostrich farm-yard gate.

Orlando heard them say: "Let's catch Orlando Ostrich, then We'll take him far away from here and put him in a pen."

Orlando did not wait to hear another word; he just
Began to run so fast that he looked like a streak of dust.

And as he ran he thought, "I'm glad my legs are long; if I Outrun these men I'll never more be envious till I die."

He headed for a deep, dark wood; his speed he did not check;
And just because he was so long he beat them by a neck.

Now don't you children really think that Envy is a Sin?
Let's be content with what we have and run the race and win.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Olive Sigler had always been in school, either as pupil or teacher, up to a month before her marriage, so she knew very little about housework. Allen Sigler's mother had pointed out this defect in her education with great fervor and advised him to look further.

"Mother, girls aren't workers nowadays as they were when you were young."

"More's the pity!" ejaculated the mother.

"But she can cook pretty well, and that's the main thing. She's quick and she'll learn," continued the son, ignoring her interruption.

Madam Sigler had viewed the furnishing of the pretty cottage in a neighboring town with scant approval. So much waste of time and money on "folderol" boded no good for their future, she insisted and shook her head in gloomy silence, when Allen showed her the completed home before the wedding.

Olive was determined to please her mother-in-law, and mollified her considerably by asking how to "do up" shirts. Allen had never worn a shirt done at the laundry, was her frequent boast.

So the little wife toiled over the shirts in the blistering heat of summer, and nearly cooked her tender hands. Four of them carefully folded were laid out in state on the couch in the sitting room to show to Allen when he came home to dinner.

"If I can do shirts, I can certainly succeed at everything else," she thought, swelling with pride. "That's something mother never did."

When Allen came she led him to view the fruits of her toil, saying, "Is this not great Babylon which I have built with the might of my hand?"

His tongue was full of praise for her achievement and there was a great deal of admiration in his expression, but he really seemed to be looking at her and not at the shirts.

She sang as she did up the dinner dishes. The hot dishwater took the sting out of the dry little palms. She was changing her dress when she saw the lumbering old farm carriage roll up to the horse block and the cumbrous figure of Madam Sigler climb out and stalk up to the door.

Hurrying down to meet her, she cast hasty glances around to see if there was anything to offend the eye of the great housekeeper. As she escorted her into the bedroom to lay off her things they passed the couch, still rejoicing in its display of freshly ironed shirts.

"What's that?" demanded madam, halting the procession.

"That's my first attempt at shirt ironing," said the bride, beaming with conscious pride.

"Huh!" sniffed the older woman. "If you can't do any better than that, you'd better give up."

"Why, Allen said they were fine," came in pained surprise from the little laundress.

"Well, if he can wear 'em, it's more'n I should think he could," said the matron with a despairing gesture.

Olive never forgot that call. She was too proud to let her mother-in-law see her cry, but when the old carriage rolled away with her guest safely tucked inside, the strained nerves could stand it no longer, and when Allen returned he found her dissolved in tears.

He was highly indignant when he learned the cause. "I'll tell her what I think of it, too," he added belligerently.

"No, Allen, I never want you to have any words with your mother over me," said Olive, wiping her eyes.

"Well, then, there's just one thing to do: You must live your life as if she was in another state; must make up your mind not to care about her remarks; that's what all the rest of us have had to learn. As for the shirts, we'll send them to the laundry after this."

"Are they so bad?" she asked apprehensively.

"I told you what I thought of them this noon," he said. "It's only that such work is too hard for you, this hot weather."

When his mother remarked about Allen's wearing shirts done up at the laundry, Olive said, "Yes, you advised me to give it up, and I realized that you were right about it." And for once Madam Sigler had nothing to say.

Household Hints

INEXPENSIVE MEAT DISHES

Delicious Breaded Pigs' Feet—Twelve halved pickled pigs' feet will serve six people. Beat up one egg to which has been added salt, pepper and a little water. Melt two heaping tablespoons butter, pour into cracker crumbs made of two 5-cent boxes of soda crackers. Place in double roaster, flat side up, with small piece of butter on each half; roast two hours. Mashed, French fried or escaloped potatoes are very nice served with them.

Veal Tongues in Tomato Jelly—Boil fresh tongue in salted water until very tender; skin and form in ring, holding in place with fine skewer. Take quart can of tomatoes, place over fire in granite dish with stalk of celery, salt and white pepper to taste; let boil. Strain and mix with package of gelatine previously dissolved. Place tongue in round mold. When jelly is partly cool (before it begins to set) add one tablespoon chopped parsley, pour over tongue, set away in cold place to harden. To serve, turn out on platter, garnish with parsley. Cut in slices with very sharp knife.

Baked Liver en Casserole—One whole calf's liver; scald and remove skin; put thin strips of bacon all through liver, also some slices on top; season to taste, add some butter, water and one onion if desired. Bake in medium oven in covered casserole, basting frequently. This is delicious and took first prize in a cooking contest.

Bacon, Eggs and Onions—Beat up as many eggs as you would use for scrambling. Add a few green onions cut up fine, a little salt and red pepper. Now cut sliced bacon in little pieces about one-fourth of an inch wide and fry till brown, add above mixture, stirring until eggs are cooked. Serve while hot.

Meat and Tomato Pie—Two cups ground cold meat put in baking dish, one cup dry bread crumbs on top, one pint tomatoe sauce on top of all. Season with salt and pepper to suit taste. Add a little hot water, then bake about one-half hour (not too hot oven, as meat has been cooked).

Flank Steak Roast—Ask butcher for a flank steak and have him cut pockets in it. Fill pockets with following dressing: One loaf bread (8-cent size), dip in water and press dry. Add one-half cup chopped onion, one-fourth cup melted butter, one large tablespoon salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, one egg, one-half cup parsley cut fine, one cup celery tops cut fine. After filling pockets of flank, roll tight in a long roll and wrap round and round with cord. Place in roaster, roast in hot oven from two to 2½ hours. Sprinkle with pepper, salt and flour, and baste often. Thicken gravy with flour.

WASHING CURTAINS

Never give them hard rubbing.

Always soak and sop out as much of the dirt as possible.

Never starch fine lace curtains very stiff. The coarser the curtains the more starch they will require.

Add borax to the starch to help hold the stiffening. Coffee, tea or saffron may be added to the starch for ecru curtains, if their dark color is desirable.

Always shake the dust from curtains before washing.

Always squeeze the water from curtains when changing them from one water to another.

Wash very old or fine curtains in a pillow case or other muslin bag.

Measure the curtains before washing.

WORTH KNOWING

An old mop handle varnished up makes a good curtain pole.

Lift poached eggs with an old-fashioned skimmer, the eggs will always be served unbroken and good to look at.

For Cleaning Bathtub and Bowl—Use a piece of wool flannel, such as is used for baby's skirts. Does away with scouring powders, which are injurious to enamel; also the disagreeable odor of gasoline and kerosene, which are very often used.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Paris, Feb. 4—"Robes for Women" will still be the slogan for the coming spring, in spite of the war. Worth, Paquin, Poiret, Drecoll and the other great gown and hat makers of the Rue de la Paix will open their fashion shows tomorrow as usual on the appointed date, which is the first Friday in February. This news is of especial interest to the American public because of the great activity displayed in New York and other centers since the beginning of the war toward the launching of exclusively American styles for American women by American designers. The American style crusade was brilliantly launched with the fashion show in New York in December, and will be further boosted by the Chicago fashion show next week, the "Made in St. Louis" show in March and other shows now being planned by American makers. It cannot be denied that the earnestness of this American fashion movement has alarmed Paris especially as similar movements are also under way in Berlin and Vienna. Efforts have been made to keep the big houses open at any cost, so that the city's precious sceptre as queen of fashion might not pass from her. In many cases the proprietors as well as the cleverest male designers are at the front. Women are doing the whole work, and it will be an odd thing for Paris tomorrow to see women's particular realm presided over only by herself and not by the usual bland smile of the "grand couturier."

Great interest is shown here in the foundation in New York of a great library of styles and central fashion bureau, as an aid to ambitious American designers, planned by leading manufacturers of feminine attire, who intend to launch the enterprise no later than the spring.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The disrupted conditions in Mexico have brought two interesting refugees to Los Angeles. Those are Senora E. G. de Riveros, the beautiful wife of the former Governor of the Mexican state of Sinalo, and her sister, Senorita Fanny Gaxiola, both fugitives from the wrath of the Carranzistas, who turned their political guns against Governor de Riveros and made him a prisoner. Their escape from Mexico was fraught with a series of thrilling experiences.

Philadelphia—Mrs. Anna M. Penfield, wife of F. C. Penfield, ambassador to Austria, is Philadelphia's largest personal tax payer. She will pay personal tax on an estimate of $3,500,000.

Evansville, Ind.—What probably will be the first eugenic wedding in Evansville after the passing of the new eugenics bill is scheduled to take place the first week in March before the Tri-State Farmers' Institute, which will then be held. The couple agreeing to marry in public will be given $1,000 in money, and already applications are pouring in on the committee from aspiring couples.

St. Louis, Mo.—Mrs Annie M. L. Stephenson, who is seeking a divorce from John W. Stephenson, is the mother of 11 children, nine of whom are living. The couple are living apart in a home which they own jointly, and from which neither cares to move on account of ownership.

Passaic, N. J.—Mrs. Lillian O'Shea, 20 years old, donned trousers and climbed a telegraph pole to spy upon her husband through a second story window, and thus obtained her own evidence against her husband in a divorce action. She produced witnesses to her feat, who corroborated her statements.

New York—Mrs. John King Van Renssalaer, one of the city's most famous hostesses, divides society into three well-defined clans and entertains accordingly, to meet the tastes of all. "Society", she says, "is today divided into three parts—brains, stomach and feet". Accordingly, she entertains the "intellectuals" by mind-thrillers such as Oriental divining seers or the very latest cry in philosophy. The "stomach" and "feet" brigades are easier to handle, for good champagne and Vernon Castle stunts are sure to make them happy.

Harrisburg, Pa.—There will be no resident mistress of Pennsylvania's $100,000 executive mansion this winter. Miss Mabel Brumbaugh, the Governor's daughter, will not give up her duties in the Friends' Select School of Philadelphia, where she is a teacher, and will therefore be a visitor at the Mansion only on week-ends. This decision of Miss Brumbaugh's is held by her friends to be characteristic of the Brumbaugh conception of duty.

ADJUTANT HOPKINS TO SPEAK.

Adjutant and Mrs. Hopkins, who were in charge of the Salvation Army work here a few years ago, are paying a visit to Plainfield and will have charge of the service in the hall, 157 East Second street, on Sunday, February 7, at 8 p. m. The adjutant and his wife are now on the training college staff of New York city. Many old friends will, no doubt, be pleased at this opportunity of meeting Adjutant and Mrs. Hopkins again. All are cordially invited to attend the service.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.—Adv.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure, and Eat Less Meat.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water, and also all take a spoonful of salts to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousand of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

3COOP, THE CUB REPORTER — AN IMPASSIONED AND LOGICAL APPEAL FOR LIBERTY — BY "HOP"

NO NEW ACTION ON THE PHILIPPINES

Washington, Feb. 4—It is not expected that the Philippine bill pending in the United States Senate will be reached at this session. Nevertheless it has many ardent backers, and a new preamble has been written into it, defining one of the most important points, that the United States will be the judge of the ability of the Philippine people to govern themselves. Complete independence is promised in the revised preamble, the text of which follows:

"Whereas, It is desirable to place in the hands of the people of the Philippines such an increasing control of their domestic affairs as can be given them without, in the meantime, impairing the sovereignty of the United States, in order that, by the use and exercise of popular franchise and governmental powers, they may be the better prepared to fully assume the responsibilities and enjoy all the privileges of complete independence, which it is the purpose of the United States to grant, when, in the judgment of the United States, the people of the Philippine Islands will be fitted therefor."

Some truly amazing facts have been given by General Frank McIntyre, chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, concerning the development which the Filipinos have already made. In the short time that American influence has been at work there, the Filipino has gained complete control of his municipal government. He elects all of the officers and almost invariably the officers are natives. The municipal judge in every town is a native. The judiciary, the constabulary, the bureaus of education, prisons, science, public works and agriculture, the lighthouse service and the coast survey are all established on modern lines and are conducted economically and efficiently.

The 60,000,000 acres of public domain, half forest and half agricultural land, are being kept for the natives and are not being exploited by capitalists and settlers from the outside.

According to General McIntyre the islands are self-supporting. The natives are paying their bills, are putting funds aside each year to meet their small bonded debt, and have comfortable bank balances in many American banks. That the Filipinos are making headway toward the day when they will be competent to govern themselves, is the confident assertion of Gen. McIntyre. He says that the Moros, the hardest to handle of the entire native races, are now governed by a civilian. The Moros, former robbers and heathen warriors, are becoming good citizens and are sending their children to schools. They have their own constabulary and Uncle Sam's soldiers have been withdrawn. Professional brigands have been driven out of business. Boys and girls to the number of 525,000 are attending the public schools. There are 4,304 schools in the Philippines now, a gain of 400 in one year.

"Let me repeat," says Gen. McIntyre, "that the government of the Filipino people is self-sustaining. The taxes collected are paying for all the functions and activities of the government, for the courts, the postal service, the preservation of the forests, the survey of the islands, the public schools and the improvement of rivers and harbors. There is peace everywhere and the people are happier and more prosperous than ever before."

TOUCHING TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED ELK

Assemblyman Runyon Delivers Impressive Euology at C. E. Teel's Funeral.

IS LARGELY ATTENDED

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring in Charge of Services—Delegation of 150 B. P. O. E. Members Present—Burial in Easton, Pa., Today.

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends the funeral of Clarence E. Teel, whose death occurred suddenly Tuesday afternoon, following an attack of heart failure, was held at his late home on Craig place, last night. The service was in charge of Plainfield Lodge of Elks, of which he was an enthusiastic member, and the attendants included a delegation of 150 from the organization. There were also many Elks present from Elizabeth, Newark and other places.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, was the officiating clergyman and spoke briefly after which Exalted Ruler Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield Lodge, assumed charge. One of the most impressive eulogies that has ever been given at an Elks' funeral was delivered by Assemblyman William N. Runyon, who for many years had been a close friend and an associate of the deceased. At the beginning of his remarks, Mr. Runyon referred to the thought of the New England poet, who wrote that he did not remember the name of his friend who had been called away and for that matter it did not make any great difference, but he did recall vividly the beautiful memory of the man that had been taken and that as long as he was permitted to remain on earth he would think of his friend for the beautiful life he had lead.

As long as he had known him, Mr. Runyon said, Clarence Teel had always been thoughtful of others, his altruism was always in evidence and especially when the Christmas spirit was everywhere, he was one of the first of the great order of Elks to seek out those who needed a little of the cheer that was so plentiful but yet so scarce. For many years, Mr. Teel had been in charge of the Christmas charities of Plainfield Lodge and the successful way in which the holiday giving was accomplished, was due mainly to his efforts. In his home life, in his business life, and in his social life he was always the same, quite, unassuming and loyal.

In conclusion, the speaker addressed comforting words to those who had been nearest to him, particularly to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Haynes, with whom he had lived for thirty-three years, and to J. Fred MacDonald, his colleague and confident in Elk activ-

SUFFRAGE PARTY A GREAT SUCCESS

More Than 150 Women Play Bridge at Columbus Auditorium.

Columbus Auditorium has rarely been the scene of a more successful entertainment than the bridge party given yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield. The responses to invitations were prompt, and as the result the large hall was filled with a company of enthusiastic women. The committee, in charge of which Mrs. Henry C. White was chairman, had arranged forty-one tables, and everyone was taken.

A committee, comprising Mrs. A. B. Jones, Mrs. C. L. Riley, Mrs. H. C. White, Mrs. C. E. Lipscomb and Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite, acted as a receiving party and generally assisted in making the affair the great success that it was. Twenty prizes were awarded to those holding the highest scores. The prizes were displayed on a long table in front of the stage and were much admired. They included several charming articles in Sheffield plate, pieces of tapestry and embroidery, baskets, bags, and, for those of a practical turn of mind, compact little lamps that burn solidified alcohol.

Although "on pleasure bent," the guests were not allowed to forget the message of "Votes for Women." Banners bearing that inscription surrounded the hall and added greatly in the decoration effect. Draped from the stage, a large yellow banner announced the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield. Throughout the afternoon refreshments were served under the direction of the committee in charge.

LEON RICE RENDERED EXCELLENT PROGRAM

Record Sized Audience Taxed Y. M. C. A. Hall to Hear Tenor.

A large and appreciative audience of music lovers attended the recital at the Y. M. C. A., last night, given by Leon Rice, the noted dramatic tenor, of New York city. Mr. Rice rendered a very pleasing program and was assisted by Jenie Caeser Rice at the piano. The singer's voice is one of remarkable clearness and strength and he was able to hold the attention of his listeners throughout the long list of numbers.

The first number was "Dedication," by Robert Franz. One of the feature numbers of the program was "A Jewel Cycle," by A. Von Ahn Carse, which consisted of "The Sapphire," "The Opal" and "Amber and Amethyst." The last number on the program consisted of four parts, three of which were written especially for and dedicated to Mr. Rice. At the close of the entertainment Mr. Rice announced that he would sing any number requested tonight and two were named, "I Hear You Calling Me" and "The Ninety and Nine."

MRS. JANE M. BIRRELL DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Jane M. Birrell, widow of William Birrell, died at 6 o'clock last night, at the home of her son, William Birrell, at 24 Park place, the borough. She had been in failing health for the past six years and her death was not unexpected.

Mrs. Birrell was a native of Scotland, but came to this country when a young woman. She resided in New York for many years and came to Plainfield in 1903. Beside her son, she is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Andrew Canning and Mrs. Charles Cretty, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights; also fifteen grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. Mrs. Birrell was a member of Warren chapel and was a faithful attendant until her health prohibited.

A short service will be held at the home of her son at 7:45 tonight, with Rev. J. O. McKelvey officiating. The body will be taken to Brooklyn tomorrow and a final funeral service will be held at the home of Mrs. Cretty, at 14 Clifton place, Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Likewise, Miss Verona Halbing, Miss Agnes Leseman, Miss Marjorie Monteith, Miss Dora Skolink, Miss Jeanett Nicholsberg, Miss Regina M. Tracey, Al Beker, Lee Kapp, Edward Hoencke, Philip Collami, Louis Waldman, William J. Burke and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boyd.

MORE MONEY FOR UNEMPLOYED

Acknowledgement is made by the Daily Press of two contributions to be forwarded to the Committee for the Relief of the Unemployed in this city. One amounted to $7.35, and came from the proceeds of an entertainment given at Truell Court, and the other was for $2 from C. O. C. They have both been turned over to A. M. Harris, treasurer of the committee.

CIVIC BODY MAKES EXHAUSTIVE REPORT

Tells of Work Being Done in Other Cities to Get Improvements.

An exhaustive report of the systems of collection and disposal of garbage and ashes in cities of Plainfield size and population was made at the February meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last night by a committee appointed at the January session. Returns from fourteen cities indicate that plans are now in operation to produce similar improvements to those anticipated here. Investigation in Easton, Pa.; White Plains, N. Y.; Newburgh, N. Y.; West Hoboken, N. J.; Montclair, Perth Amboy, Danbury, Conn.; Orange, Reading, Pa.; Williamsport, Pa.; Cohoes, Pa.; Bloomfield, Mr. Vernon, N. Y., and Meadville, Pa., showed that in each case the town authorities are entirely satisfied with the results obtained and practically unanimous in endorsing the efficiency of such work in improving the sanitary conditions of the community and increasing property values.

The facts gleaned from the research work will be put in tabular form and will be presented to the Common Council for consideration. The Mayor and council will probably agree upon dates for public hearings when this matter will be given prominence.

A resolution was passed by the Chamber endorsing the manner in which the annual budget was handled this year by the Common Council, promising all assistance possible to the council in the execution of municipal affairs, and to gain further information on the garbage question.

A. B. Wilson, local manager of the New York Telephone Company, was elected to membership last night. President Paul Burns reported that he had been in communication with a large manufacturing concern relative to locating its plant here, and several sites are now under consideration.

The committee engaged in a study of the tax situation reported that its investigation so far indicated that the citizens of Plainfield are ready and willing to pay for all the improvements that they arrange for through their Mayor and Council, i that they are unwilling to have the assessments in the city of Plainfield computed on a basis different from and higher than that used in other municipalities in the county. The reason for this position is apparent when one considers that the result of such discriminatory assessments will work an injustice to the city as a whole and to the individual taxpayers in that the county and State taxes borne by this city and the inhabitants thereof will be greater than their proper share.

The members discussed plans for interesting people living in New York and Brooklyn in Plainfield property, and approved a plan which appears to be one of considerable promise.

FIREMEN'S ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Plainfield local, No. 7, Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association, elected the following officers at its annual meeting, last night: President, William F. Townley; vice president, George Mehl; secretary, James McDonough; treasurer, James O'Keefe. The financial report, as read by the retiring treasurer, Edward E. Vail, showed the finances of the local to be in excellent shape.

The organization has had a successful year and has accomplished much good for the benefit of its members. The prospects for the coming twelve months was shown to be very good as several candidates have made application and a number of new ideas are to be taken up. George Leland, of No. 4 company, was elected to membership last night.

WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS HOLDS A BOX SOCIAL

The Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., held a lunch box social at the home of Mrs. Mary Kitchell at West Front street and Giraud avenue, last night. It was largely attended by members of the corps and also a delegation from the post. During the evening an informal program of vocal and instrumental music, recitations and addresses was enjoyed. Refreshments were served in conclusion. The proceeds amounted to about $12 and will be added to the general fund of the corps.

The affair was arranged by Mrs. Kitchell and she was assisted in making it a success by Mr. and Mrs. William S. England. The corps is making preparations for another social to be held in the near future.

POLICE ON THE TRAIL

Man Known to the Authorities as John Wainwright Had Carefully Planned Robbery, According to the Police—Loss Not Estimated.

Taking advantage of carefully laid and studied plans during a period of several weeks' observation, a man, known to the police as John Wainwright, a jobber, employed in the home of the Misses Trembath, at 519 Central avenue, to do some repair work, sometime between the hours of 9 and 12 yesterday morning looted the house, taking jewelry valued at several hundreds of dollars and $35 in cash. The robbery was discovered by one of the sisters when she returned from her duties as a school teacher shortly after noon, and Chief of Police Kiely was immediately notified. Sergeant Higgins has been detailed to the case, and this morning succeeded in running down a number of meagre clues, which may lead to the identification and subsequent arrest of the culprit within the next twenty-four hours.

According to the story in the possession of Chief Kiely, Wainwright came to Plainfield November 24 last, and was given sleeping accommodations at the Rescue Mission Home on Park avenue, where he stayed until January 27. At that time he applied at the home of Mrs. Joseph Penz, of 145 West Second street, for a furnished room, and brought with him two suitcases. He claimed address at that place up to the time trace was lost of him by the authorities.

During his four months' residence here Wainwright represented himself

SUFRAGISTS AND "ANTIS" WILL DEBATE

Arguments Will Be Heard at the High School on February 20.

For the purpose of giving both sides full opportunity to present reasons for being for and against the cause of Suffrage for women, the Plainfield Democratic Club has arranged for a debate to be given at the Plainfield High School on Thursday night, February 25. Both the Suffrage and Anti-Suffrage organizations in this city have expressed their willingness to engage in this debate and it is the opinion that it will serve to arouse unusual interest among those who favor Suffrage as well as those who oppose.

While the plans are not entirely complete for the debate it is expected that Miss Alice Carpenter will represent the Suffragists in the debate, while former Assemblyman John A. Matthews will speak for the "Antis." Others may be chosen to take part in the debate.

MASTER PAINTERS SEEK BETTER TRADE RELATIONS

Matters pertaining to trade relations were discussed at the meeting of the Master Painters' Association held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Babcock Building, Wednesday night. The question of the master painters handling all wall papers came up and will be considered more fully a little later.

It was announced that the National Convention of Master Painters would be held in Washington from Monday until Friday of next week. Charles E. Conover and L. B. Woolston will represent the local association. There will be a special coach attached to the Washington train leaving Plainfield at 10:43 o'clock Monday morning. The delegates from this section will go to and from Washington in the special coach. The local association is also arranging for a meeting to be held on March 1 in this city, at which there will be present the State officers. At that time there will be further discussion of matters pertaining to the trade.

PARTNERSHIP DISSOLVED.

The firm of Turton & Clark, tin and iron workers, of West Front street, who have been connected for a great many years, have dissolved partnership by mutual consent. In the future Morgan Turton will conduct the business personally.

$30 MORE PLEDGED FOR WOMEN'S EXCHANGE

Mrs. Claybrook, Seymour Perkins and a Friend Agree to Help the Cause.

Are 100 Plainfielders coming forward to make it possible to continue the splendid work done by the Woman's Exchange in this city? That is the question that is interesting a large number of the well-known Plainfield women, who have given generously of their time and money to support the work. Since W. L. Smalley wrote the Daily Press a few days ago, offering to be one of 100 persons to give $10 each to make it possible to continue the work, four others have come forward with an agreement to give the same sum.

The Woman's Exchange plays a part in the community which cannot be replaced if it is done away with. Scores of worthy people are able to dispose of their handiwork through it as a medium, and in some cases it furnishes an opportunity to support whole families. It does not interfere with any legitimate business. On Tuesday there will be a meeting of those interested in the Exchange at the Grace Church Parish House to decide whether or not to continue it. If enough people come forward with promises of $10 contributions, the women at that meeting will undoubtedly decide in the affirmative. The Daily Press hopes to be able to record promises of a good many ten dollar checks before that time. Names may be sent direct to the Press office, and if the desired sum is pledged, those who have promised to contribute will be notified to send in their checks.

The new subscribers who have signified their intention of aiding the work are Mrs. R. A. Claybrook, Seymour Perkins and an anonymous contributor. The list to date is:

W. L. Smalley	$10
George S. Clay	10
Mrs. R. A. Claybrook	10

CLASS IN PUBLIC SPEAKING FORMED

Public Recreation Committee Plans to Aid Would-be Orators.

The newest activity inaugurated by the Public Recreation Committee, of this city, is a class in public speaking, which will be open to all who wish to enter and receive a good course along this line. The class will meet every Wednesday night in the Stillman School and will be in charge of Harold F. Biddle, of the Plainfield High School faculty. Instruction will be given in voice culture, diction, extemporaneous speaking and the rules and laws of debating.

This will be a fine opportunity for practicing lawyers and young business men of the city to increase their talking ability. Mr. Biddle is a fine lecturer himself, and is well fitted to take charge of such a class. A fee of five cents will be charged per person, as is done in all other recreation activities, to help cover the expense.

Interesting statistics have been compiled showing the work of this organization since its birth on May 30, 1913. From that date until January 30, 1915, there were 700 meetings held, with a total attendance of 39,486 persons. The records for one month, January, 1914, shows sixty-nine meetings, an atendance of 2,885, and twenty activities under committee's supervision. Six school buildings are in use, and they were opened fifty-five times during the past month.

All arrangements have been completed for the entertainment which is to be given next Monday night in the High School Auditorium by the Plainfield Symphony Orchestra. General tickets may be exchanged for reserved seats at Armstrong's pharmacy, but this will not be necessary, as all the seats in the auditorium are good.

PATRICK CORCORAN.

Patrick Corcoran, a former resident of this city, died at his home, 72 West Twelfth street, Bayonne, last night. He was the husband of the late Ellen Corcoran, who died about three years ago and was buried in this city. Mr. Corcoran is survived by three daughters and five sons, none of whom live here. The funeral will be held in Bayonne next Monday morning at 9 o'clock and the body afterward will be brought to Plainfield for interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

GERMANS ARE ON DEFENSIVE

Russian Statement Claims Advantages in Battle Before Warsaw.

A NOVEL TUG OF WAR

Turks Reported Twenty-two Miles From Suez Canal—Artillery Duels and Desperate Fighting for Trenches Reported in France.

Petrograd, Feb. 5.—A novel tug of war is reported from the front in the Rawa district. A German Taube aeroplane, which had been reconnoitering over the Russian lines, was forced by an accident to descend, midway between the front lines of the two forces, which were about eighty paces apart. Both of the aviators were killed, and then a rush came from both sides to seize the fallen aircraft. Each side seized ropes attached to the machine and struggled for its possession. Both sides were compelled to leave the 'plane after a spirited contest.

The general staff of the Russian army has issued a report of the fighting as follows:

"In East Prussia we are making progress by fighting our way along both banks of the river Schesehuppe, in the vicinity of Lasdehnen, to the east of Tilsit.

"On the left bank of the river Vistula the fighting between Borjimow and Wola Szydlowiecka has continued with extraordinary ferocity. The enemy has brought into the engagement compact masses of men.

"In the endeavor to penetrate our front the Germans have here introduced into a sector of ten versts (about six miles) no fewer than seven divisions, supported by 100 batteries of artillery. Certain divisions advanced on a front only one verst wide.

"Our counter attack began the night of February 3, and was immediately followed by a series of engagements at the point of the bayonet. We succeeded in compelling the enemy to assume the defensive.

"At a point near Borjimow we took possession of two lines of German trenches, and we drove the enemy out of Goumine. After desperate fighting, which had lasted two days, our troops entered Wola Szydolweicka.

"The fighting here is still going on with desperate stubbornness, particularly around a neighboring distillery, which was still in the possession of the enemy the night of February 3.

"In the Carpathians the fighting continues along the front which is between the Dukla pass and Mount Wyszkow. We advanced at a point near Svidnik, in the valley of the River Laboratch, moving in the direction of Oujok. We took 2,000 prisoners and 10 machine guns.

"At Mount Toukholka and at Mount Beskid our troops during the last few days have been confronting the enemy with a desperate resistance. They accepted no less than ten engagements at the point of the bayonet.

"On February 3 we resolved to withdraw our soldiers from the mountain positions to other positions previously selected and organized by us. The offensive strength of the enemy in this vicinity is very considerable.

"Offensive operations of the enemy in the vicity of Mount Wyszkow have been repulsed with the infliction of heavy losses."

Rome, Feb. 5.—The main body of the Turkish army advancing against the Suez Canal is now at Moyaharab, 22 miles from the canal, according to Those who were present are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Van Arsdale, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Powelson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry DeMeza and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Utzinger.

DISCUSSED "TWILIGHT SLEEP."

The quarterly meeting and banquet of the Plainfield Medical Association was held at the "Homestead" on Washington avenue, last night, there being about thirty members present. Dr. Hirst, of Philadelphia, was present and gave an instructive talk on the subject of "Twilight Sleep." There was an informal discussion of the subject as well as other matters of interest to physicians.

of the Fanwood Public Library is scheduled for the last Saturday in February, when several important questions, including the opening on one or more evenings a week, will be decided.

Mrs. R. G. Meggy, of North avenue, spent yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. James Allen, of Westfield.

Chester Reeder, of Jersey City, was a recent visitor at the home of his mother, Mrs. E. J. Reeder, of Martine avenue, who is still seriously ill with plural-pneumonia.

Mrs. Wicket, of North avenue, is visiting friends on Long Island for a few days.

The eighth grade will meet in School No. 1 this afternoon. It is expected that the class pin committee will make a report.

Mrs. Hubert Phillips has returned from a short stay with relatives in Netherwood.

Mrs. Hannah Knagenhjelm has returned to New York, after spending sometime with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thrane, of Paterson road. It will be remembered that Miss Gnagenhjelm rendered several soprano solos at the musical held in the Fanwood firehouse recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Jones, of Paterson road, have returned from visiting relatives near Trenton.

Louis Armeding, of Westfield road, who has been in the West for the past two years in the interest of a New York manufacturing company, is now stationed at Port Arthur, Texas, which is not far from the Mexican border.

TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED ELK

ity. To the fraternal brotners, he brought the reminder that the present evening was the first time since Past Exalted Ruler Teel had been made a member of the lodge in 1905 that he had failed to respond when his name was called. Year in and year out he had answered at every affair, large or small, and it would take slow moving and torturous time to fill the vacancy that had been caused by his death.

During the service, the Elks' quartet, composed of William G. Smith, E. D. Cutting, Edward Wagner and Bertram F. Tallamy, sang two selections, "Lead, Kindly Light" and "The Vacant Chair." Clifford A. Braider accompanied on the piano. A mass of floral tributes was banked about the casket, many of them being large set pieces. They were from the Elks, collectively and individually, business associates and friends.

The body was taken to Easton, Pa., on the 11:27 train this morning. A large delegation of Elks acted as an escort and the number was increased by members from the Easton Lodge, when the Pennsylvania city was reached. A short commitment service was held in the chapel of the Easton cemetery, where burial was made, and the casket was opened for the benefit of Mr. Teel's schoolmates and old friends who could not attend the funeral in Plainfield. The pallbearers were all from Plainfield Lodge of Elks and were as follows: Samuel P. T. Wilbur, J. A. Staats, J. Fred MacDonald, Elias H. Bird, Charles H. Dunham and John H. Cose.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Jennie Mandeville, of Orange, has returned after spending a week with relatives in the city and borough.

Miss Mildred Weiss, of Regent street, is detained at her home with a nervous breakdown.

Miss Ethel H. Barnard, Latin instructor in the North Plainfield High School, left today for her home in Westtown, Pa., where she will spend the week-end.

DUNELLEN
All the Happenings of the Day In Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Keyser, of Brooklyn, were visitors in the borough yesterday.

PLAN FOR STRAWRIDE.

The "Jolly Five," Goldson W. Smalley, Frank Farrell, Albert Rajotte Theodore Apgar and Walter G. Clawson, are arranging a strawride to South Plainfield, where a chicken supper will be enjoyed.

John Tinsman, of Front street, has been working at Hutchinson's grocery in Westfield for the past three days or so. Mr. Tinsman is taking the place of a clerk who is ill.

President Alvah Gray, of the local bank, has returned from a visit to Califon.

Percy Vroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Vroom, of North avenue, is ill with a sore throat.

Samuel B. Merrell, of Front street, is making his son a ten days' visit in Newark.

Mrs. Charles S. Day took her music pupils on a strawride through the country yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. W. A. Houghtling, of Washington avenue, visited in New York, yesterday.

GEORGE MILLER IMPROVED.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Miller and child, of New Market, have returned from Waldron, N. Y., where they have been visiting Mr. Miller's father, who is ill. Mrs. Miller and child had been at Waldron for a couple of weeks or so. Despite his serious accident of last week, Mr. Miller went up after his family on Saturday. Mr. Miller has recovered almost entirely from his injuries.

OPERATION A SUCCESS.

Mrs. John H. Schneidler, of Prospect avenue, who was brought home last week from the Muhlenberg Hospital at Plainfield, where she underwent an operation two weeks ago, was able to be up and about the house for a little while yesterday.

Mrs. Lewis Tinsman, of North avenue, has returned from Newark, where she spent a week.

Mrs. John Tinsman, of Front street, is recovering from an attack of the grip.

Deveral Apgar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Newton Apgar, has been suffering with a severe cold.

STOPS A RUNAWAY.

John P. Fenner, of Washington avenue, merchant and real estate operator, revealed some of the nerve yesterday morning, that has been a factor in his success. Mr. Fenner was standing in front of the postoffice yesterday morning discussing the plans for some new houses which he is contemplating having erected this year, with Contractor Charles Wrage, when someone yelled runaway. Mr. Fenner's diverted attention noted a horse attached to a surrey coming around the railroad park from the station at a rapid gait and before Contractor Wrage or anyone else realized what he was doing, Mr. Fenner was running towards the entrance to the park to meet the animal. As the animal bore down on him, he stepped, like a flash, to one side and grasped its bridle as it dashed by. The horse was dragging Mr. Fenner when Contractor Wrage came to the rescue and stopped the animal. Mr. Fenner escaped with a few scratches, the snow on the ground having protected his limbs from being cut and his clothes from being torn.

The choir of the Presbyterian church will meet at the home of George Cameron on New Market road, this evening.

Thomas Frescolm, of New Market road, is suffering with a severe cold.

J. Newton Apgar had another good night, but gains strength slowly. His stomach is very weak, and he has the greatest difficulty in retaining the lightest of nourishment.

'Plains & Fanwood.

A special meeting of the Sunshine Weavers was held at the home of Mrs. John Z. Hatfield, of Stout avenue, last evening, when plans for conducting a booth at the coming musical in the Baptist church, for the purpose of selling candy, were discussed. The girls also spent considerable time sewing.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the All Saints Episcopal church, met in weekly session at the home of Mrs. James Carter, of North avenue, yesterday afternoon, and spent a profitable time sewing.

An entertaining program has been mapped out by the committee in charge for the weekly social of the young people to be held in the Baptist church, this evening. The entertainments are getting to be largely attended and now embrace the greater part of the younger residents of the 'Plains.

The local Boy Scouts will have a chance to hear the third of the series of lectures when a well known lecturer will talk on a topic, yet to be chosen, at a meeting of the scouts to be held in the Sunday-school room of the Baptist church on the night of a week from Tuesday.

Headed by Councilman Britton, a number of borough residents are starting an agitation to have all hunting in Fanwood prohibited by the passing of a new ordinance. The ordinance now in force forbids hunting within five hundred yards of a house, but Mr. Britton says that it did not prevent a neighbor of his from having part of his ear carried away by a stray shot last fall. It is expected that a resolution will be drawn up and presented at the next meeting of the Council.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weldon, of Grand street, have returned from a trip to Florida, where they spent a month with relatives.

As a result of the Borough Council being unable to act on the petition of F. A. Manikin, who is erecting a dwelling on Martine avenue, near King street, the building of several other dwellings in that section will be at least temporarily hindered. To extend the water main from La Grande avenue to King street, a distance of some eighteen hundred feet, the Plainfield-Union Water Company wanted the borough to pay for the installation of six hydrants and as there are only two or three houses there at present the Council did not feel at liberty to expend the money. Several prospective builders, who have acquired land from Lockwood & Company or individuals, will have no water for building use or water afterward, as all of the wells in this place have been drained by the pumps at the Plainfield-Union Water Company plant in Netherwood.

On February 17, Ash Wednesday, services will be held in the local churches in observance of the beginning of Lent. The services in the Episcopal church will be at 10 o'clock in the morning and will be in charge of the Rev. Oscar H. Michaelis.

WORK AND THE EYES.

The widely known fact that, when using the eyes for any near work, the illumination should come from the left side rather than the right is often disregarded. Let any one who considers the matter of little importance once demonstrate to himself the difference, and he will never forget it.

Take a pencil and paper and try to write while in such a position that the light will fall from the right side. The shadow of the hand or pencil or both is thrown on the paper in such a way as partly to cover the characters one is making. This necessitates a closer viewpoint and a conscious strain on the eyes.

Now let the position of the writer be reversed so that the light falls on the work from the left side. He will notice that the shadows fall away from the work he is doing and leaves the field unobscured. In making the change he cannot help but notice the feeling of ease that immediately is experienced by the eyes.

This applies to any other kind of near work in which the fingers work under the guidance of the eyes. This fact should be remembered in planning schoolrooms, workrooms, offices and any places where steady close work is to be performed.—Journal of the American Medical Association.

BUILD NOW.

Unemployment can be relieved in Plainfield quicker by the beginning of building operations than in any other way. Practically all of the machinists in the city are employed, and there is no indication that they will be laid off again for some time to come, but the men of the building trades are only able to get a minimum of work, and many of them have had little or nothing to do for many weeks. The work on the new school may help somewhat, but there will still be plenty of men out of work until greater activity is shown.

In other cities the slogan "Build Now" is being adopted as a means to help those who are in need of employment. The Manufacturers' Record has suggested that all improvements that have been planned for the near future be carried out at once. If the suggestion is generally followed, it will result in immediate and immeasurable benefit to the unemployed, and its basis would not be charity, but business. The man who builds now gets the advantage not only of the low prices of building material, but many contractors figure lower for work during the winter months.

Dealers in building materials in Cleveland are reported to have announced a considerable reduction in prices to all who will build now, and the movement is reported to be gaining headway in many other cities. There is nothing that smacks of charity in a movement of this kind. It is simply a sound business proposition.

AN UNUSUAL TRIBUTE.

It is a tribute to the ability and fairness of General Lewis T. Bryant that the manufacturers, organized labor and women of the State should unite in opposing the Economy and Efficiency Commission bill consolidating the Labor Department and the Bureau of Statistics because it will mean displacing Commissioner Bryant, says the Trenton Times. The representatives of the women object that no provision has been made in the bill for the appointment of female inspectors.

But it is significant that the spokesmen for the manufacturers and workingmen agreed that conditions have been greatly improved; the one satisfied because the improvements and devices they had been compelled to introduce have resulted in preventing accidents, and thereby saving them money; the other because the health and safety of the operatives have been protected, and working conditions in some of the industries, that were formerly intolerable, have been greatly improved.

Not often is the work of a public official so appreciated as to lead men of all shades of politics, employers and employes, to leave their business in order to give testimony to his fairness, industry, intelligence and faithfulness, and to protest against his threatened removal. Former Assemblyman McDermott seems to be about the only person who wants the Commissioner to be displaced; which suggests that his reasons must be either purely personal or political.

Congressman-elect Capstick has selected John E. Nicol, a newspaperman, as his secretary. As a former employe of the Daily Press, we know that Mr. Nicol is peculiarly fitted for the position, and that Mr. Capstick has made no mistake. There is no position in which a newspaper man can be more valuable than as secretary to a man in public life. As one of the reportorial staff of the Elizabeth Journal, and prior to that with the Daily Press, Mr. Nicol has been in a position to become thoroughly acquainted with the political situation in the Fifth district, and hence will be of inestimable assistance to the new Congressman. We extend our congratulations to both.

The war abroad has crept into our politics. In Passaic an organization of German-American citizens have notified all candidates for City Commissioner that they will support only those who are neutral in their sympathies. Thus they hope to bar otherwise capable citizens from holding public office. Such opposition will aid in the election of any man against whom no other charge is made.

The German government is now preparing to fix a maximum price for meat, having already done so with grain. From the way in which prices are soaring, it might be a good idea for the government of the United States to take a tip from the Kaiser.

"The Eight Cylinder Boy" will be the topic of tomorrow's contributed editorial from the pen of Scoutmaster Allen E. Beals. It will be particularly timely because of the general observance throughout the country of Scout week, beginning on Sunday.

HIRED TO PAINT, LOOTS HOUSE

as a mechanic out of work, and appeared to be a "jack of all trades." He was employed by a number of local residents, particularly those living in Central avenue, between West Fourth and West Sixth streets. Those by whom he was employed said that he did his work thoroughly, and spared no praise in recommending him to neighbors to whom he applied for work.

Through this avenue the Misses Trembath, who occupy a portion of a double house at Central avenue and West Sixth street, heard of him, and he was engaged to do odd jobs for them.

Wainwright was sent to the Trembath home yesterday morning by the owner of the house to paint floors and fix several leaks in the roof. He had access to the apartment of the young women during the time they were teaching in school and had ample time to make a thorough search of bureaus and other furniture. He completely ransacked every corner of the house, tearing apart matresses, examining letters, spilling the contents out of work baskets and opening anything that might serve as a place for the concealment of valuables. His search revealed places in which only a few pennies were hidden in some instances, while other finds included valuable pieces of jewelry.

When the young women returned home they were confronted with a painted sign at the landing of the stairs leading to the second floor, reading:

"Paint; do not use for several hours."

This was one of the crook's clever "steers" to head off suspicion and possibly to allow him time to get away before the haul was discovered. One man who lives near the Trembath home says that he saw Wainwright leave the place shortly before noon, but beyond this bit of information nothing of a substantial nature has been furnished the police.

He is described as being about six feet in height; weighs about 190 pounds; with light brown hair; a heavy build; has large, prominent blue eyes, and has a decided stoop. He wore a long black overcoat when last seen.

Besides the Trembath robbery, Wainwright is also wanted by the police for the theft of a phonograph from the Rescue Mission rooms. When leaving the mission he asked William Wright, the caretaker, for the privilege of borrowing the phonograph to use in his room that night. That was the last seen of the machine by the owners.

Mrs. Penz, with whom he boarded, said that he received mail from Philadelphia in a woman's handwriting, and that he was greatly interested in Philadelphia news, being a subscriber to the Record. Early this week he informed Mrs. Penz that he was going to bring his wife, whom he said had been living in Newark, to the West Second street boarding house, and for that reason paid an additional dollar rent and moved his two suitcases to a large room on the first floor. Mrs. Penz does not know whether or not the woman ever came to the house. It is the belief of the police that the woman was there and that she was an accomplice in the Central avenue robbery. It is also believed that the phonograph was used as a dodge" to prevent outsiders from hearing conversation carried on in Wainwright's room, where he probably had the woman without Mrs. Penz's knowledge. He left the house each morning before 7 o'clock and did not return until night. The proprietress of the house left the city yesterday morning to attend a trial in Elizabeth and did not discover the boarder's absence until late yesterday afternoon. It is not known whether he took his personal property from the Penz home before he did the Central avenue "trick," or whether he returned after committing the deed.

Chief Kiely this morning sent out 500 circulars to the police department heads throughout the country giving a description of the culprit and the stolen goods, and requesting the immediate apprehension of Wainwright. It is the opinion of the police that he is an old hand at this game and that he had designs on the Trembath home during the entire time he was employed as a laborer.

a despatch to the Secolo from Cario.

Paris, Feb. 5.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon:

"In Belgium the German airships showed great activity yesterday. The communication of last night reported the capture of one of the enemy's trenches west of the highway from Arras and Lille, north of Ecurie. That trench hindered the troops occupying the ground gained by us a few days ago. To the east of the same road we exploded a mine and immediately thereafter a detachment of Zouaves and light African infantry firmly established itself upon the position. All the Germans in the captured trench were killed or made prisoners.

"Our artillery silenced the enemy's batteries near Adifer, south of Arras, at Pozieres, northeast of Albert, at Ham, northwest of Peronne, likewise in the sector of Pailly, south of Noyon.

"There is nothing new in the region of Perthes. In the Argonne there was a single attack at Bagatelle. That attack, which took from us 100 yards of trenches, provoked two counter attacks on our part, which not only regained these 100 yards, but also gained ground beyond there.

"In the Vosges there were artillery combats. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report."

Amsterdam, Feb. 5.—Several German submarines have been sent to Zeebrugge from the naval basses at Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven. It is assumed that Zeebrugge will be the naval base of operations which Germany will deliver against transports carrying England's new army.

Berlin, Feb. 5 (by wireless).—The following was given out at German headquarters today:

"On the whole western front yesterday there were artillery duels. Isolated French attacks against the German position, northwest of Ferthes, in the Champagne district, were unsuccessful.

"On the East Prussian frontier renewed Russian attacks south of the Menel River were repulsed. A strong Russian attack against the positions recently taken by the Germans, east of Borjimow, were equally unsuccessful. The number of prisoners taken there since February 1, totals 26 officers and about 6,000 men."

G. ARCHIBALD BAILEY TO MARRY ROCHESTER GIRL

Mrs. Charles Piotter, of Rochester, New York, gave a charming dinner party at her home, Wednesday night, at which she announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mathilda E. Piotter, to G. Archibald Bailey, of Summit avenue, the borough. Covers were laid for twenty and the guests included relatives and friends from Sodus, Ithaca, Syracuse and Auburn, N. Y., also Thomas DeMeza, of this city. The dining room was prettily decorated in honor of the occasion and the affair in every way was a delightful one. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. Bailey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bailey, of Summit avenue, and is employed in the local postoffice. He is one of the most popular of the younger men in the city and borough and his friends unite in extending congratulations. He will return from Rochester the first of next week. Miss Piotter is quite well known here having lived in Plainfield until about two years ago.

CONSCRIPT ARMIES.

Military Rules In Force In the Various States of Europe.

Napoleon in 1798 first brought conscription into force, then it was adopted by Prussia after her defeat by the French at Jena in 1806. In most countries where conscription is in vogue every man on reaching a certain age—from nineteen to twenty-one—has to undergo a period of military training. This prevails in France and Germany, but in Russia a certain number of men is required only, and if this is exceeded the authorities decide from whom full service shall be exacted. Of course certain men are excused, such as the only sons or eldest sons of clergymen, etc.

In Spain and Portugal every man is not directly called upon, but each locality is obliged to furnish a certain number, the men being chosen by ballot. There is no standing army in Switzerland, but all ablebodied citizens serve in the militia, which is called upon to train a few weeks every year. Although compulsory service is the law of the land, the army in the Netherlands is mainly composed of volunteers.

It is considered by some people that conscription is unpopular, but in the rural districts of the countries where conscription is in force the inhabitants look forward to the time when they will be called upon as the only exciting change in their lives.

The best conscriptive countries have so legislated that when the conscript leaves the army suitable employment is found for him; also, another point in his favor, his period of service is not so long as that of the volunteer.—London Chronicle.

German Gleanings.

At the beginning of the war Germany had 45,414,000 acres under cultivation.

Berlin is the home of nearly one-third of Germany's more than 500 music schools.

German army officers are experimenting with rubber foot pontoons to enable soldiers to walk on water carrying heavy loads and using their rifles freely at the same time.

The people of Berlin have been "rigorously forbidden" by the authorities to throw away "kitchen refuse," which is to be collected and sold at a nominal price to the military administration for use as horse fodder.

The Royal Box.

The czar is the head of the Greek or Russian church in the same sense that King George is the head of the English church.

King Peter of Servia, known as the "lightning monarch," is seventy years old. As to military training and experience he stands pre-eminent among all the warring monarchs of Europe.

It is said that the German kaiser has great faith in the war sagacity of his daughter, Crown Princess Louise, now Duchess of Brunswick, and that he frequently discusses the movement of troops with her.

Flippant Flings.

This is certainly a warlike era. Even the girls are wearing spats.—Illinois State Journal.

Is it any violation of neutrality for Americans to lick war stamps?—Los Angeles Times.

"Golf profanity," says former President Taft, "is bad for one's score." And a bad score is bad for one's language.—Detroit Free Press.

OPENING OF FREE CLINIC

meeting will be held. If possible United States Senator James E. Martine will also be present and speak.

The clinic, the pioneer of its kind, fills a long-felt want and is intended to be the first of a chain to be established throughout the country. The purpose of this clinic is to apply physiological, psychological and mental tests to children of all ages, to determine, as far as possible, their exact combination as to physical and mental conditions, aptitudes and handicaps, and the causes of eventual difficulty. Naturally, the work will tend to seperate the so-called "average" from the mentally defective child. But its main object is to analyze the excellencies and difficulties of those children who have strong native abilities. While these are far from being defective or low type, yet their progress in school and in life offers puzzling individual problems. The particular aim, therefore, of the clinic is to rescue the misunderstood and handicapped child from becoming a misfit or failure, and to provide opportunities for its development along the lines of its particular talents and abilities.

It has been the good fortune to enlist the good will and co-operation of leading physicians of Plainfield, in the matter of the medical examinations of the children that may be referred to the educational clinic. The medical staff of the clinic is organized in departments as follows.

Dr. F. C. Ard, department of diseases of the eye, ear and throat; Dr. Frank T. Clawson, department of dental surgery; Dr. John Carman, department of skin diseases, X-ray work; Dr. H. D. Corbusier, department of orthopedics; X-ray work; Dr. F. E. Du Bois, department of diseases of urinary and genital organs; Drs. Ellis Hedges, Ben Van D. Hedges, William H. Murray and P. J. Zeglio, department of surgery; Dr. Manch Neville Garhart, department of pathology; Dr. Frederick J. Hughes and Dr. N. W. Currie, children's diseases; general medical examinations; Dr. Charles Gilmore Kerley, New York city, consulting pediatrist; Dr. William Browning, Brooklyn, N. Y., consulting neurologist.

The services of the educational clinic will be given free to children referred to it by the public school authorities, the juvenile courts, and the charity organizations. In these cases a nominal registration fee of ten cents will be charged. In the case of school children we shall co-operate with the medical inspectors of schools. The work of the clinic will be under the direction of Dr. Maximilian P. E. Groszmann, educational director of the "National Association for the Study and Education of Exceptional Children."

VISITOR AT P. H. S.

Prof. Robert Moore, instructor of German at Colgate University, gave a very interesting lecture in the Plainfield High School, this morning. Professor Moore was a guest of Lester D. Beers, of Colgate.

JEFFERSON DEMOCRATS INCORPORATE THEIR CLUB

Articles of incorporation were filed with County Clerk James J. Calvert at Elizabeth, this morning, by the West End Jefferson Democratic Club, of this city. The incorporators names are Patrick Driscoll, Edward Strapp and Richard Scott, who are also trustees of the organization. The club has been in existence for the past year and has become an important factor in local political circles.

The present officers of the club are the following: President, Michael Shea; vice-president, Thomas Farrell; recording secretary, William Sutton; financial secretary, Frank Laskoski; treasurer, Peter McClusky; sergeant-at-arms, Frank McElhone. The membership at the last regular meeting was reported to be about 100, but additions are being made to this number every month. The club's home has been at Prescott place and West Third street, but owing to the steady increase, the quarters have become quite cramped, and it is probable that either new ones will be rented within the near future or a building will be erected to suit its purposes.

HUMAN OR MECHANICAL?

Leo Glason, the famous automaton, is today giving a remarkable demonstration of his powers at the hardware store of F. H. Kirch & Co., on Park avenue, where the Penn Safety Razor is being advertised. Glason occupies one of the large show windows and his actions so closely resemble those of a mechanical figure that many are led to ask whether he is human or mechanical. Glason will continue his exhibition tomorrow.

Marvel City at Golden Gate Unrivaled in Splendor; Powerful Influence for Peace, Says Vice-President

IN the EXHIBIT SECTION, NEAR TOWER of JEWELS, 435 FT HIGH

R. B. HALE

By R. B. HALE,
Vice President of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, who first suggested the holding of the great Exposition to celebrate the opening of the Panama Canal.

The following splendid address, expressing the keynote of the great Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco, was delivered by Mr. R. B. Hale, Vice-president of the exposition. Mr. Hale is one of the notable public men of America and this copy of his address is of deepest interest and significance.

Universal Expositions, of which the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is the fourth in the United States, have always stood for peace. In Philadelphia, in 1876, the Honorable Joseph R. Hawley, President of the Centennial Exposition, in his opening remarks said:

"From the associaion here of welcome visitors from all nations there may result not alone great benefits to invention, manufacture, agriculture, trade and commerce, but also stronger international friendship and more lasting peace."

"Acquaintance softens prejudice" has been ringing in my ears ever since those three words were uttered by a foreign graduate of one of our American universities in a speech delivered some years ago. The learned stateman, Honorable Elihu Root, voiced the same sentiment when about to leave the high office of Secretary of State in substantially these words: "It were impossible for any nation to be at war if the people of the conflicting countries understood each other."

Universal expositions soften prejudices, remove commercial antipathies and settle political differences by bringing the people of all nations into friendly intercourse for the discussion of ideas, the exchange of commodities and for the advancement of mankind socially, morally, intellectually and commercially. They reflect the thought and action of peaceful pursuits, and reach their greatest successes during or following long periods of national and international peace. Their exhibits are the product of the arts of peace and their object is the promotion of peaceful activity in thought and word and deed. They are the antithesis of war, the embodiment of peace. Their grounds are set apart as extra territorial devoted to the use of all nations and all peoples on a parity and equality. The Panama-Pacific International Exposition grounds today are common to all. No creed or race is barred; all have equal rights and privileges. It is neutral ground for warring or tranquil nations alike. It is one great democracy where all unite in contributing to an expression of gratitude for the present and inspiration for the future, and because the Exposition is really the child of peace do we deem it a privilege, aye even a duty, to enter our protest against the terrible conditions now prevailing in Europe.

It is idle to presume that anything that we can do here today will have any material influence in the immediate settlement of the greatest war in history, involving more than half the people of the civilized world, but we can raise our voice in earnest protest against conditions in Europe too terrible to contemplate in loss of life, in the destruction of property, in the suffering of homeless women and children and in the effect upon the world at large. Commercial activity is checked, industries are paralyzed, civilization is being forced backward, human impulses are being supplanted by the brutal practices of war. The cries of the innocent have sounded a call for relief, and with dynamic force that call is generating a sentiment through the length and breadth of this country for peace. Every one seems sobered and serious and determined. That one word has taken on a new significance, a new meaning—Peace—Peace for humanity, Peace to pursue the upward and onward course of civilization; peace and rest and tranquility for the millions who suffer—suffering in spirit as those unfortunate soldiers are suffering in body—royalty and subject together in the present awful European conflict. They desire a cessation forever of the super-cruel methods of warfare as a means of settlement of international contention.

Each closing day hope looks forward to the morning longing that word shall come that our brothers in Europe shall have laid aside their arms. That glorious day must come and when it does will it not be possible to respond to the world's wail that the sword of anger and of hate be sheathed forever? Then come the time for international convention and treaty. Great statesmen will be engaged in negotiating the tremendous document. Speaking out of inexperience and from afar, among myriad minds, we ourselves hope that in this treaty there shall be established such a basis of defense on land as is alone necessary to protect local peace, and that such armed ships as are necessary to police the sea shall alone be permitted; each nation contributing its quota to this international naval police which shall be controlled in its movements by an international admiralty whose whole duty shall be to preserve peace instead of prepare for war.

The Exposition in San Francisco will have reached its highest purpose if it can in any way assist in the settlement of the terrific conflict which is now being waged with such titanic fierceness, hellish weapons and awful consequences. The Exposition, being set apart on extra territorial grounds dedicated to the use of all nations on terms of equality, could fittingly, without prejudice or embarrassment, be used for a peace conference designed to settle the differences of the warring nations and bring about the signing of a treaty of peace for which the world is praying.

One effect of the war now in progress will be to emphasize the importance of and intensify the interest in the great International Peace conference projected by the management of the Exposition. Let us hope that this war may be recorded history before this congress convenes. The horrors of present day warfare will then be fully appreciated and those directly affected may be available with their experience and advice to assist in preparing a code of international law and police powers and provide such other recommendations as may be best fitted to insure lasting peace.

And when we look into the future may we find the new cycle of brotherly love superseding the discord of today. May the settlement of international strife by war, and blood and suffering, and devastation be supplanted by conference and negotiation and arbitration; then will follow rest and peace and contentment for the everlasting enjoyment of mankind. As John G. Whittier beautifully expressed it in his centennial hymn in 1876:

"Oh, make Thou us thru centuries long
In peace secure, in justice strong;
Around our gift of freedom draw
The safeguards of Thy righteous law,
And cast in some diviner mold
Let the new cycle shame the old."

VALUABLE ASSET IS 33 YEARS OLD

First Exchange Installed in Plainfield in 1882 in City Bank Building.

MANY CHANGES MADE

20,000 Calls a Day Are Handled in Local Office—Switchboard Here Represents a Total Cost of $84,000.

News items appearing in newspapers throughout the country relative to the first direct telephone communication between New York at one end and San Francisco at the other have given great incentive to the inquiring mind to look into the history and development of this distinctively American achievement.

A. B. Wilson.

With this in view a Daily Press representative has gathered the facts as noted below as to the progress of the telephone in this city:

From the time of the introduction of the telephone into the city of Plainfield in the year 1882, when a small switchboard was installed in the cupola of the building now occupied by the City National Bank at the corner of Park avenue and Front street, the business had slow progress up to the year 1907, at which time Plainfield had 1,946 telephone stations.

During that year the New York Telephone Co. made several improvements and started a vigorous campaign for new subscribers. A three-story building was erected at 109 East Fourth street, and the system was changed from magneto to common battery. Since that time Plainfield has been thoroughly canvassed for new business, with the result that it now has a telephone development which compares favorably with that of any city of equal size in the country.

About the year 1885 the heavy iron wire which was used at that time was struck by lightning, which caused a fire, and almost crippled the telephone system. When this fact was mentioned to A. B. Wilson, local manager of the telephone company, he stated that this would be impossible today, because of the vast improvements that have been made from time to time, until now every telephone wire is protected by a heat coil in the terminal room of the central office, which discharges all foreign current, and saves not only the switchboard, but also the lives of the operators who are working at it. The same applies to the home, as every subscriber's station is protected by a lightning arrester, usually installed in the cellar and connected to a water pipe, through which all excess current passes to the ground.

Plainfield can boast of one of the most modern telephone exchanges in the world, having the benefit of all the latest improvements of the age, the various Bell telephone companies having spent at least $425,000,000 in the first ten years of the twentieth century on repairs, inventions and construction, without hindering for a day the ceaseless torrent of electrical conversation.

Unquestionably, the telephone is the greatest industrial and commercial achievement of the American people, which is largely due to the fact that the United States can boast of having about 70 per cent. of all the telephones in the world, the telephone not only being an American invention, but all improvements, with about two exceptions, having been made by Americans.

The crowning glory of a telephone of today is not so much the simple telephone itself, nor the maze and mileage of its cables, but rather the wonderful mechanism of its switchboard, which must be handled with accuracy, patience and courtesy to obtain the best results, and the operators are given a course in instruction in the company's operating school along these lines. They are taught the many principles of their work there. The service, of course, depends upon the operators. Care is taken to make their surroundings as pleasant and comfortable as possible. The subscribers themselves can greatly aid in giving Plainfield the best of telephone service by consulting the telephone directory to make sure of the number before calling, by speaking clearly and distinctly into the mouthpiece, and by exercising patience when there is a slight delay.

The switchboard is the part of the system that will always remain mysterious to the public. It is seldom seen, and it remains as great a mystery to those who have seen it, as to those who have not. The switchboard in the Plainfield central office has recently been increased to a forty position board, and now represents a cost of approximately $84,000. About 20,000 calls a day are handled through this board by forty operators. About a year ago the telephone company inaugurated visitations to the central office, and from time to time has invited the public to visit its mysterious plant in order to have explained to them the details of the business, from the cable vault in the basement to the operating room on the top floor. Many people have taken advantage of these opportunities, and those who have not had the pleasure of visiting a modern equipped telephone exchange can arrange to do so by calling at the commercial office of the company, 307 Park avenue. The writer can assure them that they will be well paid for the time consumed in going through the plant.

In the early days of the telephone in Plainfield, the business was carried on by a local manager with two assistants. Today, however, the local commercial manager, sales manager, and a number of salesmen, with several office employes are required in the commercial department alone to handle the outside business and deal with the general public. In the traffic department a force of between forty and fifty is required, and sixty-eight men are employed in the plant department to handle the territory known as the Plainfield district. A. B. Wilson, local commercial manager, is assisted by J. J. Carty, sales manager, and J. G. Carty, supervisor; P. E. Thompson, general foreman, has charge of the plant department; J. L. Crate is wire chief, H. S. Foote is traffic manager and Miss E. B. Doeringer, chief operator.

During the past year about 200 poles have been added in the Plainfield district to take care of new subscribers, and Mr. Wilson stated that no less than 10,000,000 poles are in use in the Bell system. "It is feared," he explained, "that owing to the dying off of chestnut trees, there may be a shortage of poles, and concrete is now being experimented with as a substitute for wood.

The growth of the telephone in the Plainfield central office district is shown by the following table:

Year.	Lines.	Stations.
Jan. 1, 1890	....	141
Jan. 1, 1900	....	509

*Estimated.

The telephone company is always looking for new business, and house-to-house canvassing campaigns are conducted from time to time, and card records are made, showing the name and address of the people called on, from which advertising circulars are mailed, which are followed up by personal calls from salesmen. It is a well-known fact that every new subscriber makes the telephone service more valuable to the present ones, and this point is always strongly emphasized. In places like Martinsville, for example, which lies on the other side of the Watchung Mountains, the telephone is indispensable, as there are no trolley nor railroad connections. It is interesting to know that the well-known Bank of England in London has not a single telephone, while every banking institution in the city of Plainfield has several to aid in conducting its business efficiently. Rarely do we find a hotel in foreign countries with a telephone in every room, but in Plainfield the value of this service is realized by hotel proprietors. As an example, the Queen City Hotel has thirty-two telephones, with six exchange lines.

On December 1, 1914, there were as many lines connected with the Plainfield exchange as there were stations in the year 1907, and the stations in service on December 1, 1914, were 4,203, or about one station to every seven inhabitants. Since January 1 of this year the company has secured contracts covering a net increase of fifty-five additional stations.

Mr. Wilson laid emphasis on the fact that the New York Telephone Company, and, in fact, the entire Bell system, is always planning for the future. Since the work began on the Panama Canal in 1904 the Bell system has spent more money in extending its lines and plant than the United States has to dig the big ditch and buy the right of way.

The first telephone subscriber in Plainfield was the Constitutionalist, a local newspaper owned by Force Brothers, and later controlled by the Plainfield Daily Press. This service was installed by C. W. Runyon, who afterwards became local manager, wire chief and trouble shooter. At that time the traffic department also came under his supervision.

In the early days of the telephone no directories were published, but a list of subscribers appeared in the Constitutionalist every two weeks. This offers an interesting comparison with the telephone directory of today, which contains thousands of subscribers.

Mr. Wilson stated incidentally that according to records, one of the earliest demonstrations of the emergency value of the telephone took place in September, 1883, when a fire alarm was telephoned from the residence of the late Charles A. Potter on West Seventh street.

The great growth of the telephone in Plainfield, as shown by the figures above, is good evidence of what may be expected in the future. As the population grows, so will the telephone development. "Facilities," Mr. Wilson concluded, "are ready for hundreds of new subscribers, and we expect a great increase within the next year or two."

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

May I ask room in the Forum for a slight criticism on Mr. Calkins's editorial on "Women and the Ballot?"

One is tempted to think that Mr. Calkins is amusing himself rather than trying to present a case. There is a little satirical flavor that runs through the whole effusion. He says it is woman's duty to vote, but gives no sound reason for the statement. We who are opposed to woman suffrage consider that we shall lose a very important asset if the ballot is forced upon us. Mr. Calkins gives as an example of the advantage of feminine suffrage the fact that the Colorado Legislature the year after women obtained the vote passed an equal guardianship law, but he neglects to add that the same thing had been done in New York the year before, and that through the work of women opposed to woman suffrage. He speaks of the Juvenile Court in Denver, but fails to say that Denver politics are, on the authority of Judge Lindsey in his articles on "The Jungle," flagrantly corrupt. He speaks of the "higher grade of personal character of men who go before the people for election in States where women vote," but how about cases like Mayor Gill, some of the aldermen in Chicago and the ineffective men who have made the State government of Colorado a hissing and reproach.

Here is a clipping from an Evening Post of last week which does not show a very intelligent use of the law-making power in Kansas City. It is headed "The Multiplication of Laws:"

The city has six thousand ordinances.

Council passes from twenty to fifty each meeting.

One prohibits hatpin points over three inches long.

Another prohibits a certain class of women from riding in open carriagess.

But there is no city law against the promiscuous sale of morphine, codeine, heroin and opium.—Kansas City Star.

The other day I came across a clipping from the Survey of December 12, 1913. It is a notice of a review by a Miss Morse of the Life of Octavia Hill, a woman who was one of the pioneers in social service and a practical worker on the tenement housing problems of London.

* * * "Just at present it is peculiarly refreshing, for not only was Miss Hill's service to mankind of a very high order, but it was coupled with rare common sense, a quality which it sometimes seems is passing away. * * * * * * Miss Hill speaks from the depth of a wisdom brought by great experience of life when she says: "Political power would militate against usefulness in the large field of public work in which so many are now doing noble and helpful service. This service is of far more value than any voting power could possibly be. * * * Let the woman be set on finding her duties, not her rights * * * * there is enough of struggle for place and power, enough of watching what is popular and will win votes, enough of effort to secure majorities. If woman would temper this wild struggle, let her do her own work steadily and earnestly."

ELIZABETH B. SYKES.

Editor, Plainfield, Daily Press:

The cartoon of Mr. Bushnell, "Preparing for a Siege," appearing in your issue of the 2d inst., is hopelessly beside the point, in fact it's the reverse of truth. The cartoonist has miserably failed to grasp the meaning of one of the most significant and pregnant news items since the outbreak of the war. The impression it seeks to convey, that the military of Germany is "locking" the foodstocks of the country for the exclusive use of the army, while the people of that nation, wan and hollow-eyed, peer helplessly through the closed bars, is a deplorable—if not purposeful—misinterpretation of one of the greatest revolutionary steps taken by any organized government, whose function is to protect and defend the right of private property,—in the history of mankind.

The seizure of the wheat and corn stocks by the German government is not to provide the army for a protracted siege, but, to protect the people as a whole against "patriotic" speculators in the staff of life. The adverse comments appearing in this country and the willful distortion of the determining factor which led the German government to take the epoch making step are due to the fact that it knocks in the head the bug-a-boo of confiscation and threatens the very foundations of the, up to now, sacrosant right of the private ownership of the means of subsistence.

To interpret the act of the German government in its true light may give the Americans the insane notion to try the same thing here, where, without war and amid the greatest harvest in the nation's history, the cost of flour is soaring with bewildering velocity. Such a proceeding, of course, would stifle "healthy" competition and destroy private initiative, and that will never do. We will go as far as to "investigate" the cause of the jump in prices, but no farther. It will comfort us to learn at the conclusion of the investigation, and after our esophagus has shrunken to embryonic proportion through inaction, in perusing the report, sitting before a table spread with miniature portions of food, that the loaf of bread shrinks because we use it; that the only way to keep it bulky is not to eat it. And like the protagonist of Balzac's Magic Skin, whose life was shortened at the mere wish to gratify his appetite, we must practice restraint and school ourselves not to wish for anything—then we will have everything. We must be very careful not to live a riotous life; too much food will make dyspeptics of us and lead to an early grave, and surely it is the moral duty of governments to prolong our life by protecting us against the insidious ravages of appeased hunger.

But, seriously, what elso could we expect? Granting the right to engage in business for private profit, it is childish to expect that those who are the beneficiary of the profit system and who control the government would decapitate themselves. Again, even if governments are impartial agents, what right have they to interfere? Suppose you as a proprietor of The Daily Press should decide to raise the price of advertising 50 per cent. and increase the cost of the paper to 5 cents a copy, whose business is it but your own? What government, municipal, State or National, has the right to interfere and compel you to reduce those prices? Such interference is unthinkable, and yet we are simple enough to expect the government to regulate the price of food-stuff. What a utopian expectancy! But you say, "the advertiser is not compelled to advertise, the people are not forced to buy the paper." True, but is it not also true that the people are not compelled to buy bread? Oh, now, did you really think that I had not anticipated your answer? "The people can live without advertising in, or read, my paper, but they cannot live without bread." Well, then, since you admit that much why in the name of uncommon sense should not the people have control of their bread? There is no specific economic law by which a government can be guided, and no legal and ethical justification for it, to fix the price of any article while it remains the property of the individual in society.

The German government has cut the Gordian knot and we may hope that the people of this country do not have to wait for a time of "national peril" to think more seriously about the collective ownership of the means of subsistence.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The last half of the week brings an excellent bill to Proctor's Theatre, leading off with a musical playlet, "The Bachelor Girls." Eight people are in the company, seven of whom are girls, and they present a combination of comedy, singing and dancing, the last named being especially good. Dill and Gliss, novelty clown musicians, catchy tunes in a most unique way, while their comedy stunts kept the audiences in roars of laughter. Al Grossman, billed as a black-face comedian, presented some very clever character work, and despite the fact that he has but one arm, made a quick change of costume and make-up in full view of the audience. His act is the most unique Proctor has produced in a long time. Clara Illig, comedienne, and Howard Chase and Company, in a sketch, in "When Ignorance Is Bliss," completed the program. An additional feature of today's performances will be the fifth episode of the Pathe serial, "The Exploits of Elaine." Another big photo-play production, "The Deep Purple," is scheduled for next Monday and Tuesday. The Pathe Weeklies, Keystone comedies, and other up-to-the-minute "screenettes" are shown on all other days when no other announcements are made.

NEEDLESS TO TRY TO CONVINCE THESE GIRLS THAT THEY HAVEN'T EQUAL RIGHTS

Columbus Club Contest Between Plainfield and Westfield Feminine Athletes a Spirited One Until it is Terminated by An Argument With Locals Way in Front—Spectators Were Treated to a Variety Program.

Those at the Columbus Club last night, who had never been fortunate (or unfortunate) enough to be in the immediate vicinity when the followers of Emaline Pankhurst staged one of their demonstrations, were given a vivid realistic exhibition of the same variety at the culmination of the Westfield-Plainfield feminine basketball tussle. With the tally-card favoring the Queen City athletes by a margin of 15 to 3, the Mt. Ararat players elected to "bench" a fatigued star and fill her place with another player who had previously been taken from the game by the Westfield captain. Inasmuch as basketball rules prohibit a performer from returning to the game after she has once been retired, objection was raised by the local pilot.

The protest was the signal for a demonstration, the Westfield supporters and players swooping down on the Plainfielders in a frenzied state of mind, demanding that they be shown some discrimination and incidentally be given a show to make the margin separating the scores smaller during the few remaining minutes of combat. The local girls, however, stood pat and as a result the contest was forfeited to Plainfield, the Westfielders refusing to put in a new player who came on the eligible list.

For a time the lives of those who ventured too near the factors in the fracas that followed the interruption of the contest were in jeopardy. It took more arguing to convince the Westfielders that a 15 to 3 margin was a veritable victory and that rules count in basketball, than it would to induce the Kaiser to jail his soldiers. Those in the audience who were skeptical of a suffragette's power of conviction were given every reason to change their views after the basketball finale last night, for the debate which followed the untimely ending of the battle was carried by inches to the dressing rooms.

During the time the actual playing was in progress the Plainfield girls ably asserted their superiority, playing rings around their opponents in teamwork and shooting. While Miss Smith and Miss Mair, by some close guarding, were holding the star forwards of the Westfield squad to a single double-decker in the initial chukker, Miss Helen Hummel bagged a pair of two pointers and one from the foul line, while her sister, Miss Ida Hummel, caged a spectacular tally from an extreme angle. In the final period Miss Helen Hummel caged a trio of field goals and her sister added another. This was the sum and substance of the scoring done prior to the termination of the court game and the staging of the vocal demonstration.

The innovation of girls' basketball in the Columbus Club was a pleasing one and was witnessed by a large gathering, all of whom afterwards expressed their hearty approval of booking feminine issues of this calibre. Following the game the teams were "fed" by the Columbus Club members.

The score follows:

BIG ATTRACTION AT Y. M. C. A. TOMORROW

From exhibitions put up by the "Silent Workers," of Trenton, during the past week, it looks as if the local Y. M. C. A. basketball crew will have its hands full tomorrow night, when it meets this aggregation on the local court. The Mutes have an exceptionaly fast team this year and will come here for revenge, as the Plainfielders defeated them last season by a small margin.

The game will start at 8.15 and there will be a preliminary game beginning at 8 o'clock. Holiday prices will be charged for this attraction. The teams will lineup as follows:

The fourteen members, representing a majority of the colleges and universities of the country, are not expected to advocate any radical amendments or new rules, but there will be a number of changes in the phraseology of the code in order to interpret the regulations more clearly.

On the return trip the local team will make a stop at Trenton and play a game tomorrow night, with the association team of that place. Last year the locals defeated the Trenton team at that place and look forward to another victory.

The Plainfield team will be chaperoned by Miss Elizabeth Wetherell, the local physical director. The girls that will take the trip are the Misses Helen Hummel, Ida Hummel, Marion Mair, Clara Smith, Ellen Dougnty and Laura Smith.

The first game was won by 19 pins, the second by 13 and the last by 102. In the final roll three Elizabeth players scored high, Blythe getting 211, Feihl scoring 224, and VanBergen getting a 227. For Paterson, Romary rolled scores of 172, 204 and 213.

PLAINFIELD EAGLES WIN OVER BOROUGH PINNERS

The Eagles' bowling team, of this city, defeated Gates' borough five on the Eagles' alleys, last night, taking two games straight and the third one was not rolled. The Eagles did not have their regular lineup, Mullin and Morris being substituted for Mahoney and Luthman.

Both games were won by large margins, one hundred and twenty-two points separating the scores of the first roll. Miller did the best work of the match, getting marks of 200 and 240, the latter being high score of the series. This gave him an average of 220. Radin rolled a 201, while Connolly, of the borough team, hit for 189.

"MET" GOLF TITLE WEEK OF MAY 24

Over the Sleepy Hollow Course—Other Business Transacted.

The women's metropolitan golf championship will be played the week beginning May 24 over the links of the Sleepy Hollow Country Club at Scarborough. This matter was definitely settled at a meeting of the executive committee of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association yesterday.

As usual, the entire first day will be given over to the testing round of eighteen holes, the best sixteen qualifying for match play, which will be run off one round each day until the final on Friday, May 28.

Another important matter acted on by the women's executive committee yesterday was the selection of a committee of three, Miss Marion Hollins, Mrs. A. D. Holden and Mrs. Lawrence Swift, to arrange with the women of Boston and Philadelphia the troublesome question of defaults in the Griscom Cup matches.

At Greenwich last June it was necessary for the Metropolitan team to register a default on the first day. Boston was the opponent and insisted that the whole team should be moved up to fill the vacant place and bring the default at the bottom. This year, however, the matter will be settled one way or another prior to the matches. Mrs. H. R. Stockton, of this city, is a member of the "Met" team.

In view of the decision of the association to hold only two one-day tournaments a month this season, one on the Plainfield Country Club links, the matter of compelling a schedule will be easier than heretofore. Several applications have been received from various clubs asking sanctions for invitation tournaments for women. Several of these probably will last two days.

Only one more metropolitan titular event remains to be settled, that being the junior championship. The amateur will be held at Apawamis June 2 to 5, the women's at Sleepy Hollow, May 24 to 28, and the open at Fox Hills, July 8 and 9.

ATHLETES WILL "FEED."

The Y. M. C. A. Army team, of the College League, will entertain the Navy team at a luncheon tomorrow at 12 o'clock. The toasts will be as follows: Martin Snyder, "Toastmaster;" George Jackson, "Basketball;" Russell Tomlinson, "Swimming;" Davis Blanchard, "A New Leader;" Howard Willett, "Leader's Organization;" and James McClymont, "A Has Been."

P. H. S. GIRLS AT MONTCLAIR.

The Plainfield High School girls' basketball team is scheduled to go to Montclair tomorrow afternoon, and meet the High School sextet of that place. The Montclair girls have been playing some fine ball this season and are sure to make the local team go the limit on their own court.

ELIZABETH PLAYERS FORM SPEEDY FIVE

Clever Basketball Exhibited on Columbus Club Court Last Night.

Sensational shooting, fine passing, and all around team work were features in the game last night, at Columbus Club, when the local team went down to defeat at the hands of the speedy Madisons, of Elizabeth, the final score being 32 to 25. It took Plainfield fully five minutes to get started, and from then on the game was closely contested. In the initial period the Madisons were credited with 18 points to the home team's 16. Radonitz, of the Madisons, was the star in this half, caging five field goals and one free throw, while McAfee netted six goals for the Columbus Club five. In the second half the Madisons took the lead and by fast passing got seven goals to the Columbus Club's four and a foul. Roberts and Radonitz did the most scoring for the vistors, the former being credited with 13 points and the latter with 10. McAfee was the whole show for the Plainfielders, scoring 11 points for his team.

DUNELLEN BOY SCOUTS LOSE EXCITING GAME

In a basketball game almost free from fouls, as was evidenced by the number called by the referee, the Margentinoites, of Dunellen, defeated the Boy Scouts of the same place, on the Presbyterian Church court, last night, the final count being 24 to 18. Referee Newman found it necessary to call but one foul during the entire forty minutes of play, and although the participants became rough at the close of the contest the official could find no room to levy penalties.

The Scouts led their opponents at the end of the first half by two points, the scores being 6 to 4, but in the last period the Margentinoites outscored their rivals and made ten field goals.

The Heroes

In that Valhalla where the heroes go
A careful sentinel paced to and fro
Before the gate, burned black with battle smoke,
Whose echoes to the tread of armed men woke,
And up the fiery stairs whose steps are spears
Came the pale heroes of the blood stained years.

There were lean Caesars from the glory fields,
With heart that only to a sword thrust yields,
And there were generals decked in pride of rank,
Red scabbard swinging from the weary flank,
And slender youths who were the sons of kings,
And barons with their sixteen quarterings,
And, while the nobles went with haughty air,
The courteous sentinel questioned, "Who goes there?"
And as each came full lustily he cried
His string of titles ere he passed inside.

And presently there was a little man,
A silent mover in the regal van
His hand still grasped his rifle, and his eyes
Seemed blinded with the light from paradise.
His was a humble guise, a modest air
The sentinel held him sharply, "Who goes there?"

There were no gauds tacked to that simple name,
But every naked blade leaped out like flame,
And every blue blood warrior bowed his head.
"I am a Belgian." This was all he said.
Men's cheering echoed through the battle's hell
"Pass in, mon brave," said that wise sentinel.

PEG O' MY HEART

By J. Hartley Manners

A Comedy of Youth Founded by Mr. Manners on His Great Play of the Same Title—Illustrations From Photographs of the Play

Copyright, 1913, by Dodd, Mead & Company

PROLOGUE.

A romping, madcap, bewitching Irish girl, as Irish as St. Patrick's day in the morning, is turned over to the care of aristocratic English relatives. They are stiff and artificial, and she is as sweet and natural as a healthy country girl can be. They dislike her, but Peg holds her own with jaunty pride and in the end, by her generosity and big heartedness, wins them over, and, what is more, wins her fortune, and, what is still more, wins a very gallant lover. This, in brief, is the story of a play which by its originality, sweetness and charm has been one of the most phenomenal successes New York has seen in a long time. The author of the play has turned it into a novel, so sympathetically, so brilliantly, that Peg as a heroine of fiction is as lovable as she was on the stage.

CHAPTER. I.

The Irish Agitator and Angela.

"FAITH, there's no man says more and knows less than yerself, I'm thinkin'."

"About Ireland, yer riverence?"

"And everything else, Mr. O'Connell."

"Is that criticism or just temper, father?"

"It's both, Mr. O'Connell."

"Sure it's the good judge ye must be of ignorance, Father Cahill."

"And what might that mane?"

"Ye live so much with it, father."

"I'm lookin' at it and listenin' to it now, Frank O'Connell."

"Then it's a miracle has happened, father. To see and hear oneself at the same time is indade a miracle."

"Don't provoke the man of God!"

"Not for the wurrld," replied the other meekly, "bein' mesef a child of Satan."

"And that's what ye are. And ye'd have others like yerself. But ye won't while I've a tongue in me head and a sthrong stick in me hand."

O'Connell looked at him with a mischievous twinkle in his blue-gray eyes:

"Yer eloquence seems to nade somethin' to back it up, I'm thinkin'."

Father Cahill breathed hard. He was a splendid type of the Irish parish priest of the old school. Gifted with a vivid power of eloquence as a preacher and a heart as tender as a woman's toward the poor and the wretched, he had been for many years idolized by the whole community of the village of M., in County Clare. But of late there was a growing feeling of discontent among the younger generation. They lacked the respect their elders so willingly gave. They asked questions instead of answering them. They began to throw themselves, against Father Cahill's express wishes and commands, into the fight for home rule under the masterly statesmanship of Charles Stuart Parnell. Already more than one prominent speaker had come into the little village and sown the seeds of temporal and spiritual unrest. Father Cahill opposed these men to the utmost of his power. He saw, as so many farsighted priests did, the legacy of bloodshed and desolation that would follow any direct action by the Irish against the British government. Though the blood of the patriot beat in Father Cahill's veins, the well being of the people who had grown up with him was near to his heart. He was their priest, and he could not bear to think of men he had known as children being beaten and maimed by constabulary and sent to prison afterward in the fight for self government.

To his horror that day he met Frank Owen O'Connell, one of the best known of all the younger agitators, in the main street of the little village.

O'Connell's backsliding had been one of Father Cahill's bitterest regrets. He had closed O'Connell's father's eyes in death and had taken care of the boy as well as he could. But at the age of fifteen the youth left the village that had so many wretched memories of hardship and struggle and worked his way to Dublin. It was many years before Father Cahill heard of him again. He had developed meanwhile into one of the most daring of all the fervid speakers in the sacred cause of Irish liberty.

And Father Cahill was going to hear from Frank Owen O'Connell again, though little did he reckon on the importance that the present young and comparatively untutored reformer would achieve.

* * * * * * * *

Wilberforce Kingsnorth, wealthy, imperious Englishman, left three children—Nathaniel, who in a large measure inherited much of his father's dominant will and hard headedness; Monica, the elder daughter, and Angela, the younger.

Nathaniel was the old man's favorite. While still a youth he inculcated into the boy all the tenets of business, morality and politics that had made Wilberforce prosperous.

Pride in his name, a sturdy grasp of life, an unbending attitude toward those beneath him and an abiding reverence for law and order and fealty to the throne—these were the foundations on which the father built Nathaniel's character.

Next in point of regard came the elder daughter, Monica. Patrician of feature, haughty in manner, exclusive by nature, she had the true Kingsnorth air. She had no disturbing "ideas," no yearning for things not of her station. She was contented with the world as it had been made for her and seemed duly proud and grateful to have been born a Kingsnorth.

She was an excellent musician, rode fairly to hounds, bestowed prizes at the local charities with grace and distinction—as became a Kingsnorth—and looked coldly out at the world from behind the impenetrable barriers of an old name.

When she married Frederick Chichester, the rising barrister, connected with six county families, it was a proud day for old Kingsnorth. His family had originally made their money in trade. The Chichesters had accumulated a fortune by professions. The distinction in England is marked.

Frederick Chichester came of a long line of illustrious lawyers. One had even reached the distinction of being made a judge. He belonged to an honorable profession. The old man was overjoyed.

He made a handsome settlement on his eldest daughter on her marriage and felt he had done well by her, even as she had by him.

Five years after Monica's birth Angela unexpectedly was born to the Kingsnorths. A delicate, sickly infant, it seemed as if the splendid blood of the family had expended its vigor on the elder children. Angela needed constant attention to keep her alive. From tremulous infancy she grew into delicate youth. She seemed a child apart.

"Not for the wurrld."

Not needing her, Kingsnorth did not love her. He gave her a form of tolerant affection. Too fragile to mix with others, she was brought up at home. Tutors furnished her education. The winters she passed abroad with her mother. When her mother died she spent them with relations or friends. The grim dampness of the English climate was too rigorous for a life that needed sunshine.

Angela had nothing in common with either her brother or her sister. She avoided them and they her. They did not understand her. She understood them only too well. A nature that craved for sympathy and affection—as the frail so often do—was repulsed by those to whom affection was but a form and sympathy a term of reproach.

It was on her first homecoming since her mother's death that her attention was really drawn to her father's Irish possessions.

By a curious coincidence she returned home on a day when Wilberforce Kingsnorth had delivered an electrical speech, invoking Providence to interpose in the settlement of the Irish difficulty. He was noted for his hatred of the Irish. It was the one topic of conversation throughout dinner. And it was during that dinner that Angela for the first time really angered her father and raised a barrier between them that lasted until the day of his death.

The old man had laughed coarsely at the remembrance of his speech on the previous night and licked his lips at the thought of it.

Monica, who was visiting her father for a few days, smiled in agreeable sympathy. Nathaniel nodded cheerfully.

From her father's side Angela asked quietly:

"Have you ever been in Ireland, father?"

"No, I have not," answered the old man sharply. "And, what is more, I never intend to go there."

"Do you know anything about the Irish?" persisted Angela.

"Do I? More than the English government does. Don't I own land there?"

"I mean do you know anything about the people?" insisted Angela.

"I know them to be a lot of thieving, rascally scoundrels, too lazy to work and too dishonest to pay their way even when they have the money."

"Is that all you know?"

"Isn't it enough?" His voice rose shrilly. It was the first time for years any one had dared use those two hated words "Ireland" and "Irish" at his table. Angela must be checked and at once.

"It wouldn't be enough for me if I had the responsibilities and duties of a landlord. To be the owner of an estate should be to act as the people's friend, their father, their adviser in times of plenty and their comrade in times of sorrow."

"Indeed! And pray where did you learn all that, miss?" asked the astonished parent.

Without noticing the interruption or the question, Angela went on: "Why deny a country its own government when England is practically governed by its countrymen? Is there any position of prominence today in England that isn't filled by Irishmen? Think! Our commander in chief is Irish; our lord high admiral is Irish; there are the defenses of the English in the hands of two Irishmen, and yet you call them thieving and rascally scoundrels!"

Kingsnorth tried to speak; Angela raised her voice:

"Turn to your judges—the lord chief is an Irishman. Look at the house of commons. Our laws are passed or defeated by the Irish vote, and yet so blindly ignorant and obstinate is our insular prejudice that we refuse them the favors they do us—governing themselves as well as England."

Kingsnorth looked at his daughter aghast. Treason in his own house! His child speaking the two most hated of all words at his own dinner table and in laudatory terms! He could scarcely believe it. He looked at her a moment and then thundered:

"How dare you! How dare you!"

Angela smiled a little amusedly tolerant smile as she looked frankly at her father and answered:

"This is exactly the old fashioned tone we English take to anything we don't understand. And that is why other countries are leaving us in the race. There is a nation living within a few hours' journey from our doors, yet millions of English people are as ignorant of them as if they lived in Senegambia." She paused, looked once more straight into her father's eyes and said, "And you, father, seem to be as ignorant as the worst of them!"

"Angela!" cried her sister in horror.

Nathaniel laughed good naturedly, leaned across to Angela and said:

"I see our little sister has been reading the sensational magazines. Yes?"

"I've done more than that," replied Angela. "In Nice a month ago were two English members of parliament who had taken the trouble to visit the country they were supposed to assist in governing. They told me that a condition of misery existed throughout the whole of Ireland that was incredible under a civilized government."

"Radicals, eh?" snapped her father.

"No; Conservatives. One of them had once held the office of chief secretary for Ireland and was Ireland's most bitter prosecutor until he visited the country. When he saw the wretchedness of her people he stopped his stringent methods and began casting about for some way of lessening the poor people's torment."

"The more shame to him to talk like that to a girl. And, what's more, you had no right to listen to him. A Conservative indeed! A fine one he must be!"

"He is. I don't see why the Liberal party should have all the enlightenment and the Conservative party all the bigotry."

"Don't anger your father!" pleaded Monica.

"Why, little Angela has come back to us quite a revolutionary," said Nathaniel.

"Leave the table!" shouted her father.

Without a word Angela got up quietly and left the room. Her manner was entirely unmoved. She had spoken from her inmost convictions. The fact that they were opposed to her father was immaterial. She loathed tyranny, and his method of shutting the mouths of those who disagreed with him was particularly obnoxious to her. It was also most ineffectual with her. From childhood she had always spoken as she felt. No discipline checked her. Freedom of speech as well as freedom of thought was as natural and essential to her as breathing.

From that time she saw but little of her father. When he died he left her to her brother's care. Kingsnorth made no absolute provision for her. She was to be dependent on Nathaniel.

When the time came that she seemed to wish to marry, if her brother approved of the match, he should make a handsome settlement on her.

In response to her request Nathaniel allowed her to go with him to Ireland on his tour of inspection.

Mr. Chichester was actively engaged at the Old Bailey on an important criminal case, so Monica also joined them.

Everything Angela saw in Ireland appealed to her quick sympathy and gentle heart. It was just as she had thought and read and listened to. On every side she saw a kindly people borne down by the weight of poverty, lives ruined by sickness and the lack of nourishment—a splendid race perishing through misgovernment and intolerant ignorance.

Angela went about among the people and made friends with them. They were chary at first of taking her to their hearts. She was of the hated Saxon race. What was she doing there—she, the sister of their, till now, absentee landlord? She soon won them over by her appealing voice and kindly interest.

All this Angela did in direct opposition to her brother's wishes and her sister's exhortations.

The morning of the meeting she had ridden some miles to visit a poor family. Out of five three were in bed with low fever. She got a doctor for them, gave them money to buy necessaries, and, with a promise to return the next day, she rode away.

When within some little distance of her brother's house she saw a steady, irregular stream of people climbing a great hill. She rode toward it and, screened by a clump of trees, saw and heard her first "home rule" meeting.

When Frank O'Connell first spoke his voice thrilled her. Gradually the excitement of the people under the mastery of his power communicated itself to her. It pulsed in her blood and throbbed in her brain. For the first time she realized what a marvelous force was the call of the patriot. To listen and watch a man risking life and liberty in the cause of his country—her heart and her mind and her soul went out to him.

When the soldiers marched on to the scene she was paralyzed with fear. When an order to fire was given she wanted to ride into their midst and cry out to them to stop. But she was unable to move hand or foot.

When the smoke had thinned and she saw lying motionless on the ground the bodies of men who a moment before had been full of life and strength; when was added to that the horror of the wounded crying out with pain, her first impulse was to fly from the sight of the carnage. She mastered that moment of fear and plunged forward, calling to the groom to follow her. She ordered the body of O'Connell, who had been hit, taken to her own home.

The long, slow, tortuous journey home, the men slowly following with the ghastly, mute body on the rude litter, became a living memory to her for all the remainder of her life.

She glanced down every little while at the stone white face and shuddered as she found herself wondering if she would ever hear his voice again or see those great blue eyes flash with his fierce courage and devotion.

As they neared her brother's house stragglers began to follow curiously. Sad looking men and weary women joined the procession wonderingly. All guessed it was some fresh outrage of the soldiers.

It seemed to Angela that an infinity of time had passed before they entered the grounds attached to the Kingsnorth house. She sent a man on ahead to order a room to be prepared and a doctor sent for. As she saw her brother coming forward to meet her with knit brows and stern eyes she nerved herself to greet him.

"What is this, Angela?" he asked, looking in amazement at the strange procession.

"Another martyr to our ignorant government, Nathaniel," and she pressed on through the drive to the house.

SOCIETY IN PARIS BALL.

Washington, Reb. 5—A costume ball and carnival, an exact reproduction of a student ball in the Parisian Latin Quarter, will follow the entertainment to be given tonight for the aid of families of French artists engaged in the European war. Washington is agog with excitement, for the event promises to be the big gathering of the winter of social and political leaders in the capital. The entertainment is given by the Society of Beaux Arts Architects, assisted by the American Institute of Architects, and the Washington Society of Artists. The big ballroom at the New Willard has been turned into a real French cabaret, with a state at one end. Madame Yvonne de Treville of the Opera Comique, of Paris, will sing French songs. The costumes will bedeck social leaders and government officials as Herlequins, Columbines, Pierrots, Pietettes, with all their carnival friends, with peasants, students, artists, priests, nuns, gendarmes, bohemians, dancers and soldiers in the present and past garb of the armies of France.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

In his production of William Anthony McGuire's story entitled, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," Gus Hill has given the play-going public a war drama without a line or action contrary to our national laws of neutrality. It is as thrilling as "Shenandoah" and as Irish as "Arrah-Na-Pogue." Mother's love is its foundation and devotion to flag and country its dominating power. Allen Doone's childhood sweetheart Kathleen has become a woman to all but him. It requires a tragedy to awaken in him a complete realization that her love is and always has been next to mother's. The songs that are dear to all true Irish hearts are sung by Doone and his regimental companions. The cruel and unjus. accusation against Allen is brought home to its guilty instigator, and Private Doone is made a sergeant and ordered to his regiment, while little Kathleen becomes a Red Cross nurse. It is a clean play all the way through, such a one as grandma and "kiddies" can enjoy without harm. It comes to the Plainfield Theatre tonight.

"The Little Cafe," with John E. Young, is to be offered at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night, as it was given during its run of nearly a year in Manhattan. The splendid musical hit reveals the new forces and tendencies of the time in theatrical entertainment. Beyond such details it is too well known as a marked success to require further introduction. It is interesting to note the many hands that have been utilized in welding it into a satisfactory whole. The story originally traces itself to "Le Petit Cafe," a farce by Tristan Bernard, of the Parisian stage. C. M. S. McLellan adapted it for the American stage, Ivan Caryll adapted it for America's musical score, Klaw & Erlanger made the production and Herbert Gresham staged it for them, while Julian Mitchell looked after the girl number and ensembles. The other experts of Klaw & Erlanger forces contributed additional details and the entirety has set a new pace for success upon the stage. The producers have wisely kept their big hit intact. The original production and company of over 100 people remains in every part the same. The curtain will rise promptly at 8.

THE DAILY PRESS IN DUNELLEN will be found on sale or delivered to any address every afternoon by Edward Pen[illegible] dealer and newsboy.

Animal Jingles

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

BY ALICE CREW GALL

Betty Bear

I don't suppose there ever was a young child anywhere
Who gave her folks more trouble than little Betty Bear.

Each morning after breakfast she'd go outdoors to play,
And when her mother's back was turned she always ran away.

She'd run away off to the woods, and wander all around;
Then all the family'd stop their work and hunt till she was found.

They tied her to the front gate post with a stout rope, and though
She hated this, when they untied the rope, away she'd go.

One time when she ran off, she met a wicked Bumble-Bee,
Who lived with all his relatives down in a hollow tree.

He said: "How would you like to have some honey nice and sweet?
Come home with me and you shall have as much as you can eat."

Of course she went, but when she got near Mister Bumble's tree,
His relatives flew out at her, as mad as they could be.

They stung poor Betty Bear until she almost died from pain.
She moaned: "If ever I get home I'll not run off again."

A "stinging" lesson such as this is very hard to bear,
So any child who runs away had better have a care.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Muriel Fisk answered the bell. At the door stood a tall, smooth shaven man in a light gray suit.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Morse, where did you drop from?" she said, extending her hand. "Come in. "Father, this is one of the directors in the district where I taught," addressing an invalid in the easy chair.

"Now, Mr. Morse," she continued, "mother is away and I am housekeeper and was getting supper. I would like to have you stay and drink a cup of tea with us."

"I should be delighted." The young man was greatly pleased.

"You will excuse me?" and the girl disappeared through the kitchen door.

Left alone with the father, young Morse put forth all his powers to entertain, and soon the pallid face lighted up and when the unusual sound of her father's laughter floated to the kitchen, Muriel stopped to listen, a pleased smile on her face. When the baking powder biscuits, honey and creamed potatoes were on the table, and the guest had assisted the friendly old man to his place, they sat down. The level rays of the setting sun shone on the girl's head and brought out the red brown of her hair.

"Miss Fisk, I was down to the city on business today, and ran up here to see if I could get you to sign a contract to teach our school next year. We expect to lengthen the term to nine months," said the visitor.

"I have made application for a position in the graded schools here at home," replied Muriel. "Of course, I should much prefer that to district school."

"We would make your salary the same as you could get here," replied the director eagerly.

"Thank you, but I could be at home if I secured this position. I really can not sign now," replied Muriel quietly.

All the while the girl was washing the dishes Morse talked earnestly in low tones to her father. Only scraps of the conversation reached her ears. She heard her father say:

"It is a matter that will be left entirely in Muriel's hands for discussion. Her happiness is the thing we would consider."

She could not get Morse's reply, for he had his back to her, but her father answered, "Character would count for much more than money with her, and of course with us, Mr. Morse." Then Muriel came into the room and the conversation ceased.

Presently Mrs. Fisk returned and the young people went for a walk.

"Miss Fisk," began Morse, looking down on the bare headed girl in the simple white dres as they walked along the path by the river, "you can't imagine how happy it makes me to see you again. Haven't you missed me?"

"Yes indeed! I thought at first I should have to hire a small boy to propose to me to enable me to sleep nights. I missed something from the evening program," and she looked mischievously into his eager face.

"If you will teach our school I'll engage"—— "To engage a continuous performance," interrupted the girl. "The trouble is that I do not like vaudeville, and you are not good in heavier work, and only fair in comedy."

"Do you mean there is something about me that would keep you from caring for me?" he asked.

"I am afraid so. I do not trust you, you see. I should never dare to have a young lady school teacher come to town for fear you would make love to her from force of habit," she said seriously.

"Can't you see that it will be diffent now? I never loved anybody before; I only pretended to care."

"You loved them all well enough until you won them. You are the kind of man upon whom possession palls. What you enjoy is the race, the struggle, and the longer and more exciting it is, the more you think you want what you are striving for. The minute you won me, you would lose interest. I care too much for your friendship to lose you that way," answered the girl.

"Thank you for that much of an admission," exclaimed Morse.

"Now I think it is my turn to propose," she laughed. "If you really care for me and want my friendship you must earn it. You must build up my faith in you from the bottom."

"I'll do anything," he began eagerly.

"My proposal is, that we be friends for a year. I will answer your letters if there is not a word of love in them, and if I teach here you may come as a guest on the same terms, and we will get acquainted. I really do not know whether you are capable of consecutive thinking on any other subject except your specialty, love making. If I ever marry, I insist on having a man who can deepen my interest in the broad topics of the world, a man who can command my respect."

"It's a bargain," he cried, extending his hand. "I see that to win you I must use all the resources at my command. Well, it's worth trying for, Muriel."

Household Hints

GOOD DISHES OUT OF TIN CANS

Salmon Loaf—One medium-sized onion, one tall can salmon, one egg, one tablespoon vinegar, one cup bread or cracker crumbs, salt and pepper to taste, two ounces salt pork chopped fine. Mix all ingredients together, mold into round or square loaf, bake slowly one hour. Garnish with lettuce leaves or parsley and serve hot. Also good cold.

Salmon Patties—One can salmon, one cup mashed potatoes, one medium-sized onion, one egg, one cup cracker crumbs, pepper and salt. Mix well together, form into patties and fry in very hot fat until a golden brown.

Escaloped Salmon—One can salmon, one can tomatoes; arrange in alternate layers, season with salt, pepper and piece of salt pork, size of egg chopped fine. Add liquid from both cans. Cover top with bread or cracker crumbs, dot with butter and bake till done—about 1½ hours, slowly.

Salmon Toast—Put some butter in sauce pan, and 2½ cups milk. Let come to a boil, thicken with flour, add one cup salmon minced fine; salt and pepper to taste. Pour over slices of toast and serve. Very good for breakfast.

Salmon Salad—One tall can salmon, one large onion, one lemon, one hard-boiled egg. Garnish salad dish with lettuce or parsley and, after mixing salmon, onion and lemon together, put into dish; on top put the egg cut in slices.

MEAT ECONOMY.

So much has been said of the high cost of living and ways of reducing the same, that I want to add my mite. Not every housewife knows of the many uses the despised soupbone (or shank) can be put to.

Buy a shank (which will cost 35 cents). Boil till meat comes from bones freely. Put in a basin and put a weight on, first pouring on a part of the stock the bones were boiled in. When cold it will form a solid cake, held together by the stock. Cut in thick slices as needed to form the following dishes:

Take one slice, run through food chopper, add twice the quantity of potato and a small onion to make a nice hash.

Add a little water to one slice of the meat cut in small pieces; add thickening to make a gravy; pour all over small squares of toast. Very nice for breakfast.

Take off meat slices enough, added to the stock the shank was boiled in, to make a quart or more of the meat (cut in squares) and and gravy; place all in pan or large basin, make a rich dough, cut in small biscuits, place on top of gravy and bake till biscuits are done. When serving, it is much nices than the old way.

Take off the meat, run through food chopper, season with salt, pepper and sage, add an egg well beaten, mix together, form into small cakes, fry in hot fat till brown on both sides.

If you like liver, fry, dipping slices in well beaten egg, then rolling in cracker crumbs in place of flour or meal.

WORTH KNOWING

In roasting fowl in oven you will find by wrapping a little cloth around legs, wings and neck all the juicy flavor is retained and, when placed on table, no dry parts or overbaked.

Readily Seeded Raisins—Put them in dish, pour boiling water over, cover and let remain ten minutes. It will soften them so that by rubbing each raisin between the thumb and finger the seeds will come out perfectly clean. Raisins are then ready for chopping or cutting.

CHILDREN'S HATS.

The prettiest bonnets for framing wee faces are shown now in the shops. They are made of silks in dainty shades. Two examples are shown in the above drawing, the one was made of pink satin taffeta shirred at a crown centre on the wide crown and at the joining of crown and brim; the latter was bound with a bias piece of shirred taffeta in self-tone. One huge large leafed pink velvet flower with attendant foliage was placed directly at the front and was the bonnet's sole trimming. White grosgrain covered the other little shape and was hand-embroidered in tiny flowers. The trimming of this was a wreath of vari-colored posies above a band of white ostrich feathers.

GYMNASTICS IN CHURCH TRIAL.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 8—The resources of legal precedure, vast and bewildering to the laity, are likely to be heavily drawn upon in the church trial of Rev. Dr. George Chalmers Richmond of St. Johns Episcopal Church, who is cited to appear before the church tribunal on charges of violation of his ordination vow and conduct unbecoming a clergyman. Hearing is set for today on his demurrer against the ecclesistical charges that had been preferred against him. Arguments will be presented on both sides. From the official "triers" of the diocese five must be drawn by lot, and these are subject to challenge. It is believed that the selection of the jury will bring forth some bitter controversy, and it is improbable that the actual trial of the clergyman will get under way in less than two weeks.

COUNTY'S SHARE IS NOT TO EXCEED $5,000

Freeholders to Erect Concrete Arch Bridge on Grove Street.

Elizabeth, Feb. 5.—Union county's share of the new inter-county bridge at Grove street, over Green Brook, Plainfield, is not to exceed $5,000, according to the report adopted by the Board of Freeholders yesterday, and submitted by the committee which conferred with the somerset Board of Freeholders. The report stated that the bridge is thirty-two years old, is badly in need of repair, and is altogether too light for the present traffic on it. A new concrete arch bridge is to be built which is to have a fifty foot span.

The Elizabeth Charity Organization Society sent a request to the Board for a conference relative to enlarging the jail for the benefit of juvenile delinquents and witnesses who are at present brought in contact with old offenders because of lack of room. The matter was referred to the public grounds and buildings committee.

A resolution was adopted providing that a committee of three be appointed to examine culverts at North avenue, near Leland avenue, Plainfield, and at Seventh and Richmond streets, Plainfield. The county attorney was instructed to take up with Morris county the question of a $600 claim Union county holds for the maintenance of a Morris county patient at Bonnie Burn Sanatorium, Scotch Plains. The Board was invited to a mosquito extermination conference at Atlantic City, February 17-18.

The directors of the Y. M. C. A., at a meeting in the association building last night, elected these officers for the coming year: President, William D. Murray; vice-president, Howard McWilliams; recording secretary, Clarence W. Spicer; treasurere, John H. Doane.

The reports from the different committees and secretaries showed that the interest in the various activities of the association are greater than at any time during the season. General Secretary H. E. Parker, who has resigned, will go to Passaic about the middle of the month to take a similar position with the Y. M. C. A. at that place.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — THEY LANDED IN LONDON AT ABOUT THE SAME TIME — BY "HOP"

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Topsfield, Mass.—No woman in the Old World or the New watches with more interest than Mrs. Marion Wentworth Peirce Pentecost, of this town, the news of the naval encounters between Great Britain and Germany. Somewhere in European waters a squadron of six armed vessels of the British naval reserve is cruising under the command of her husband, Captain Ernest H. Pentecost, of the Royal Naval Reserve. Captain Pentecost's regular term of service expired 10 months ago, at which time he was decorated by King George. But at the outbreak of the war he voluntarily returned to his post. Mrs. Pentecost was the daughter of Col. Thomas W. Peirce, who left an estate valued at $6,000,000. Though the captain is devoted to England, he has made his home here, where Mrs. Pentecost has had built a stately mansion patterned after old English manors, and where she is now patiently awaiting the return of her sailor husband.

Ardmore, Okla.—Two sisters, Eula and Carrie Roland, aged 19 and 17 respectively, although handicapped by being deaf and dumb, are attracting wide attention here by the remarkable careers they are making for themselves. Miss Eula has already won local fame as a painter, a recent exhibit of her paintings having called much favorable comment, and immediately after the war she intends to go abroad to continue her studies. Her sister, Miss Carrie, is completing a course that will equip her to become a teacher of domestic science in schools for the deaf and dumb.

Chicago—Out of the city's 1,000,000 women, seven have been picked out by the rash masculine managers of the Fashion Show as the best-dressed women and best judges of chic in Chicago. They are: Mesdames Lockwood Honore, Bertram Winston, Leroy Fuller, John A. Carpenter, Richard T. Fox, J. Lewis Cochran and Harold Howard, who will occupy an artistically decorated jury box Monday evening at the show's opening and pass on Chicago's most beautiful models, wearing the finest gowns Chicago manufacturers can produce. The show, which is engaging the hearty interest and patronage of representative society women, will be open all week. For the first time in Chicago, the new wark, called the 'glide militaire,' which has entirely dislodged the "debutante slouch," will be shown, with the beautiful models as its exponents.

Nashua, N. H.—A triple wedding, to take place at the same service Tuesday, will make benedicts of three brothers and wives of three pretty French Canadian girls, two of whom are sisters and the third a cousin of the other two. The bridegrooms are Alfred, Evremond and Ernest Delude, and the brides, Misses Josephine and Clorinde Lafrance and Delia Levesque.

San Francisco—Mrs. Anita M. Baldwin, heiress to half the $25,000,000 estate of the late "Lucky" Baldwin, is engaged in the plan she has long had in mind of breeding blooded Percheron horses at her ranch near Los Angeles. Two famed Percherons, Jusque and Margio, were recently purchased by Mrs. Baldwin for $9,000. Entries from her ranch will be a feature of the stock show at the Exposition.

Berryville, Va.—Mrs. Bettie Van Metre, still quick and hale in spite of snow upon her head, is very happy over the unexpected tribute paid her by the Vermont Legislature, for a kind act performed 50 years ago. During the Civil War, Mrs. Van Metre, then a young Southern girl of 20, befriended a Federal officer, Lieut. Henry E. Bedell, of Westfield, Vt., who had been wounded dangerously and then carried to a home whose southern sympathies were so strong that he was left for three days without care. The young girl, in spite of adverse criticism, nursed the wounded Northerner back to health. A recent resolution passed by the Vermont Legislature embodied the thanks of the State for the unselfish devotion of the Virginia girl of 50 years ago.

Chicago—Some loophole in the law requiring women to tell their ages when registering as voters, has been this week the special search of gallant County Judge Thomas F. Scully. "The age is required merely as a matter of identification," says Judge Scully, "and is not essential. I will not under any circumstances go outside the law, but I believe some provision will be found by which we can omit the age declaration. It would greatly encourage registration, and I will make a ruling soon on the matter."

Asking Too Much of the Bank.

The officials of the English savings bank department, a correspondent writes, occasionally find themselves regarded as a kind of universal purveyors. A depositor sent his bank book with this modest request: "There are some little things I should like to get from London, and one is some natural leaf tobacco. I should be glad if you will send two ounces and charge to my account. It is only to be obtained in the largest tobacco stores." We failed to comply with his wishes, whereupon he wrote an indignant letter to the comptroller of our department.—Manchester Guardian.

Languages of India.

One hundred and fifty different languages are spoken in India, most of them unwritten, and this fact frequently leads to trouble in the courts of that oriental country. Strangely enough, Indians frequently drift into that capital who can find no one able to understand their vernacular. Neither the court nor the court interpreters understand some of the litigants and witnesses in legal cases.

Obnoxious Presumption.

"Why did your sister drop her welfare work?"

"While she was out trying to uplift the children of other people another welfare worker came along and tried to uplift her children."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Flowers.

Slowest—Virginia creeper, trailing arbutus.

Most sedate—Jack In the Pulpit.

Dopiest—Poppy.

Most active—Johnny Jumpup.

Most taciturn—Chrysanthemum.—Detroit News.

Chemistry Kindergarten.

Bobby—Is oxygen what oxen breathe all day? Papa—Of course, and what everything else breathes. Bobby—And is nitrogen what every one breathes at night?

Different Ways.

Hewitt—I have been pinched for money lately. Jewitt—Well, women have different ways of getting it. My wife kisses me when she wants any.

There is not a single moment in this life that we can afford to lose.—Coulburn.

BORO ASSESSORS MAKE A REPORT

Commissioners Appointed by Council Complete Their Work.

SEWER BILL PRESENTED

Council Authorizes Payment of Its Share—Verdon Street Property Owners Want Sewers—Sidewalk on Wilson Avenue.

North Plainfield's sewer commission, consisting of W. J. Buttfield, George T. Rogers, Joseph O. Osgood and S. St. John McCutcheon, reported on the work done during the past year at last night's meeting of the Borough Council and made a request that they be relieved from further responsibility. The communication was acted upon and favorably accepted by the Council and a vote of thanks was extended to the retiring members. Overseer of the Poor Fred Becker was granted a $300 advance on the poor account and the following report was received from the Joint Sewer Commission for the month of January: Total expenditure, $2,764.67; Plainfield's share (68 per cent), $1,869.97; borough's share (25 per cent.), $691.17; Dunellen's share (7 per cent.), $193.53.

A license for the establishment of an employment agency at 22 Somerset place was granted to Mrs. Anna Keller. Bids for the furnishing of stone will be received at the March meeting, according to an announcement made last night.

The report from the commissioners appointed by the Council to fix assessments along West End avenue was received last night and the Council authorized the payment of a fee of $10 each to Thomas S. Armstrong, James L. Love and William C. Smith, the commissioners. The improvement work on West End avenue between Rockview avenue and Greenbrook road will entail no property damage, according to the report filed by the commission. The property included in the proposed macadamizing is owned by W. J. Buttfield, West End Heights Improvement Company, William L. Smalley, Newton B. Smalley and the borough.

A petition was received from residents of Verdon street living between Fairview and Summit avenues for the installation of proper sewers while the joint sewer work is in progress. Seven houses and a number of vacant lots are affected.

The clerk has been authorized to send out notices to property owners on Wilson avenue notifying them to lay sidewalks between now and June 1, 1915. The police committee reported an expenditure of $513.05 during the month of January and it required $328.92 to keep the fire department in running order.

BIG REALTY DEAL CLOSED AT FANWOOD

As soon as the weather permits work will be started on the erection of five modern dwellings. The Lockwood Company expect during the coming year to erect a number of new dwellings in the Fanwood section, while several other houses are now in process of being completed.

Several Reductions Suggested to Council by Mayor Clark.

Reductions amounting to nearly $4,000 were made in the tentative budget introduced by Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., in the Borough Council, last night, the total amount being set at $49,065.71 for 1915. Included in the cuts are the police, fire and street funds and the interest on notes. In turning the budget over to the Council, Mayor Clark explained the various changes and all met with the unanimous approval of the councilmen.

At the present time an unexpended balance of $1,283.71 remains in the treasury and the appropriation of $4,500. Last year the street department had several thoroughfares to macadamize and in view of the completion and payment of this work the street appropriation was cut down to $9,000.

PROPERTY OWNERS MUST CLEAN WALKS

City Departments Combine in Effort to Enforce Ordinance.

Mayor Leighton Calkins has notified the city street department to take drastic steps in an effort to make property-owners comply with the law and clear ice and slush from their sidewalks. Portions of the pavement in various parts of the city, it is said, being impassable at the present time. Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett, Chief of Police Kiely and Judge DeMeza announced this morning, that offenders would be dealt with severely, the city magistrate declaring that those brought before him for neglecting their walks would probably be subjected to penalties provided by the city ordinance.

In an interview with a Daily Press reporter today, Mayor Calkins said:

"Three hundred and more snow-removal violations have been reported by the police since my notice published in both papers last Wednesday. In addition, a number of complaints have been made by property-owners. Everybody will have a good chance to clean sidewalks today or tomorrow during the mild weather, but beginning next week, the police department will strictly enforce the ordinance, on reports from street commissioner or patrolmen. Persons convicted of violating the ordinance by failure to clean off sidewalks are subject to a fine. In the meantime the street commissioner, under instructions, is clearing off the walks of delinquent property-owners as fast as possible, but this will not relieve the property-owners of their responsibility in the matter."

SEMI-ANNUAL SOCIAL.

The intermediate department of Trinity Reformed Sunday-school held its semi-annual social in the Sunday-school rooms last night. The affair was largely attended by scholars and teachers and the instrumental program rendered was thoroughly enjoyed. Rev. John Y. Broek and Frederick E. Smith made addresses. Mrs Edmund Young sang two solos, and violin and cornet solos were rendered by Charles Todd and Edmund Young. Carman Trembath gave several entertaining recitations. After the affair refreshments were served and games were played.

POLICE STILL SEEK "DAYLIGHT BURGLAR"

John Wainwright, the Suspect in Trenbath Robbery, Remains at Large.

Nothing of a substantial nature has been revealed by the police in their efforts to establish the identity and whereabouts of the "jack of all trades," who looted the home of the Misses Trenbath, 519 Central avenue while they were in school Thursday morning. It was stated this morning that the "swag" taken by the crook will probably reach a total value of over $1,000, the haul being the largest one made in this city since the Ackerman robbery, January 3, 1914

Sergeant Maurice Higgins has been detailed to the case by Chief Kiely and it is the opinion of the police that the "trick" was turned by John Wainwright, a trusted, although unknown employe of the victims. Higgins has been engaged in tracing the man's activities during his four months' residence in Plainfield and further revelations are expected by nightfall. The rumor that he was seen coming from the Central avenue house at noon has proven groundless and it is now a certainty that he left Plainfield about 10 o'clock, doing the job between 8:30 and 9:30. He called at a Park avenue lunch wagon before he went to the Trenbath home and asked to be allowed to leave his suitcase there. According to the proprietor of the wagon, he returned about 10 o'clock and took them with him. From that time nothing further is known of the man's actions. Efforts to find out whether he left the city by trolley or train have proven futile and the authorities only have meagre clues to follow.

According to the police, the burglarizing of the Trenbath home was not the work of a "finished crook." Although his plans were carefully laid the operation was a crude one.

SEWER MONEY SPLIT BETWEEN TWO BANKS

$25,000 of Fund in State Trust Company Transferred to Plainfield Trust.

Culminating a discussion at the February meeting of the Borough Council, last night, the transfer of $25,000 worth of joint sewerage money from The State Trust Company to The Plainfield Trust Company was authorized, the latter amount to be maintained as a permanent fund in that institution. The remainder of the money will be left in a segregated account in The State Trust Company.

When the original resolution was introduced by Councilman Tingley it was immediately opposed by Councilman Milne. The latter threatened to introduce a resolution transferring the collecting system's $100,000 to some other local bank if Mr. Tingley's resolution was adopted.

Mr. Milne's protest resulted in the drawing of an amendment to the original document calling for the transfer of $50,000 of the $100,000 in collecting system money from The State Trust Company to the City National Bank. It was turned down by a vote of the Council.

In explanation, Mr. Milne said that it would only be prudence on the part of the Council to split up the money between local banking institutions as much as possible and in this way the whole system would not be tied up if anything went wrong.

HOPE CHAPEL ATHLETE BREAKS HIS COLLAR BONE

Albert Martin, the 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin, of West Third street, met with a painful accident, while practising for a basketball game on the floor of the Hope chapel gymnasium, last night. In a scrimmage with several other players he was knocked down with great force, landing on his shoulders. When picked up it was found that he had been seriously hurt and was at once removed to his home.

Dr. Albert Pittis was summoned and found on examination, that Martin had broken his collar-bone in two places. The usual remedies were adopted to bring knitting about, but it will be more than a month before the young man is able to get around again.

HOW MEN FIGHT IN THE TRENCHES

Descriptive Letter Read at Prince of Wales Relief Committee Meeting.

PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWN

Plainfield Women Spend Profitable Afternoon Knitting Garments for Soldiers of the Allied Armies—Next Meeting on February 19.

The New Jersey branch of the Prince of Wales Relief Committee for soldiers and sailors held another meeting at the home of Mrs. Noel C. Evans, of Third place, yesterday afternoon. It was the sixth that has taken place in this city since the branch was formed last October and the attendance of members of which there were about 50, indicates the creased interest that is being shown. The committee has a membership in Plainfield and vicinity of 160.

The afternoon was spent in knitting garments for the soldiers of the Allied armies and more than 50 were prepared, making the total which the Plainfield branch has made and collected more than 1,100. They include sweaters, helmets, mufflers, wristlets and stockings. These are sent to the St. George headquarters in New York and from there forwarded directly to the relief stations in France and Belgium.

During the meeting two interesting letters were read, one by Mrs. Charles B. Freeman and the other by Miss Campbell, of the borough. The one by Mrs. Freeman described the work that is being done at Mrs. Depew's hospital in France. It is located in what was formerly her beautiful chateau and to which place the very worst cases are brought. The penned description was made more vivid by a series of photographs which accompanied the letter.

The second epistle was from Miss Campbell's fiance, who is an officer in the British army. At the present time he is a convalescent in a hospital, having been wounded shortly after Christmas. In the letter he told in a graphic manner how the men fight in the trenches and what their work comprises. It was one of the most interesting communications of the kind that the committee has heard.

At the close of the afternoon, tea was served by Mrs. Evans with the assistance of several of the members. The next meeting of the committee will be held at the home of Mrs. S. S. Carvalho, on West Eighth street, February 19, and all who are interested in the work of the branch are invited to attend. The secretary is Mrs. Edward Delafield, of Sherman avenue, and she would be pleased to furnish any information required.

MASON'S RECEPTION LARGELY ATTENDED

Annual Entertainment and Dance of Anchor Lodge Enjoyed by Many.

Members of Anchor Loge, No. 149, Free and Accepted Masons, and their families and friends to the number of seven hundred in all, enjoyed the hospitaliy of the organization at the annual entertainment and dance, last night. The affair was held in the spacious new auditorium at the Plainfield High School and in every respect was the most successful the good and welfare committee of Anchor lodge has ever conducted.

The entertainment portion of the program was furnished by professional talent and opened the festivities at 8:15. The artists were all of exceptional merit, each number receiving hearty applause. Eddi Foy, a favorite in Plainfield, gave an exhibition of lightning cartoon work, mixed in wit "cheerful and chatter," and also cleverly impersonated a German Senator giving his views on American politics, the European war and other timely subjects. Miss Mabel Burke sang a series of excellent solos in a charming voice and Hadley & Bond, a live wire team of musical comedy artists, delighted the audience with instrumental selections and a lot of cross-fire talk that produced roars of laughter. The team concluded the program with a farcial skit, "Brother Against Brother," full of funny lines and comical situations.

J. Steven Higham, chairman of the entertainment committee, acted as master of ceremonies and at the close of the entertainment at 10 o'clock announced that dancing was in order. More than half of the large gathering remained to participate in the card of modern accompaniments provided by Fischer's orchestra. It was after midnight before the affair came to a termination. Even then many of the guests were loth to leave as the smooth floor of the big auditorium offered enticing advantages for good dancing. The invitations sent out for the affair stated that if any attendant did not have a good time the committee would cheerfully offer an apology. Up to noon today, not even the faintest whisper of discontent had reached the ears of Masonic Brethren.

The reception was arranged and conducted by a committee composed of J. Steven Highan, chairman; William M. Maxim and E. H. Dean, each of whom was warmly congratulated for the manner in which every detail had been provided for.

DESCRIBES TRIP TO HONOLULU AND JAPAN

Miss Mead Gives First of Four Talks at the Y. W. C. A.

Starting from San Francisco, Miss Margaret Mead, took an interested group of listeners on a trip to Honolulu, the Hawaiin Island and Japan, in an informal talk at the Y. W. C. A. parlors, last night. She described the countries visited, the natives, their customs and characteristics in a pleasing manner and illustrated many of her topics with picture postcards and pamphlets.

Miss Mead made the trip last year, on the Pacific Mail Steamship Company steamer, "Manchuria," a boat of 27,000 tons, operating on "the sunshine belt of the Orient," between San Francisco, Honolulu, Japan, China and Manila. Next Friday night, Miss Mead will give her second talk, of a series of four which she has arranged, and the next one promises to be even more entertaining than the one last evening.

WOMAN'S EXCHANGE FUND EXCEEDS $100

More Pledges for Good Cause Received by Daily Press Today.

Sixty dollars more has been received by the Daily Press since yesterday in pledges toward the $1,000 fund which it is hoped to raise to continue the work of the Woman's Exchange in this city. As has already been told, this institution will be compelled to discontinue business unless some of its friends come forward to see that it is properly financed through the crisis which has been reached in its career. The support fully warrants that no stone be unturned to help the work along.

Howard C. Tracy is one of those who has added his $10 pledge to the five which were received on Thursday and Friday. The plan is to ask 100 Plainfielders to subscribe ten dollars each, so that the Exchange can continue for another year, and Mr. Tracy says in sending his name in, "I am very glad to observe the interest which seems to have been aroused in the continuance, if possible, of the work of the Woman's Exchange, and lest be thought that those who have heretofore contributed to its support have, perhaps, lost their interest in it, I would say that I can be counted on for a contribution of $10.

"I am sure that if the public realizes how great a help this institution is to a large number of our citizens, the necessary funds to insure its continuance will be forthcoming.

"I am told that of about 150 consignors, at least 100 are residents of this city or its immediate vicinity, and these include those whose earnings are largest, and who would suffer most from the closing of the Exchange."

The other contributors today are Howard H. Williams, Mrs. Albert Zerega, George P. Mellick and Mr. and Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman. The list to date follows:

W. L. Smalley	$10
George S. Clay	$10
Mrs. R. A. Claybrook	$10
Seymour Perkins	$10
Anonymous	$10
Howard C. Tracy	$10
Howard H. Williams	$10
Mrs. Albert Zerega	$10
George P. Mellick	$10
Marion S. Ackerman	$10
Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman	$10
Total	$110

WILL RECEIVE DONATIONS.

The Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild will receive donations of flowers, fruit, vegetables, delicacies and anything suitable for the sick on Monday afternoon from 4 to 6 and on Tuesday morning from 9 to 10:30, in the rooms of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in the Babcock building.

BOY SCOUT ORDERS.

All members of Troop 7 are requested to report at Bethel chapel tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, in uniform, after which they will march in a body to the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, where the fifth anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America will be celebrated.

DAY QUIET ALONG BATTLE FRONT

French War Office Reports No Infantry Action and Few Artillery Duels.

WOULD BLOW UP VESSEL

Plot to Explode Bomb on La Champagne is Foiled by Wireless Message—Reported Torpedoing of English Troop Ship.

Paris, Feb. 6.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon:

"There were no infantry actions on February 5. From Arras to Rheims there were artillery conflicts which resulted in success for our troops. There has been no change in the situation in the region of Perthes and of Massigs.

"In the Argonne and in the Woevre region there have been cannonades. Our artillery dispersed convoys of the enemy and set fire to a train of 25 wagons.

"There is nothing to report on the remainder of the front. We destroyed a captive baloon within the German lines to the north of Sonepy."

A plot to blow up the French line steamer La Champagne, which has arrived at Corunna, Spain, from Mexico, was frustrated by a wireless message received aboard the ship on January 19.

Reports made by officers of the vessel when it landed are that wireless information was received that a man aboard, believed to be a German, intended to destroy the ship.

Prompt measures were taken by the captain and the man was arrested. Five dynamite bombs are said to have been found in his trunk.

Washington, Feb. 6.—A German submarine has torpedoed the former Cunard liner Campania in the English Channel, according to private advices received here. The Campania was said to have been acting as a troopship from England to France.

If pushed she could easily make nineteen or twenty knots, and in the channel service could thus, by means of her speed, avoid any submarine attack.

She was especially valuable also because she could make the run between Dover and Dunkirk in an hour and a half, and the troops on board would thus be exposed to danger of attack from the sea for a comparatively short while.

BORO FIRE CAUSES GREAT EXCITEMENT

Volunteer Firemen Arrive on Scene After the Blaze is Extinguished.

A fire caused, it is believed, by some ashes which had been taken out of a stove and placed in a wooden box started in the kitchen of Charles Fenchot's home, on South avenue, just west of Chester street, yesterday morning.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Fenchot, who cried for help. Some neighbors responded and succeeded by the use of axe and water in putting the fire out before it had gained much headway.

While the fire was at its height, Councilman Robert S. Craig and John Logan on their way to work in the office of the Levgar Structural Company, happened along. Noting the smoke pouring out of the side of the building, Mr. Craig left Mr. Logan to assist in putting the fire out while he hastened to his office and called up Assistant Chief Joseph Maier, of the local fire department.

Without wasting valuable time in giving a general alarm, Mr. Maier rushed down to the hardware store of Smalley Brothers and chartered their car. Rallying together all available volunteers, among whom were Charles Wrage, E. R. Smalley, Benjamin Vail and C. H. Smith, everybody jumped into the car and Mr. Smalley, who was driving her, opened her wide. They stopped long enough at fire headquarters to place some chemicals in the car and they were off again.

Tearing along North avenue and into Bound Brook road no respect was shown at all by Smalley for the speed laws of the borough. One citizen who did not know the reason for the reckless driving was heard to remark that a sentence of twenty years a piece was the only medicine for such fellows.

The volunteers came near coming to grief at the point where Chestnut street joins Bound Brook road, as Smalley took the corner at almost top speed. The machine skidded across the snow covered roadway almost into a deep ditch, Smalley regaining control of her just in time.

Despite the record time made in getting to the scene of the fire the blaze was out by the time the volunteers arrived. After taking the usual precautionary measures under the direction of the assistant chief, the return trip was made by the volunteers in the car at a more moderate rate to the starting point where they separated to pursue their respective vocations.

MANY GUESTS ATTEND THE SOIREE DANSANT

The Soiree Dansant held in the local theatre, Thursday evening, was one of the most delighiful affairs of the season. There were fifty couples mostly from Plainfield and this place, present.

The dansant was arranged by Mrs. Ford Eckerson, who arranged the masquerade dance of a month or so ago so successfully. The patronesses were Mrs. E. B. Latham, Mrs. John Z. Kelly, Mrs. William E. Terry, Mrs. Dr. H. C. Tuttle and Mrs. Frank R. Wynkoop. The theatre was beautifully decorated with crepe paper.

The color scheme of the decorations was pink. The contents of the refreshment booth in charge of Elmira Ratti also adhered to the color scheme, the punch being colored a delicate pink shade and the icing on the cakes being of the same color.

All of the latest dances were indulged in, music being furnished by Squires' Plainfield orchestra, until midnight.

The illustrated song dance, which was scheduled for 1 o'clock was then held. This dance is the latest thing out in New York. The name of the song was "I Want to Be in Michigan." It was sung by Charles Cregar, of Plainfield, the guests who were dancing joining in the chorus and meanwhile the various picture slides in conformity with the song were being shown, the whole creating a pretty scene and a most charming atmosphere.

EVELYN VROOM NARROWLY ESCAPES BEING SCALDED

Quick action upon the part of John Vroom, Jr., of North avenue, saved his sister, Evelyn, from being severely scalded by the contents of a kettle containing steaming hot stew on Tuesday evening. The little girl was sitting by the stove in the kitchen of the home and the kettle of stew was steaming merrily. The handle of the kettle was protruding out over the edge of the stove and somehow or other Evelyn struck it causing the kettle to tilt and capsize. Taking in the situation, John, who was standing by his sister at the time, with one hand caught the handle of the kettle and with the other pushed his sister back. A little of the contents which slopped over slightly scalded Evelyn's left limb. The scald was dressed by her mother.

All three young women are graduates of the Plainfield High School in the class of 1914.

FIRM FOUNDATION.

Nothing Can Undermine It in Plainfield.

People are sometimes slow to recognize true merit, and they cannot be blamed, for so many have been humbugged in the past. The experience of hundreds of Plainfield residents, expressed publicly through newspapers and other sources, places Doan's Kidney Pills on a firm foundation here.

A. K. Mattis, 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was troubled for years by a dull headache and pains in my head. I believe that it was due in a great measure to a bad fall I had. Nothing seemed to help me and when I read of the good work Doan's Kidney Pills were doing in similar cases, I got a supply at Randolph's Drug Store. They drove away the aches and pains and gave proof of their merit. I confirm the endorsement I gave Doan's Kidney Pills when they cured me a few years ago. The cure has been permanent."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Mattis had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

NEEDY FIND PAYING LABOR IN TEMPORARY WORKSHOP

Mrs. Percy H. Stewart has established a temporary workshop in her garage on West Eighth street, that has come nearer to the solution of the problem for the care of the unemployed than any yet attempted. Those engaged in the work at this center employ handwork in the manufacture of articles for the war refugees and local charitable needs.

Besides providing remunerative labor for those who need it the workshop turns out articles that aid the local branch of the Charity Organization, the McAll Relief Work in France, the Plainfield Needlework Guild and the war sufferers. No contributions of money have been asked for by those in charge, but individual orders for garments is solicited.

BUSINESS COLLEGE ACTIVITIES.

An indication of some relief from the business depression is evidenced in the increased attendance at the Plainfield Business College. The condition indicates returning confidence on the part of parents who are having their son or daughters prepare for the long deferred resumption of business activities.

A BOTANICAL PARADISE.

Juan Fernandez Islands Have More Than One Claim to Fame.

In the Juan Fernandez group of islands, 300 miles from Valparaiso, the Chilean government has a wireless station. Three islands comprise the group, but the name is usually applied to the largest, Mas a Tierra, closest to the mainland. Here it was that Defoe pictured Alexander Selkirk (Robinson Crusoe) in exile.

Mas a Tierra is of irregular form, about twelve miles in length, but hardly four miles across in its widest part. When seen from a distance the peak of El Yunque—the anvil—appears conspicuously in a range of precipitous mountains and attaining a height of 3,000 feet. From the summit to the base the mountain is wooded, with a wonderfully fertile valley at the foot.

Dr. Carl Skottsberg of the Swedish Magellanic expedition landed on the island in 1908, and the eminent geographer wrote subsequently that "from a botanical point of view Juan Fernandez is one of the world's most famous places. So many wonderful plants are brought together here on a small area that one must touch them to realize that one does not dream." Colonization of Juan Fernandez began some years ago, and a considerable fishing settlement is now in evidence.

The GIMBEL Annual Silk Sale (International)

Everything Combines to Make This Our Most Wonderful Event

Which Begins Monday With Many Thousands of Yards of the Most Fashionable Silks, at Prices Frequently Less Than Cost to Produce

What Our Silk Chief Tells About the Sale

"When I sailed for Europe on November 17 the American silk market was in the most demoralized condition as to prices that it had been in over 30 years. I had an idea that this condition would not last very long. I didn't know how long I should have to remain abroad, so I took pains to cover my needs for this Silk Sale before I went away. I bought heavily of the plain silks, which promised to be in greatest demand, and chose my colors, so that in every one of the splendid lines which our American mills know how to make so well we have all the fashionable colors as well as black. When I came back the scare was over, silk prices had moved up and choice silks which I had secured at low prices, could not be duplicated again at these figures, and will probably be scarcer later even at full prices.

"In Paris I found things, of course, a great deal worse. Superb silks, designed and made for the great Paris couturieres, had not even been looked at by the buyers.

"I had my pick of all, and the Silks are the most marvelous I have ever bought, including many that sold in Paris for as high as 150 francs ($30) a metre.

"In Paris also I bought the entire exhibit by Mme. Paquin of costumes in Winter and advance Spring styles, which was in the Lyons International Silk Exhibition until it closed in November, together with the beautiful French wax figures, the stunning black-and-white furniture and rugs, the wonderful sofa cushions—everything just as it stood.

"When I went to Lyons, where I bought all these charming Flowered Crepes, the Chiffons and Printed Novelty Silks that will make such pretty Summer frocks.

"From Lyons I went to Switzerland for the striped and warp printed and plain Taffetas and Chiffon Taffetas, all of which are going to be so good this season. And from there to Italy for Dress Satins and more Taffetas.

"All of the Foreign Silks are in now, the last of them coming on the 'Madonna' from Marseilles two weeks late.

"One thing I want to emphasize about the Sale is that the Silks, which are all in fine, full lots, not job lots or broken assortments, are desirable and fashionable in every way.

"The rich Silks, specially woven for the Exposition Internationale at Lyons, were considered such wonderful specimens of the silk weavers' art that lengths of them were requested for permanent exhibition for the Museum at Crefeld in Germany, which is to Germany as a silk city what Lyons is to France.

"The other Foreign Silks, such as Satins, Taffetas, etc., were made for Paris, Berlin, London, Vienna, Antwerp and other foreign capitals, but were not taken and consequently I was able to buy them so cheaply that I can sell them in many cases for about what they cost to make.

"Altogether we have never had such Silks to offer to people of New York in a Sale at such enormous reductions. And I believe that we will sell $10,000 more on the first day of the Sale than we did last year (our biggest) if we can get them to understand exactly what a remarkable thing we have done."

The Exquisite Group of Model Gowns

in Winter and advanced Spring styles, is shown in the identical and striking setting in which it was seen at the Exposition, together with duplicates of many of the silks used in the costumes, but at Sale Prices.

Tenth Floor

First—The war situation in Europe, which left thousands of yards of rare, beautiful Silks in Paris and other foreign silk centres, without the customers that were expected for them.

Second—The GIMBEL silk expert's arrival in Europe as one of the only two sent over by the great retail stores for this season's business.

Third—Our foresight in taking advantage of the sympathetic conditions in the American market before we bought abroad. Thus covering ourselves doubly with the most desirable silks produced in the world, at prices that would have been perfectly unbelievable a year ago today.

But it is in the silks themselves—not how we got them—that women are most interested. These, then, are the facts you will want to know.

At a meeting held in preparation for the sale, half a dozen men who knew silks, were asked to write down the names of what they considered the four most popular silks this season.

The vote was for Chiffon Taffeta, Crepe de Chine, Poplin and All-Silk Faille.

THESE ARE EXACTLY THE SILKS OF WHICH WE HAVE PROVIDED LAVISH QUANTITIES IN BLACK AND COLORS FOR THE FEBRUARY SALE.

But, of course, most spectacular of the thirty-six distinct offerings in the sale, and possible only to GIMBELS, is the group of

MANY INJURED IN CRASH ON "L" THIS MORNING

New York, Feb. 6.—Several persons were injured in a rear-end collision in the fog on the Ninth avenue elevated at Fiftieth street shortly before 8:30 o'clock this morning, in which one train ran into the rear end of a local at the station and set the rear car of the local afire. The crash was accompanied by a blinding flash of such power and the shock was felt in nearby stores.

The blazing car was crowded with passengers and there was a great scramble for the doors, in which many women were crushed. All passengers were gotten out. Some were carried down the stairs in an unconscious condition. A call for ambulances was sent in and the firemen arrived before the last of the passengers were gotten down. They aided in the rescue work. The last car of the forward train was almost entirely destroyed by the smash-up and the flames, and the southbound track was blocked for several hours.

Gregory Dorn, motorman of the train which crashed into the one standing still, was carried to Polyclinc Hospital in a serious condition, suffering from many cuts and internal injuries. The only other person known to have been badly hurt was George T. Aldrich, an official of the National Biscuit Company, who is also at the Polyclinic. He is in a critical condition.

YOUNG WOMEN'S MISSION SOCIETY IS ORGANIZED

The Young Women's Missionary Society, of the Congregational church, was organized last night in the parish house of the church at a birthday social, which was attended by a large number of the members. This organization was formerly known as the Girls' Mission Club and at last night's meeting the name was changed.

Miss Mary E. Decker is the president of the society and had charge of the affair last night. Games were played during the evening and refreshments were served, at which time a large birthday cake was cut.

THE EIGHT CYLINDER BOY.

Power begets respect. The eighty cylinder auto is closer to a man's heart than a chugging one-lunger. It is admired for its ability.

By the same present, know ye the boy.

Eight cylinders alone will not make a hill climber. They need gas and a good driver. What the gas is to the car the Scout movement is to the boy. The boy's driver is Aspiration. Aspiration, properly applied, makes for Ability. Ability stimulates Ambition and Ambition paves the road to Success. Success is Power.

The Boy Scout movement is merely another name for making a boy manly through the agency of psychology. It takes the lad with an unfired imagination, hands him a Scout Manual and bids him read it. The book answers a great many questions he would like to have answered. He had often wondered how people ever got along before they knew about matches or flint and steel. How did the Indians ever make fire before the white man brought him the first bit of tempered metal? The book tells him and also explains how he can do it himself. Hundreds of other questions are similarly answered. He aspires to try it himself. Soon he has the ability to do it. Then he has the ambition to learn other stunts. He succeeds in his quest. He realizes he has the power of resourcefulness. By that time he is what we call a first class scout.

But here is where the real application of psychology comes in.

The National Court of Honor steps forth at this point and dangles before the boy's eyes some seventy baubles. Entering scoutcraft at twelve years of age, the boy soon reaches that stage where his father begins to look for some indication that the lad is settling down to some sort of vocation to be followed in later life. These baubles, of no intrinsic value, being merely embroidered symbols on pieces of khaki, represent different vocations, such as business, machinery, surveying, printing, photography, art, bee farming, agriculture, blacksmithing, sanitation, carpentry, plumbing, automobiling, aviation, chemistry, etc. If a lad earns twenty-one of these merit badges he becomes an Eagle Scout, the highest position a boy scout can attain. One boy in Plainfield has the distinction of being the twelfth in his State and the ninety-second in the country to be so honored.

The aspiring boy reaches after these decorations. No teacher is provided him, no text book is given to him. The prize is there and he is bidden go forth and find out the answers to the questions that he must satisfactorily answer in win the trophy. That puts him on his own resources. He devolves into the scientific works and trade literature at the public library. He visits the chief engineer of the fire department to learn how to prevent fire and to put it out when it does occur; how to handle himself in panics and how to save life. In machinery he goes into the shops of Plainfield and asks his questions with his borrowed library book in his hand. In photography he seeks out some practical authority in that department and he studies his angles and his arithmetic to learn the principles of surveying. What the boy masters he will retain and if knowledge is power, the boy who learns in that way is well on the road to success.

Then he appears before the local Council and makes application for an examination in the subjects he has selected. The Court of Honor meets and the test proceeds. Twenty boys are now striving for Eagle Scout in this city.

The logic behind this is simplicity itself. In rambling through the manual for subjects that will take him to Eagle Scoutship he delves into twenty-one out of seventy odd vocations. In striving, for instance, for a merit badge on electricity, the lad may find that it touches a responsive chord in him. The experiments he describes in his test will fire him with an aspiration to put that test into practice. Lo! the amateur wireless. Then comes the everlasting practice that will permit him to pass the government test to make him eligible for appointment. That boy has found a vocation.

The original boy scout in Plainfield, and one of the six original scouts in the country, is now in Stevens Institute studying mechanics. His ambition, he says, was fired through making the experiments for merit badge scout tests. Another scout is learning to be a practical electrician through the encouragement he obtained in scoutwork. Other instances could be cited.

Tomorrow will be Boy Scout Sunday. Many ministers have signified their intention of inviting all boys in the city to attend special services. It will be a special occasion for scout parents. It will make the boys feel the personal interest their parents have in them. Monday evening at Washington School auditorium the Boy Scouts of Plainfield hope to show their parents and the people of Plainfield in general what they do in scout meetings. It will be the first opportunity that has been given the people of Plainfield to see what scoutwork really is, from the boy in the field, to the gratuitous services that substantial men of our community render our boys by sitting in the Scout Council and the Court of Honor. It will be an opportunity to see the practical side of scoutwork. There will be no admission fee.

The Boy Scout is worthy of respect. He is a man in the making. He is not going to be a perfect man, because the movement does not aim to attain the impossible. But the citizen of tomorrow who is going to count for most in the eyes of God and man is the practical, resourceful, ambitious Eight Cylinder Boy of Today.

TO GIVE SECOND SERMON IN SERIES

"Through the Year With Bards and Bible" Theme of Rev. Dr. Strong.

The second discourse under the general heading, "Through the Year With Bards and Bible," will be delivered tomorrow evening by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, at the First Baptist church, the discourse having to do with the month of February in particular. The purpose of these sermons, as previously announced, is to interpret the Bible through nature and poetry; for the Bible is pre-eminently a poetical work and much of it the very finest nature literature.

The January sermon was heard by a large audience and seemed to be enjoyed. Many High School pupils were in attendance, and to them especially this series of discourses should appeal as both educational and inspiring. A resident minister who was present brought his daughter for the very purpose of giving her the advantage of such an address that she might the better realize how God in nature speaks to His children, and after the discourse she thanked the speaker for the help thus given and received. It is Dr. Strong's primary and emphatic purpose to bring out the moral and religious features through the poetic and literary elements of his discourse.

Both in the Scripture reading and in the address itself he will distinctly and directly aim for this result and he trusts not without success since his sermons along these lines have always proved helpful. Among the poetic recitations tomorrow evening will be selections from George Henry Boker, Denis Florence Macarthy, William Wilsey Martin, Hezekiah Butterworth, Ina Donna Coolbrith and Lucy Larcom. In this sermon as in all discourses of the series much matter illustrative of nature in her various moods and as the expression and manifestation of God's power and goodness will be introduced.

BENEVOLENT BAND'S 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Event is Pleasantly Observed at the Home of Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Benevolent Band of The King's Daughters was observed at the home of the president, Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, on Hillside avenue, last night, and was enjoyed by the members and many friends. It was at the home of Mrs. Ivins that the circle was formed and it was appropriate that the silver anniversary should be celebrated there.

Mrs. Ivins, together with Mrs Frank S. Martin and Mrs. Henry Cochran, vice-presidents, and Miss Sarah Schuyler, comprised a receiving committee. Mrs. F. L. Holt is the secretary and Miss Mary Storrs the treasurer.

There was a delightful informal program which included violin selections by Miss Helen Harman; vocal selections by Louis Geary and piano solos by Miss Guest. The selections were of a classical and popular character and were greatly enjoyed by all present.

The table in the dining-room was very attractive in its decorations of white and silver. Mrs. Emerson E. Parvin and Miss Martine presided at the table and they were assisted in serving by the Misses Holstein, Parvin, Katherine Brown, McKenzie and Gwendolyn Gough.

The Benevolent Band is the outgrowth of a society of young women which was formed prior to twenty-five years ago. It now has an active membership of thirty-five with twelve associate members. It is probably one of the oldest circles in the city and during its existence has accomplished a great deal of good.

INTERESTING REPORTS GIVEN BY DELEGATES

The Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Leslie Crane on Westervelt avenue. Mrs. Cornelius Schenck led the devotional exercises, after which Miss Winifred Rapalje and Miss Helen Smith gave reports of the missionary meeting held January 19 at the Marble Collegiate church, New York city. It was a birthday affair under the auspices of the Board of Foreign Missions, China being the topic. Afterward the members continued the study of "Red Man's Land."

The band will hold a missionary tea at the home of Miss Ethel VanZandt on Madison avenue, Thursday, February 11, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when Miss Margaret Mead will give a talk on "China." Arrangements have also been made for an all-day sewing meeting on Thursday, February 18, at the home of Mrs. A. B. Cole on Fairview avenue, the borough.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking a any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

PLAINFIELD JUNIOR AND SENIOR ELKS MAY MEET IN POST-SEASON TITLE MATCH

Efforts are being made to have the championship teams in the Senior and Junior Elks' Leagues meet in a post-season series. Many of the younger organization believe the Elizabeth bowlers, who are certain of the title in the Junior League, can hold their own with ony of the three teams fighting it out for first honors in the Senior League. The curtain on the older organization will not be dropped until the last of this month, and the bowlers from New Brunswick, Elizabeth and Paterson lodges all have a chance to win out.

President Alexander P. Hinton, of the Junior League, who is a member of Newark lodge, will issue a challenge to President George E. Hintzel, Jr., of the Senior League, to have the championship teams roll. The idea is to have each team roll three games on its home alleys, with total pins to count. Should there be a tie at the end of the sixth game three additional games would be rolled on neutral alleys. In case the Elizabeth lodge should capture the trophy in the Senior League, it would bring the two Elizabeth teams together and the first six games would be rolled on the alleys of that lodge.

Members of some of the lodges represented in both leagues are in favor of having club matches between the teams for the club championship. This matter, however, will not be under the jurisdiction of either of the league officials, and it will be entirely up to the bowlers themselves. In some cases the junior bowlers have already challenged their seniors to a match.

It is not probable that the Plainfield Seniors and Juniors will come together in one of these after-season matches and it may be decided to inaugurate a trio of meeting dates to decide the Watchung avenue club title. The local Seniors are firmly rooted in the cellar while the "colts" appear to be tipping in that direction. It would not be a great surprise to see both of the Queen City league aggregations wearing last place regalia at the culmination of the schedules and the "consolation" title would arouse some keen enthusiasm among the B. P. O. E. members.

It is a well-known fact that two factions exist in the local club, one booming the Seniors and the other booming the youngsters. If the two aggregations should decide to "hook" there will no doubt be something doing along the rooting line, as indicated by present spirit.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

YOU'VE GOT TO BE ON THE "INSIDE."

Press agents as a rule take every opportunity to boost their attractions to the sky limit but we've unearthed an exception, strange as it may seem. Those who advertised the Westfield-Plainfield girls' exhibition on the Columbus Club court Thursday night billed it on the program as a mere "basketball" scene, failing to say anything about the side issues which included rapid fire elocution, contortions and cross-fire delivery. We took the initiative in predicting a little scrimmaging and those who accepted our tip got all that was to be expected.

Westfield's actions on the Columbus Club court were only in accordance with the "rep" established by other Mt. Ararat aggregations. Every time a Westfield squad, boys or girls, has visited a rival's court this season there's been a kick lodged. And what's more they've been doing a little side jawing about results established on their home courts. The atmosphere in the neighboring town is admirably well adapted to the spread of "chilly" feet.

There's one legitimate kick we've got to register against games on the Columbus Club court, however, and that is the practice of the social committee in feeding the players after the contests. Some of the athletes (and several individuals of a nondescript importance) were fed so much that they will never be able to perform in their best style again. This ruining of our best athletes will not be tolerated.

Strawrides are becoming so popular in the local and borough schools that the basketball coaches are beginning to wear a worried look. If we have any more snow there'll be nothing doing on this Interscholastic League bill slated for Lincoln's Birthday.

It's a person's own fault if he fails to master the art of swimming in Plainfield these days. The classes in the High School tank have become popular of late and several classes of future aquatic stars line up at each call.

The idea of bringing the Senior and Junior Elk leaguers together on the Watchung avenue drives as a post-season attraction, "listens" good to one on the outside. Maybe the feathers wouldn't flutter in a fracas to decide the local club title.

SIX VICTORIES, THEN A BAD WALLOPING

P. H. S. Boys' Winning Streak Smashed to Smithereens at Newark.

Members of the South Side High School basketball team, of Newark, chalked up another victory yesterday afternoon, defeating the Plainfield High School boys in the South Side gymnasium by a score of 37 to 17. The home boys outclassed the Plainfield lads throughout the contest and won in easier fashion than the score would indicate. The South Side guards played so well that the Plainfield forwards failed to cage a single field goal.

Seidman and Weinstein, the fast little forwards of the Sunny Side School, were pretty even in scoring honors. "Dingbat" Seidman scored eleven points, while Weinstein scored one more. Captain Zucker caged the ball three times.

At the end of the first half the South Side team led by a score of 22 to 6. At one period during the first half the score was 16 to 1 against the Plainfield boys. They did not get a field goal until near the termination of time in the first half. Chamberlain and Peacock did most of the scoring for Plainfield, the former scoring six points and Peacock seven.

The South Side High School second team defeated the second team of the Plainfield High School by a score of 22 to 15. The score at the end of the first half was 11 to 10 in favor of Plainfield.

FORWARD PASS RULE.

Although no important changes are expected to be made by the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee, at its annual meeting which began in New York, last night, several suggestions will be discussed, one of which will probably have reference to the use of the forward pass.

BASKETBALL TONIGHT.

Two good basketball attractions are booked for this city tonight, the Hope Chapel basketeers meeting the First Presbyterian Tabernacle Five on the Fourth street court at 8 o'clock, and the Y. M. C. A. team will play the Trenton Deaf Mutes on the association court. This game will begin at 8:15 and there will be the usual preliminary.

TEN FOUL POINTERS CONSTITUTE SCORE

P. H. S. Girls Go Down Before Hackensack the Second Time.

The Hackensack High School girls basketball team came to Plainfield, yesterday afternoon, and for the second time this season defeated the Plainfield High School maidens on the latter's court by a score of 27 to 10. The first game was won only by a small margin. While the score was one-sided a hard contest was waged between the two sextets. Plainfield put up an excellent game of ball for a crippled team, being without the services of their forward, "Dot" Crane, and played hard until the final whistle. The Hackensack girls exhibited excellent team work, continually keeping the ball in their territory and making fine passes which ended with a basket. During the first fifteen minutes of play, Plainfield made one point on a free throw and the visitors caged six field goals and three from the 15 foot line. In the second period, Ruth Morris tallied nine more foul goals while her opponents were credited with five goals and 2 fouls.

Ruth Morris did the only scoring for the locals, while Miss Eurich and Miss Bogart did the honors for their team, the former making fifteen points and the latter 12.

PLAINFIELD GIRL STARS SET UP RECORD SCORE AT EXPENSE OF EASTON QUINTET

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Easton, Pa., Feb. 6.—Stopping off at Easton, Pa., for the first engagement on its week-end trip schedule, the Plainfield Y. W. C. A. basketball quintet set up a notable verdict at the expense of the Y. W. C. A. performers of this place, last night, trouncing the homesters to the tune of 68 to 7. The score is one of the highest of the season in feminine basketball and the Jerseyites exhibited a calibre of basketball never before witnessed on an Easton court. The visitors early established a lead which was never headed and some wonderful individual shooting featured.

The Hummel sisters did al' the scoring for Plainfield, Helen caging 23 goals and two fouls, while Ida netted 10 field goals. The Eastonians were credited with four goals and 1 from the fifteen foot line. Miss Seas and Miss Wright were the principal point getters for the Easton girls. The work of the two Plainfield guards, the Misses Smith and Mair, was excellent, seldom allowing their opponents to get the ball. The Plainfield girls were the guests of the Pennsylvania association overnight and this morning left for Trenton, where they will meet the Association girls in a game in that city tonight. The Plainfield girls defeated the Trentonians last year and hope to get a victory tonight. Miss Mair will be missing from the lineup in Trenton, having went back direct to Plainfield from Easton.

The lineup of the game last night is as follows:

PLAINFIELD Y. W. C. A.

	G.	F.	P.

Miss Ida Hummel, f	10	0	20

BORO SPEED ARTISTS BOMBARD THE RINGS

Girls From Over the Water Trounced Kearny Fair Sex.

The borough girls' sextet annexed an easy victory at Kearny, yesterday afternoon, against the feminine team of that High School, the score being 40 to 8. The game was one sided, the Burtis-Spencer combination making good on a large number of their shots and the Kearny team hardly being able to keep the ball in its territory at all, due to the fine playing of the North Plainfield guards.

In the first half Kearny was only able to score two baskets and a free throw against the visitors ten field goals and six fouls, the half ending 26 to 5, while in the second period they made only three points against North Plainfield's fourteen.

Miss Burtis and Miss Spencer played fine games at forward, registering 17 shots altogether and the borough guarding combination was almost invincible. Miss Douglas and Miss McCullough in the centre positions also played good games. Miss Carley scored all the points for Kearny.

PLAN INTERSCHOLASTIC TENNIS COMPETITION

The representatives of North Plainfield, Plainfield and Leal Schools met at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, and made arrangements for an interscholastic tennis tournament to be held sometime in the coming spring.

It was decided at this time to hold three singles matches and one doubles match. The expenses in connection with the tournament will be borne by the athletic associations of the schools and the matches will probably be played on either the Country Club or Park Club tennis courts. It is expected that one of the local merchants will put up a trophy for the winning team.

North Plainfield was represented by Tomkinson and Van Mater, Plainfield by Parvin and Blanchard, and Leal by Garrigues and Lyons.

N. P. H. S. VS. Y. M. C. A.

The North Plainfield High School and Y. M. C. A. basketball teams will meet for the first time this season on Saengerbund Hall court Monday night. The game was originally arranged for next Tuesday night, but Manager Van Mater found it necessary to make a change and has secured the hall for Monday night.

P. H. S. SECONDS DO BETTER THAN FIRSTS BUT LOSE OUT

In a close game, the second basketball team of Plainfield High School was defeated by the second team of South Side High School, of Newark, by the score of 22 to 15, yesterday afternoon.

SPORTING NOTES

Paris is preparing for the racing season, and four courses are ready.

Charlie Deal passed up a chance to remain with the world's champs for a Federal berth.

George Tuohey has another wrestling carnival for Boston on Friday night next.

Former Manager Red Dooin will be seen in the Cincinnati uniform this season.

The ski jumpers are holding their "world's series" at Duluth, beginning today.

Carl Morris and Gunboat Smith are matched for a bout at Joplin, Mo., on the 22d.

An eight-team league at Panama shows signs of the expansion of the great game.

Frankie Callahan, who recently knocked out Joe Rivers, meets Sam Robideau at New York next Thursday night.

According to Jack Curley, 1,000 cattlemen have pledged $25 a throw to see the Johnson-Willard match.

The report that the American Association will be raised to the majors leads to further possible complications with players.

The annual indoor meet of the Boston A. A. will be run off tonight. Kolehmainen, Ted Meredith and Al Kivlat will be in the running.

The Georgia-Alabama League directors will meet at Anniston today. Five towns seek the forfeited franchise of Gadsden, and the outlook is pleasing to the league owners.

The Wisconsin-Illinois Baseball League holds its annual meeting tomorrow, Sunday, at Kenosha. The league plans to place two teams in Chicago, two in Milwaukee, and one each in Kenosha, Racine, Elgin and Waukegan.

WHAT WILL BECOME OF LEAL SCHOOL ATHLETES WHEN THE "BIG FIVE" GOES?

When it comes to moulding something out of nothing, Coach C. B. Wardlaw, of the Leal School athletic forces, takes home the bacon. The popular private school pilot "has it on" his contemporaries in forty different ways when it comes to manufacturing talent. Annually Mr. Wardlaw takes a season's grip on the two major branches of sport in the West Front street institution and despite the darkest possible outlook he always "produces."

Ever since Mr. Wardlaw came to Plainfield he has been active in interscholastic sport circles. For some years past the local private school has not been a factor in the race for championships because of the calibre of talent prevalent, the students in the school being of the type not adaptable to athletics. Another handicap has presented itself in the fact that the enrollment at the institution is limited and the handful of aspirants for each team falls far short of the number turning out in Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools.

Despite these handicaps Mr. Wardlaw has worked almost daily in an effort to turn out the best possible teams rom crude baseball and basketball stock. He has exceeded the highest anticipations of those interested in Leal athletics and the schoolboys themselves have oftentimes been surprised by results.

"Don't you ever become discouraged at losing one game after another?" a Daily Press reporter recently asked Mr. Wardlaw.

"I'm used to defeat," said Mr. Wardlaw, "so many reverses have resulted in my becoming accustomed to the inevitable."

As he apparently was resigned to what came his way for the same afternoon his team's score was tripled by a rival in an important game, and no one could accept the walloping any more gracefully than did Mr. Wardlaw.

This year Chauncey Stewart, Fred Dickerson, Lawrence Schneider, Fred Harrington and Orton Dale, the nucleus around which all Leal athletic factions have been moulded in recent years, will be graduated. What will become of Leal athletics remains to be seen. The private school constituents and the Alumni look to Mr. Wardlaw for results and he will probably "come through" next year as he has on previous occasions.

N. P. H. S. Clan Off-color in Match at Westfield Yesterday.

The North Plainfield High School boys' basketball team met defeat at the hands of the Westfield High School quintet by a final score of 41 to 16 at that place last night. The borough five seemed to have an off day, while the Westfield team played exceptionally well, passing around N. P. H. S. and making baskets from many difficult angles.

The floor, however, was a decided disadvantage to the visitors as it is not only very small, but has one of its baskets very close to the ceiling. The team was also without the service of "Ronny" Conroy at forward. The first half ended 21 to 7.

Traynor was the star for Westfield, registering ten field goals and seven fouls. Hebert played a good game for the "Canadians," his man not being able to score a point. "Wren" Townley did some good work in shooting fouls, making a large per cent. of his tries.

Plainfield Construction-Realty News

PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY IN PLAINFIFLD

PLANS ERECTION OF BIG APARTMENT

C. C. Alexander Securing Estimates for Building a Five-Story Structure.

SITE ON E. 7TH STREET

Structure Will Be of Hollow Tile and Will Comprise Twenty Separate Apartments of Seven Rooms Each.

Charles C. Alexander, of Evergreen avenue, who is engaged in the tile business in New York, has plans prepared and is now securing estimates for what will be the largest strictly residential building in the city. It will be located on what is known as the Wills property, on East Seventh street, near Franklin place, which he recently purchased through the agency of Armstrong Mulford. The plot has a frontage of 110 feet and a depth of 200 feet, running back to the southerly line of East Sixth street. The house now encumbering the property is to be moved back and turned around to face the latter thoroughfare.

Mr. Alexander's plans call for a structure very much on the lines of the familiar apartment houses in New York's upper West Side. It will be five stories high, and will include twenty separate apartments. The use of hollow tile is to prevail in the construction wherever possible. The outer walls will be of this material, and if the estimated cost is not too high, it will be placed between the walls. Light and air currents will feature the building, which is to take on a semi-fireproof nature.

The apartments are to contain seven rooms each, and will be modern in every respect, with all of the latest fittings. The heating and lighting systems will be up-to-the-minute in every respect, while the floor plan will be all that might be expected or wished for in this line of structures. Fire escapes and hallways of proper dimensions are provided for, making the building one of the most modern of local buildings. It is highly probable that contracts will be awarded in the near future, while it is expected that the actual work will be started the latter part of March, or early in April.

Mr. Alexander is interested in the manufacture of tiles for interior purposes, furnishing the Child's restaurant concern, as well as the United Cigars Company with practically all of the tile used by these corporations.

THE CHILDREN AND THE LANDLORD QUESTION UP

There is an interesting article in the current issue of Child Betterment and Social Welfare on the question of the landlord's antipathy to children. The writer of the article sets out as his opinion that the reason why landlords have such an aversion to children, especially in apartment houses, to which the article especially refers, is that parents allow their children to be destructive and to such an extent that landlords feel they can ill afford to rent to families with children. The article reads: "The larger the number of children, the greater the wear and tear. The landlord sometimes feels that he ought to charge a rental proportionate to the size of the family. He cannot adjust matters by charging less rental for childless couples for, contrary to the prevalent notion among renters, the landlord on the average gets a poor return for his money, and assumes great risks. What with interest, wear and tear, dead beats, unfortunates, repairs, insurance, agents' commissions and inequitable taxation, he is lucky to get even a low percentage on his investment. Frankly, the man who buys residence property as an investment—at least in Chicago—usually is a fool. The builder skins him, the tenants beat him, and what the agents, janitors and taxing bodies do to him is painful.

"Landlords and parents should get together, but one essential requisite is that parents should protect property from damage by their children. The wilful destruction and disfigurement of property by children is appalling.

"Another point: Landlords and tenants alike should aid, abet and support playgrounds, where children can let off steam without damage to anyone, and with improvement for themselves.

"As things now are, the landlord and the tenant have a poor opinion of each other—for which destructive and rowdy children largely are responsible."

This is a new viewpoint which may not be shared by all its readers.

ISSUE ONLY THREE PERMITS THIS WEEK

Improvements Aggregating $6,725 to Be Made in the First Ward.

Inclement weather has interfered considerably with building operations in this city during the course of the past week, with but three construction permits issued by Inspector T. O. Doane, including two dwellings and one chicken coop. The buildings will all be erected in the First ward, and will cost in the vicinity of $6,725, a great decrease over the previous week, but sufficient when outdoor work is out of the question.

While no great number of permits are expected during the course of the next two or three weeks, a number of local architects report that indications are that practically all local building craftsmen will be kept busy after the spring season opens. A number of plans of prospective buildings are now out, and bids are being secured on a number of buildings of various sizes. Buildings as called for by the permits during the past week are as noted below:

Claus Gustafson, of the borough, will erect a two and a half story dwelling at 1257-1259 George street, at a cost of $3,700. The dwelling will be of frame construction, with concrete base course, brick foundation, hemlock frame work, shingle roofing, while a steam heating system is to be installed. The work will be cared for by the owner.

Albino Stevenson has also been granted a permit for the construction of a two and a half story frame dwelling at a cost of $3,000. The building will have a frontage of twenty-two feet, a depth of twenty-eight feet and will have a concrete base course, hollow cement block foundation, hemlock framing, shingle roofing, while a steam heating apparatus is to be installed. William H. Clum is the architect, J. Brandt the mason contractor, while the carpentry work is to be cared for by the owner.

A frame chicken coop is to be constructed at 907 North avenue for Paul Lorvornio, at a cost of $25. The building will measure 12x14 feet. The work will be cared for by the owner.

STEADY RETURN TO NORMAL CONDITIONS

Aggregate Cost of Buildings Covered by Month's Permits is $72,838.

The slow, but nevertheless, steady return to normal condition in the business world has been marked on many sides, and the building lines in this city is no exception to the rule. Except where weather conditions have prevented, the outlook in this city and vicinity have brightened considerably during the month of January, with activities appearing to be on the increase.

During the month just closed permits issued by Inspector T. O. Doane covered buildings, the aggregate cost of which amounted to $72,838, as against $33,885 during the same month of 1913. The permits as issued last month called for the erection of fifteen dwellings, fourteen of which are to be in the First ward, two garages, one business building, and four smaller buildings of lesser consequence.

The value of the buildings to be erected in the various wards, for which permits were issued last month, are shown in the tables below, together with figures showing the activities during January of last year:

1915.	New Bldgs.	Alter'ions.	Totals
1st Wd.	$61,203	.....	$61,203
2nd Wd.	685	$ 2,350	3,035
3d Wd.	5,000	2,000	7,000
4th Wd.	.....	1,600	1,600
Totals	$66,888	$ 5,950	$72,838

1914.	New Bldgs.	Alter'ions.	Totals
1st Wd.	$ 3,900	$ 1,200	$ 5,100
2nd Wd.	2,700	15,000	17,700
3d Wd.	8,475	.....	8,475
4th Wd.	2,360	250	2,610
Totals	$17,435	$16,450	$33,885

LEHIGH OFFICIALS DENY REPORTED REALTY DEAL

Several rumors have been current about the city for the past two weeks to the effect that the Lehigh Valley Railroad had purchased a number of acres of ground in the vicinity of the Willow Grove section of Fanwood township for development purposes and the establishment of a town for the benefit of its employes, have been found to be without foundation. Officials of the railroad have been interviewed during the course of the past week, and representatives of this paper have been informed that there is little possibility of any such move.

JUST NOTES

While the building craftsmen are compelled, through force of the weather conditions, from making any appreciable progress on outside work these days, it has become self evident that the architects of the city are being kept busy inside on plans for extensive construction. Local contractors are now more fully convinced than ever before that Plainfield is on the threshold of as great a building season as has been seen here in some years.

Those pessimists who are of the opinion that prosperity is afar off should consult the tables to be found in another column showing the fact that building operations in this city for January are more than double the same month of a year ago.

In keeping with the progressive building spirit of the First ward, and especially with the construction of a number of dwellings, permits for which were recently given, the congregation of the Netherwood Reformed church has plans under way for the construction of an enlarged edifice during the course of the coming summer at a cost of from $10,000 to $15,000.

No more than one school gets under way in this city, and there appears to be an apparent need for another. Now the East End Civic Association sees the need of an educational institution in their section of the city, and before the Evergreen Avenue building is finally completed, we would not be surprised to hear the Board of Education asking bids on work for a primary building in the "Far East" section of the town.

Already permits have been issued in this city for the erection of fifteen dwellings, one-fifth of the total number covered by permits in the whole of 1914. Surely someone has faith in Plainfield. And plans are still to be announced for several more.

UPWARD TREND OF MATERIAL PRICES

Prospective Builders Must Act Quickly to Save Money.

QUOTATIONS HIGHER

More Changes in List Prices Occurred in January Than at Any Time During Past Year and a Half—No Signs of a Decrease.

New York, Feb. 6—Persons who are planning to take advantage of the present low prices of materials and are going ahead with their building operations at this time will have to act soon, according to the February lists of building materials as quoted on the Building Material Exchanges. More changes in list prices of building materials occurred in January than at any time in a year and a half. Practically evey change has been upward.

Quotations ruling in New York today, are higher in all departments except cement, sand and crushed stone. On January 2, open cargo common Hudson brick was quoted at $5. This brick is not being quoted today. Covered brick is bringing $6 and $6.12½. Raritan brick is quoted at $6 flat. Second-hand brick has shifted from $2.50 and $2.75 to $2.75 low. Newark yard prices are up a quarter a thousand.

Portland cement has been cut by certain interests without regard to the trend of Eastern building conditions. A few sales have been made at eighty cent mill base. Practically every dealer has stacked and there is little cement moving at the insurgent rate. Standard companies are filibustering not so much with the idea of inducing new business to come out at this level as to give the cutters a surfeit of unprofitable business. There is no change in sight, but none of the important companies are contracting past March 1 at prices below $1.42, New York.

German cements are now procurable, but importers are not making quotations except on application. Crushed stone is off about five cents a yard from last month's quotation of $1 for inch and a half trap rock and three-quarter inch sizes. There is practically no inch and a half blue stone available, hence it is not being quoted. Three-quarter inch blue is quoted at $1.15, but it is not plentiful.

Double thick window glass discounts have changed from 90-10 and 90-20 to 90-15 and 90-20 per cent. off jobbers' lists. Plate glass discounts have changed from 90-30 to 90-25 per cent.

No change is reported in gravel but screened Cow Bay sand while nominally quoted at 50 cents, the same as last month, is weak at that figure. Hollow tile is without change in local quotations from last month. Lime is steady and hydrated finishing is still being quoted at $10.50 a ton. This commodity is fairly stiff at that figure. Linseed oil at 60 and 61 cents is likely to move up following a sharp advance in the price of flaxseed at Duluth this week. An advance of ten cents is shown during the last month. Lubricants are showing signs of advancing on high grades.

Lath shows an advance of from ten to twenty cents. Current prices rule at $3.50 and $3.60 per 1,000. Inch and-a-half round is still not a quotable commodity. This stiffening is usual at this time of the year.

Plaster quotations at —— and $10 last month has changed to $10 and ——, indicating that shading has been checked. In the slate market an upward movement in the price of genuine Bangor may be reported at the first of the week. Otherwise there is no change. The range is from $4.75 to ——. Steel at Waverly is steady at $1.85 per pound for shapes and plate and $1.80 per pound for bares.

SHERIFF'S SALE

At the sheriff's office in Elizabeth, Thursday afternoon, a property situated in East Sixth street, near Franklin place, formerly owned by Mary A. Strathis, Clarence E. Haight and Lydia M. Haight, was sold in foreclosure proceedings instituted by Isabelle V. Lyddon, to satisfy a mortgage.

Eleanor Moore and Ida Moore bought one of the Westfield tracts for $3,000. It was sold in action they brought against Elizabeth H. Beebe.

Julia Sprague was the buyer of the other Westfield realty. It was disposed of for $3,900 in the proceedings instituted against John M. Walsh by Blanche Crickenberger.

COUNTY PERMITS SHOW GOOD WEEK

Twelve Contracts Filed Call for a Total Expenditure of $104,946 in County.

The plans, specification and contracts have been filed with County Clerk Calvert for the new Evergreen Avenue Grammar School to be built in this city, and for the new Westfield High School.

The local grammar school building is to be constructed by John Lowry, of New York, for $65,021, exclusive of the heating and ventilating system, which is to be installed by George J. Tobin, of this city, for $12,991.50. The electrical work is to be done by the Commercial Construction Company, of New York, at a cost of $1,373, and the plumbing work by George J. Tobin for $2,598.

John L. Miller, of Westfield, is to furnish and install the new boilers in the new Westfield High School, the contract executed with him by the Board of Education having just been filed. The contract price is $1,516. The plastering contract has been awarded to O'Connor & Hanrahan, of New York, at $4,761.

There was atotal of twelve building contracts filed with the county clerk last week, calling for the expenditure of $104,946, which is by far the best week experienced in some time. Among the plans now out for work in the immediate future of county wide importance, is the remodeling of an Elizabeth property for a clubhouse for the Elizabeth Aerie of Eagles.

SAMUEL RUSHMORE PLANS ELABORATE RESIDENCE

Samuel W. Rushmore, who for years conducted the Rushmore Dynamor Works on South avenue, has purchased from Charles W. McCutchen, a large tract of ground on Belvidere avenue, between the Thompson and Thomas properties, and on this he proposes to build a handsome residence for his own occupancy. The plot has a frontage of 400 feet and runs back in triangular form to a proportionate depth. The purchase price has not been made public, but it is said to have established a record for that part of the city.

Mr. Rushmore is now at work upon the plans for the new house, and they will embody many individual ideas. One of the predominate features will be a system of fireproofing that will make destruction by flames almost an absolute impossibility. The interior fittings will also give evidence of Mr. Rushmore's originality and from an exterior point of view the proposed residence will be one of the most ornate in the exclusive section.

REMODELING RESIDENCE.

The William E. Lowe residence at 1024 Park avenue, which is one of the best known in the South End of the city, is now undergoing a complete interior alteration. The rooms on all floors are to be re-arranged, and the plumbing and lighting systems made strictly modern. The work is being done by Alexander Milne at a cost of $3,500.

CHAPTER II.

Angela Speaks Freely.

NATHANIEL'S indignation at his sister's conduct was beyond bounds when he learned who the wounded man was. He ordered the soldiers to take the man and themselves away. The magistrate interposed and begged him at least to let O'Connell rest there until a doctor could patch him up. It might be dangerous to take him back without medical treatment. He assured Nathaniel that the moment they could move him he would be lodged in the county jail.

Nathaniel went back to his study as the sorry procession passed on to the front door. He sent immediately for his sister. The reply came back that she would see him at dinner. He commanded her to come to him at once.

In a few minutes Angela came into the room. She was deathly pale. Her voice trembled as she spoke:

"What do you want?"

"Why did you bring that man here?"

"Because he is wounded."

"Such scoundrels are better dead."

"I don't think so. Nor do I think him a scoundrel."

"He came here to attack landlords—to attack me—me! And you bring him to my house and with that rabble! It's outrageous! Monstrous!"

"I couldn't leave him with those heartless wretches to die in their hands."

"He leaves here the moment a doctor has attended him."

"Very well. Is that all?"

"No, it isn't!" Kingsnorth tried to control his anger. After a pause he continued: "I want no more of these foolhardy, quixotic actions of yours. I've heard of your visiting these wretched people—going into fever dens. Is that conduct becoming to your name? Think a little of your station in life and what it demands."

"I wish you did a little more."

"What?" he shouted, all his anger returned.

"There's no need to raise your voice," Angela answered quietly. "I am only a few feet away. I repeat that I wish you thought a little more of your obligations. If you did and others like you in the same position you are in, there would be no such horrible scenes as I saw today—a man shot down among his own people for speaking the truth."

"You saw it?" Nathaniel asked in dismay.

"I did. I not only saw, but I heard. I wish you had too. I heard a man lay bare his heart and his brain and his soul that others might know the light in them. I saw and heard a man offer up his life that others might know some gleam of happiness in their lives. It was wonderful! It was heroic! It was godlike!"

"If I ever hear of your doing such a thing again you shall go back to London the next day."

"That sounds exactly as though my dead father were speaking."

"I'll not be made a laughingstock by you."

"You make yourself one as your father did before you—a Kingsnorth! What has your name meant? Because one of our forefathers cheated the world into giving him a fortune by buying his goods for more than they were worth we have tried to canonize him and put a halo around the name of Kingsnorth. To me it stands for all that is mean and selfish and vain and ignorant—the power of money over intellect. How did we become owners of this miserable piece of land? A Kingsnorth swindled its rightful owner—lent him money on usury, bought up his bills and his mortgages and when he couldn't pay foreclosed on him. No wonder there's a curse on the village and on us!"

Angela Had Seen Suffering No One Dreamed Of.

Kingsnorth tried to speak, but she stopped him:

"Wait a moment. It was a good stroke of business taking this estate away. Oh, yes, it was a good stroke of business! Our name has been built up on 'good strokes of business.' Well, I tell you it's a bad stroke of business when human lives are put into the hands of such creatures as we Kingsnorths have proved ourselves!"

"Stop!" cried Nathaniel, outraged to the innermost sanctuary of his being. "Stop! You don't speak like one of our family. It is like listening to some heretic—some"—

"I don't feel like one of your family. You are a Kingsnorth. I am my mother's child—my poor, gentle, patient mother, who lived a life of unselfish resignation, who welcomed death when it came to her as a release from tyranny. Don't call me a Kingsnorth. I know the family too well. I know all the name means to the people who have suffered through your family."

"After this—the best thing—the only thing—is to separate," said Nathaniel.

"Whenever you wish."

"I'll make you an allowance."

"Don't let it be a burden."

"I've never been so shocked—so stunned"—

"I am glad. From my cradle I've been shocked and stunned—in my home. It's some compensation to know you are capable of the feeling too. Frankly, I didn't think you were."

"We'll talk no more of this," and Nathaniel began to pace the room.

"I am finished," and Angela went to the door.

"It would be better we didn't meet again—in any event, not often," added Nathaniel.

"Thank you," said Angela, opening the door. He motioned her to close it, that he had something more to say.

"We'll find you some suitable chaperon. You can spend your winters abroad, as you have been doing—London for the season—until you're suitably married. I'll follow out my father's wishes to the letter. You shall be handsomely provided for the day you marry."

She closed the door with a snap and came back to him and looked him steadily in the eyes.

"The man I marry shall take nothing from you. Even in his 'last will and testament' my father proved himself a Kingsnorth. It was only a Kingsnorth could make his youngest daughter dependent on you!"

"My father knew I would respect his wishes."

"He was equally responsible for me, yet he leaves me to your care—a Kingsnorth! The men masters and the women slaves! That is the Kingsnorth doctrine."

A servant came in to tell Angela the doctor had come. Without a word Angela went out to see to the wounded man. The servant followed her.

Let alone, Nathaniel sat down, shocked and stunned, to review the interview he had just had with his younger sister.

When Angela entered the sickroom she found Dr. McGinnis, a cheery, bright eyed, rotund little man of fifty, talking freely to the patient and punctuating each speech with a hearty laugh. His good humor was infectious.

The wounded agitator felt the effect of it and was trying to laugh feebly himself.

"Sure it's the fine target ye must have made with yer six feet and one inch. How could the poor soldiers help hittin' ye? Answer me that!" And the jovial doctor laughed again as he dexterously wound a bandage around O'Connell's arm.

"Aisy now while I tie the bandage, me fine fellow. Ye'll live to see the inside of an English jail yet."

He turned as he heard the door open and greeted Angela.

"Good afternoon to ye, Miss Kingsnorth. Faith, it's a blessin' ye brought the boy here. There's no tellin' what the prison surgeon would have done to him. It is saltpeter, they tell me, the English doctors rub into the Irish wounds to kape them smartin'. And, by the like token, they do the same, too, in the English house of commons. Saltpeter in Ireland's wounds is what they give us."

"Is he much hurt?" asked Angela.

"Well, they've broken nothin'. Just blackened his face and made a few holes in his skin. It's buckshot they used. Buckshot! Thank the merciful Mr. Foster for that same. 'Buckshot Foster,' as the Irish reverently call him."

"What a dastardly thing to do!" she cried.

"Ye may well say that, Miss Kingsnorth," said the merry little doctor. "But it's betther than a bullet from a Martini-Henry rifle, that's what it is. And there's many a poor English landlord's got one of 'em in the back for ridin' about at night on his own land. It's a fatherly government we have, Miss Kingsnorth. 'Hurt 'em, but don't quite kill 'em,' sez they, 'and then put 'em in jail and feed them on bread and wather. That'll take the fine talkin' and patriotism out of them,' sez they."

"They'll never take it out of me. They may kill me perhaps, but until they do they'll never silence me," murmured O'Connell in a voice so low, yet so bitter, that it startled Angela.

"Ye'll do that all in good time, me fine boy," said the busy little doctor. "Here, take a pull at this," and he handed the patient a glass in which he had dropped a few crystals into some water.

Dr. McGinnis said in a whisper to Angela:

"Let him have that every three hours; oftener if he wants to talk. We've got to get his mind at rest."

"There's no danger?" asked Angela in the same tone.

"None in the wurrld. He's got a fine constitution, and mebbe the buckshot was pretty clean. I've washed them out well."

"To think of men shot down like dogs for speaking of their country! It's horrible! It's wicked! It's monstrous!"

"Faith, the English don't know what else to do with them, miss. It's no use arguin' with the like of him. That man lyin' on that bed 'ud talk the hind foot off a heifer. The only way to kape the likes of him quiet is to shoot him, and begob they have."

"I heard you, doctor," came from the bed. "If they'd killed me today there would be a thousand voices rise all over Ireland to take the place of mine."

"Faith, I'd rather kape me own life than to have a hundred thousand spakin' for me and me dead. Is it long yer stayin' here?" and the little man picked up his hat.

"I don't know," said Angela.

"Well, it's you they'll miss when ye're gone, Miss Kingsnorth. Faith, if all the English were like you this sort of thing couldn't happen."

"We don't try to understand the people, doctor. We just govern them blindly and ignorantly."

"Faith, it's small blame to the English. We're a mighty hard race to make head or tail of, and that's a fact—cryin' salt tears at the bedside of a sick child and lavin' to shoot a poor man in the ribs for darin' to ask for his rint."

"They're not Irishmen," came from the sickbed.

"Faith, and they are, now. And it's small wondher the men who sit in Whitehall in London trate them like savages."

"I've seen things since I've been here that would justify almost anything!" cried Angela. "I've seen suffering no one in England dreamed of; misery that London, with all its poverty and wretchedness, could not compare with. Were I born in Ireland I should be proud to stake my liberty and my life to protect my own people from such horrible brutality."

The wounded man opened his eyes and looked full at Angela. It was a look at once of gratitude and reverence and admiration.

Her heart leaped within her.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

The following statement by Mrs. John R. Emery, of Morristown, N. J., is issued by The New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, composed of 12,000 women of over twenty-one years of age. It ably expresses their views on the question of "Votes for Women," and was declared by Congressman Tuttle "to be the strongest argument that he had received on either side of the question:"

[From Newark Evening News.]

Claims Vote Ineffective.

"We claim that the votes of women have not succeeded in bettering or controlling industrial conditions in Colorado, nor have they succeeded in California in introducing valuable economic reforms, as the 'high cost of living' there has been increased rather than diminished, by a higher rate of taxes since the vote for women has existed there; that, also, the proud claim that woman would purify politics' cannot be unquestioned as long as the leaders of the Women's Congressional Union continue to threaten the President and other government official with political destruction, through their power at the next election, unless they would pronounce themselves in favor of woman suffrage. Such a 'black list' was indeed published during the current year, and would seem to prove that politically there is not much difference between the man political boss and his feminine emulator.

"In the Newark Sunday Call of this day I read the following sentence apropos of the approaching debate. 'The committee this year is an active committee rather than in times past a semi-honorary one. It is made up of women who are giving practically their entire time to the task,' etc.

"This is indeed true and would certainly fairly raise the question as to what becomes of any other than political duties under such stress? It must indeed be only the exceptional women who can have the ability, strength and energy for such duties and still retain her poise as home-maker and home-keeper.

"For years our great neurologists have been telling us of the danger to our race through the nervousness of the American woman. Sanitariums and rest cures have been built and filled by hundreds of nervous cases—and yet the American women of today are urging upon their sisters the additional nerve burden of men's duties as well as women's.

"We consider also that a great blot rests on the woman suffrage movement, in that they have not sufficiently repudiated the doctrines of the feminists who have allied themselves with them, especially in their teachings on marriage and divorce, and their complete destruction of the idea of home centralization as a means of power and self-control; in that they have, in the same way allowed themselves to be used by the Socialist party, for the advancement of their radical doctrines, having countenanced their organization by carrying their banners in their parades on more than one occasion.

Would Not Welcome Agitators.

"We also deplore their reception and entertainment of such agitators as Mrs. Pankhurst, Miss Christabel Pankhurst and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, and we think this should certainly make the men and women of America stop to question the state of mind which makes this possible to women of honor and truth. If these are to be their political ideals—is it worth while to introduce them in America?

"All these considerations lead us to believe that politically as well as ethically the equal suffrage will not benefit either our country, our women, or our race.

"And lastly, we contend that never in the history of politics has any party made such large, and varied, and overwhelming promises to gain votes as has the National Association for Equal Suffrage and the Woman's Congressional Union, and that it will take them until the millennium to make good their promises, and therefore their futility is apparent and that until this association can control its own members on these and kindred points, it has not the vital force to entitle it to change our established Constitution by any such disturbing amendment as that proposed, especially at a time in the world's history when we need all the stability and responsibility of our form of government, to meet and stay the upheaval of world powers now trembling in the balance.

"If ever our country is to prove the superiority of her faith—her government—and her ideals—now is the appointed time, and it is not for her women—the cradle of her race—to tear down her safeguards, but rather is it their duty to conserve and strengthen her in quietness and confidence."

(From Boston Daily Advertiser, December 21, 1914)

WOMEN LOSING INTEREST IN VOTE.

This Shown In Tabulation of School Committee Election in This and Other Cities of State.

The vanishing woman school committee voter, not only in Boston, but in the State as a whole, has become an alarming fact, according to the Mass. Anti-Suffrage Association.

The recent Boston city election, which showed that of some 200,000 women of voting age, only 9,413 bothred to even register, while only 3,949 voted, has brought the issue sharply home. A certain percentage of the women of voting age were not eligible for registration purposes, but after all deductions are made the total of the indifferent women is very large.

The list of registered women voters at the present time in Boston is the smallest since 1898. The number of women voting in Boston at the elections held last January and the other day is the smallest for an even larger number of years.

Below 4,000.

In the last 30 odd years the women voters only once dropped below 5,000 in their participation at the polls, and that was in 1908, when they cast only 4,363 votes. In the last two elections they have ranked below 4,000.

Cold weather and other annoying conditions have at times been given as the primary cause of the failure of women to turn out and vote, but that hardly explains the failure of women to register and thus qualify themselves for the exercise of the franchise.

The size of this steady drop in the number of women who care to exert themselves to register and vote is shown by the following table, covering the period from 1903 to date:

Year.	No. registered.	No. voting.

Household Hints

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES

Chilblains—To the yolk of one egg add sufficient lard and coarse salt (plenty of salt) to make a salve. Apply at night. Put on old stocking to prevent soiling bedding. About five applications will cure.

Night Sweats—Put pan of clean cold water under bed you are sleeping in, three nights in succession, and you will have no more night sweats.

Catarrh and Weak Lungs—It is not generally known that pillows made of the pine needles taken from the rich yellow pine and used by the patient suffering from the above troubles, are very beneficial. Inhale the odor of the fresh pine, which so soothingly penetrates the tubes. The effect is marvelous and lasting.

Croup—Melt butter and sugar together and give until child vomits. Very easy and sure remedy.

For Hoarseness or a Cough—Carefully roast a large lemon in the oven so that the skin does not break and juice escape. To the hot juice add enough white sugar to make a syrup. Take a teaspoonful every half hour.

Substitute for Cold Cream—Use castor oil. It removes every particle of dirt from the skin, leaving skin as soft as velvet. The odorless and tasteless brand is the best, unless a small quantity of violet perfume is added to the oil. Pour oil into palm of hand and vigorously rub it all over face, neck and hands. When thoroughly applied, rub the surface with a rough face cloth, and you will be surprised at the color of the cloth when you are through.

UP-TO-DATE RECIPES

Fladen Soup — Into four well-beaten eggs stir eight heaping tablespoons flour, beating till smooth. Stir in enough sweet milk for very thin batter. Put one tablespoon at a time into hot frying pan slightly greased with butter, spreading batter evenly over surface by tipping it about; fry to a light brown, turn pancake; when done, roll up and place in soup tureen. Fire must be hot and baking done swiftly; there should be no hard crust. Stew chicken or soupbone till done and pour broth over pancakes after slicing them. Salt the soup, not pancakes. Let stand fifteen minutes and serve.

Pineapple Salad—Use one can sliced pineapple, one-half grapefruit sliced, one tart apple cut in small cubes, one head of lettuce; garnish with one small can cherries. Serve with French dressing, or the following special dressing: One cup pineapple juice, juice of one-half grapefruit and one-fourth cup juice from cherries. This makes a sweet dressing.

Olive Oil and Lemon Dressing—Squeeze juice of one-half lemon into glass, mix in a little salt, red pepper and juice of a large onion; a little piece of garlic scraped into it if you like same. Then stir in olive oil until you have about equal parts of lemon and oil; stir well. To be used over finely cut cabbage and celery mixed or any green vegetable. Anyone liking olive oil will appreciate this.

Escaloped Onions—Boil onions in plenty of water (change it once); arrange in layers onions and bread crumbs, and a little grated cheese, butter, salt and pepper (melt butter); have a cover over top of grated bread crumbs, add rich milk to almost cover; bake until real brown.

CHAFING DISH RECIPES

"Woodchuck"—One can tomatoes, one-half pound cheese cut into small pieces, two eggs beaten light. Cook tomatoes until all lumps have disappeared, then add cheese, stirring constantly till melted. Add eggs and stir until whole thickens. Season with salt and pepper; serve on crackers.

"Mein Lieber"—Bring to a boil two cups milk, add salt, pepper, lump of butter and one-half cup mild cheese (cut small). When this has thickened slightly, add one cup chipped beef and serve with toasted bread.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

BY ALICE CREW GALL

Ella Elephant

It makes me sad to tell of Ella Elephant,
Who lived down in the jungle with her mother and her aunt.

Her greatest fault was selfishness; she would not share her toys,
Nor books, nor anything she had with other girls and boys.

And when her mother gave her tarts from off the pantry shelf,
She always ran away and hid and ate them by herself.

And even when her friends stood round, as hungry as could be,
She would not offer them so much as one small bite—not she!

Now, Ella just loved peanuts, and one day her mother bought
A lot of them down at the store, all nice and piping-hot.

She said: "Now, Ella dear, I think that I will just invite Your little friends to help you eat these peanuts up tonight."

And Ella didn't say a word, but down inside she thought,
"By night the peanuts will be cold; I'd rather have them hot."

"I'll wait till mother goes away, and then I'll quickly run
And get those peanuts, and I'll eat them, every single one."

That night when all the children came to Ella's house in glee,
They found Miss Ella Elephant as sick as she could be.

Her mother gave her bitter stuff and sent her off to bed.
"It serves her right, the selfish thing," the neighbor children said.

Here is the moral of this tale for children everywhere:
The pleasures we enjoy the most are those that we can share.

Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

[illegible] I've been [illegible] makes you [illegible] and heart of [illegible] and Gertrude Dascom, her big brown eyes soft with feeling.

"'Tell me about it," said the gray-haired woman, taking off her glasses and smoothing out her apron, prepared to listen.

"You know that I was out canvassing for work for the unemployed this afternoon," began the girl. "There are 500 of us out digging for help for the army of unfortunates. It's a great work. I am glad I enlisted. Some day I must tell you of all the people I met; fine, friendly folks. Only one door was slammed in my face. But I am too full of Josephine's story to talk of anything else now. Did you know Josephine Reid? She was a classmate of mine in grammar school before we moved to the east end. No? Well, it must have been before you came to the city. I had lost track of her for years. I knew she was married, but that was all. She came to the door in answer to my ring, but I did not know her. I explained my errand, all the while wondering where I had seen her before. She was so hollow-eyed, so thin, but she has kept that distinguished, aristocratic air so characteristic of her, and finally it came to me who she was. I said:

"'Your face is so familiar. Weren't you Josephine Reid?'

"'Yes,' she answered. 'Now, don't tell me your name. I should know you. One never forgets eyes like yours,' and after a moment's hesitation she added: 'I have it; you are Gertrude Dascom.'

"We had a fine visit. She showed me her baby, a dear, frail little fellow. Oh, Aunt Mary, the breadless ones I am trying to help are not the only sufferers."

"Did she tell you her story?" asked her sympathetic listener.

"Yes; she married over two years ago; someone I never knew. You see, she had told me something of the hard luck she was having as an excuse for not employing the help I was soliciting before she knew who I was, or perhaps I should not have heard her story. Her husband is a bookkeeper in Gray & Siles' store, only an assistant, I imagine. The home was very simply furnished. She said, 'We have no business living in this expensive neighborhood; we couldn't do it, in fact, only I rent rooms enough to more than pay the rent. Now three of my four roomers are out of work and I do not know how long they will stay. The latest blow is that Will has been given a month's notice. The company is retrenching and he is the newest man in the office. What we are going to do I can't imagine.'

"Aunty, when I saw that girlish wife and mother in such trouble I was all broken up. Then she went on with her story, saying:

"'You know my people opposed my marriage. I was only nineteen, just the age when a girl knows more than she ever will again,' and she laughed, her voice breaking in a half sob. 'So I refused to listen to reason, and—well, we ran away and were married. It about broke my parents' hearts. Why are girls so blind?' she added. 'If I had been willing to wait till Will got on his feet, got something ahead, they would not have objected, I am sure. When they saw I really loved him, that would have been enough. It was my happiness they had at heart. The shock broke mother's health, and father had to wind up his business at a loss and take her to California. If I can only keep them from knowing how things are with us I can stand it all right, but after all the trouble I have caused them already I simply can't tell them of our financial straits. Will feels about it just as I do. He says he's simply got to make good to justify my choice of him. Nothing short of baby's suffering will make me apply to them.'

"Isn't life hard?" added Gertrude thoughtfully, as she finished the story.

"Yes, very hard for most of us, but if it develops us it hasn't failed of its purpose. Probably nothing else would have developed the loving thought of her parents. Like most girls, she was barbarously selfish, intent on having her own way, come what would. I hope she won't make the mistake of breaking down her health with insufficient food and overwork. That would give the finishing blow to her mother," said the old lady.

"But you can see how her pride would suffer, if she had to appeal to them for help," returned the girl.

"That's it. I hope it will not be left to pride to decide. She owes it to them to let no permanent injury befall her," said the aunt.

"I am going to see her again soon. Maybe I can make her see that. Goodby, dear; I must be going."

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — ALL ABOARD FOR LIL' OLD U. S. A. — BY "HOP"

VICTORIAN MODES REVIVED FOR 1915.

"Years and years ago" they wore tight-fitting velvet basques and flaring skirts in tiers of flounces. This coquettish costume is essentially mid-Victorian with its basque fitted by darts; its bell sleeves flowing gracefully over full undersleeves set into wristbands; its "pillbox" turban, now called the polo shape; and its flounced skirt trimmed with ribbon quillings and fluttering bows.

"PHYSICAL EFFICIENCY" OR THE ART OF SELF-DEFENSE

Alpheus Geer, a member of the board of trustees of the Marshall-Stillman Association, will appear at the parish house of the Church of the Holy Cross, North Plainfield, Tuesday, at 8:15 o'clock. He will speak on "Physical Efficiency," with a view to forming classes, in which will be taught the art of self-defense, by entirely new methods, without the necessity of boxing.

Mr. Geer will also speak on a course of synthetic breathing, which has proved of great benefit to very many people of all ages, especially those suffering from all forms of nervousness and loss of sleep. Mr. Geer is a member of the New York Athletic Club; also the National Arts Club, and is prominently known in New York. Admission is free, and all those who come to this meeting will certainly be assured of a most interesting time.

SOMETIMES a bachelor asks "Why should I carry life insurance now?" Let him be offered one thought in reply--one beautiful thought from the pen of Washington Irving:

"There is an enduring tenderness in the love of a mother for her son that transcends all other affections of the heart. It is neither to be chilled by selfishness, nor daunted by danger, nor weakened by worthlessness, nor stifled by ingratitude. She will sacrifice every comfort to her son's convenience; she will glory in his fame and exult in his prosperity, and if misfortune overtake him he will be dearer to her for misfortune; and if disgrace settle upon his name she will still love and cherish him in spite of his disgrace. And if all the world beside cast him off she will be all the world to him."

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Carmen's Minstrels, a black-face troupe of nine comedians, singers and dancers, will head the bill at Proctor's Theatre for the first half of next week, commencing Monday. This act is one of the best of its kind in vaudeville and has been secured at much expense by the management of the popular West Front street playhouse. Ameta, an artist of eceptional merit, will give her sensational dancing act as a second feature of the offering. The other numbers will include Joe Holland, comedian; Willicn and Annita, comedy jugglers, and Hilton and Roberts, comedy skit. The motion picture portion of the program for the first half of the week will include the World Film Corporation's latest production, "The Deep Purple," in which Clara Kimball Young poses the leading role. This will be shown at all performances Monday and Tuesday, and on Wednesday the ninth episode of Zudora will delight the followers of this absorbing serial. The succeeding episodes of "Runaway June" and "The Exploits of Elaine" are scheduled for next Thursday and Friday, in the order named.

THE DAILY PRESS IN DUNELLEN will be found on sale or delivered to any address every afternoon by Edward Penick, druggist and newsdealer.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The New Amsterdam Theatre's big musical comedy success, "The Little Cafe," will hold the boards at the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon and tonight, bringing a week of diversified entertainment to a close. Motion picture features will be the offering at the house all next week. The production Monday and Tuesday will be David Higgins' greatest comedy success, "His Last Dollar," a play full of heart interest and action of red-blooded people. For Wednesday and Thursday, the feature will be Max Figman in the popular New York success, "Mr. What's His Name," and on Friday and Saturday the offering will be Messrs. Counihan and Shannon's own exclusive five reel novelty, "Alice in Wonderland," now being shown to crowded houses throughout the metropolis. Keep the fact in mind that popular prices prevail at the Plainfield Theatre during the presentation of all motion picture productions.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hyrdochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

JAIL TOO GOOD FOR SOME MEN

City Judge William G. DeMeza Endorses Proposed "Stone Pile Bill."

LAWS DO NOT PUNISH

Present Code Send Wife Deserters to Jail to "Rot" While Their Families Are Supported by the Community.

During the past year fourteen defendants appeared before City Judge William G. DeMeza in the police court charged with non-support; six others were brought to Plainfield from various parts of the country for deserting families in this city. As a rule the offenders were given another chance to "make good," but in a majority of the cases the offenses were sufficiently serious to warrant long prison terms. Because of the fact that New Jersey statutes do not provide remuneration for prison labor it would work a hardship on the community at large to send fifteen out of twenty of these prisoners to jail.

A bill introduced to the Legislature by Assemblyman Garfield Pancoast, of Camden county, is looked upon as a step in the right direction as a solution to this problem. The bill, known as the "Stone Pile Bill," provides that husbands found guilty of non-support shall be sentenced to prison at hard labor and be given work in a quarry. For their labor they will receive fifty cents a day, which will be turned over to the community for the support of the prisoners' families. Under the present laws a husband sent to the county jail from Plainfield could not be given work outside the jail and the law holds the sheriff, who has charge of the jail, responsible for his keeping. The Union county sheriff, therefore, would probably decline to send the prisoners out to work on stone piles and at the same time be liable for their keeping. A State Prison provision has been discussed and it is not unlikely that the law will be amended in a way so as to make these offenders liable to terms at Trenton.

In commenting on the proposition to a Daily Press reporter this morning, City Judge William G. DeMeza said:

"In my opinion the 'Stone Pile Bill' is the only plausible solution of the problem that has puzzled our city court for years. Under present conditions my only recourse is to send an offender to the Union county jail. Nine times out of ten his family becomes indigent while he is serving 'time' and it is up to the city of Plainfield to take charge of those who should have been supported by the offender. While in jail he is rotting. Sixty or ninety days of idleness does him no good and in many instances this 'easy and simple life' just suits the prisoner. His mind and hands are inactive and he is earning nothing toward the support of his family.

"Jail is too good for the man who deserts or refuses to support his family. He should be made to work on the roads or crack stone in a quarry and the pay he earns should be turned over to the proper authorities for the support of the relatives dependent upon him.

"I have sent a number of individuals to jail for this offense and have found that jail terms does them no good. Nine times out of ten they come back from Elizabeth and start the same shiftless life over again. The wife and children are again subjected to abuse and the male member of the family refuses to fulfill his duties as a bread provider. Hard labor would bring these offenders to their senses and make them realize their responsibilities.

"The prospective measure is an admirable one and should be supported by everyone interested in municipal welfare. It's a problem for the community and if put through the bill will fulfill a long felt need."

JOY-RIDE BROUGHT TO AN ABRUPT END

Plainfield "Sports" Deserted by Their Feminine Friends in Lonely Road.

An automobile touring car, three pretty chorus girls and a trio of male escorts generally serve as es*sentials to an up-to-date "joy-ride,"* at least that is what three young Plainfield sports thought Saturday night when they set out from the "old-home-town" to have the time of their young lives. The organizer of the party "kidnapped" his employer's touring car from the garage early in the evening and invited a pair of his companions to accompany him on an outing.

The three youths "picked up" the same number of nimble-footed chorus girls with three pairs of bewitching eyes and set out for a resort on the outskirts of the city.

At that place the men enjoyed a rehearsal of a vaudeville act staged by the damsels and in an hour and a half were ready to renew the trip. The driver of the machine at this point refused to head his gasoline driven steed toward the Queen City despite the protests of one male member of the party and the three fair guests. A remark from the pilot, who was of the "fresh" garden variety, led one of the girls to demand that the auto be stopped immediately and she was upheld in her request by one male escort and the other two members of the fair sex.

Under penatly of his life the driver finally brought the machine to a stop "forty miles from nowhere" and the girls went to a nearby farmhouse for a night's lodging.

In the morning the feminine "joy-riders" came to Plainfield and reported the occurrence to Chief Kiely. Owing to a forty weeks' vaudeville contract the girls were unable to remain in Plainfield to press a complaint and subsequently the matter was temporarily dropped. It is probable that the owner of the car will file a complaint with the State Motor Vehicles' Commission requesting the prosecution of the chauffeur.

MANY ASSISTED IN MEMORIAL SERVICE

Impressive Event Conducted Yesterday in the Y. W. C. A.

A large gathering attended the memorial service held in the Y. W. C. A. parlors, yesterday afternoon, in memory of Grace H. Dodge, a member whose death occurred suddenly last December. Miss Dodge was the president of the National Board of Young Women's Christian Associations and February 7 was set aside as the day for the service in order that the associations all over the world could receive the letters and join in the service.

Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, president of the local branch, had charge of the devotional exercises. The readings and hymns selected for the occasion were all favorites of Miss Dodge's. The following hymns were sung: "For All the Saints Who From Their Labors Rest," "Oh, To Be Nothing," "He Knows," and "Forward Be Our Watchword." Miss Leontine DeAhna, contralto in the First Baptist church, sang "Lead, Kindly Light" in an impressive manner. She was accompanied on the piano by Howard Case.

After reading the resolutions passed by the National Board, Mrs. Mead spoke in an intimate and touching manner of the life of Miss Dodge, emphasizing her great unselfishness, devotion and deeply religious faith. Born of a wealthy prominent New York family, with social position, and ability, humility was always the prevailing characteristic in her life. Her sympathy, love and little unconscious acts of kindness, won her thousands of friends throughout the world who mourn her.

Miss Katherine Aller, general secretary of the local Y. W. C. A., spoke briefly of her acquaintance with Miss Dodge, when she was a pupil in the National Training School. She dwelt particularly upon the simplicity of the leader and the tender attachment that sprang up between every girl that knew her.

DEATH COMES TO PIONEER JUSTICE

James Darby Cleaver, Formerly of Scotch Plains, Dies in Masonic Hospital.

FIFTY YEARS ON BENCH

Had Been an Inmate of Burlington Institution for the Past Eight Years—Was Educated in Local Public Schools.

Judge James Darby Cleaver, a native of Scotch Plains and for nearly half a century one of the best known lawyers in New Jersey, died Saturday afternoon at the Masonic Home in Burlington, where he had been an inmate for the past eight years. Death was due to the infirmities of age as he was in his nietieth year and had been failing for a long time. The body will be brought to Scotch Plains and the funeral will be held in the Baptist church Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, interment following in the Baptist cemetery.

Judge Cleaver was born in Scotch Plains, on January 20, 1826, his father being William Cleaver, one of the earliest settlers in the village. He was educated in the local schools and when a young man took up the study of law in Newark, practising in that city after his admission to the bar. Later in life he was made a justice of the Essex County District Court, an office which he held with great distinction. He was also elected to the New Jersey Assembly from Essex county and served two terms, during which he gained prominence as an advocate of many meritorious measures. When only a child, Judge Cleaver suffered a severe attack of scarlet fever and it left his eyesight in an impaired state. Twenty years ago it failed him entirely, compelling him

ANOTHER ROBBERY BY THE TALL DARK MAN

Individual Answering Wainwright's Description Makes a Haul.

That John Wainwright, who is suspected of having committed a robbery in the home of the Misses Trenbath, at 519 Central avenue, Thursday morning, is still in this vicinity is the opinion of the local police. Mrs. Pettit, of Conover's Corner, near Lincoln, reported to the local authorities yesterday, that she was robbed of $14 and a diamond ring Saturday, the thief making good his getaway.

To the police Mrs. Pettit describes the intruder as being tall and wearing a long dark overcoat. This meager description tallies with that of Wainwright when last seen. As it is not known whether the supposed perpretrator of the "daylight robbery" in this city Thursday left Plainfield by foot or rail it is barely possible that he walked to New Market and has been hiding in that section since.

Sergeant Higgins is still working on the case but nothing that will lead to the arrest of the culprit has been learned. Copies of the bulletin issued by Chief Kiely giving a description of the supposed crook and the valuables taken have been distributed broadcast throughout the country and practically every department head is on the lookout for Wainwright.

ARTHUR FISHER WEDS MISS HELEN A. SOUTHARD

Miss Helen Augustus Southard, of Scotch Plains, and Arthur Fisher, of New York, were married Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Catholic church, Westfield, Father Waterson, the rector, officiating in the presence of the relatives and a few friends.

Miss Emma Rath, of New York, was the bridesmaid, while Henry Wick, of College Point, L. I., was the best man. The bride is a graduate of the Fanwood township schools, while Mr. Fisher is employed at the Saurer plant of the International Motor Company in this city. After the wedding the couple left for Washington. They will reside in Scotch Plains upon their return.

BODY ARRIVES HOME.

The body of Mrs. John Beetham who died a week ago yesterday at Santa Barbara, Cal., arrived at the former home of the deceased at Greenbrook, this morning. The funeral will be held there tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Beetham went to California several weeks ago for her health.

BAKERS TO BOOST PRICES OF BREAD

Local Producers Met This Morning and Fixed New Rates for Foodstuffs.

CAUSED BY WHEAT RISE

Action Was Predicted by This Paper Last Week—Small Loaves Go up to Six Cents and Rolls Will Be Twelve Cents a Dozen.

As predicted in the Daily Press of last week local bakers held a meeting this morning and decided to boost the price of bread and rolls, the new ruling going into effect either Wednesday or Thursday. Five-cent loaves of bread will be priced at six cents and rolls that have been ten cents a dozen will go up to twelve cents. There will be no increase in the price of ten cent loaves but the weight will be slightly decreased.

Plainfield bakers have been prompted to do this by the jump in the price of wheat, which at one time last week was quoted at $1.56 per bushel. The price of white flour to the baker has been raised from $4.25 to $8 a barrel and the price of rye flour has increased from $4 to $7.50. In view of these facts bread made from the inferior grade costs the producer nearly as much as that made from the white flour.

From 250 to 280 loaves can be made from a barrel and there was some discussion at the meeting this morning regarding the making of smaller loaves instead of raising the price. This met with disapproval, however, as far as the smaller loaves and rolls were concerned, but it was thought best to let the larger loaves remain at the same quotation with an ounce or two reduction in weight. The increase of $4 per barrel has resulted in the cost of bread rising nearly two cents a loaf.

At the present time there is no standard weight for each loaf produced and that will be determined upon before Wednesday by the bakers. The producers have felt the need of raising the price since flour started to soar and have maintained the usual prices as long as possible.

PAUL H. BURNS CHOSEN PRESIDENT

Succeeds Daniel Courain as Head of the Holy Name Society.

Paul H. Burns was unanimously elected president of the St. Mary's Holy Name Society at a meeting held in Social Hall, yesterday afternoon, and the following were chosen to serve in co-operation with him during the ensuing year: Vice-president, Daniel McCarthy; secretary, Albert F. LaRock; treasurer, M. B. Caffrey. Mr. Burns has been a prominent figure in the activities of the organization for a number of years and the selection is a popular one among all interested in the society.

The retiring president, Daniel Courain, declined renomination because of pressing business interests and the work required of the president of the Union County Federation of Holy Name Societies, a position to which he was recently elected.

Father B. M. Bogan made an address congratulating the members on the work accomplished during the past year and commented on the good work that may be accomplished by a properly regulated organization of this calibre. He also lauded the retiring officers for their efficiency and welcomed the new roster to their year's duties. Several new members were added during the afternoon.

The treasurer, M. B. Caffrey, presented his annual report to the society showing that the treasury is in a very satisfacory condition at the present time. The entertainment committee, comprised of ten members, reported that the weekly social night idea recently attempted was a great success.

MISS HERFORD'S PROGRAM.

Under the auspices of the Cupbearers' Circle, of King's Daughters, Miss Beatrice Herford will appear at the Plainfield High School Auditorium, on Friday night, February 12. Miss Herford has many original monologues to offer this year among which are: "In a Restaurant," "The Cook," "The Disinterested Voter," and "At An Intelligence Office."

STATE ELKS HOLD A LOCAL MEETING

Special Committee Answers Twelve Questions put by the Grand Lodge.

IN RECOGNITION PLEA

John H. Cose Elected Chairman and Frederic Pope, of Somerville, Secretary—Plainfield Lodge Entertains Visitors at Turkey Dinner.

A special committee appointed by the New Jersey State Association of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, met at the clubhouse in this city, yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of answering the series of twelve questions propounded by the grand lodge in order to secure information before the supreme body finally votes upon the proposition of recognizing the State organizations. The latter have been formed throughout the United States for several years past, but have not been taken into consideration at conventions or in any business pertaining to the welfare of the order at large. The demand for recognition has become so insistent that the grand lodge will put it to a vote at the next annual session to be held in Los Angeles, California, in July.

John H. Cose, past exalted ruler of Plainfield lodge, was made chairman of the meeting, and Frederick Pope, of Somerville lodge, was made secretary. The others in attendance were Thomas F. Macksey, of East Orange, president of the State Association; Albin Smith, of Paterson; George Guenther, of Newark, E. Wilbur Collins, of Camden, Morris Odell, of Camden; Edward Burt, of New Brunswick, and H. E. Fegerskill, district deputy, of Perth Amboy. Each

T. J. SHIRLEY WEDS MISS K. M. FRYE

Ceremony Performed by Father Bogan at St. Mary's Church, Saturday.

Miss Katherine Maud Frye, of New York, and Theodore J. Shirley, of this city, were married at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening at St. Mary's church, Father Bernard M. Bogan, the rector, officiating. The ceremony was witnessed by the immediate relatives. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shirley, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

After the wedding an informal reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shirley, 441 West Sixth street, which was attended only by near relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley left yesterday for the Pacific Coast. They will visit San Diego and before returning home will go to the Panama Exposition, and visit other points of interest in the West. Mr. Shirley is well-known here where he was for some time prominent in the Plainfield Merchants' Association. He is also a member of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus.

YOUTHFUL TRIFLER AND THIEF GETS A JAIL TERM

"Three months in the county jail will make you realize that we mean business around here," said Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, when Charles Hankerson, a nineteen-year-old colored youth, was arraigned for stealing automobile accessories from Abram Newmark. The Hankerson youth is afflicted with a peculiar mania for stealing electrical supplies and has been in the police toils on several previous occasions.

Because of the offender's youth, Judge DeMeza has always dealt leniently with him and been inclined to give him every opportunity. He has been placed on probation on previous appearances, but neglected to report to the probation officer.

MANY CONTRIBUTE TO THE EXCHANGE FUND

Total of $220 Received Toward Saving of Worthy Institution.

Those who are interested in the public spirited movement to insure the continuation of the Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work, are greatly encouraged over the prompt response of the citizens of Plainfield in coming to the rescue of the worthy institution. Since Saturday the fund has increased to $200, nine $10 subscriptions being received at the office of the Daily Press.

The annual meeting of the Exchange will be held tomorrow when the members will decide upon the future of the institution. Judging by the interest shown in its welfare there now seems to be every indication that the Exchange will be continued, but many more subscriptions are necessary to insure this fact.

Among the latest contributors to the fund is United States Senator James E. Martine, who forwarded $10 from Washington with best wishes for the success of the movement to save the Exchange. As previously stated about one hundred of the one hundred and fifty consignors to the Exchange are Plainfielders and they would suffer greatly in case it was decided to close the institution. It is the hope of everyone interested that the necessary one hundred $10 subscriptions will be received as soon as possible so that there may be no doubt as to continuing the Exchange as in the past. Subscriptions may be sent to the Daily Press where they will be acknowledged and the money will be forwarded to the treasurer of the Exchange. The subscriptions to date are as follows:

W. L. Smalley	$10
George S. Clay	$10
Mrs. R. A. Claybrook	$10

BROUGHT HOME THE BACON.

The butcher store of Clifford Appelgate on East Front street was broken into Saturday night, entrance being gained through a broken pane of window glass in the rear. Indications point to a hasty retreat of the culprit as all that was taken was a strip of bacon.

AUSTRIANS LOSE THREE-HOUR FIGHT

Forced to Retreat Leaving Many Wounded on the Battlefield.

SUCCESS OF RUSSIANS

Reported That German Column on Road to Bolimow Has Been Turned Back—Geneva Hears of Austrian Reverses.

Paris, Feb. 8.—The War Office gave out the following today.

"From the sea to the Oise there was an artillery duel yesterday. This was rather violent in the region of Guinchy, west of La Bassee. To the southwest of Carency we succeeded in a surprise attack upon a German trench which was blown up by a mine and its defenders were killed or taken prisoners. On the Aisne front and in Champagne there were intermittent bombardments. The efficiency of our artillery fire was demonstrated at several points. In the Argonne an attack by the enemy in the direction of Fontaine Madame was repulsed. At Bagatelle the Germans began a violent infantry action in the morning. At last reports we were maintaining our positions. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report."

Austrian troops have violated the Roumanian frontier near Turn Severin, the "Journal" hears from Nish. The Austrians are reported to have opened fire on frontier guards who attempted to oppose their passage and a furious fight followed.

Strong reinforcements came to the help of the Roumanians, and after a three hours' struggle the Austrians are reported to have been driven back across the line with many wounded.

If the Austrians had captured Turn Severin, the correspondent says, they would have had complete command of Kladovo, the only place in Servia on the Danube permitting communication with Roumania.

The incident, which occurred several days ago, has not been followed up by either side, the "Journal's" report states.

Geneva, via Paris, Feb. 8.—Desperate fighting is going on in the Carpathians between Lawoczne, in Galicia, and Voloctz, in Hungary. According to advices here the Russians have captured the villages of Ulics, Kormarnik, Csertesz and Swidnik.

A great battle is raging in Bukowina, between Dorna-Watra and Kimpolung. The Austrians are reported driven back beyond the Moldava River, and the Russians also have gained some small successes at Yablomitza.

London, Feb. 8.—A despatch from Petrograd says that the Russian Staff issued the following:

"On the right bank of the Vistula some skirmishes favorable to us took place. On a broad front near Nadroz cassocks attacked a squadron of the enemy supported by infantry, capturing 20 hussars. Our cavalry at 3 a. m. dislodged by a bayonet attack the Germans from Podlesije and Prondystary, capturing a quantity of arms, ammunition and wire. An im-

It was written on December 20, but owing to its having to pass the censors was not received by Mr. Hardingham until January 15, almost a month later.

In the view held by Mr. Scholer as to the present situation and the ultimate outcome of the war is the view of the average soldier enlisted under the standards of the Allies then the morales of the army is excellent. He writes in part: "We got it as first as a result of the Germans surprising us by their sudden march through Belgium, but the boot is on the other leg now and they are getting it hot." J. NEWTON APGAR DIES IN THIS CITY

Prominent Dunellen Citizen Succumbs to Complications at Muhlenberg Hospital.

J. Newton Apgar, aged 44 years, a life-long resident of Dunellen, died at Muhlenberg Hospital, Saturday night, following an operation for appendicitis two weeks ago. There were other complications, including peritonitis and septic poisoning, which the patient did not have the strength to overcome. Mr. Apgar was first taken ill on January 20, when his trouble was pronounced as appendicitis.

Mr. Apgar was the eldest of three sons of the late Mr. and Mrs. John P. Apgar, and was born in this city. When he was four years of age he removed to Dunellen with his parents, the family home being on North avenue. He attended the Dunellen schools and later learned the carpenter's trade under the supervision of his father, who was a pioneer builder.

On February 22, 1894, Mr. Apgar married Miss Hattie Campbell, daughter of Recorder David S. and the late Mrs. Sarah Campbell, of Dunellen. Shortly after his marriage Mr. Apgar's mother died. He continued the contracting business with his father for nearly ten years and then took a position with John Abbott, of Plainfield, where he remained for two years.

Later Mr. Apgar became a member of the contracting firm of Rimmer, Apgar & Cuzen, which, at the end of two years, was dissolved, and Mr. Apgar continued in the business alone. During the past five years he had many large contracts, including the remodeling of the Queen City Hotel, this city; the new Lincoln School at Dunellen, and the $50,000 school at Bound Brook.

Throughout his long residence in Dunellen he was interested in every phase of the borough's development, and he was held in the highest esteem by every resident of the place for his many excellent qualities. For the past five years he was chief of the Dunellen fire department. He was a member of the Presbyterian church and secretary of the Sunday-school for twenty years. It was largely through his efforts that the bowling alleys were installed in the basement of the church.

Mr. Apgar was also a member of William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M.; Court Dunellen, No. 1,123, I. O. F.; the Board of Trade, a former member of the Board of Education, and a member of Anchor Lodge, No. 139, F. and A. M., of this city. He was judge of election for a number of years and a director and organizer of the Watchung Investment Company, and at the time of his death was president of the Dunellen Home Building and Loan Association.

There survives a wife, two daughters, Ruth and Deveral, and two brothers, Willard N. and George I. Apgar, Jr. The funeral will be held at the late home at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. E. R. Brown, of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, will officiate. Those wishing to do so can view the body this evening between the hours of 7:30 and 9 o'clock. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

DEATH COMES TO JUSTICE

to give up his law practice. He then returned to Scotch Plains, to which place he had always gone to spend his summer vacation, and made his home there until eight years ago when he entered the Masonic institution where he died. Although totally blind for such a long time, he kept in touch with civic and politically affairs of the State in a remarkable manner and the way in which he discussed the topics of the day was a marvel to his many friends.

Judge Cleaver became a member of the Scotch Plains Baptist church when a mere youth and it was a source of pride to him that he had always retained his connection with it. For many years he was president of the board of trustees and at the time when the congregation became involved in the Frazee Lee estate controversy, he acted as counsel for the church in conjunction with the late Chancellor Runyon. The legal acumen of Judge Cleaver has always been given credit for the satisfactory compromise which was brought about. There are many Plainfielders who remember the finer details of his work in connection with this case.

Judge Cleaver was a member of Cosmos Lodge, No. 106, F. & A. M., of Newark, also of Protection Lodge, No. 28, I. O. O. F., of Newark. At one time he was grand master of the Odd Fellows in this State. There are no surviving immediate relatives as the wives of two marriages and also several children have been dead for several years.

John Z. Hatfield, of Scotch Plains, is a second cousin, and there is a first cousin, Mrs. Sarah Hatfield, who lives in Westfield.

SCOUTS ATTENDED DIVINE SERVICES

Troops in All Parts of the City Inaugurate Week of Celebration.

HEAR SPECIAL SERMONS

Many Local Clergymen Commented on Remarkable Work Being Accomplished by Organization Which is Five Years Old.

Services were held in a number of the local churches yesterday, marking the opening of the week's celebration of the fifth anniversary of the incorporation of the Boy Scouts of America, special programs being arranged by the clergymen. The religious inaugural features were attended by large numbers of parents and friends of those interested in the movement and the Scouts atended the churches in full regalia. The opening day's program was observed simultaneously throughout the land, Scouts of Alaska participating in similar services to those conducted by the local troops. Ministers throughout the world, wherever the Stars and Stripes were floated, accepted the invitation to assist in the devotional exercises and many received their first conception of the rapidly spreading movement and of the good work being accomplished by those interested in boys.

In accordance with the Scout idea, members in this city obeyed the command of the leaders and in most instances the troops were represented in their entirety. The observance was of an interdenominational nature and Scouts of all creeds, color and nationality participated. Every Boy Scout in Plainfield, and there are several full-fledged workers, was instructed to attend divine services and the response was unanimous. Many local clergymen took occasion to comment on the nature of this particular phase of work among the juvenile set of Plainfield and in those churches where the sermons were not based on Boy Scout topics, an informal program was followed.

Men prominent in the commercial and social world appeared at the ecclessiastical institutions garbed in the attire of Scout leaders and this lent marked impressiveness to the event. The affair was without a doubt one of the greatest demonstrations of juvenile organization ever witnessed in Plainfield and will lead many to take an interest in a movement that will some day become one of America's leading institutions.

Where the church organists prepared special programs of music for the anniversary the Scouts joined heartily in the singing and in every church where the Scouts appeared they made their presence conspicuous by enthusiastic participation in the religious ceremonies.

In the First Presbyterian church, Troop No. 5, one of the first established and largest in the city, was largely represented, and Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring preached a sermon of special interest to the young American, whether or not he be a Boy Scout. Troop U was out in full force at Bethel chapel; Troop 8 at the Crescent Avenue church, Troop 9 at the First M. E. church where a special sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr Charles M. Anderson; Troop 10 at Trinity Reformed church where Rev. J. Y. Broek preached a typical sermon; Troop 11 at the Grace P. E. church; Troop 12 at the First Baptist church; Troop 13 at the Netherwood Reformed church; Troop 14 at Hope chapel, and Troop 15 att he Congregational church.

Scouts in Dunellen and Scotch Plains also observed the day.

PLANNING DUTCH SUPPER.

The annual Dutch supper to be given under the auspices of the Young People's Society for the benefit of St. Peter's Lutheran church will be held on Wednesday evening from 6 to 8. The committee in charge of the affair consists of the Misses Walley Guttenberger, Sophie Faber, Erma Schurig and Rudolph Heinold, and the young people promise a very enjoyable evening to all who come. Tickets for same may be purchased from any member of the society.

McCann, Albert Brooks, David Coleman, William T. Smith, William S. Wilson, Frank Hedden, David Smalley, Cr., J. Fred MacDonald, John C. Sutphen and William D. Classen.

UNIFORMED RANK CARNIVAL OPENS

Large Attendance at Co. H., Jr. O. U. A. M., Carnival in Sebring's.

DANCING A FEATURE

Merriment is Plentiful Proportion for Those Who Seek it—Many Booths Well Patronized During the Opening Hours.

With an initial attendance that taxed Sebring's Auditorium to its capacity, the first annual fair of Company H, Uniformed Rank, Jr. O. U. A. M., opened under most auspicious circumstances Saturday night. It will be continued each night through the present week, terminating on Saturday with a program that is certain to mark up a standard for affairs of this kind in Plainfield.

The committee in charge of the arrangements has worked faithfully for several weeks making preparations for the fair and the result of its labors was plainly seen at the opening. The auditorium was a mass of attractive decorations, patriotic colors predominating, while numerous enticing booths drew the attendants to the places where they could secure all manner of articles. These included a refreshment stand, candy counter and also the "Midway games" that are proving so popular with weekly fair devotees, the kind that keep them busy every minute, of course. The big feature is dancing and excellent music for this is provided by Halfoerster's orchestra, of Elizabeth. The big crowd Saturday night was ably handled by an efficient floor committee in charge of Forster Hartpence.

The general committee has made arrangements for several features to take place during the week. Among these will be the attendance of a big delegation of Juniors from New Brunswick on Thursday night, and everybody knows when the Brunswick boys come over they do more than their share in helping to make things lively. On Saturday night, there will be visiting delegations from Junior Councils at Elizabeth, Newark, Bound Brook and other places, led by the Liberty Fife and Drum Corps, of Newark, another "live wire" organization. Altogether, Company H has left no stone unturned to make its first fair a big success and any Plainfielder who misses attending it at least one night will have regrets for many months to come.

The complete list of committees in charge of the undertaking is as follows: General chairman, William J. Hartpence; secretary and treasurer, Forster Hartpence; floor committee, Charles S. Wilson, Harry Owens, Thomas Leacock, Samuel Kriney and H. Hutchinson; donation committee, Norma Vogt, Frank Ingraham, George VanHorn, C. Edward Hadden and H. Bozenberry; refreshment committee, William Rutledge, William Carson, Edward Wakefield, Clarence Patrick and Oliver Peel; hat checking committee, Fred Welsh, Harry Winn and Charles Tinsman; tickets, Forster Hartpence, John Kriney, Harry Hoffman, Andrew Palmer, James Tunison, Cornelius Sheets, E. Bailey and Frank Franham.

GRAVE PROBLEMS CONFRONT BRYAN

President to Confer With Secretary Regarding Lusitania Incident.

Washington, Feb. 8.—When Secretary of State Bryan returned to his desk today it was to find himself confronted by two grave problems. First, the use of British ships to the American flag and second the evident intention of neutral nations to look to the United States for leadership in the protest against German's threatened blockade of the British Isles.

The Secretary's first act was to send for Counsellor Lansing. President Wilson will see the Secretary some time today to discuss the Lusitania flag incident. It was not denied at the White House that the President is puzzled over the proper course to pursue in recognizing the incident officially. He is said to realize the great peril such a practice would plunge honest American shipping into.

After a conference with Counsellor Lansing Secretary of State Bryan declined to comment on the situation at any length. He admitted that the protest to Germany on her blockade order is still under consideration.

ELKS HOLD STATE MEETING

of the twelve questions were taken up separately and the answer was given only after it had been discussed from all points of view. The work required nearly four hours to complete. The interrogations were all intended to establish practically these facts, that is, what advantage would it be to have the grand lodge recognize the State associations; what good would it bring to the grand lodge itself; what good it would bring to the subordinate lodges, and what would be the method of supreme control in State matters. The same questions will be answered by every State organization and comparisons will be made before the final vote is taken.

In New Jersey, every lodge has joined the State association with the exception of the one at Millville, which for some reason has refused to be a party to it. All the other subordinate lodges entered the federation movement when the realization came that the grand lodge was becoming too unwieldy a body to conduct on the central plan that had been in operation since the National Elk movement started. At the present time there are 1,400 new delegates to the grand lodge convention each year. When these are added to the members who have served before and who always retain their card when they have once been given recognition in a grand lodge session, the number soars into many thousands. There are times also when the sending of delegates to the big convention entails almost a prohibitive expense to lodges of small finances, for instance, the convention this year is to be held at Los Angeles and the expenses of a New Jersey delegate will approximate $400. If the State associations are given recognition, all disputes referring to the particular branch to which the subordinates belong, can be settled quickly, and the entire State can unite upon one or more delegates to the grand lodge with only a proportionate expense. These facts were all brought out at the meeting yesterday and the discussion resulted in much additional information being forwarded to the National committee.

At the close of the business session, the delegates were taken in hand by J. Fred MacDonald and Charles H. Dunham, of the house committee, and served with a turkey dinner. They afterward spent an hour in inspecting the new clubhouse and also visited several points of interest in the city before returning home.

CHAS. K. WENDELL NOW A REGISTERED PHARMACIST

Charles K. Wendell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wendell, of 398 Arlington avenue, was informed by the State Board of Pharmacy today, that he had successfully passed his examinations to become a registered pharmacist. The announcement was doubly agreeable to the young Plainfielder from the fact that he had only appeared before the Board but once, and getting through the first time is considered an exceptional display of ability. He is at present a student in the New Jersey College of Pharmacy at Newark, where he will complete his course in April, after which he will take the New York State examination. In the mid-year examinations at the Newark institution, he lead his class in the entire course of study.

The title of registered assistant was conferred on Mr. Wendell by the Trenton Board last April and this is now superseded by the registered pharmacist certificate. The latter permits him to own and conduct a drug store.

The young man's many friends in the city and borough extend congratulations on his attaining the desired goal on the first attempt and also with him success in his future enterprises. Mr. Wendell's preceptor is Frank Rowley, the Park avenue druggist, with whom he has been connected for several years.

AUTO VS. HORSE.

Mortality statistics for 1913, issued by the Bureau of the Census, and released for publication today by the Department of Commerce, show that at least until that year the automobile, in spite of the rapidity with which it has come into general use, was but little more deadly than the horse. This assertion is made from the fact that the mortality incident to automobile operation was less in 1912 than that chargeable, directly and indirectly, to man's faithful but sometimes erratic friend, and only a little more in 1913.

During 1913 the number of deaths resulting from automobile accidents and injuries was 2,488, while the number due to injuries and accidents caused by other vehicles (principally horse drawn) was 2,381, and the number caused by animals (principally horses), was 540. The corresponding figures for 1912 were 1,758, 2,221 and 543. A few fatalities caused by motorcycles and bicycles are included in those due to "other vehicles," and a small number chargeable to animals other than horses are comprised in those caused by animals; but, after making due allowance for these factors, there still remains a considerable "margin of safety" in favor of the automobile.

Deaths due to railway accidents and injuries during 1913 numbered 8,212, and those resulting from street car accidents and injuries, 1,998. The corresponding figures for 1912 were 8,209 and 1,832. For the first time the number of fatalities due to automobile accidents and injuries exceeds the number resulting from injuries caused by other vehicles and also exceeds the number due to street car accidents.

It will be interesting to see the figures for 1914. The Monday morning reports of automobile casualities during the last year certainly will send the number of deaths up at a rapid pace.

BREAKERS AHEAD.

That the Republicans are not going to have an easy time of it in the State Senate when it comes to making laws for strictly partisan purposes is already evident from the fact that Senator Blanchard H. White, of Burlington county, has already kicked over the traces. An effort was made by the Republicans, who only have a bare majority in the Senate, to shove through a bill that would oust a Democratic auditor in Newark, and Senate White refused to be a party to the deal. Some of the partisan papers accused the Senator of deserting the party, and he has replied to them in a statement in which he said:

"I am just as good a Republican as any other member of the Senate or of the party. I will do everything in my power to assist the party to fulfill its platform pledges to the people of New Jersey, and I am ready to do anything possible to aid my party, but I will not stand for peanut politics, and that is all the Newark bill I voted against amounted to. I have received letters from some of the best people in Newark commending me for the ground I took, and I am perfectly willing to abide by the stand I have taken. I do not propose to permit myself to be used for a catspaw to pull the chestnuts out of the fire for Newark politicians, whether they be of my party or another. I don't propose to be led around by a string, nor will I pledge myself to vote for measures which I know are not fair for the sake of playing peanut politics.

As the Republicans have a majority of but one in the Senate, it is reasonable to assume that strictly party measures will not have easy sailing at Trenton this winter, and Senator White may rest assured that in his stand he has the backing of the great independent voters of the State as a whole. He has proven that several times, so far as his own county is concerned, when he has come out on top in hot contests for office.

No better evidence of the advantages to be gained by having the Mayor and Council in harmony on all matters can be found than in the action of the city fathers in adopting every recommendation made by Mayor Calkins for the improvement of city business. The Mayor suggested a number of radical changes in procedure, and after a month's consideration of the matter the Council has adopted them all. The proposed budget will be published prior to its adoption, so that citizens can appear and make protest if they consider that extravagances are proposed; the Board of Education members of the School Estimate Body are to be asked to frequently meet with the Council members prior to the final adoption of the budget; records are to be kept of committee meetings, and a number of other changes will be made. The councilmen, like the Mayor, all believe that the people should know what is going on, and they are planning to do their share to bring publicity to city matters.

Incidentally, just in passing, no plans have as yet been filed for a building to be erected at the corner of Front and Somerset streets in this city, and what's more we'll bet a big round apple that they will not be filed for a store for any drug concern, some reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

Mayor Calkins' warning about cleaning sidewalks was timely, but it was rather hard on the fellow who delayed just long enough to let the snow become frozen solid, so that it was next to impossible to move it. And there were a lot of good citizens who were caught that way.

PROGRAM ANNOUNCED FOR SCOUT MEETING

Troops From Neighboring Towns to Be Present at Rally.

Scout Commissioner Allen E. Beals announced this morning the program for the Boy Scout rally to be held in Washington School Auditorium, this evening. Scotch Plains, Dunellen and possibly New Brunswick Scouts will be here to take part in the exercises that will inaugurate the celebration attendant upon the fifth anniversary of the incorporation of the Boy Scouts of America.

Every Boy Scout in the city has been urged to invite his parents to be present at the demonstration this evening. No fee will be charged, the plan being to give all parents of Scouts an opportunity of seeing the boys at work. In the absence of Assemblyman William N. Runyon, who is at Trenton, Vice-President L. M. Leek will preside. The program follows:

8:00—Scout Council is called to order. Applications for merit badges will be received.

8:15—Bugle will call Scouts to attention. Saluting, they will stand and audibly recite the Scout oath. At the same moment, according to difference in time in various parts of the country, 300,000 Boy Scouts will simultaneously do the same thing.

8:20—Singing of "America."

8:30—Address.

8:50—Bugle will summon troops for exhibitions. Champion Engineers' patrol, Troop 5, John Richards leader, will demonstrate erection of 30 foot suspension bridge. This will be followed by signalling work by squad from Troop 11, John Causbrook leader. Caryl Dunavan, leader of one of the patrols of Troop 9, will take his boys through a tent setting up drill, which won for him honorable mention at the last Scout competition. Red Cross patrol, Troop 5, Thomas Fitch leader, will demonstrate first aid.

This demonstration will be followed by examples of Scout work by Eagle Scout Charles E. Rice, and other Scouts.

A space will be left clear in the center of the floor for drill purposes. Guests will find seats about the sides of the hall and troops will take their stations near their own campfires which they will proceed to arrange upon entering the hall.

BISHOP MATTHEWS WILL VISIT HERE MARCH 10

The Right Reverend Paul Matthems, Bishop of New Jersey, will make his first visit to Grace parish Wednesday evening, March 10. This is to be a purely pastoral visitation, as there will be no confirmation. The bishop comes to see the parish and to meet the people.

Every member of the congregation will appreciate this courtesy from the bishop, especially at a time when he is overtaxed with the necessary efforts of organizing a new work. The rector says that he is certain that no member of the congregation will willingly forego the opportunity of giving him a hearty and loyal welcome. Opportunity will be given after the service for our people to meet and greet the bishop personally.

PREVIOUS OPINION UPHELD BY COURT

Vice-Chancellor Howell Rules in Favor of Westfield Trust Company.

In the Court of Chancery, in Newark, Saturday, Vice-Chancellor Howell granted a non-suit verdict in the case of Martin B. Bloom and William N. Ackerman, of Westfield, against the Westfield Trust Company and former Congressman Charles N. Fowler. The litigation was brought to offset a verdict handed down in the New Jersey and later in the New York courts holding Ackerman and Bloom responsible for a $6,000 note on the Westfield banking institution and endorsed by Ackerman and Fowler.

According to the testimony Fowler was to have purchased 120 shares of Gas and Electric Car Company stock from Ackerman before January 1, 1912, for $12,000. It was arranged to take the note out on the Trust Company and Fowler gave additional collateral in New York property valued at $2,500. The Trust Company later sued to obtain the value of the note together with interest and court cost and the verdict amounted to about $6,500 in the plaintiff's favor. The latter suit was lodged against Ackerman, Bloom and Fowler.

Another suit was started by the Westfield bank against Ackerman and Bloom in the New York courts and an award of $6,552.86 was made to the plaintiff. Fowler was left out in the latter litigation and the case was reopened by Ackerman and Bloom opposing Fowler and the Westfield Trust Company resulting in the decision Saturday.

TROOPER WILLIAM BROWN GIVEN FAREWELL PARTY

William Brown, of Watchung avenue, was given a dinner at his home, Saturday night, as a farewell gathering previous to his leaving for Texas City, Texas, where he will rejoin the Sixth Cavalry of the United States Army, in which he has been a trooper for the past three years. Covers were laid for twelve and at the conclusion of the repast several hours were spent in an enjoyable manner with the aid of an informal program of vocal and instrumental music.

Mr. Brown has been at home since November, enjoying the first furlough he was able to secure from the time of his enlistment. Most of his life in the cavalry has been along the southwestern border and because of the unsettled conditions in Mexico very few leaves of absence were granted. He will leave for Galveston, Texas, on the Mallory Line steamer "Comus," which sails from New York, Wednesday, after which he will proceed at once to Texas City, where Troop H, in which he has been assigned, is encamped. The probabilities are that it will be another long period before he is able to again visit in Plainfield as the cavalry will be held under orders for immediate moving as long as rebellion exists in Mexico.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The World Film Corporation's latest five-reel production, "The Deep Purple," will be shown at Proctor's Theatre as the feature photo film at all performances today and tomorrow. This elaborate and convincing screen drama is based upon the play of the same name by Paul Armstrong and Wilson Mizner, which was successfully staged by the Liebler Company about four years ago. The leading role of "Doris Moore" has been posed by Clara Kimball Young, the World Corporation feature star, whose ability is well known to Plainfielders through her appearance in several feature films which have been shown at Proctor's during the present winter. She is ably supported by an especially selected cast, and they interpret the absorbing story of "The Deep Purple" with all the vividness and realism the authors intended it should convey. The plot contains a combination of love, devotion, innocence, villiany and deception, all so admirably interwoven that the attention of the spectator is held in a tight grip from start to finish. Other feature films at Proctor's this week will be the continuation of Zudora on Wednesday, the continuation of "Runaway June" and the current number of the Pathe animated newspaper on Thursday and the current episode of "The Exploits of Elaine," on Friday.

DOGS PROTECT TOWN.

Official Reports That They Prevent Crime In Glen Ridge, N. J.

Testimony to the efficiency of police dogs is given in the annual report of Milton Whitely, chairman of the police committee of the borough council of Glen Ridge, N. J. There were but three burglaries there in the last year.

The knowledge that these trained dogs patrol the streets at night is known to the underworld, Mr. Whitely says, and it deters burglars from operating there. In the night the dogs are freed from leash and prowl through lawns and gardens.

Recently one of the dogs pursued two burglars and, running between the legs of one of the men, upset him. The dog gave his barking signal and stood over the man until the arrival of a policeman. The dog then took up the chase and ran down the second man.

KITCHEN AT EXPOSITION.

Will Be Shown by United States Department of Agriculture.

The department of agriculture is sending a complete kitchen to San Francisco as part of its exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

The kitchen contains a stove, refrigerator, sink, work table and other necessaries. It is not "model" in the sense that every housewife is to try to make hers as nearly like it as possible, but is rather a composite of many possible model kitchens designed to illustrate various essential principles of convenient kitchen arrangement. The model was constructed for the special benefit of the American housewife.

Feats of a Strong Man.

Well known in the old buffalo days of Saskatchewan was Joe Beaupre, famed a thousand miles as the biggest eater in the north. Joe was not six feet tall, but he was a broad, deep, thick sort of man, with a hand like a ham and a stomach like nothing else in the world. He would eat an entire boxful of apples at one sitting and think nothing of it. Once, having encountered a gentleman who thought he was some eater, Joe consumed fifty-three pounds of buffalo meat in one day and topped off with a raw turnip, a six pound piece of pork, some lard and two loaves of bread. The best his competitor could do was thirty-seven pounds of meat. Beaupre was so strong he never would fight any man for fear he should kill him. One day while sledding on a narrow trail with an obstinate horse, he became angered, struck the horse on the head with his fist and killed it. He loosened the harness and threw the dead animal on one side of the trail. He never really knew how strong he was. Beaupre died of rheumatism while still a young man.—Saturday Evening Post.

Emerson as a Vocalist.

As a student at Harvard Ralph Waldo Emerson did not give much promise of his future greatness. His dissertation was spoken of as "a very good one, but too long to give much pleasure to the hearers." He was class poet, but only after seven others had been successively elected and had successively declined the honor. A story told by Arthur Stanwood Pier in "The Story of Harvard" goes to show that Emerson's musical efforts were even less appreciated.

Singing in the yard was a popular diversion, and early in his freshman year Emerson, wishing to have a share in the fun, went to the singing master, who said to him, "Chord."

"So I made some kind of a noise," said Emerson, "and the singing master said: 'That will do, sir. You need not come again.'"

COLUMBUS CLUB'S FETE UNDER WAY

Throng of Merry Makers Attended Opening Night's Festivities.

FINE ENTERTAINMENT

Members in Charge of Seven Days' Indoor Carnival—Special Features Planned—Black-face Artists in Charge Tonight.

Opening night scenes at the Columbus Club's seven-day indoor carnival Saturday night, indicate that the fete will be one of the largest ever held under the auspices of that organization, eclipsing previous affairs in every department. The 1915 event is the second to be held in the handsome new West Front street clubhouse and the festivities Saturday night were participated in by a crowd of merrymakers that taxed the rendezvous. Elaborately decorated booths, savoring of the feminine touch provided by the members of the Women's Auxiliary, add greatly to the interior spectacle and serve to create an atmosphere of carnival spirit.

All of the various features were well patronized Saturday night, and despite the usual last minute rush putting things in operation everything was open to the visitors. Tonight and all remaining nights special numbers will be put on by the committee in charge.

It was announced this morning that a minstrel show presented by club talent will be put on tonight. Plenty of side-splitting black-face comedy with all the fixin's is promised and this number alone will be well worth the admission price. Included in the array of talent is "Spider" Green, who will render a character ballad that will make Harry Lauder look like a novice; "Live-Wire" Sullivan, who will demonstrate the qualities of laughing gas and tell how to expell it without a meter; "Barney Oldfield" Harding, who sings a parody on how to run—a well you know the car they always use in jokes; "Dr." Greenwood, who will be disguised in the latest creation in head-gear and play the role of interlocutor, telling the weak points of each character as he shades the footlights, and "Finch" McCarthy, the rival of the bird that wabbles, but doesn't sing.

The members in charge include: A. A. Cannon, chairman, F. Otto Linke, secretary; T. F. Carty, treasurer; H. P. Greenwood, J. J. Carty, Robert McCormack, Frank Burke, George Howe, George Taylor, Harry Forrestell, P. McDonough, J. J. Varley, J. Caulfield, Harry Pasch, T. J. Meaney, A. E. Kenney, C. L. Shirley, J. F. O'Keefe.

Dancing, with music furnished by Professor Dunn's orchestra, of New York, is one of the leading sources of entertainment for those who attend and the spacious dance hall was crowded Saturday night. Many participated in prize bowling, and billiards, the entire clubhouse being opened to the guests.

portant encounter took place on the road from Sierpsc to Rypin, where we delivered a successful night attack in the vicinity of Urszulewo. On the left bank of the Vistula, on the Bzura and Rawka Rivers cannonading continued February 5. Our artillery successfully bombarded a column of Germans moving in the direction of Bolimow from Zemiary. The infantry was compelled to flee and abandon their artillery. In the Carpathians hard fighting continues. Our troops broke down the enemy's resistance at three fortified positions near Mezolaborez and pursued him several vesta, taking 2 cannon, 5 machine guns, capturing the commandant of the third Honveds, 47 officers and 2,516 men. North of Usok pass, near Lut Wisko, the enemy was forced to retreat, our troops occupying his trenches. The attacks of the enemy who crossed the Toukholka and Beskid passes on February 5 were repulsed with heavy losses for the enemy, who was forced into a precipitate retreat. On the Black Sea our torpedo boat destroyers bombarded Choppa. The cruiser Breslau, which has arrived at Batum, fired 20 shots without result at our destroyers. After two shots from the fortress the Breslau steamed away."

Berlin, Feb. 8 (by wireless).—The following was given out at German headquarters today:

"In the western theatre the battles for our positions on the canal southwest of La Bassee continue. We recaptured part of our opponent's fortified position yesterday. Nothing else of importance occurred.

"In the eastern theatre on the East Prussian frontiers, southeast of the plain of the lakes and in Poland and the right bank of the Vistula a few successful engagements of local importance occurred. Otherwise there is nothing to report."

Rome, Feb. 8—German troops continue to arrive at Orsova in southeast Hungary on the Danube, just above the point where that river quits Hungarian territory, says a despatch from Bucharest. An incessant bombardment of Servian possessions on the south bank of the Danube near Gradisee is kept up by the Austrian and German artillery.

London, Feb. 8.—The utter failure of the Turkish advance on the Suez Canal is believed to have ended the danger of an invasion of Egypt. Following the announcement of the Official News Bureau yesterday that no further fighting has taken place since February 2, comes a report from Rome which quotes a despatch from Cairo to the Giornale D' Italia to the effect that the failure of the Suez attacks and the disasters to the Turks in the Caucasus caused Turkey to abandon operations against Egypt.

A despatch to the Star from Athens, says Messages from Tenedos, state that the Turks at Karadepe on the shore of the Dardanelles yesterday fired on four British cruisers. The destroyers opened fire on the Turkish forts. Two heavy explosions were heard and it is believed that they were magazines fired by the shells.

Petrograd, Feb. 8 (via London).—Vive hundred soldiers have geen sent against 2,000 Mongolian insurgents concentrated at Tsing Ping Esian.

ADDRESSED BIBLE SCHOOL.

Mrs. Ralston, wife of Rev. Edward Ralston, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, addressed the Bible School of Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon, giving an interesting story of the work among the Mountain Whites of the south, with which she is familiar. Mrs. Ralston told of the progress being made by the missionaries in carrying the gospel story to these peculair people and how responsive they are and eager to learn.

PEG O' MY HEART

CHAPTER III.

The Irish Patriot.

So far no man in the little walled in zone she had lived in had ever stirred Angela to an even momentary enthusiasm. They were all so fatuously contented with their environment. Sheltered from birth, their anxiety was chiefly how to make life pass the pleasantest. They occasionally showed a spasmodic excitement over the progress of a cricket or polo match. Their achievements were largely those of the stay at home warriors who fought with the quill what others faced death with the sword for. Their inertia disgusted her. Their self satisfaction spurred her to resentment.

Here was a man in the real heart of life. He was engaged in a struggle that makes existence worth while—the effort to bring a message to his people.

Then arose a picture of her sister, Monica, with her puny social pretensions—recognition of those in a higher grade, bread and meat and drink to her; adulation and gross flattery, the very breath of her nostrils; her brother's cheap, narrow platitudes about the rights of rank and wealth.

The memory of her mother was the only link that bound her to her childhood—the gentle, uncomplaining spirit of her, the unselfish abnegation of her, the soul's tragedy of her, giving up her life at the altar of duty at the bidding of a hardened despot.

She was roused from her self searching thoughts by the doctor's voice and the touch of his hand.

"Goodby for the present, Miss Kingsnorth. Sure it's in good hands I'm lavin' him. But for you he'd be lyin' in the black jail with old Dr. Costello glarin' down at him with his gimlet eyes."

Angela sat down at a little distance from the sickbed and watched the wounded man. His face was drawn with pain. His eyes were closed. But he was not sleeping. His fingers locked and unlocked. His lips moved. He opened his eyes and looked at her.

"You need not stay here," he said.

"Would you rather I didn't?"

"Why did you bring me here?"

"To make sure your wounds were attended to."

"Your brother is a landlord—'Kingsnorth, the absentee landlord,' we used to call your father as children. And I'm in his son's house. I'd bettther be in jail than here."

"You mustn't think that."

"You've brought me here to humiliate me—to humiliate me!"

"No. To care for you, to protect you."

"Protect me?"

"If I can."

"That's strange."

"I heard you speak today." She paused. "You mustn't go to prison."

"It's the lot of every Irishman today who says what he thinks."

"It mustn't be yours! It mustn't!" Angela's voice rose in her distress. She repeated: "It mustn't! I'll appeal to my brother to stop it."

"If he's anything like his father it's small heed he'll pay to your pleading. The poor wretches here appealed to old Kingsnorth in famine and sickness—not for help, mind ye, just for a little time to pay their rents—and the only answer they ever got from him was 'Pay or go!'"

"I know, I know!" Angela replied. "And many a time when I was a child my mother and I cried over it."

He looked at her curiously. "You and yer mother cried over us?"

"We did. Indeed we did."

"They say the heart of England is in its womankind. But they have nothing to do with her laws."

"They will have some day."

"It'll be a long time comin', I'm thinkin'. If they take so long to free a whole country how long do ye suppose it'll take them to free a whole sex—and the female one at that?"

"It will come!" she said resolutely.

"And you cried over Ireland's sorrows?"

"As a child and as a woman," said Angela.

"And ye've gone about here tryin' to help them, too, haven't ye?"

"I could do very little."

"Well, the spirit is there—and the heart is there. If they hadn't liked you it's the sorry time maybe your brother would have."

He paused again, looking at her intently, while his fingers clutched the coverlet convulsively as if to stifle a cry of pain.

"May I ask ye yer name?" he gasped.

"Angela," she said, almost in a whisper.

"Angela," he repeated. "Angela! It's well named ye are. It's the ministerin' angel ye've been down here—to the people—and—to me."

"Don't talk any more now. Rest."

"Rest, is it, with all the throuble in the wurrld beatin' in me brain and throbbin' in me heart?"

"Try to sleep until the doctor comes tonight."

He lay back and closed his eyes.

Angela sat perfectly still.

In a few minutes he opened them again. There was a new light in his eyes and a smile on his lips.

"Ye heard me speak, did ye?"

"Yes."

"Where were ye?"

"Above you, behind a bank of trees."

A playful smile played around his lips as he said, "It was a good speech, wasn't it?"

"I thought it wonderful," Angela answered.

"And what were yer feelin's listenin' to a man urgin' the people against yer own country?"

"I felt I wanted to stand beside you and echo everything you said."

"Did you?" And his eyes blazed and his voice rose.

"You spoke as some prophet speaking in a wilderness of sorrow trying to bring them comfort."

He smiled whimsically as he said in a weary voice:

"I tried to bring them comfort, and I got them broken heads and buckshot."

"It's only through suffering every great cause triumphs," said Angela.

"Then the Irish should triumph some day. They've suffered enough, God knows."

"They will," said Angela eagerly "Oh, how I wish I'd been born a man to throw in my lot with the weak, to bring comfort to sorrow, freedom to the oppressed, joy to wretchedness! That is your mission. How I envy you! I glory in what the future has in store for you. Live for it! Live for it!"

"I will!" cried O'Connell. "Some day the yoke will be lifted from us. God grant that mine will be the hand to help do it. God grant I am alive to see it done. That day'll be worth livin' for—to wring recognition from our enemies, to—to—to"— He sank back weakly on the pillow, his voice falling to a whisper.

Angela brought him some water and helped him up while he drank it. She smoothed back the shining hair—red shot through gold—from his forehead. He thanked her with a look. Suddenly he burst into tears. The strain of the day had snapped his self control at last. The floodgates were opened. He sobbed and sobbed like some tired hurt child. Angela tried to comfort him. In a moment she was crying too. He took her hand and kissed it repeatedly, the tears falling on it as he did so.

"God bless ye! God bless ye!" he cried.

In that moment of self revelation their hearts went out to each other. Neither had known happiness nor love nor faith in mankind.

In that one enlightening moment of emotion their hearts were laid bare to each other. The great comedy of life between man and woman had begun.

* * * * * * *

Three days afterward O'Connell was able to dress and move about his room. He was weak from loss of blood and the confinement that an active man resents. But his brain was clear and vivid. They had been three wonderful days.

Angela had made them the most amazing in his life. The memory of those hours spent with her he would carry to his grave.

She read to him and talked to him and lectured him and comforted him.

And in a little while he must leave it all. He must stand his trial under the "crimes act" for speaking at a "proclaimed" meeting.

Well, whatever his torture, he knew he would come out better equipped for the struggle. He had learned something of himself he had so far never dreamed of in his bitter struggle with the handicap of his life. He had something to live for now besides the call of his country—the call of the heart—the cry of beauty and truth and reverence.

Angela inspired him with all these. In the three days she ministered to him she had opened up a vista he had hitherto never known. And now he had to leave it and face his accusers and be hectored and jeered at in the mockery they called "trials." From the courthouse he would go to the prison, and thence he would be sent back into the world with the brand of the prison cell upon him.

And back of it all the yearning that at the end she would be waiting and watching for his return to the conflict for the great "cause" to which he had dedicated his life.

On the morning of the third day Mr. Roche, the resident magistrate, was sent for by Nathaniel Kingsnorth. Mr. Roche found him firm and determined, his back to the fireplace, in which a bright fire was burning, although the month was July.

"I've sent for you to remove this man O'Connell," added Nathaniel after a pause.

"Certainly—if he is well enough to be moved."

"The doctor, I understand, says that he is."

"Very well. I'll drive him down to the courthouse. The court is sitting now," said Roche, rising.

AN UNUSUAL DESIGN IN BLACK AND WHITE.

The evening gown shown in the drawing would have been striking whatever colors had been chosen for its design, but developed in black and white it has acquired distinction. The graceful fall of lace over the shoulder with the rich black velvet of the "corselet" girdle showing through a most artistic effect has been achieved. The fall of lace over the shoulder has been weighted on the points with pearl tassels. The little tucker which shows at front and back of the corsage is of shirred white tulle. Of this the tunic is formed and joined to the bodice at the line of the hip with a full ruching of the same. This tunic is spangled with silver sequins to the depth of a foot from the lower edge. The skirt of white satin is caught in the back drapery with pale yellow roses.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

David Higgins, the popular actor, who is best known to Plainfielders through his numerous appearances here in his own play of the Kentucky mountains, "At Piney Ridge," is coming to this city again today and tomorrow. This time he is a star in the screen production of his latest successful comedy drama, His Last Dollar," the vehicle he has used on the legitimate stage for the last five years. It tells a story of a trusting young man who has asked a flirtatious woman to marry him at the time when he was possessed of an immense fortune. When this money gradually dwindles away through unfortunate speculation, the love of his fiance grows cold and when the young man's income has been reduced to a single dollar his affairs take a sudden turn. The one dollar is risked on a thoroughbred racing horse he owns and it brings another fortune back to him, together with the love of another young woman, who has been unconsciously cast aside when he was in the heighth of his first success. The manner in which the story is told by means of the camera man allows none of the realism to be lost and there are numerous scenes that fairly lift the spectators from their seats, so intense is the thread of the plot. Don't fail to see this wonderful production at the Plainfield Theatre either today or tomorrow.

"THE GENTLEMEN CROOKS AND THE LADY."

Tenth Episode Shown at Proctor's February 10, 1915.

After Zudora's thrilling escape from the kidnappers as narrated in episode nine, having no suspicion of Madame Duval's part in the plot against her, she continues her acquaintance with that beautiful but distinctly dangerous lady. Little does she dream that Madame Duval's home is the center of a web of crime which has its strands in the furthermost parts of the world. It happens that just at this time Madame Duval and a certain Captain Radcliffe, who is an ardent suitor of hers, are interested in a half-burnt scrap of paper on which is written in a tremulous hand, news of the discovery of some valuable diamond mines. The worthy couple are awaiting the arrival of one Bruce, a member of the band over which Madame Duval has supreme control, who at that very moment is concealing a bag of jewels in the room of the trans-atlantic liner on which he is coming to New York. Both Bruce and the scrap of scorched paper have some connection with Zudora, who is evidently under constant surveillance of Madame Duval's band, for co-incident with Bruce's arrival, the girl's home is ransacked and it is there that the mysterious burnt paper is found.

Meanwhile John Storm, Zudora's sweetheart, has visited the office of Tom Hunt, a detective, and after this conference Hunt and Jim Baird, a reporter, are seen waiting on the pier for the arrival of the liner with Bruce. Disguised as a customs official, Hunt searches Bruce's luggage in vain. He finds nothing incriminating. The reporter, however, trails him. He sees Bruce enter the mansion of Madame Duval by a rear entrance and following close on his heels, in the basement of the house, Baird finds himself set upon by several of the band. After a desperate struggle he is bound and gagged and then, after a conference of his capors, he is taken to a deserted hut, where worse threatens to befall him.

In the meantime Madame Duval and Captain Radcliffe, seated in the saloon, are apprised of the arrival of Bruce, by means of a wonderful fountain, in which a small spurt of water changes its course from upward to downward on the arrival of any stranger. A moment later, the draperies at the side of the room part and he enters, stepping from a secret elevator, which has brought him up from the basement. He shows traces of the struggle with Baird, and after some explanation Madame Duval receives him enthusiastically. All her plans have been successful and she playfully forestalls the ardent advances of the debonair Captain Radcliffe. She touches a secret spring on the ivory table-top and it slides back and discloses a wealth of precious stones beneath, while Bruce and the captain stand by fascinated.

To celebrate the success of her schemes, Madame Duval gives a dinner party at a well known cafe that night, and it happens that John Storm and Zudora are dining there. As Madame Duval and her escorts pass she greets Zudora, who does not realize that the friendship of the clever adventuress for her is all a part of her daring scheme, and asks her to join her party. Zudora and John accept, but they are soon to be disillusioned about the character of Madame Duval. Returning home later in the evening, Zudora discovers that her rooms have been looted. While John Storm and she are examining the traces left by the robbers, Tom Hunt, the detective suddenly appears. He has been following a clue to the leaders of the international band of criminals headed by Madame Duval, which he has discovered, following the disappearance of Jim Baird. A mysterious message left in Zudora's rooms gives him the missing link in the chain, and he tells Storm and Zudora his suspicions about the adventuress, whose influence is so far-reaching.

"Madame Duval is a most dangerous woman," said Hunt, "but it seems almost impossible to get the necessary evidence against her. I have no doubt but that she is behind this raid on your apartments. Can you think of nothing which might have tempted her to make this search?"

Zudora and Storm both shook their heads.

"There is nothing here, that I know of," said Zudora, "which would interest Madame Duval or anyone else, unless it were something of my uncle's."

Hunt smiled mysteriously. "Then I guess there's nothing to be done," he said, "except to go to the place, which this letter indicates. We may find something there."

So together the three go to the deserted hut, where Baird, bound and strung up, has been imprisoned. Several of the gang have remained to torment their victim, and listening outside, Storm and Hunt decide that desperate measures are necessary. Battering down the door they attack Baird's captors and a savage struggle follows. For a time it seems that the odds are against them, but in the end the thugs are vanquished and Baird rescued. When he has told the story of his adventures, a light dawns on Zudora as to the character of the beautiful Madame Duval. In future we shall find her watching more and more closely the moves of this clever adventuress.

Animal Jingles

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

BY ALICE CREW GALL

Mother McGrew and Tommy Turkey.

One of the children of Mother McGrew
Was young Tommy Turkey, of whom I'll tell you
In most ways young Tommy was tolerably good,
But he had one bad fault, he gobbled his food.

Old Mother McGrew would say, "Tommy, my lad,
Your manners at meals are disgracefully bad;
You surely will have indigestion some day
Unless you eat slowly; now mark what I say!"

But Tom kept on eating as fast as he could;
All the scolding of Mother McGrew did no good,
And many a night she would get up and make
A plaster for Tom when his gizzard would ache.

Till finally she got clear out of patience, and taught
A lesson to Tom which he never forgot.
She said, "When I tap you three times on the beak,
You'll tell of your fault every time that you speak.

Then she tapped him three times with her magical stick,
And, though he let on not to care, he ran quick
To the field, where his playmates were taking a walk,
And to see what would happen he started to talk.

And though it sounds funny, it really is so,
He said "Gobble! Gobble!" instead of "Hello."
And if you'll believe me, to this very day,
That's every last word that a Turkey can say.

I don't think I know of anything worse
Than to tell of our faults every time we converse.
So mend your bad habits before it's too late
And you're overtaken by Tom Turkey's fate.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"You can't help seeing, if you will only allow yourself to think straight on the subject, that we were made for each other."

The young man noiselessly worked his canoe paddle and looked at the girl sitting opposite to see the effect of his words. A proud tilting of her head was her only response. She trailed her fingers through the warm water and gazed dreamily down the river. The graceful willows wore a silver sheen in the moonlight, and the blare of the dance hall music floated on the still air, softened almost to melody, while the reflections of its colored lights bobbed up and down in the water, churned into waves by the tiny excursion steamer.

"I love this river on a night like this," remarked the girl. "All the dirt and tawdriness of life along the banks is concealed by the kind moonlight. I suppose that is why moonlight is so popular for love makers. It conceals real conditions of life; lovers dwell in an unreal world. It has always been a theory of mine, that moonlight is responsible for a great many divorces. You see, after marriage the young people come down to the work-a-day world with a jolt and each blames the other for the deception, when perhaps neither was to blame, only the magic moonlight. The moon has affected you; otherwise it would be a great strain on your masculine imagination to have to invent so many pretty speeches, containing so much heart interest and delicate sentiment."

"The fact that I keep it up is a sign of true love and devotion."

"What?" the girl gave a cry of incredulity.

"No man," declared the young fellow, "could keep it up for a woman he didn't love."

"In daylight, no," interrupted the girl, "but by moonlight? As I said, the moon is responsible."

"You are hard on the fellows who work by day," said her companion, deftly turning the canoe to meet the waves the toy steamer had started. "Now that plodding doctor"—the girl's fingers closed over a letter in her coat pocket—"I suppose he had a chance to speak by daylight."

A musical laugh floated over the water.

"I'll tell you. Give me a chance Saturday afternoon, since you consider my remarks moonstruck tonight. Will you give me an answer them?" his voice was vibrant.

"Yes," came after a pause. "We must go in now; it is getting late; but, oh, I wish it were seven instead of ten o'clock."

"So do I," replied the young fellow, heading for the boathouse.

Seated in her room that night, Agnes spread out the letter she had carried with her all day, and sat down in front of her dresser to give it a more careful reading. I must decide. Saturday is not far away," she said, and dropped her eyes to the page. The letter read:

"Can it be six years since I asked you to be my wife that commencement day? I knew it was wrong to tell you of my love when I had another year of college and four years in medical school before me, and you were so young. I had no right to stop the free, happy flow of your life. Your beauty and position would naturally bring you all good things, and I selfishly tried to persuade you to be 'Waite's little girl.'

"Later, of course, I made myself tell you that you must be free to go in any society you chose. I felt you must know other men. Then, if I could keep you, I would have a right to you, otherwise it would be a plain steal. I know my fate is hanging in the balance, and I will say nothing of what I feel. I love you enough to leave you free to choose between us and I realize the strength of my rival.

"Just this I want to say: In addition to my appointment as assistant to Dr. Morse, I have been appointed lecturer to the dental students on medical subjects, so that I am sure of enough income now to warrant our marriage if I should be so unspeakably happy as to win the prize. It will be seven years next June since I first told you of my love. To say that it has grown seven-fold would but feebly express it.

"Whatever your decision, believe me always

"Your devoted lover,

"GENE WAITE."

She glanced in the mirror in front of her and as she met the clear eyes gazing into hers she said: "A faithful love that toils seven years as did Jacob of old for Rachael, and wrests success from poverty and untoward circumstances, is the kind that would not fail me. I will tell him we will be married on the seventh anniversary of that commencement day."

Household Hints

RECIPES SAVING FLOUR

Potato Doughnuts—Five good-sized potatoes boiled and mashed, one teaspoon butter, two cups sugar. Mix while hot and beat well. Let cool, add three eggs (beaten), one cup sweet milk, pinch of salt and nutmeg, five teaspoons baking powder in a little flour. Flour enough to roll out, and fry in hot grease.

Potato Friedcakes—Boil and mash five medium potatoes, add 1½ cups sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, a tablespoon lard, one cup sweet milk. Beat three eggs and add them after milk, add five cups flour, five teaspoons baking powder, nutmeg to taste. Fry in hot fat. Roll in powdered sugar.

Gingersnaps—One and one-half cups cracknels (after frying out leaf lard), one cup molasses, one cup strong black coffee, one teaspoon ground cinnamon, one teaspoon ground ginger, two teaspoons baking soda dissolved in one tablespoon vinegar, one teaspoon salt, one-half cup brown sugar, flour enough to make dough stiff and enough to roll out. Bake in moderate oven. The cracknels cannot be noticed.

Cocoanut Macaroons—Beat whites of four eggs stiff, add one pound pulverized sugar, one pound cocoanut. Roll in small balls, put in buttered, than floured, pan. Bake a light brown.

Oatmeal Macaroons—Two tablespoons butter, one cup sugar, two eggs, one teaspoon baking powder. Cream butter and sugar, add eggs well beaten, but not separated, salt, rolled oats and baking powder. Bake in hot oven until brown and crisp.

Fruit Snaps—One and one-half cups sugar, one-half cup molasses, one cup chopped raisins, two cups currants, one cup lard, three eggs, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon each of ginger, cinnamon and nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoon cloves. Salt to taste and mix stiff. They are fine.

Johnnycake—One-third cup sugar, three cups corn meal, one egg, butter size of walnut, one cup sour milk, one cup flour, one teaspoon soda, pinch of salt. Mix egg, sugar and butter, add milk and soda, then corn meal and flour.

Rice Pie Crust—Put one-fourth cup rice into one cup water with a pinch of salt. It is best to use a double boiler. Press boiled rice into shape of an under crust in pie pan, let it stand until it jellies. Make lemon or cream filling, put into rice crust. Cover with usual meringue and brown lightly in oven. If cut when rice is cool will hold its shape perfectly. Serve cold.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

On muslin cover to put over comforter to keep it from getting soiled, instead of sewing buttons on comforter and making buttonholes on slip, use medium size patent clasps, such as are used on dresses and skirts. Sew flat part of clasp on to slip and clasp with the small head, on to comfort. By doing this, the slip can be washed easily without ruining the wringer; also, it looks much neater and cover can be easily removed.

To Mend China—Make a very thick solution of gum arabic in water, stir into it plaster of paris until mixture becomes the consistency of cream; apply to broken edges and join together. In three days the article cannot be broken in the same place.

SOME SWISS DISHES

Swiss Patties—Save the trimmings of puff or plain pie crust, roll out and line the patty pans with it. Prick bottom of each crust to prevent bulging. Bake shells till crisp. At serving time put together a cup of milk, bay leaf, slice of onion, sprig of parsley, a clove; boil three minutes. Rub two level tablespoons each of butter and flour together. Strain milk into this and cook till smooth. Add two egg yolks, three spoonfuls grated cheese and dash of cayenne. Fill patties with this and dust top of each with cheese. Set in oven to melt cheese and serve at once. These are fine for a luncheon or with the salad course.

Swiss Fondue—Cover one cup stale bread crumbs with one pint milk. Add two eggs beaten into this, one-half cup chopped cheese, one-half teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne, salt spoon of baking soda dissolved in water, one tablespoon butter. Beat well and bake in quick oven till a light brown.

Swiss Rarebit—Very nutritious. Grate or chop one-half pound cheese. Toast and butter six slices bread. Put three slices in pan, cover with half the cheese, dust with salt and pepper. Put the other three slices over this and remainder of cheese. Pour over one pint milk, let stand five minutes, bake in hot oven twenty minutes. Serves six people.

FOURTH EPISODE.

Poor Little Runaway Bride!

CHAPTER I.

"SHANKS" M'GEE, carrying one soiled newspaper for a bluff and collecting money for the newsboys' home as another bluff, suddenly paused in his absorbing attempt to whistle through a broken tooth as he saw coming up the dingy side street toward the Hotel Daniel a beautiful young girl. She was turning to look backward over her shoulder at every few steps.

Oh, gee! A man was following her! And he was dodging along from tree to tree and from doorway to doorway, and every time he saw the girl look back he ducked! The man had black whiskers, whittled down to a fine point just under his chin, and he carried himself with the ease which only a thorough scoundrel can acquire.

Shanks McGee stood petrified, then took a long, deep breath and hurried up to the corner. He flattened his already flat nose against the broad plate glass window of the modest Hotel Daniel.

Gilbert Blye and Tommy.

The beautiful young girl concealed all that she could of her timidity as she walked through the door with what she thought to be a strictly business-like manner. Seven men who had been morbidly eying their respective cuspidors immediately straightened up and looked their handsomest. One of them looked bold, and another, a decorative Frenchman, looked debonair. The beautiful girl strode straight up to the desk.

"A room with a bath, please," she requested.

The clerk, an indifferently aged man, held the register a moment while he studied the new guest of the house.

"Any luggage, miss?"

The girl, disconcerted, had recourse to her only armor. Now she shyly cast up at him her great, soft, expressive eyes, and the clerk felt ashamed of himself. He swung the register around to her.

"My maid will be here presently with my clothes." The voice was soft and sweet.

"Certainly, miss." And the clerk whanged a bell which sounded like a fire gong. "Front!"

In response to that stentorian call a shock headed, loose limbed Irish boy jumped forward and took the key to 44. The clerk, without moving his body or his neck or his head, craned forward his eyes to watch the signature. Mrs. J. G. Day.

A moment later the black Vandyked man strolled in, looked at the register and walked into the bar. Then along came Marie with a bundle of clothes.

The young woman went straight to the desk.

"Mrs. Day's maid?" the clerk observed, inspecting the clothing piece by piece from under his eyelids and ringing for front and looking at the young woman and the register all at the same time. The young woman, quite evidently a maid, glanced swiftly at the register.

"Mrs. Day's?" she repeated, breathing heavily. "Y-yes!"

"She's expecting you." And the clerk's eyelids flickered. "Room 44."

"Marie, tell June I want her!" cried a voice.

"Sir," she said, "I do not know you."

"Why—er"— Ned stammered; then he grabbed the clothes from the maid's arms. "Now you lead me to June!"

"Sir, how dare you?" Marie said and turned appealingly to the clerk.

"These are my wife's clothes!" declared the young man. "She's here. I want her!"

"What's her name?" the clerk demanded.

"Mrs. Ned Warner!"

"Not here."

"June Moore!"

"Oh, come off!" observed the clerk. "If I let you go through the directory you may hit it. Give this girl back her clothes, and good night!"

"This thing has gone far enough, Marie!" hotly stated the young man.

At that moment his voice stopped. Out of the bar had strolled elegantly the pride of Shanks McGee, the man with the black Vandyke, and he was neatly nibbling a piece of cheese. He was across the lobby and going out of the door, paying but a scant tribute of curiosity to the knot in front of the desk, before the young man with the clothes saw him. The young man nearly upset Marie on his way to the door.

A porter stopped him to get June's clothes. Ned was then delayed at the ticket window and, glancing across the station, saw Blye going uptown on an express.

June Warner locked the door of 44 from the inside and turned the bolt and dropped into a chair to rest.

Suddenly a voice called, "It's Marie, Miss Junie!" and a knock was heard.

June Warner opened the door of 44 in a hurry, and her eyes sparkled and she clapped her hands as she saw Marie with clothes sticking from her in all directions.

"We're caught!" panted Marie. "Mr. Ned grabbed me downstairs! He made a scene!"

"Where is he now?" June sat down limply.

"I don't know! All at once he threw down the clothes and ran out on the street! I don't know why!"

* * * * * * *

Ned Warner, attended closely by the ecstatic Shanks McGee, stood at the subway exit in a state of seethe beyond computation. Again Gilbert Blye!

Honoria Blye, exchanging spite with a green parrot, was suddenly interrupted by a caller.

"Got him!" announced the caller, who was none other than Bill Wolf.

Honoria Blye sprang up instantly.

"Get my wraps!" she yelled to the abnormally ugly maid who had let Bill Wolf in. "Mr. Wolf, you fooled me once. Are you sure you have found Gilbert Blye?"

"If we ain't, so help me!" solemnly swore Wolf.

Honoria Blye, with Bill Wolf by her side, was soon speeding downtown in her little electric coupe. In front of Luchow's restaurant they found a fat, wide man with a cigar in the corner of his mouth and his narrow rimmed slouch hat shoved on the back of his round head and his eyes turned contemplatively toward the stars.

"Certain party in, Blinky?" husked Wolf.

Blinky Peters followed them inside the busy cafe, and as they walked back toward the Thirteenth street entrance a fat, wide man with his hands in his pockets came in at the rear door—Sneaky Tavis.

"There's your party!" suddenly hissed Bill Wolf and pointed to a table where a dark Vandyked German with spectacles was entertaining a healthy, red cheeked young woman with a green feather in her hat.

"You scum!" shrilled Honoria Blye to her three expert detectives and went home to her parrot.

Ned Warner stepped into the cigar store next door to the Hotel Daniel and telephoned June's home in Brynport. Mr. and Mrs. Moore were in the city at Bobbie Blethering's, the smooth, soft voice of fat, black old Aunt Debby told him.

Blethering's and the cheery voice of Bobbie. Yes, the Moores were there. And June was located? Great! Stanch Bobbie was all eagerness when Ned said he wanted the Moores and Bobbie and Iris to come down to the Hotel Daniel.

He also telephoned Honoria Blye. Her shrill voice crackled over the telephone. She had just this minute got in from a wild goose chase after a bogus Gilbert Blye, but if he had been seen at the Hotel Daniel with Ned's runaway bride she'd be right down. Honoria called up her detectives and ordered them to report at the Hotel Daniel.

Meanwhile Gilbert Blye sat in conversation with jovial looking Orin Cunningham and a usually vivacious brunette whom both men called Tommy. Triumphantly Blye held before Tommy the address in his little memorandum book "Mrs. J. G. Day, Hotel Daniel." He motioned the girl to follow him. She sat glumly. Orin Cunningham spoke to her sharply. With a flounce she rose and followed Gilbert Blye.

CHAPTER II.

NED WARNER, standing diagonally across from the Hotel Daniel, where he could watch both the front and the side entrances, saw three short, thick men come single file up the side street and stop in front of the main entrance. Shanks McGee had felt strangely listless and forlorn these past few minutes, for there was nothing inside or out. Suddenly the three short, thick detectives rounded the corner, and, gee, they were slinking! The world was once more a bright and happy place for Shanks.

"Say, kid," husked the shortest and the thickest—it was none other than Bill Wolf—"have you lamped a lengthy gink around here with whittled black chinchillas?"

That observant young person of the world began at the beginning, but he was so minute of detail that he had not yet reached the middle when Bill Wolf, looking through the plate glass windows of the Hotel Daniel, said "Sh!" and drew his two assistant detectives out of the range of poor Shanks McGee's quivering ears, and the three astute hounds of the law put their heads together in excited conference. Then Bill Wolf, in his best pose of a man who was waiting for somebody and didn't expect him to come, went into the hotel.

The Moore limousine drew up, and Ned went over to join the quartet. He led the way to the desk and confronted the unemotional eye of the clerk.

"This is the father and mother of the young woman whose maid called here with her clothing. We do not know what name she used in registering, but I know that my wife is in this house, and if we don't get her I'll raise trouble!"

"I'll produce the woman at once," the clerk agreed. "But if there's going to be a rumpus it'll have to be on the sidewalk and on the other side of the street."

He called for 44. He called again.

There was no answer. The room was searched.

It was empty!

Sammy, the boy with the angelic smile and the blue eyes and the white teeth, was the finest liar in the hotel. He had had a quarter and one of her compelling smiles from June and a glance from her lovely eyes, and he had run them down through the basement and out the rear servants' entrance and had told them a place to go where no one would ever find them.

Gone! The six shocked searchers for the runaway bride hurried downstairs just as Honoria Blye stepped in, followed by Blinky Peters and Sneaky Tavis.

"Where is he?" screeched Mrs. Blye.

Bill Wolf advanced to do his happy duty.

"There he is, lady!" he shouted triumphantly, while Blinky Peters and Sneaky Tavis slunk up, one on each side of the culprit. "Nab him, boys!"

"Mon Dieu!" cried the culprit as the four fat paws of Blinky Peters and Sneaky Tavis clapped down on his arms. The rest of the objection was an incomprehensible polyglot jumble as, shrieking his indignation, the black bearded Frenchman strove to wrench himself free.

"Is that the man you mean?" hissed Honoria.

"That ain't the guy!" yelled Shanks McGee, who was willing to be kicked out now. "Gilbert Blye slinked in here after the beautiful goil and ducked into the subway when dis sport gives him the run! Gee!"

"This is the limit!" declared the clerk to one and all as strong porters and agile bell hops headed his way. "Get 'em out, Mike!"

Quite a little crowd had collected when suddenly a policeman appeared from around a corner and dispersed the mob, including Honoria.

That vigorous lady had barely turned the corner, heading for the avenue, when a brilliantly lighted, luxurious limousine stopped in front of the Hotel Daniel. Shanks McGee's eyes began to stretch as he saw the occupants, and he whirled in a complete circle in his efforts to locate without the loss of a second Bill Wolf and Blinky Peters and Sneaky Tavis. They were trudging up the street in single file, heads down, hands in pockets. Even Blinky Peters had lost interest in the stars. The smacking footsteps of Shanks McGee aroused them.

"Gee!" exploded Shanks. "Cripes! Gilbert Blye has doubled back wit another swell Jane! Beat it to the Daniel! And one of youse hotfoot it after the electric showcase and get the old woman! Gee!"

Wolf turned a commanding eye on Tavis.

"Hit 'er up!" he ordered.

Sneaky drew a long, jerking breath and pulled his belt around him, cast a despairing look up the side street to where the little electric was twinkling, took the center of the car track and began laboriously to "hit 'er up."

In the meantime Gilbert Blye and Tommy Thomas had walked confidently up to the desk. The clerk without the flicker of an eyelid bent forward politely.

"Is Mrs. J. G. Day stopping here?" inquired Blye with great suavity.

"No; the lady is gone."

"Gone?" protested Blye and leaned forward to look over the register. "Why, she came in only about an hour or so ago. She is"—

"Now, don't tell me who she is. I don't know whose wife the lady may be, and I don't want to know. She's gone!"

"Mon Dieu!" shrilled an excited voice, and Gilbert Blye found himself confronted by the decorative Frenchman. That excited individual surveyed Gilbert Blye's sleek black Vandyke and tweaked at his own and suddenly threw up both hands and began to laugh.

In that same moment Sneaky Tavis caught up with the electric coupe and scrambled on the step and hung his thick arms in at the door.

"Here he is, lady!"

"Huh—huh—huh—huh!" Sneaky informed her, strangling for breath and pulling his arms out of the car.

"I say, what do you want?" insisted Honoria.

Sneaky pointed backward with his thumb.

"Your huh-huh-huh-husband!" he husked, sucking in all the air in the car. "Daniel!" And again he jerked backward with his thumb.

Honoria Blye without a word grabbed her cut glass flower vase and cracked her expert detective on the knuckles. With a parting gasp he dropped off backward.

Where was June while so many people were so busy about her? In a horse cab, with Marie and the clothes, far down near the East river, where in full sight of all the barges and all the grimy shipping, they found a slice of a house, so narrow that it should have had a weathervane to keep it headed into the wind. It was three stories high and blackened with age but there were geraniums and a cheerful light in the downstairs front windows. This was where the elevator boy's mother lived, and it was as clean inside as it was grimy out. She had a floor to let, furnished, two rooms and a real bath, tin and considerably dented, but kept fresh painted in spotless white.

"You say you want it quiet," said she, "and my son Sammy sent you here? Well, my husband, before he died, was the most popular policeman on the force, and the whole department, darlin', is your friends."

CHAPTER III.

FOR a moment June hesitated before the door of an employment agency next morning and then she sharply beat down her reluctance. People who have made up their minds to be independent and to earn their own way in life must have no timidity. She turned the knob with sudden boldness and opened it, then she smiled at her own sensitiveness as she stood before a pleasant faced woman, in the corner of whose eyes, however, there was a veiled sharpness which June did not see.

A very pretty woman came in as June turned to go away, and with her was a little girl of great beauty. June hesitated as she heard the word "governess." The woman at the desk smiled to June. The newcomer followed that smile and herself smiled at June. The little girl had been studying June frankly out of round eyes.

"Bravo! How do you do?"

"I like you," she said, with startling candor; then the employment agency woman laughed, and pretty Mrs. Wiles laughed. June dimpled.

"I like you, too," she acknowledged.

The employment agency woman rose.

"Mrs. Murdock is listed as a governess," she observed, and June winced at her new name. How queer this all seemed! "Perhaps you would like to have a little chat."

Mrs. Wiles and June Moore Warner Justin Day Murdock were both agreeable to that suggestion, particularly since little Dolly Wiles had appropriated June apparently for keeps. They sat in one of the cozy corners, and when June rose she was engaged. Mrs. Wiles was a most appealing woman.

All three were perfectly happy as they left the office and rode in Mrs. Wiles' victoria up Fifth avenue to one of those wide, clean streets which lead off from Central park.

A block and a half from the avenue they stopped before a new looking apartment house with an imposing entrance, and a hungry looking doorman bowed his regular bow, and a hungry looking elevator man shot them skyward.

A duplex apartment. June had never seen one before, and its utility was a puzzle to her then, as it was for many a long day afterward.

After luncheon a nap for Dolly, and then a romp in the park. Roller skating. June's foot was nearly as small as Dolly's, and the child, after she had thoroughly exhausted herself, insisted that June try. It was a pretty little deceit which was put on Dolly. June strapped on the skates and was timid and helpless and altogether charming until Dolly had laughed herself weak, then June suddenly straightened up and skated away like the expert that she was, whereat Dolly was more pleased than ever, and a voice from the roadway, a suave and pleasant voice, called:

"Bravo!" Gilbert Blye! He was smiling. June was confused. She whisked off the skates.

"You seem to have all the accomplishments," went on Blye, stepping down from his luxurious limousine.

"Hello, young lady!" He held out his hand to Dolly Wiles with a familiarity permissible to the very young and to the very old of femininity, and the child took it hesitantly, with a shy upward glance at June. Her big gray eyes widened, however, as they fell on the limousine. She dropped the hand and ran forward to the machine.

"What a lovely car!" she exclaimed, patting it on its smooth, swelling side. "Just the kind mother wants, but daddy says we can't afford it."

Blye laughed lightly. "Would you like a spin around the park in it," he suggested, "you and your playmate here?" And he bowed.

Dolly, jumping up and down, was already tugging at the door handle, and Blye, laughing, opened it for her. Dolly gave a cry of positive joy as she saw the rich interior, and she was among the soft cushions in an instant.

"You haven't much choice," said the low voice of Blye, and he held the door open for June.

"This once." And she looked him squarely in the eye. He smiled.

June was thoughtful all through that delicious twenty minutes of riding. Blye—his dark face haunted her. Another face came to her—Ned! A great wave of homesickness swept over her.

They made their adieus rather hastily to Blye, for their time was a little more than up.

Just before dinner was called Mr. Wiles came home, and June happened into the library. It was Dolly's favorite storeroom for toys, books and everything else. Mrs. Wiles—he called her Woozly—was sitting on the arm of her husband's chair, her arm around his neck and his chin in the palm of her hand. With the other hand she was twisting a lock of his hair over and over her finger, and she was most distinctly and obviously wheedling him for money! His voice was low and protesting with as much sternness as a man can use when he is being charmed into docility. Woozly Wiles was locking the money in her little inlaid desk when June next saw her.

They were going out after dinner. There was some talk about ordering a car, and it needed but one word to give Dolly a start. The luxurious limousine of the black Vandyked man was the whole of her text. She rattled on and on and on about it, and as she talked the pretty face of Mrs. Wiles grew more and more distressed.

"Harry, dear," she said, "Dolly and I want a limousine! Please!"

Dolly clapped her hands.

"After that limousine again," he gaily commented. "Not now, Woozly. Business is too bad."

"I don't like business," she laughed. "It's a mean old thing, isn't it, Dolly? Harry, please!"

"Get thee behind me, Woozly." The man still laughed, but he began to look very seriously at his charming wife. "You'd get anything out of a man." And his laugh was half vexed, altogether admiring.

Pretty Mrs. Wiles accepted that compliment prettily, but June, as she slipped out of the library unobserved, was hurt for the woman, for herself, for her kind, as her face betrayed. Here it was again—the endless, almost unvarying story of the woman dependent on the man's bounty and, in this case, getting all she could out of him.

Ned and his detectives on that day were down in the neighborhood of the Hotel Daniel scouring the district inch by inch, as it were, for some trace of the runaway bride, and wherever they went a small, flat nosed boy with one soiled newspaper under his arm sleuthed after them, slinking from tree to tree and from doorway to doorway.

Little Dolly Wiles awoke in the night to become aware of a light in the lower floor of the duplex apartment. Daddy! He was at work in the library, as he always was late at night here recently. Dolly felt herself privileged to say good night to daddy, so she slipped out and put on her bedroom slippers and her pretty little lounging robe and tripped downstairs.

June heard her go and dressed in like fashion. Harry Wiles had his books spread out before him and a pen behind his ear.

"Daddy, are you going to get mother a limousine?"

The man glanced over at his books and ran his hand across his brow.

"Well, I promised mother tonight," he admitted, with reluctance, and his face grew grave.

"Goody!" The little girl clapped her hands.

"But will it be a nice big limousine?"

"Not an extraordinarily big one. Just a proper sized limousine for little girls like you and mother. Oh, come in, Woozly!"

Mrs. Wiles in a stunning negligee stood in the library door.

"You want Dolly, of course," she said to June. "She's a born prowler, I think."

Dolly smacked her father a parting kiss.

"Daddy says it won't be a big limousine, mother, but it'll have silk tassels, and it will be a limousine anyhow. May we have a red headed chauffeur and a chow dog?"

"It depends on what color upholstery your mother selects," grinned her father as his pretty wife took Dolly's place on the arm of the chair.

"There's only one kind of upholstery in the Beaver cars," laughed Mrs. Wiles, pinching her husband's ear. "Really, Harry, I've been wondering if it isn't a waste of money to buy a cheap a limousine as that. I'd rather wait until you can afford one that is be more substantial."

"I know your tricks," commented her husband. "Really, Woozly, I positively cannot afford an expensive car."

"Harry!" That wheedling tone echoed in June's ears as she skipped upstairs with Dolly, and she knew that the cheap little Beaver car would not stand in front of the Wiles' door.

It did not. A good car brought Mrs. Wiles home the very next day.

Mrs. Ned Warner had been made tremendously thoughtful by the affairs of the little Wiles family. There was something wrong in the custom which made this condition possible. What was it? The position of donor and recipient. Neither the man nor the woman was really to blame. It was custom. And June knew what Mrs. Wiles would not admit to herself, if she suspected it, that the man was being constantly wheedled beyond his means.

Mrs. Wiles affected even to herself that his constant resistance toward expenditure was the normal attitude of a man toward the domestic spending of money. It was the woman's business to get all she could and the man's to resist.

The crash came sooner than June had expected. On the next evening after the limousine had come home there walked into the house a grim jawed, hard eyed man of forty-five, on whose suit case were pasted foreign labels.

Another Face Came to her. Ned!

"Hello, Baker!" exclaimed Wiles, with cordiality.

"A little personal business." And Baker seated himself.

"How's the London branch?" asked Wiles by way of making conversation.

"Doing very nicely," was the curt reply, and Baker shook hands with Dolly. By and by the voices of the men rose as they became more interested in their conversation, and there floated up to June an emphatic speech of Baker's which she could not help hearing.

"You've spent it!" Baker's words were clean cut. "In my absence of a year and a half you've overdrawn your account $50,000. Fifty thousand dollars was the exact amount of your investment. That makes us quits. You'll turn over your share of the business to me immediately."

"But that leaves me without a cent, without an income!" worried Wiles. He had no blame for his partner, nor was he as much crushed as he had expected to be. "I have a wife and a child, you know, Baker. I could no more refuse them anything than I could refuse bread to a starving child."

"That's the trouble." Baker's voice was not harsh. It was simply cold. "You've spoiled them. A wife should be a help to a man, and most of them would if they were given a chance. You made a toy of yours."

The next morning Mrs. Wiles came up to June. She had been crying, but there was a light in her eyes which was good to see.

"I am very sorry," she said simply. "We have had a business reverse, and we shan't be able to keep you. The fact of the matter is that we don't happen to have a cent in the house. I took all of Harry's pocket money yesterday, and I spent it yesterday afternoon. I—I—I—that isn't quite the truth," she suddenly blurted out. "We are absolutely broke. We haven't any money at all."

It hurt June to part with them. She had liked them all, and when the little girl hung around her neck they cried together, all three—June and Mrs. Wiles and Dolly.

Halfway up to the avenue June, walking along and dabbing her eyes occasionally, was confronted by some one. Blye!

"Which way?" he asked.

"To the employment office," she told him, and showed him her little purse with a laugh.

"It's a shame that a pretty girl like you has to worry about money." And his coal black eyes gazed down at her glowingly.

He tried to detain her. Catching her gently by the arm, he tried to urge her into his car, using all the persuasiveness of his eyes and his smile and his suave courtesy, but she was obdurate.

Suddenly he jumped into his limousine and whirled away. He was at the employment agency before June reached it, and he had a cordial chat with the employment agency woman. He handed her an address and went away.

June was delighted when she secured an opening quickly and started out immediately for the place. For a moment June felt an intense dislike to the ugly looking house at the address given her and all that it might contain; then, laughing at her own fancies, she strode up the steps and rang the bell. The door swung open silently, but no one appeared. Wondering, June walked in, and the door slammed behind her.

Two minutes later Gilbert Blye walked up the steps, took a key from his pocket, inserted it into the lock and smiled.

Interscholastic basketball fans of the city and borough are counting the days to Lincoln's Birthday, when the North Plainfield High School court warriors will make their last fight for a running chance at the city title in the gym of the Plainfield High School. This game is by far the feature of the week and is causing much comment as to the possible outcome of the match. North Plainfield lost the first game by one point on its home court about three weeks ago, but the result of that game was merely a tossup and the borough supporters do not call it an absolute defeat, although it put the city team in the lead.

Both teams are now in their best form with all players eligible to participate in the game. The boys from across the brook will be thrown on the offensive altogether in the coming game, being strangers on the court. The game will probably start at 3:30 o'clock.

Several other good attractions have been booked for the coming week.

HOPE CHAPEL FIVE ANNEXES ANOTHER

Presbyterian Five, of Newark, Could Only Keep Pace for One Half.

The Hope Chapel basketball team chalked up another victory, Saturday night, on the Fourth street court, when the Presbyterian Five, of Newark, took the short end of a 34 to 16 count. In the first half the playing was fast and the scoring close, Hope having a two-point lead at the end of the period. Heron and Walls were the main scorers in this half, while Snyder and Clarke did some fine guarding.

The score of the half ended 10 to 8, but the second half was of an uninteresting nature, the locals running away from their opponents and scoring three times as many points, putting the game safely away after the first few minutes of play. Heron scored high for the chapelites, getting ten points, while Metzgar secured two field goals and six fouls. Walls made four of the kind that count for two and Overland scored three.

SECOND DEFEAT IN TWO YEARS.

Kingsley School, of Essex Fells, met its second basketball defeat in two days, at Lawrenceville, Saturday, when Lawrenceville School took a 46 to 26 decision. The Essex Fellers had not been on the small end of a score since the 1912-13 campaign, when they dropped a single contest to a New York High School. Kingsley beat Plainfield High School both this season and last season.

NOW WE'RE ABOUT EVEN WITH TRENTON

Plainfield Girls Lost But Local Boys Smothered Capitol City Five.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team had an easy time disposing of the "Silent Workers" from the Trenton School for the Deaf, on the association court, Saturday night, the final count being 43 to 29. The visitors were never dangerous, although the locals slowed up considerably in the last half. The Trenton players were guilty of many fouls, but only three free throws were turned into points by Captain Brynairski.

The home team piled up fourteen points at the start before its opponents scored a basket and at one time had a lead of eighteen points, the score being 22 to 4. During the latter part of the first half the visitors showed some speed and shortened this lead. The initial period ended with the score standing 37 to 17. In the last period Gavett played center and scored a trio of field goals. Ricketts was the high scorer of the game, getting six in the first half and two in the last for a total of sixteen points. For the visitors Petorio and Pease played the best games.

LOCAL Y. W. C. A. BEATEN AND BATTERED BY TRENTON; PLAYER TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

The Plainfield Y. W. C. A. basketball team returned home yesterday, in a much crippled condition and presenting an appearance of having passed between two fires in the war zone. The local lassies went to Trenton, Saturday afternoon, for their annual basketball game with the association team of that place, and were defeated by two points, the score being 21 to 19 in favor of the Trentonians. The contest was a hotly fought affair from start to finish, the Plainfielders keeping very close to their opponents until the last few minutes of the contest, when Marion Mair was compelled to go out, receiving a severe cut above the eye.

For the Plainfielders, the Hummel sisters did all the scoring, Helen caging five goals and five from the foul line, while Ida tallied two field goals. The Trenton honors were divided between Dorothy Haynes and Alice Balderston, the former with four goals and three fouls and the latter with five goals.

In the beginning of the game, Ellen Doughty was slightly injured, but refused to go out of the fracas and played gamely until the finish. After the final whistle blew she fainted and was taken to the Trenton Hospital, where she remained over night for treatment. Today she is none the worse for her experience.

The Trenton girls will come to Plainfield the first week in April, when they will play the local girls a return game.

FOOTBALL SURGEONS MAKE A FEW MINOR CHANGES IN RULE CODE FOR NEXT SEASON

New York, Feb. 8—The annual meeting of the intercollegiate football rules committee, held for the purpose of considering changes in the rules for 1915, closed here late Saturday without radical alteration in the playing code.

The principal changes include giving the ball to opponents on a forward pass out of bounds, made on the fourth down, at the point where the pass was made; the increasing of the game officials from three to four and the limiting of resubstitution of players to the beginning of a period. The committee also earnestly recommended the numbering of players but did not make it a mandatory rule.

Under the 1914 rules a forward pass out of bounds, whether touched by a player or not, gave the ball to opponents at the point where it crossed the line. Because of the greater accuracy of the throw, it was frequently resorted to last fall on the fourth down in place of the punt in order to force the opposing team to open its attack close to the sideline. Under the new ruling forward passes out of bounds, except on the fourth down, shall be considered as incompleted.

The change in the resubstitution rule was made to prevent the return of a number of players to the game in the final period. Heretofore players were permitted to re-enter the game at any time in the fourth period. Under the new ruling the regulations which prevent a resubstitution except at the beginning of the first three periods will also apply to the final period. Substitutes must hereafter report to an official immediately on entering the field of play.

A number of prominent football officials testified that the requirements of the game were too many for three officials to cover successfully and for that reason a fourth official was appointed in the person of a judge who shall also be timekeeper in place of the linesman. Under the 1914 rules the naming of a field judge was not mandatory.

The committee voted to recommend the numbering of players by all college teams playing under the intercollegiate rules as being a desirable innovation from the spectator's standpoint. It also went on record as strongly deprecating the sending of substitutes into the game with instructions from the side lines.

Minor changes in the rules include a 15-yard penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct in addition to the disqualification of player in flagrant cases; a 10-yard penalty for running into an opponent after the whistle has halted play; a 15-yard penalty for throwing the legs and striking with the lower legs an opponent above the knees; a 15-yard penalty for running into the fullback after a punt, to which is added disqualification for roughing the fullback.

The committee ruled that the centre must pass the ball back with one continuous motion and release it without momentary checking or holding the ball. The unsuccessful attempt of two eligible players to catch a forward pass in turn, before the ball touches the ground, was ruled as an incompleted pass instead of giving opponents the ball as formerly. Other changes made were solely for the purpose of clarifying phraseology of the rules.

THIRTY-TWO PUPILS MAKE PERFECT SCORE

Thirty-two members of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the North Plainfield Grammar School scored perfect marks in the January spelling contest, which is the first of five to be held for the prizes offered by the Parent-Teacher Association under whose auspices it is being held. Each grade was given one hundred words, the lists being different for each class.

The fifth grade made the best showing with fifteen perfect papers, while the sixth and seventh grades each had eight. Miss Martha Emmons, of the eighth grade, had the honor of topping the list for the prize in her class, she being the only one to spell every word correctly.

Two had perfect papers in the first contest are: Eighth grade, Miss Martha Emmons; seventh grade, Grace Brewer, Marion Brown, Horace Fisher, Josephine Marsh, Dorothy Mortensen, Ethel Rilling, Mabel Rilling, Reginald Washburn; sixth grade, George Chandler, Marie Jennings, Beatrice Lee, Florence Lendino, John Mason, Seeley Masher, Olga Phillipson, Evelyn Schomp; fifth grade, Evelyn Bacon, Louise Brown, Robert Carson, Marguerite Case, Roland Clark, Cornelia Emmons, Elva Jennings, Marion Jordan, Kathleen Regan, Anna Rilling, Norman Thom, Mabel Drake, Alice Schlief, Catherine Sheelan and Elva Wigstrom.

PARTICIPANTS IN SIX-DAY BIKE RACES MAKE GOOD USE OF SPARE MOMENTS

Rout (top), Moran (left) and McNamara.

The bicyclists who are now engaged in the six-day races in Chicago don't have much time to spare, but they use for good purposes what they do have. In the above pictures Rout is seen sleeping for a few moments in order to recuperate from the effects of his strnuous work on the track; "Piggy" Moran is eating about a bushel of bread, etc., while taking a respite from the grind; and "Reg" McNamara, Moran's teammate, is shaving during an interval between his time on the track.

KALER INVENTED "EMERY" BALL

Rough Spot on Pill Makes It Cut Curious Capers.

SCHEME BARRED BY RULES.

Smoky Joe Wood, When Caught Using Sandpaper, Transferred Task of Roughening Ball to Janvrin—Several Pitchers Adopted System Until Ban Johnson Stopped It.

Manager Bill Carrigan of the Boston Red Sox has been talking about the "emery" ball and has told some baseball secrets concerning the pitchers who used the deceptive delivery. Some pitcher discovered that by making a small spot on a new ball rough with sandpaper and then throwing the ball with great speed it would jump and twist in an inexplicable manner, much like the spit ball. The reason for it is that the rough spot offers resistance to the air.

The use of the emery ball had been going on for perhaps two years until it became quite common last summer and Umpire Tommy Connolly caught Ray Keating of the New York Yankees using it. There was no rule against it, but Connolly sent the ball and the bit of emery paper he had taken from Keating's glove to President Johnson of the American league, and a rule was promulgated barring the use of sandpaper, with a penalty of $100 for breaking the rule.

Manager Carrigan says that, as far as he can learn, Kaler of the Cleveland club and Buck O'Brien were about the first to discover the fact that by rubbing the ball against a piece of emery paper a pitcher could make a ball jump and cut curves as no other style of delivery could. Manager Carrigan added:

"Joe Wood and Gregg were master hands at the business. Wood especially was unhittable when he used this style of ball last year. One day last season we were playing the Athletics, and Wood was standing the Mackmen on their heads until Pennock, who was working for the visiting team, became very wild, and Eddie Collins tossed the ball to Connie Mack, who called the attention of the umpire to the roughness of the ball on one spot.

"The umpire asked to see Wood's glove, but before handing over the glove Joe slipped the piece of emery paper from a slit in the palm of the glove. After that the ball was thrown to Janvrin every chance the Boston players got, and Janvrin roughed the spot on the ball before tossing it to Wood. I doubt if Wood could have finished the game but for Janvrin's help with the emery paper.

"Buck O'Brien had the emery paper sewed to the side of his waistband and was working the emery ball when people were giving him credit for pitching the moist ball."

Ray Collins had a little trick down to a science and was bothering the Tigers on their own grounds when Moriarty discovered that something was wrong and informed Umpire Tom Connolly, who waited until Collins came to bat with his ball shirt hanging loosely over his belt. Then, taking Collins unaware, Mr. Connolly raised the shirt and snatched the emery paper from Collins' belt.

This paper was sent to President Johnson. Nothing was done, but the players knew they were being watched.

It was Tommy Connolly who caught Ray Keating of the Highlanders and reported it to President Johnson, who sent out an order that any pitcher caught working the new wrinkle would be fined $100 and suspended.

By this time the players were continually looking for the emery paper artists, and it took a very slick man to get away with the trick.

It is said that Dick Rudolph was expert at this kind of delivery and could throw the moist ball as well as the other curves, having remarkable control of all.

Manager Carrigan would not have given away this secret of the ball field but for the fact that the roughing of a ball cover has been prohibited, and the players have given up the idea of trying to work it again.

DECIDE TO KEEP EXCHANGE GOING

Vote Was Unanimous at Organization's Annual Meeting Today.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

Members and Friends Rally to Support of the Worthy Institution—The Daily Press Contributes to the Fund Which Totals $230.

At the annual meeting of the Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work, held in the parish house of Grace church, this morning, it was decided by a unanimous vote to continue the work the organization has conducted for more than fifteen years. It was announced that aid was pouring in to prevent the proposed cessation, one contribution being a total of $220 collecetd by the Plainfield Daily Press from individual donors. In addition to this, many of the women present at this morning's meeting pledged their support with money and work. A big factor in the decision of the members to continue the Exchange was the fact brought out that a discontinuance of it would deprive about 80 consignors of their principal means of support.

Mrs. Howard Tracy presided over the meeting in her capacity of president, and the first part of the business was devoted to receiving reports from the various officers. The only one given for publication, was the treasurer's, which was as follows. Receipts for the year, $3,217.16; disbursements, $3,593.19; leaving a deficit for the year of $376.03. There is an outstanding indebtedness for money borrowed of $500. It was stated that $1,000 would be needed to continue the work of the Exchange during the present year and an urgent appeal was made to the public to lend its support to the institution.

The members decided upon a more economical plan for conducting the Exchange in the future and wherever possible unnecessary expense will be eliminated.

These officers were chosen for the coming year: First vice-president Mrs. Noah Barnhart; second vice president, Mrs. George L. Babcock; recording secretary, Mrs. Howard Stevens; corresponding secretary Mrs. Richard M. Boardman; treasurer, Mrs. Frederick Goddard; trustees Mrs. Rufus Lincoln, Mrs. Burton P Hall, Mrs. Alfred F. H. Streuli, Mrs William Cook and Mrs. Horace Stevens. Mrs. Noah Barnhart will act as the head of the organization until a president is elected to fill the vacancy left by Mrs. Howard Tracy's retirement. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Tracy, who has given the Exchange her services for the past two years.

The fund, which was started through the efforts of William L Smalley, who said that he would be one of one hundred persons to give $10 in order to secure the required $1,000, was increased by $10 today, that sum being contributed by the Daily Press. This makes a total of $230 which has been given toward the $1,000. The contributions are:

W. L. Smalley	$10
George S. Clay	$10
Mrs. R. A. Claybrook	$10
Seymour Perkins	$10
Anoymous	$10
Howard C. Tracy	$10

PLAN PRESENTATION OF THRILLING SKIT

St. Mary's Church Workers to Appear in Playlet at Columbus Carnival.

Young people of St. Mary's church under the direction of Miss Josephine Murphy, are planning to present a comedy sketch entitled "A Delayed Burglar," tomorrow night in Columbus Hall in connection with the indoor carnival being held there this week. The playlet is one that has been presented twice before in this city and has proven a pleasing entertainer on each occasion. The most recent presentation was made in St. Mary's school last week when the Alumni Association of that institution held a social gathering.

Included in the cast are the following characters: "Miss Alice Gardner," Miss Josephine Murphy; "Gentleman Joe Hatch," Garret Keating; "Harry Haynes," Frank Donnelly; "Reddy the Kid," William V. Sullivan; "Captain Lucus," John J. McCarthy; and "Officer Clarke," James Kyle. Charles Shirley is the property manager and Thomas McCarthy is the stage manager.

The skit is full of amusing instances and every part is played to perfection by the characters who have been coached by Miss Murphy. It depicts the plight of a railroad president's daughter who has captured a burglar. She notifies the police and while a minon of the law is on his way to the house she employs her ingenuity to keep the prospective looter in custody.

ITALIAN TENOR SANG AT COLUMBUS FAIR

Many Heard Excellent Renditions Programmed by Fete Committee.

Feature attractions on the second night's program of the Columbus Club's indoor carnival attracted another large crowd of amusement seekers to the West Front street rendezvous, last night, the activities being similar in mainy respects to those of Saturday night. The leading number arranged for by the committee was the appearance of Luizi Pasquini, an Italian tenor. The singer recently came to this country from Naples and his renditions were made in a pleasing manner and were thoroughly enjoyed. He was accompanied at the piano by Professor James Noylan, of Carnegie Hall.

Dancing again proved a popular entertainment with terpischorean music furnished by Professor Dunn's orchestra, of New York. The numerous booths for the sale of sweets and fancy articles were presided over by members of the Women's Auxiliary and were well patronized.

Many of the visitors indulged in the prize bowling contests and took advantage of the opportunity to try out the numerous other indoor recreations provided by the club. The entire clubhouse was turned over to the guests and many were afforded their initial opportunity to inspect the hall.

Statistics furnished by members of the Plainfield Paygrround Commission in the fifth annual report indicate that some remarkable work among the juvenile set has been accomplished here during 1914. A survey of the activities for the third year is made by Secretary Herbert E. Parker, reviewing the campaign for funds for the Independence Day celeoration, the monster field and track meet and the annual exhibition of playground work.

A careful record of attendance has been kept during every season that the playgrounds have been open. During the four seasons that the four school playgrounds have been operated the attendance figures have been as follows: 1911, 30,196; 1912, 33,536; 1913, 34,608; 1914, 38,023, a steady and substantial increase from year to year in the number.

Considering the great number of children served by Plainfield's playgrounds, the cost of maintenance is astonishingly low. During the season just past, it was less than three and one-half cents per day per child

The Commission has had the benefit of five years' continuous service from Miss Moe, supervisor at Bryant playground, and two years from Miss Wean, at Irving, and Mrs. Nischwitz, at Franklin. Those members of the staff who entered the service of the Commission this season, including Miss George, Miss Mair and Miss Brownlee, showed marked aptitude for the work.

Disbursements totalling $2,408.52 were divided as follows: Parker Field, $1,110.48; Irving School, $303.12; St. Mary's School, $205.96; Bryant School, $233.83; Franklin School, $304.95; miscellaneous, $26.98. January 1, 1915, found a balance in the treasury of $24.13. The above report was tabulated by Treasurer Harry W. Marshall.

PLAINFIELD PLAN AGAIN ADVOCATED

Elizabeth Clergyman Seeks Adoption of Local Council's Idea.

HIGH LICENSE URGED

Circulars Passed Out in St. Patrick's Cathedral Sunday—To Protect the Rising Generation from Evils of Liquor Traffic.

Renewed agitation for the adoption of the "Plainfield Plan" of dealing with the saloon question, was launched in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Elizabeth, Sunday, when the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Mackel, distributed circulars pointing out the advantages that would accrue from the adoption of the system. Dr. Mackel has long been an advocate of the "Plainfield idea" and in 1914 first brought the matter to the attention of his congregation.

The local system, which has been tried and proven applicable to the situation, in short is the levying of a high license fee and strictly enforcing the law. Occasional efforts to increase the license fee in the Union county seat have proven futile in the past. The circular warns against the establishment of extreme measures and argues the cause of the rising generation against an unrestricted number of temptations. The circular in part follows:

"One of the main reasons why we should heavily advocate the adoption of the 'Plainfield Plan' by the people of Elizabeth, is the benefit that will accure to the rising generation from the diminution of the number of places in which liquor is soid. The children of a city are its joy and its crown. To educate them, and to safeguard them from dangers to their physical and moral health, are among the chief objects of solicitude on the part of every good citizen. However beautiful our city may be, however

VON KREBS, ALLEGED MURDERER, CAUGHT

Long Pursuit for New Brunswick Man Ends Dramatically.

Richard von Krebs, a butler, who, it is charged, shot and killed Mrs. Annie Riehle and feloniously assaulted her husband last November on a farm near New Brunswick, was arrested last night in a furnished room house at No. 920 Second avenue, New York city, after a pursuit which has extended practically over the entire country.

Surprised by detectives as he was eating his evening meal of dry bread, Von Krebs offered no resistance.

"I was just contemplating writing you a letter, gentlemen, telling you where you could find me," he told the detectives.

He was ordered to dress and, without being handcuffed, was taken on an elevated train to the Third Branch Detective Bureau, to be removed later to Police Headquarters. There he will be held on a technical charge of assault until the New Jersey officers arrive.

Von Krebs protested his innocence and said all his troubles were due to the persecution of his second wife. When he was in an insane asylum, he told the detectives, she divorced him and induced the Court of Chancery of New Jersey to turn his property over to her. Then, he said, she came to New York, remarried and is living now in Yonkers.

DANCING A FEATURE AT JR. O. U. A. M. CARNIVAL

Dancing was once more the feature at the second night's session of the Jr. O. U. A. M. carnival in Sebring's auditorium, last night, the affair being well attended and the numerous pastimes thoroughly enjoyed. The booths were well patronized and present indications point to one of the greatest successes in the local lodge's history.

Tonight the same features will be in store for those seeking a good time and terpsichorean music will be furnished throughout the evening.

NEW SUBMARINES.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The new submarine boats, G-1 and G-2, placed in full commission at the New York Navy Yard, the Navy Department announced today, will operate in the vicinity of New York until the end of the month. Then they will go to Annapolis before joining the submarine flotilla off Pensacola, Florida.

SPEAKER DEFENDS FOUNDATION FUND

I. B. Lee, An Expert, Addressed Members of Monday Afternoon Club.

IMPRESSION FAVORABLE

Says Allegation That Funds Are Being Used to Obtain Political Influence is False—Witness at Investigation.

Appearing as a representative of the Rockefeller Foundation, I. B. Lee addressed the members of the Monday Afternoon Club in the parish house of the Congregational church, yesterday afternoon, giving an interesting account of the nature of the work being conducted by an institution which has been much before the public recently. He described the treatment of the various phases of activity from an expert's point of view, outlining the magnitude of the work and the lines along which it is conducted.

He refuted the statement coming from different sources that funds were being used to obtain political influence, branding it as being erroneous and the result of spite-work. The speaker declared that the foundation work was promoted along a scientific line similar to that being carried on in the Rockefeller Insti-

PETER FLYNN MAY GET APPOINTMENT

Rumor Has It That Party Worker is Slated for Political Plum.

Rumor has it in local Democratic circles, today, that Peter Flynn, of Berckman street, is slated for a political job at Washington. Just when it will come, or in what department it will be, has not been mentioned in any of the advance stories being circulated. The matter was brought to the attention of the executive committee of the Plainfield Democratic Club at its meeting last night, and one enthusiastic committeeman offered a resolution to give Mr. Flynn its hearty endorsement. The motion was lost after a discussion in which it was conceded that action had better be deferred until the details of the proposed appointment had been given out.

It goes without saying that if there is any truth in the report, the plum will be plucked for the Plainfielder by Senator James E. Martine. Mr Flynn has been a close friend of the Senator's since the time the former cast his first vote, and for nearly thirty years has been one of the most energetic supporters of Jeffersonian principles that Union county has known. He has served in all capacities on local, county and State Democratic committees, but has never been rewarded with an office, either elective or appointive. When asked about the rumored appointment, Mr. Flynn said that he received no definite information on the subject, but he stood in the position of "Barkis, who is willing and ready to receive proposals. Until he heard something further from Washington, he said he would be unable to throw any light upon the subject.

Mr. Flynn at the present time is manager of the Gardner Tailoring Company, on Watchung avenue which was started many years ago by his brother-in-law, the late George Gardner. In a partnership with his brother, the late Michael Flynn, Mr. Flynn at one time conducted a flourishing shoe business on West Front street, closing it out shortly after the death of his brother.

SECOND SHIPMENT OF MILK TO BELGIUM

Local Relief Committee Receive Encouraging Reports of Work for Refugees.

Reports received at the last meeting of the women of the Plainfield Belgian Relief Fund showed that since the previous meeting enough money had been collected to enable the committee to send a second shipment of 4,800 cans of condensed milk at a cost of $310 and that there was a balance on hand of $62.82. It was decided that in view of the ever increasing need of the Belgian babies, this balance should, if possible, be increased to $310 so that a third shipment of milk might be made in February. The first shipment was bought December 28, the second January 28. It is hoped that the third can be bought February 28.

In connection with the offer made by a Plainfield man to contribute $100 if nine other men would give a like amount each, it was stated that four gentlemen have promised conditionally $100 each and that two others have given $100 each unconditionally. If four more men will give $100 each the fund will be the richer by $800. 2,003 new garments and 494 other garments had been sent to Belgium before Thursday last. Since then two additional boxes have been shipped. Possibly there are people who can afford to give time for sewing but who do not feel that they can give money. This help with the sewing would be greatly appreciated.

NEW ENGINE HERE; SHIFTS TO BE MADE

Installation of New Nott Apparatus Will Necessitate Transfers.

The work of unloading the city's new triple combination Nott fire engine, which arrived at the Richmond street freight yard yesterday afternoon, was commenced at noon today under the spuervision of Chief T. O. Doane and Robert Woodhouse, the latter being the Nott Company's local representative. The apparatus will be taken to the No. 4 house at Netherwood, where it is to be permanently located, after official acceptance is made. A special demonstrator from the Nott plant at Minneapolis, Minn., will reach Plainfield in a few days and put the engine through its preliminary runs.

As soon as the new engine is placed in regular commission, there will be a transfer of men in the various houses. Paul Adams, who has been at headquarters, will be sent to Netherwood as driver of the big engine, and Jens Claussen and George Leland, who are now at Netherwood, will be brought downtown to headquarters. Two of the present headquarters men are scheduled to exchange places with two of the men at No. 1 house. The West End house, No. 3, is the only one which will not be affected by the change. The fire committee of the Common Council is proceeding as rapidly as possible toward motorizing the combination chemical rigs now at No. 3 and No. 4 houses. Estimates for the cost have been secured and the contracts will be awarded soon after the new engine begins its service. When this change is brought about, only one piece of horse-drawn apparaus will be left in the city department, that being the hook and ladder truck at headquarters, and motorizing advocates are casting suspicious glances in its direction.

MUSIC TO BE FEATURE OF THE HOSPITAL DANCE

Arrangements are all complete for the dance to be given at the Plainfield High School, Thursday evening, for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital. The dancing will begin at 9 o'clock and continue until 1 o'clock in the morning. The committee in charge has secured Frantzen's orchestra, so well-known at Piping Rock, and in New York, and this will be a feature.

Previous dances of a similar character have been very successiul and the hospital has received a substantial sum as a result. Tickets for Thursday night's affair may be obtained through Mrs. W. B. Tyler, Mrs. R. S. Rowland and at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

HEAR ALLIES HAVE GAINED AT YPRES

Amsterdam Report Says They Now Occupy Langemarck and Passchendaele.

HOT FIGHT IN PRUSSIA

Germans Taking the Offensive in Poland From Gumbinnen—No Protest to Be Made Against Lusitania's Use of Flag.

Amsterdam, Feb. 9.—Reports received by newspapers in this city say that the Allies have advanced north of Ypres, in the direction of Roulers, and that they now occupy both Langemarck and Passchendaele, the latter town being five miles from Roulers.

Airmen of the Allies flew over Measbode and Meyst, within the German lines, yesterday, and dropped three bombs on a German supply station there. Fire from the German guns forced them to return to their own lines. The damage is believed to be slight.

The Vossische Zeitung remarks that the opinions expressed by the daily newspapers of London as to the probable protest by the United States against the blockade of British ports by Germany are obviously worthless. "No American seriously believes, and there is nothing Germany repudiates so much as the idea that the German Navy will engage in piracy against the ships of neutral countries," it says.

London, Feb. 9.—A despatch from Petrograd says that advices received there today indicate that the fighting is increasing in intensity at the two extremities of the eastern battle front in East Prussian, as well as in the Carpathians. On the Warsaw front the battle has subsided. The fighting line, from the province of Plock in Russian Poland, as far north as Tilsit, in East Prussia, is virtually continuous. The Germans today are apparently taking the offensive from the Gumbinnen and the Mazurian Lakes as far south as Lipno, in Poland, on the right bank of the Vistula.

Washington, Feb. 9.—It became known on the highest authority today that no protest to Great Britain on account of use of the American flag by the liner Lusitania is contemplated in administration circles.

Representative Martin, of South Dakota, introduced a bill today forbidding foreign vessels from using the American flag to escape capture.

President Wilson today also denied knowledge of a plan for concerted protest by the neutral powers against the so-called German blockade of England. The present understanding is that the communication from Germany is nothing more or less than a warning to neutral vessels that certain designated areas are dangerous.

Paris, Feb. 9.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon:

"In Belgium there was an intermittent artillery fire yesterday. Ypres and Funes were bombarded. The Belgian army destroyed a farm from which the defenders fled. Along the Bethune-La Bassee highway we reoccupied a mill where the enemy had succeeded in establishing himself. Soissons was bombarded with inflammable projectiles.

"At Champagne our artillery effectively replied to the German batteries.

"In the Argonne the battle raging around Bagatelle developed into one of the thickest in parts of the forest and therefore assumed a very confused character. The front was maintained in general on both sides.

"In Lorraine and in the Vosges there were artillery engagements."

Berlin, Feb. 9 (by wireless).—The following statement was given out at German headquarters today.

"In the western theatre nothing of importance is reported. On the East Prussian frontier, in the eastern theatre, we gained several minor local successes. Otherwise the situation is unchanged."

BORO P. T. A. MEETING.

William D. Murray will be the speaker at the meeting of the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association to be held in the Somerset School Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. FIVE TAPS FOR ONE SESSION.

One addition has been made to the new system of "no school" calls made by the borough fire bell on days when it is thought best not to hold sessions. If the bell taps five times at 10 o'clock it is to signify that there will only be one session in all grades.

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

MONEY FOR RELIGION

With all the other great demands for funds created by the war abroad, the American people are to be asked to contribute great amounts for religion in 1915. All the different denominations are making plans to ask for large sums, and that they will be successful to a large degree may be generally expected because of the well known generosity of the people. The Scranton Times has made an analysis of the various amounts to be asked for, and the total is great.

Congregationalists take this year the first steps toward observance of the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims. The landing of the Pilgrims is to have, if present plans go through, a much more ambitious observance. Some propose the raising of $500,000,000, others think no more than $5,000,000 can be secured, while Congregational leaders with practical minds, are talking $10,000,000, all of it to be in hand by October, 1920. The national Congregational council, which now meets every other year, comes together this year at New Haven, and there this Pilgrim landing observance will be decided upon.

Methodists talk of raising as much as $15,000,000. Their cause is the taking care of aged ministers. The cause demands $1,200,000 yearly. An elaborate system has been worked out for pension funds in many conferences. Each conference says how it will secure the money, but the whole machinery of Methodism, from the board of bishops down, is engaged in pushing the plan. Closely allied to this larger Method'st campaign is one for $250,000 as a war relief fund. Methodists in America are supporting in India missionaries and their families who have heretofore been supported by Germany.

Presbyterians have half a dozen big projects for the year. One is the paying of the debts resting on mission boards. Through the regular agencies, Presbyterians North and South are taking up this year the problems of the country church. They are also taking hold of education on peace lines in Sunday-schools and between Presbyterians United and South progress is making toward organic unity. Presbyterian North and the Reformed church, Dutch and German, are talking organic union. The largest labor and emigrant work in the country is carried on by these up-to-date Presbyterian enthusiasts.

Baptists North and South are determined to put through in 1915 a $300,000 Judson memorial fund to endow a church in New York city that is named after the famous pioneer foreign missionary. Co-operating with Baptists South, the northern Baptists are planning to reorganize their extensive work in Mexico so soon as such action may be possible.

Disciples of Christ have in hand one of the biggest programs of any religious body. While chiefly financial, it is to be accompanied by revivalistic and educational work. The proposition is to send forth 1,000 trained workers, and to raise $6,000,000. Missions, benevolence and education are to be the financial beneficiaries, 2½ millions to one and 3½ to the other.

THINKING OF HUSBANDS.

That the public schools are recognizing more and more the need for training young people for the future, rather than filling them up with a lot of "book knowledge," is evident in Plainfield as well as in hundreds of other cities throughout the United States. While rapid strides are being made along lines of professions and trades, not only in the High School,s but in continuation school in many cities, it is also true that efforts are being made to teach girls advanced instruction in home making.

Uncle Sam, through the department of agriculture, has issued a series of pamphlets as "first aid to newlyweds." Subjects range in this series of "advanced instruction in homemaking" from "bread and breadmaking," in which modern wives are growing more and more interested, because of the rise in the price of bakers bread, to "food value of nuts," "weeds used in medicine," and "mushroom culture," in which they never were interested. If Uncle Sam really desires to help the "newly-weds," he must proceed along more practical and reasonable lines, for his "first aid" idea is a good one provided the aid is logical.

Household economics has come into its own as a subject of school study and training; the next problem is how to extend training in it to the older girls and to wives and mothers in the average city. Before the General Federation of Women s Clubs in Chicago recently, a speaker asserted that domestic science classes in the schools is not enough and advocated the establishment of continuation schools and the introduction of visiting teachers to give instruction in housekeeping, child care and home making to every woman about to be married and to every young matron.

This is a day of practical school work, when studies and instruction are measured by their results and the school curriculum is as good as the students it produces. Today, instruction in the old principles of housewifery is as essential as training in the use of new methods and the application of new and approved labor-saving devices and, to be practical, this instruction must be continued beyond the school years. If there were continuation schools in household economics to render "first aid to newly-weds" there would be more successful, happy and contented homes.

C. E. SOCIETY WILL ASSIST AT SERVICE

The mid-week service of the First Baptist church, which will be held in the auditorium tomorrow evening, will be one of special interest. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, will be assisted by the C. E. Society, which will attend and be seated in a body. The program for the evening will be somewhat special in character and one to attract the older as well as the younger attendants.

Following the service the ordinance of baptism will be administered. The pastor requests the presence of the deacons a quarter of an hour before the service to hear the experiences of any who may desire to present themselves for baptism.

BIBLE READERS' LEAGUE PLANS LECTURE SERIES

The Bible Readers' League of Grace church has arranged to give a series of lectures on the Bible at the Parish House this spring. The Rev. Hughell E. W. Fosbroke, D. D., of Cambridge, has been secured to lecture on March 8 and 9 on the books of Amos and Hosea. On the evenings of March 15 and 16, the Rev. Stuart L. Tyson, of Princeton, will speak on "The Synoptic Problem."

Both lecturers are widely known in the Christian world. Dr. Fosbroke appeared before the Bible Readers' League last year, and those who enjoyed that privilege will doubtless attend his lectures again. Mr. Tyson is not so well known to the Plainfield public, but one of the indications of his ability is found in the fact that the attendance at his lectures in the chapel of St. Thomas' church, in New York, grew to such proportions that the main body of the church had to be used.

Any further information about the course may be secured by applying to Miss Louise Egan, by addressing her at the Parish House.

WEST END WOMEN AID RELIEF WORK

Knitting Club Preparing Another Box Filled With Articles for the Allies.

The West End Knitting Club, which was organized three months ago for the purpose of preparing useful articles needed by the soldiers in the allied armies, held an interesting and profitable meeting, yesterday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Jane Ross, of 923 West Fourth street. There was a large gathering of members, all of whom brought numerous donations to fill up a large box, the third one to be sent the English Relief Headquarters since last November. All during the gathering, the members of the club plied needles on new pieces of apparel, and late in the afternoon tea was served by Mrs. Ross, assisted by sevrela of the women.

Since it began to aid in the relief work, the society has forwarded the following articles: 150 pair of socks, 150 handkerchiefs, eighteen mufflers, twenty-four pair mittens, two pair of knee caps, thirty pair of wristlets, three body belts, one helmet, eighty-one packages tobacco, twenty-four cans foot powder, fifty pair shoe laces, twelve dozen safety pins and one pound of boric acid. In a big box that was sent at Christmas time, Mrs. Donald McInnes, of West Third street, placed a Christmas card bearing her name and address and stating the fact that the mittens had been knitted by the wife of a former 42nd Highlander. In reply a few days ago, she received the following letter from a "Tommie Atkins" at the front, which she read during the afternoon:

"Dear Madam:

"I have received the mitts, your gift, with the greatest of pleasure. I am pleased to know that 'Tommie' is not yet forgotten by English people at home and abroad and time will show that 'Tommie' will repay them for kindnesses. We are out here to fight for our country's cause and do it we will to the best of our ability.

"Please excuse the way I have put my address: "No. 4,289, G. Grimsay Fourth Battalion Rifle Brigade, British Expeditionary Force, care of G. P. O. So I must draw this short letter to a close thanking you for your kindness. From

"Yours sincerely,
"G. GRIMSAY."

There were also several other letters read by members of the club partly of a personal nature, and partly a description in and about the battle lines. The one received by Mrs. McInnes made it evident to the members that the articles that they are preparing are being sent to the places where they are most needed.

The Knitting Club was started by Miss Christian Grant, a sister of Mrs. Ross. She is an invalid, and the opportunity to help others appealed to her so strongly that she took up the work with great enthusiasm and it has been kept up by those who have joined the movement. The fact was brought out, yesterday, that three of the members who have been knitting industriously are eighty years old while the fourth is seventy-eight. The last named is Mrs. Steele, of Newark who has been contributing through a friend, while the others are Mrs. Agnes Head, Mrs. Elizabeth Holland and Mrs. McRae. Mrs. Holland has a record of fourteen pair of socks which she has knit in a little over two months.

TRINITY G. E. SOCIETY GIVE ENJOYABLE SOCIAL

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Trinity Reformed church, held a very enjoyable and successful social in the Sunday school rooms, last night. The affair was largely attended, about one hundred and fifty members and friends being present. The Dutch Arms Band was present and entertained throughout the evening with musical selections.

Miss Maude McAfee also entertained with recitations and various contest games were played. During the evening refreshments were served by the committee in charge. Miss Sadie Searing, chairman of the social committee, was the general chairman and she was assisted by a committee of twelve young women.

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF SOCIETY CELEBRATED

The Germania Beneficial Society celebrated its twentieth anniversary at the annual meeting held in Saengerbund Hall last night, the gathering including the members and their families to the number of about fifty. Rudolph Wuergler, president of the society, had charge of the business session during which reports were read showing that the society is in good financial condition.

A social time followed during which there were short addresses by Mr. Wuergler, August Wolf, secretary and treasurer; Vincent Wisneiwski, recording secretary, and Prof. Adolph W. Hauck.

FATHER AND SON PLACED ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Elizabeth, Feb. 9.—William Brunet, who, with his son, Arthur, is accused of causing the death of Lorenz Begasse, of Garwood, at the Brunet home there New Year's Day, was on the witness stand in his own behalf yesterday afternoon, and denied positively that he struck or kicked Begasse. He said he merely pushed Begasse away from him and then led him out of the house. Begasse was drunk, he said, and fell down. As he lay on the ground he (Begasse) bit Brunet on the left arm. Brunet showed his bare arm to the jury during his testimony. He said he had had a previous quarrel with Begasse. Physicians told the court that Burnet died of ruptured intestines sustained from a kick or blow.

Arthur Brunet took the witness stand this morning and repeated his father's story. Physicians were called by the defense to contradict the testimony of the State's physicians. The case will go to the jury this afternoon. Judge Connolly told the jurors in the case not to talk about it.

The club has plans underway for increasing the membership of the club and these will be put in effect during the early spring. The present membership includes many of the younger men who are following the game and a number of others are waiting to join the organization.

FIRST HALF MARGIN TOO GREAT FOR P. H. S.

Outscored Rahway in Final Period of Well Played Game.

The Plainfield High School basketball team was once more defeated by the team of Rahway High School, on the local gymnasium floor, yesterday afternoon. The final score was 29 to 21. The game was fast and exciting throughout. Although Rahway held the upper hand practically all the way, the local five played a great game in the second half and outscored its opponents by five points, but the visitors had run up too big a lead in the first period, which Plainfield was unable to overcome. The visitors played a fine game of basketball, their passing and shooting being accurate and fast, many of their baskets being made from near the center of the court.

"Eddie" Durand was the high score man for Rahway, caging five field goals. He was closely followed, however, by "Johnny" Brooks, with four field goals, and "Monk" Armstrong with three.

Plainfield played a much better game in the second half than it did in the first period.

"Shelley" Coudray starred for the home team, scoring seven pretty field goals and putting his side in the lead at the end of the first half.

Y. M. C. A. PLAYED TO A STANDSTILL

N. P. H. S. Team Beaten by a Goal in Overtime Period.

The North Plainfield High School basketball team gave a good account of itself in Saengerbund Hall, last night, when the Y. M. C. A. five, champions of the city, were played to a standstill in two fifteen-minute periods. The boroughites played one of their best games of the season and it was only in an extra period of play that they were forced to take defeat, the final score being 30 to 28. The association players, being much heavier than their opponents, expected a victory before the start of the contest but the home team set the pace throughout the entire thirty minutes of play and just happened to be the unlucky ones in the end.

North Plainfield started off by taking the ball into its territory and missing a basket. "Wren" Townley put the boroughites in the lead with a pretty field goal and Conroy followed it up with one of the two-point kind. Harry Moulton scored for the Y. M. C. A., but Hebert added a pair of points to his team's score. The association players then took a brace and scored twice, making the score tie at 6 all. Moulton put his team in the lead with a throw from the fifteen foot mark, but Townley's second field goal reversed the lead. Al Brynairski was injured and was forced to retire, Newkirk taking his place. North Plainfield managed to maintain its lead for the remainder of the period, the score being 14 to 12 when the whistle sounded for intermission.

Two changes were made in the Y. M. C. A. lineup in the second half Ricketts replaced Taylor and Dunning playing center. The game was as close in the second half as it had been in the first and the city boys took a two-point lead after five minutes of play. Two pretty field goals by Hebert and Conroy put North Plainfield ahead 28 to 26 and shortly before the whistle sounded Ricketts found the iron ring for the fifth time. Time was called with the score even, but play was continued, and after a minute of hard fighting, Dunning scored, ending the game.

B. P. O. E. BASEBALL LEAGUE FORMED WITH EIGHT TEAMS

Eight lodges received franchise grants in the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks Interstate Baseball League, which was formed Sunday afternoon, at a meeting held in the home of the New York Elks. One-half of the circuit will be composed of lodges located in this State, while the other four will be from New York State. Practically all details for the league were arranged, with the exception of setting the date for the opening games.

The following lodges will be represented in the circuit: Newark, New York, Bronx, Paterson, Bayonne, Jersey City, Queensboro and Brooklyn.

WELSH AFTER LOST LAURELS.

New York, Feb. 9—Freddie Welsh, the world's lightweight champion, will be forced to show his full speed tonight when he tackles Joe Shughrue for ten rounds at Madison Square Garden. It was only five or six weeks ago that Shughrue won the popular decision over the Englishman, but it was generally conceded that Welsh at that time was not in condition. Welsh is eager to wipe out the defeat by a decisive victory, but Shughrue has abundance of backing that he will repeat.

N. P. H. S. VS. RAHWAY.

The North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team should have an easy time with the Rahway sextet at Saengerbund Hall tomorrow afternoon. The boroughites went to Rahway about one month ago and only allowed their opponents four points.

N. P. H. S. WANTS ANOTHER WHACK AT CONQUERORS

After making such a good showing against the Y. M. C. A. basketball team last night, the members of the North Plainfield High School five are anxious to meet the association five on its own court and a return game will probably be arranged before these teams close their schedule. When the game was arranged for last night, dates were twisted every way possible for a game on the Y. M. C. A. court, but satisfactory arrangements could not be made.

As it is a well known fact that the boroughites play a better brand of ball on opponent's courts than in Saengerbund Hall, Captain Abrams wants to meet the Y. M. C. A. team on the association floor. Both teams close their seasons on Saturday, March 6, North Plainfield meeting Plainfield High School for the third time and the association team playing Newark. A game or a series of post-season games will undoubtedly be arranged which will prove of interest to many court followers of the city and borough.

N. P. H. S. FRESHMEN GET BASKETBALL INSIGNIAS

Both the girls' and boys' basketball teams, of the Freshman class of North Plainfield High School, have received their letters for the work they have accomplished in basketball this season.

Those who received the awards are the Misses Theresa McCullough, Marian Blair, Helen Thompson, Dorothy Krewson, Helen Wyckoff and Agnes Griffiths, and Seymore Day, Roy Stewart, Douglas Stewart, Elmer Perry, Harold Mantz and Clifford Feiring.

ELKS' TEAMS IN ACTION.

Both the Plainfield Senior and Junior Elks' bowling teams will get into action tonight, the latter five meeting the new champions on the Watchung avenue alleys. The Seniors will go over to Rutherford and play off a postponed match.

BY AUTO TO RUTHERFORD.

The Elks' Senior League bowling team will go to Rutherford tonight by automobile. The start will be made from the clubhouse at 6 o'clock sharp.

BOY SCOUTS SEEKING GOVERNMENT CHARTER

Washington, Feb. 9.—The Boy Scouts of America will receive a government charter, if the recommendations of the Senate Judiciary Committee are followed out. A bill to incorporate the Boy Scouts, with headquarters in Washington, has been favorably reported. The report of the committee says in part:

"The Boy Scout movement aims to supplement established educational facilities in the inculcation of character by engaging the boy's leisure energies in outdoor activities which develop the powers of initiative and resourcefulness and lead him to become a better man and a good citizen. It tends to conserve the moral, intellectual and physical life of the coming generation and in its immediate results does much to reduce the problem of juvenile delinquency in the cities. The scout movement has grown rapidly during the past few years until it is now organized in practically every community of 4,000 inhabitants and over and in many smaller communities of the United States."

The incorporators are residents of all sections of the country.

SEEKS UNIFORM TIME.

Columbus, O., Feb. 9—A second public hearing was begun here today on the bill that provides Eastern time shall be used throughout the State. Clocks of some sections are one hour earlier than others, and official time varies between the Eastern and Western borders of the State. It is believed that the Central time will be abandoned and the Eastern time adopted generally in the State, thus removing the cause of many odd mixups.

TO BUY LIGHTING PLANT.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 9—New Orleans city government is considering the purchase, on the installment plan, of an electric power plant, and Ohio capitalists have submitted a proposition to construct the plant and accept yearly payments from the city. The cost of public lighting is so enormous in this city that it is thought that out of the big sum paid each year enough can be saved to pay for the plant in 10 or 15 years.

CHRYSTABEL IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Feb., 9—Miss Chrystabel Pankhurst is to deliver tonight an address on "America and the New War", as a representative of the Women's Social and Political Union of England.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

Bunk is easily assimilated when it is served with good manners. We are readily reconciled to it when the job is put over politely. Scoop, the office boy, just handed us a yard and a half of perfectly good typewriting ink ground out by a Westfield Horace Greeley who takes exception to our defense of Plainfield athletes against the unsportmanlike tactics indulged in by our naughty little suburban rivals. Particular objection is lodged against a little passing comment we made on the Westfield girls' default to the Plainfield feminine athletes last Thursday night and the author takes occasion to infer that "rules are mere formalities in the court pastime." Therefore, if rules interfere with your playing cut them out. Studies interfered with Westfield High School gridiron activities two seasons ago so the athletes decided to cut out studies and play as "outcasts." A runaway race is at its best only a farce and the culmination of the Westfield-Plainfield fracas on the Columbus Club court Thursday night when the score favored the locals by a margin of 15 to 3 with two minutes to play left no room for a kick.

Yougottagive the Westfield youngster credit for one thing, however, and that's the solving of the mystery of where the name Mt. Ararat came from. We've often had occasion to use the handle, but we were never quite certain where it originated. The long-distance typewriter tells us it was the name of a milk route that went through that place in the days of Methusalah. Yea bo! We're led to believe that it's a different kind of a route just now.

North Plainfield High School basketball promoters tell us a bill of $13 was handed over to the Athletic Association for chairs broken at the North Plainfield-Plainfield fracas. 'Tuff, and in these hard times, too.

Giving the bleachers the once-over at P. H. S. we're led to believe that there won't be much breaking in that gym. Seats of the substantial circus variety have been installed.

Trenton feminine athletes certainly lived up to the old maxim, "Keep adding punch to punch and you'll have a good score," when they humiliated the Plainfield girls on the capital city court Saturday night. The Queen Cityites resembled a regiment of battered Germans when the final whistle blew.

Now the Plainfielders are awaiting the appearance of the Trentonians on the local court. The verdict will no doubt be different if the locals are successful in inducing the rival clan to wander away from the home court.

A few staunch supporters of the Borough High School clan, huddled together in one corner of Saengerbund Hall, witnessed the game of the season last night when the Y. M. C. A. five defeated N. P. H. S. in an overtime struggle. If the final score had been 110 to 5 a record attendance probably would have been recorded.

FASHIONABLE TAILORS DECREE SILK SUITS FOR MEN

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 9.—Silk suits for men will be the summer fashion, is the announcement made today when the National Merchant Tailors' convention opened here. Not silk pajamas or silk underwear, mind you, but silk outer clothes is the decree, and silk will be the official sign of the "nifty" as well as the "swell" dresser. The tailors' convention has brought to Chicago representatives from all sections, who unite on silk as the new fashion for men. Silk business suits, silk cutaways, silk evening suits and even silk bathing suits are displayed at the convention to show the "swell" effect.

More important still is the news that leaks out from the tailors' convention that hereafter bills for fine clothes will have to be paid. The tailors have formulated a scheme for keeping tabs on "dead beats" and careless payers, who hereafter will have to plunk down the cash before they are measured for their new creations.

The tailors' convention is being held at the Congress Hotel, and will keep the visitors busy for three days.

LAUNCH SUBMARINE TENDER.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 9—Miss Esculine W. Bushnell, of La Grange, Ill., today christened the submarine tender Bushnell, which was launched with appropriate exercises. It was Miss Bushnell's great grandfather, David Bushnell, who invented and built the first submarine vessel, and the present submarines are fashioned after his original vessel.

CONVENTION OF DECORATORS.

Washington, Feb. 9—A five-day convention of the International Association of Master House Painters and Decorators opened at the Hotel Raleigh today, and an exhibit was shown of materials used in the trade, the methods of gathering turpentine, and the correct methods of preparing the oils and gums.

NO BOOZE AT CONVENTION.

Mason City, Iowa., Feb. 9—The lack of "booze" was the feature of the eleventh annual Farmers Grain Association convention which opened here today, with attendance of 2,500. The ban on liquor was officially carried out, so far as the entertainment of guests was concerned.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant. —Adv.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

At 8:15, the time appointed by National Headquarters, Scout Lawrence Sutton, commissioners' aide, blew "Assembly" on his bugle, while applications were being received from Scouts Caryl Dunavan and Clifton Wiggins, of Troop 9; Howard Leek, of Troop 10; Jack Fawcett, Harold McKay, of Troop 5, and Edwin H. Addis, of Troop 10.

Scout Dunavan seeks badges for signalling, conservation and civics; Scout Fawcett for gardening, carpentry and craftsmanship; Scout Addis, bird study, art, carpentry, plumbing and wood craftsmanship; Scout Leek, surveying, signalling, athletics, bird study, pioneering, first aid, civics and astronomy; Scout Wiggins, cooking, handicraft, wood craftsmanship, first aid, first aid to animals, public and personal health, art and machinery; Scout McKay, signalling, interpreting, handicraft, craftsmanship, carpentry and art.

A most impressive silence fell upon the audience when in conjunction with 300,000 Scouts in America, the Plainfield boys saluted and recited the Boy Scout pledge: "On my honor, I will do my best to do my duty to God and to my country and to obey the Scout law. To help other people at all times. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight." To the piano accompaniment of Mrs. Williams, the Scouts and audience joined in singing "America."

Dr. Maxson was asked to speak to the boys. He said that he envied the youth of today, for the reason that such movements as the Boy Scouts were not known when he was a boy. He declared that there is nothing that he knows of which builds up character in the boys like the scout work, and said that it made them reverence their God, reverence their bodies and taught them to lend a hand, as well as to know the world out of doors, the field and the hills. Mr. Leek appealed to the parents present to take a more active interest in the splendid work which the Boy Scouts are doing, as they help develop the kind of citizens that the nation needs.

Scoutmaster Beals paid a high compliment to the men working in the field, who are giving their time and effort by coming out to take charge of the various troops. He said that these men were gaining, as well as the boys, for he knew of no greater stimulant for a man than to come in contact "with husky boys who believe in healthy fun and the square deal, and will make good men." The Boy Scout knows how to get fun out of life and at the same time knows now to work, declared the commissioner, and in some cases the credit for the good things the boys do is primarily due to the Scouts themselves, rather than the commissioner. Honor is due to the business men who have also helped the work of caring for the boys. They have helped them in their studies and in getting positions. "Every Boy Scout is a Christian, clean of speech, mind and body. Beneath their uniforms a jewel shines forth—the pulsating heart of a good American boy," were Mr. Beals closing remarks.

Scout demonstrations followed this part of the program interspersed with fife and drum selections by the members of Troop 7, the famous colored Scout troop.

Champion Engineers Patrol of Troop, 5, John Richards leader, demonstrated the creation of a 30 foot suspension bridge in 35 seconds. This bridge is capable of sustaining 800 pounds live weight. Troop 13, of the First Baptist church, Ernest K. Powlison scoutmaster, gave a demonstration of pyramid building. Troops 9 and 10 combined under the leadership of Caryl Dunavan and gave a demonstration of tent pitching, erecting four tents on a slippery floor in remarkable time. Eagle Scout Charles E. Rice, of Troop 5, gave a demonstration of making fire by friction in 35 seconds under decidedly adverse circumstances. The record is 21 seconds. LeRoy Western, represented Troop 11, of Grace Episcopal church, E. A. Sprowl scoutmaster, which being composed largely of choir boys, was on duty at the musicale in the High School. Western gave a remarkable exhibition of semaphore signalling for Signalling Patrol, John Causbrook leader. Red Cross Patrol, of Troop 5, Thomas P. Fitch leader, gave a demonstration of ambulance drill and first aid, and Troop 7 gave an exhibition of head and hand bandaging and pyramid building under the direction of Scoutmaster Joseph A. Garner.

The boys marched with their two fife and drum corps back to town dispersing at Park avenue and Front street.

tute for Medical Research and said that marked benefits had already been derived.

Classified departments under expert guidance have been maintained and during his investigation of the Colorado strike situation Mr. Lee obtained much "inside" information concerning the labor troubles and the possible remedies. Many questions were asked by the members of the club concerning the trouble and these were answered in full by the speaker. He said that everything possible was being done to bring about a complete adjustment of the trouble and that the Rockefeller Foundation had played an important role.

Mr. Lee was one of the witnesses appearing at the government investigation in Washington recently and the information he gave to the members yesterday was first-hand and convincing. At the conclusion of the lecture the consensus of opinion appeared to be decidedly in favor of the work being done by the institution which the speaker represented, and much that was vague prior to the talk was cleared up.

Preceding Mr. Lee's address Mrs. Williard gave a short talk on the subject of Trade Unions. She expressed herself as being against certain phases of Trade Union work and declared that in many instances this organization had proven itself detrimental to business interests. She cited several extreme examples of the manner in which organization has worked out in machine shops and classed the stringent regulations as being adverse to harmony among laborers and mechanics.

FLAINFIELD PLAN ADVOCATED

great its material prosperity, the provision made for the welfare of the future men and women who are growing up around us must ever be the chief standard by which our position in the scale of civilization is to be determined.

"For the adequate training of the young, it is necessary to have not only clean and virtuous homes and well-equipped and efficient schools, but also an environment suitable to normal growth, physical and moral. It is unreasonable to expect strength and health in children who are compelled to live in an atmosphere infected with the germs of physical disease. How then, can we hope for such men and women as every good citizen desires to see adorning every walk of life in our city, if the young are forced to breathe air of a neighborhood infected with the germs of temptations to intemperance existing in such numbers as to be a source of peril to youth? The children who live in such a distract are as precious in the eyes of the city as those who are carefully nurtured in more refined neighborhoods. They are entitled to the same solicitude on the part of the city government and their rights to decent and healthy surroundings, conducive to their physical and moral health, ought to be safeguarded with equal care.

"Human rights take precedence over property rights, and if the due protection of the rights of the children to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, involves a conflict with the property rights of men engaged in certain lines of business, the people of our city ought not to hesitate in determining upon some legal method whereby commercial gain will be subordinated to the welfare of human beings created in the image and likeness of God. Drinkers, too, have their rights: but they may clamor for the enjoyment of those rights quite oblivious of the rights of their children and of the community of which those children are a part. Men may find it convenient to have a liquor store near their home, but they forget that their personal convenience is not the sole standard by which the common good of the community is to be provided for.

"Extreme measures are of course to be avoided. Due consideration must be had for men whose chief pleasure in life seems to be the gratification of an insatiable appetite, for intoxicating drink. It would be unfair and unwise to expect them to rise above the level of habits ingrained in their nature from long usage. But they should not object to a reasonable plan for elevating their children to higher planes of intellectual and moral life. If they have not had the advantages of education, they seldom allege that fact as a reason for not sending their children to school. In like manner, if they cannot restrain in themselves the inclination to intoxicants, they should ot object to the efforts made to save others."

LOCAL MUSICIANS SCORED A BIG HIT

Plainfield Symphony Orchestra Made Its Initial Appearance.

The recently organized Plainfield Symphony Orchestra made its initial appearance before the public, last night, when it gave the first of a series of concerts in the auditorium of the Plainfield High School, under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee. The orchestra was assisted by the boys' choir from Grace church, with S. Frederick Smith acting as conductor. The concert was thoroughly enjoyed by an enthusiastic audience of fully 600 people. In more respects than one, the affair was declared to be an emphatic success and music lovers from Plainfield will look forward to the remainder of the series with expectant pleasure.

Every number on the program was greeted with enthusiastic applause and the artists were liberal in responding to encores. Among the selections especially enjoyed were "Sweet Is Thy Mercy" and "Lift Thine Eyes," by Grace church choir boys; "Just A'wearing For You" and "Philosophy," by Master Axel Oberg, "Danse Orientale," by the orchestra and "Roll On Beautiful World" and "Dreams," by Master Irving Manley. The vocal numbers were given with a graceful ease that indicated perfect control and each of the instrumental selections reflected credit upon Mr. Smith. The expression was at all times noticeable and in the more intricate portions the musicians displayed a technique seldom found among amateurs.

The program in full was as follows: First Symphony (two movements), Beethoven; three-part chorus, "Sweet Is Thy Mercy," Barnby, "Lift Thine Eyes," Mendelssohn, Grace church choir boys; unfinished Symphony, Schubert; vocal solos "Just A'wearing for You," Bond, "Philosophy," Emmell, Master Axel Oberg; orchestra: (a) Serenade Shaminade; (b) Morris Danse, Noble; (c) Danse Orientale, Lumbosky, vocal solos: (a) Roll on Beautiful World, Ball; (b) Tit for Tat; orchestra: (a) Wedding March, Mauser; (b) Kinawiak, Weiniawski.

The orchestra is composed of the following musicians: Violins, Arthur Mosher, concert master; Mrs. Noel Evans, Miss Lyle Smith, Miss Alice Titus, Miss Elizabeth Schuck, Joseph Sattels, J. R. O'Connor, C. R. Heaume, E. M. Loizeaux, Vincent Spitotro, B. Willard, Antonio Zorpo; viola, M. Collins; 'cello, H. A. Frost, H. L. Collins; basso, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan; flutes, L. Clauss, C. D. Gootch, J. P. Faber; oboe, James McNabb; clarinets, L. J. Loizeaux, Nathan Wardener; bassoon, Bert Harold; bass horn, H. C. Koch, cornets Whitney W. Frazee, A. Bennett, trombone, Fred Zweifel; tympani, Carl Evans; piano, Wendel Glover; S. Frederick Smith, conductor.

WILLIAM E. JAMES.

William E. James, a former well known New York man, died last night at his home on the Mt. Bethel road, midway between Mount Bethel and Liberty Corner. He was eighty one years old and had been retired for a long time. He is survived by one daughter. The funeral will be held at the late home, Thursday morning, at 10:30 and burial will be in the afternoon at Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

An important meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E., of St. Peter's Lutheran church, will be held Friday night at the home of Miss Emma K. Cotte, of 826 West Seventh street. All members are urged to be present.

CHAPTER IV.

Angela in Distress.

KINGSNORTH went on: "The attitude of the people, their views, their conduct, is deplorable—hopeless. I came here to see what I could do for them. I even thought of spending a certain portion of each year here. But from what I've heard it would be a waste of time and money."

"It is discouraging at first sight, but we'll have a better state of affairs presently. We must first stamp out the agitator. He is the most potent handicap."

"Could it be done?"

"It would take time—every big movement takes time." Roche paused, looked shrewdly at Kingsnorth and asked him:

"What do you intend doing with this estate?"

"I am in a quandary. I'm almost determined to put it in the market—sell it, be rid of it. It has always been a source of annoyance to our family. However, I'll settle nothing until I return to London. I'll go in a few days—much sooner than I intended. This man being brought into my house has annoyed and upset me."

"I'm sorry," said the magistrate. "Miss Kingsnorth was so insistent, and the fellow seemed in a bad way; otherwise I would never have allowed it."

A servant came in response to Kingsnorth's ring and was sent with a message to have the man O'Connell ready to accompany the magistrate as quickly as possible.

Over a glass of sherry and a cigar the two men resumed their discussion about the estate.

"I wouldn't decide too hastily about disposing of the land. Although there's always a good deal of discontent, there is really very little trouble here. In fact, until agitators like O'Connell came among us we had everything pretty peaceful. We'll dispose of him in short order."

"Do. Do. Make an example of him by all means."

"Trust us to do that," said Roche. After a moment he added: "To refer again to selling the estate, you would get very little for it. It can't depreciate much more, and there is always the chance it may improve. Some of the people are quite willing to work"—

"Are they? They've not shown any willingness to me."

"Oh, no. They wouldn't."

"What? Not to their landlord?"

"You'd be the last they'd show it to. They're strange people in many ways until you get to know them. Now there are many natural resources that might be developed if some capital were put into them."

"My new steward discouraged me about doing that. He said it might be ten years before I got a penny out of the property."

"Your new steward?"

"Andrew McPherson, the prominent lawyer."

"He's a hard man, sir."

"The estate needs one."

"Burke understands the nature of the people."

"He sympathizes with them. I don't want a man like that working for me. I want loyalty to my interests. The makeshift policy of Burke during my father's lifetime helped to bring about this pretty state of things. We'll see what firmness will do—new broom, sweep the place clean, rid of slovenly, ungrateful tenants, clear away the tap-room orators. I have a definite plan in my mind. If I decide not to sell I'll perfect my plan in London and begin operations as soon as I'm satisfied it is feasible and can be put upon a proper business basis. There's too much sentiment in Ireland. That's been their ruin. I am going to bring a little common sense into play." Kingsnorth walked restlessly around the room as he spoke. He stopped by the windows and beckoned the magistrate.

"There's your man on the drive. See?" And he pointed to where O'Connell, with a soldier each side of him, was slowly moving down the long avenue.

The door of the room opened, and Angela came in hurriedly and went straight to where the two men stood. There was the catch of a sob in her voice as she spoke to the magistrate.

"Are you taking that poor wounded man to prison?"

"The doctor says he is well enough to be moved," replied Roche.

"You've not seen the doctor. I've just questioned him. He told me you had not asked his opinion and that if you move him it will be without his sanction."

Kingsnorth interrupted angrily, "Please don't interfere."

Angela turned on him, "So, it's you who are sending him to prison?"

"I am."

Angela appealed strongly to the magistrate.

"Don't do this, I entreat you—don't do it."

"But I have no choice, Miss Kingsnorth."

"The man can scarcely walk," she pleaded.

"He will receive every attention, believe me, Miss Kingsnorth," Roche replied.

Angela faced her brother again.

"If you let that wounded man go from this house today you will regret it to the end of your life." Her face was dead white. Her breath was coming thickly. Her eyes were fastened in hatred on her brother's face.

"Kindly try to control yourself, Angela," Kingsnorth said sternly. "You should consider my position a little more"—

"Your position? And what is his? You with everything you want in life—that man with nothing. He is being hounded to prison for what? Pleading for his country! Is that a crime? He was shot down by soldiers—for what? For showing something we English are always boasting of feeling ourselves and resent any other nation feeling it—patriotism!"

"Stop!" commanded Kingsnorth.

"If you take that sick, wretched man out of this house it will be a crime"— began Angela.

Kingsnorth stopped her. He turned to the magistrate, "Kindly take the man away."

Roche moved to the window.

Angela's heart sank. All her pleading was in vain. Her voice faltered and broke:

"Very well, then, take him. Sentence him for doing something his own countrymen will one day build a monument to him for doing. The moment the prison door closes behind him a thousand voices will cry 'Shame!' on you and your government and a thousand new patriots will be enrolled. And when he comes out from his torture he'll carry on the work of hatred and vengeance against his tyrants. He will fight you to the last ditch. You may torture his body, but you cannot break his heart or wither his spirit. They're beyond you. They're—they're"—she stopped suddenly as her voice rose to the breaking point and left the room.

The magistrate went down the drive. In a few moments O'Connell was on his way to the courthouse, a closely guarded prisoner.

Angela, from her window, watched the men disappear. She buried her face in her hands and moaned as she had not done since her mother left her just a few years before. The girlhood in her was dead. She was a woman. The one great note had come to her, transforming her whole nature—love.

And the man she loved was being carried away to the misery and degradation of a convict.

Gradually the moans died away. The convulsive heaving of her breast subsided.

A little later, when her sister, Monica, came in search of her, she found Angela in a dead faint.

By night she was in a fever.

* * * * * * *

One day in November Angela received the following letter:

Dublin, Ireland, Nov. 16, 18—.

Dear Lady of Mercy—I have served my sentence. I am free. At first the horrible humiliation of my treatment, of my surroundings, of the depths I had to sink to, burned into me. Then the thought of you sustained me. Your gentle voice, your beauty, your pity, your unbounded faith in me, strengthened my soul. All the degradation fell from me. They were but ignoble means to a noble end. I was tortured that others might never know sorrow. I was imprisoned that my countrymen might know liberty. And so the load was lighter.

The memory of those three wonderful days was so marvelous, so vivid, that it shone like a star through the blackness of those terrible days.

You seem to have taken hold of my heart and my soul and my life.

Forgive me for writing this to you, but it seems that you are the only one I've ever known who understands the mainsprings of my nature, of my hopes and my ambitions—indeed, of my very thoughts.

Today I met the leader of my party. He greeted me warmly. At last I have proved myself a worthy follower. They think it best I should leave Ireland for awhile. If I take active part at once I shall be arrested again and sent for a longer sentence.

They have offered me the position of one of the speakers in a campaign in America to raise funds for the "cause." I must first see the chief in London. He sent a message, writing in the highest terms of my work and expressing a wish to meet me. I wonder if it would be possible to see you in London?

If I am sent to America it would speed my going to speak to you again. If you feel that I ask too much do not answer this, and I will understand.

Out of the fullness of my heart, from the depths of my soul and with the whole fervor of my being, I ask you to accept all the gratitude of a heart filled to overflowing.

God bless and keep you. Yours in homage and gratitude,

FRANK OWEN O'CONNELL.

Her answer:

London, Nov. 19, 18—.

My Dear Mr. O'Connell—I am glad indeed to have your letter and to know you are free again. I have often thought of your misery during all these months and longed to do something to assuage it. It is only when a friend is in need and all avenues of help are closed to him that a woman realizes how helpless she is.

That they have not crushed your spirit does not surprise me. I was as sure of that as I am that the sun is shining today. That you do not work actively in Ireland at once is, I am sure, wise. Foolhardiness is not courage.

In a little while the English government may realize how hopeless it is to try to conquer a people who have liberty in their hearts. Then they will abate the rigor of their unjust laws.

When that day comes you must return and take up the mission with renewed strength and hope and stimulated by the added experience of bitter suffering.

I should most certainly like to see you in London. I am staying with a distant connection of the family. We go to the south of France in a few weeks. I have been very ill—another reproach to the weakness of woman. I am almost recovered now, but far from strong. I have to lie still all day. My only companions are my books and my thoughts.

Let me know when you expect to arrive in London. Come straight here.

I have so much to tell you, but the words halt as they come to my pen.

Looking forward to seeing you, in all sincerity, ANGELA KINGSNORTH.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Conducted by THE W. C. T. U.

CONGRESSMAN LINDQUIST'S PLEA FOR YOUNG MEN.

(The following is the speech in part of Congressman F. L. Lindquist, of Michigan, delivered Tuesday, December 22, on the floor of the lower House of Congress in behalf of the Hobson resolution):

I can see in this measure a great opportunity to conserve the resources of our country; for the real resources of our nation are its young men. Shall we conserve or destroy them? Too much has already been spent for their destruction!

The shattered walls of forts, the ruins of castles, the destruction of cathedrals, and all the architectural wonders on the continent, could never for one minute be compared with the loss of young men who are strewn o'er the battlefields of Europe. It is not the property loss that will throw civilization back a decade, but it is the loss of young men with their strength and training, and their ideals upon which the permanent structure of every nation depends.

Gentlemen, this is not all sentiment. Just a few days ago my little boy, just five years old, pattered his way to the schoolhouse, just starting to school. It seems but a day when he was a babe in the cradle, and now he is a part of our great educational system that is building up our young Americans to a proper and truer appreciation of our American institutions.

I have no greater love, nor hope, nor ambition, that my boy shall develop into a strong, clean, American citizen, than many of you fathers in this hall for your own boy, and that same ambition, hope and desire, beats in the heart of every American parent.

I do not wish to see years of training and our entire educational system go for naught. I want my boy to be a true patriot. A strong, vigorous man, so that he can stand the strain of a great campaign of war, if necessary for this country.

Millions like him are entering the schools for the first time this fall, and it is for us, here today, to largely determine what percentage of these boys shall be useful citizens, and how many shall become charges and dependents upon our State. You can take statistics, put them together, and you will find that 90 per cent. of the men in the reformatories and States prisons, are between the ages of eighteen and twenty-four, and there is not a chance for discussion as to the great part that the liquor traffic has played in this most pitiful situation.

Where is there a greater opportunity for the man who believes in conservation? Do not tell me that it is patriotic for any man to stand in this chamber and preach conservation of our national resources, and then fail to herald with enthusiasm this opportunity to aid in the conservation of humanity.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD BECAME DRY JANUARY 30.

From now on it will be impossible for anyone to get a drink anywhere on the Pennsylvania system. For some time there have been only two bars in the Pennsylvania Railroad stations and those were at the New York station and in the Broad Street station, Philadelphia. The license in the New York station does not expire for some months, but it has been transferred, and the bar was closed on January 30.

The railroad began its campaign against liquor some years ago when an order was issued to employes warning them to avoid saloons and threatening the men with discharge if they drank while on duty.

In 1912 another step was taken when the railroad ordered the abolition of intoxicants from its trains. From July 16 of that year it has been impossible to get a drink on any train.

ORGANIZED LABOR AND THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

(Charles Stelzle, of New York, Sociologist, Writer and Labor Union Worker.)

Organized labor believes in better jobs for workingmen. The saloon takes away jobs and makes inferior workingmen.

Organized labor stands for efficiency. The saloon always makes the workingman less skillful.

Organized labor stands for higher wages. The saloon lowers the wages of the man who patronizes it. No man ever had his pay increased because his boss saw him in a saloon.

Organized labor is fighting to keep children in school and out of the factory. The saloon puts children into the factory and on to the streets.

Organized labor seeks to keep women in the home in the main. The saloon drives her into the industrial field as a competitor of men.

Organized labor stands for the home. The saloon disintegrates the home.—Toledo Blade.

A HIGH COLLAR, SUGGESTED, LEAVES THE NECK BARE.

Though high collars are again fashionable, not all of them hide the throat, as this new model evidences. The waist is of flesh pink Georgette crepe and the softness of the material in combination with the gathers at the shoulder line give the graceful easy look now desirable. Like all the shirtwaists this model has set in sleeves and the tailored suggestion is emphatic. There is a high collar in conformity with the new mode, but the cool, open-throated effect so comfortable in summer is obtained in novel manner.

TOMLINSON "Y" MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the Tomlinson "Y" will be held at the home of the general secretary, Mrs. Mary Bennett, 98 Duer street, this evening at 8 o'clock. This meeting is the last one which will be held before the State conference of the Y. P. branches of the W. C. T. U., which will be held at the First Baptist church, this city, on Washington's Birthday, February 22. All persons interested in the temperance campaign are cordially invited.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

By ALICE CREW GALL

Mother McGrew and Cordelia Clam.

Cordelia Clam was an obstinate child,
And a most provoking one, too;
She lived in the sea, and, of course, she belonged
To the family of Mother McGrew.

The fault of Cordelia was common enough;
You've seen it yourself, I've no doubt;
If she didn't feel like it she wouldn't talk,
She'd just close her mouth up and pout.

It happened quite often that Mother McGrew
Had friends in for afternoon tea,
And when they had finished they'd go for a stroll
On the beach by the side of the sea.

And if they would meet Miss Cordelia they'd say,
"Good afternoon, dear; how are you?"
Instead of responding politely, she'd pout
And embarrass poor Mother McGrew.

Or maybe in school her teacher would say,
"Cordelia Clam, you may recite."
But she would just sit there and not say a word,
Instead, she would close her mouth tight.

Till finally old Mother McGrew said, "Dear me,
Your stubbornness makes me quite sick;
You just can be silent the rest of your life,"
And she touched her three times with her stick.

That Clams haven't spoken a word from that day
To this I believe to be true,
Though I've met them a lot, I've not heard them make
One single remark; now, have you?

I feel pretty sure you don't need this advice,
But I think it's a pretty good plan,
Whenever you're spoken to always to try
To be as polite as you can.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Oh, Dick! It's so good to have you back," exclaimed Nell. "I do hope the company will not take it into its head to send you away very often. It's been the longest week here alone," and she took Dick's hat and muffler and gloves.

"Alone!" echoed Dick. "I thought Olive Dunn was going to stay with you."

"She did," replied Nell, nestling her head on his shoulder. "Anybody but a man would know that wouldn't keep me from being alone, with you gone. It's awful to think so much of a 'mere man.'"

"Dear little wife," he said, giving her a hug. "It's dreadfully prosaic to mention it, but I'm hollow clear to the soles of my shoes. I had only a lunch this noon."

"Dinner is almost ready. I'll have it on the table in a few minutes," and she disappeared.

Dick picked up the evening paper and forgot the pangs of hunger in an exciting account of a lawsuit between his company and a rival concern over an infringement of a patent. When Nell called him to dinner he carried the paper with him and, after serving, continued to read while he ate. Nell made one or two attempts to break in and make her presence felt, but he answered with grunts, and continued his dual occupation. When he finally finished the article he looked up with a relieved expression, saying, "I believe this thing will end all right for us."

Nell's place was vacant. He supposed she had gone to the kitchen to prepare dessert, so ate away in silence. Finally all was so still that he called out, "Nell!" No answer.

"What are you doing out there? Your dinner is getting cold. Leave the dessert for now; my first pangs of hunger have disappeared."

Still the silence of the grave. He got up and opened the kitchen door; she was not there. The bathroom door was open; he went on to the bedroom. There curled up in a miserable little heap on the foot of the bed was Nell, her whole frame shaken with silent sobs.

"Why, little girl, what is the matter?" he exclaimed in real alarm.

The dejected little heap did not move. He sat down on the bed, took the limp little hand in his, and stroked the tumbled head. Still the only sound was a deep, convulsive sobbing. He bent over and kissed the wet cheek.

"Please tell me what it's all about, dear. Won't you?" he pleaded. As he could get no reply he finally went back to the dining room, foraged in the kitchen for his dessert and finished his dinner.

Of course if he had not been such a very young husband he would have known that he had offended and would have gathered the sobbing little creature in his arms and quieted her with caresses, but as he was innocent of any intent to wound he could see no excuse for hysterics, as he mentally dubbed her grief, and began to feel injured that his home-coming should be spoiled by such silliness.

After an hour, as silence and darkness still reigned in the bedroom, he went back, switched on the light and said to the inert heap on the bed: "For heaven's sake, Nell, are you going to sulk all night? This is a pretty home-coming, I must say."

"It surely is," agreed Nell, sitting up with eyes blazing. Anger had loosened her tongue. "I looked forward all the week to this evening, prepared just the dinner you liked best, and then you sit down and read the paper through the entire meal. I tried to get your attention, but I was nothing and you might have been eating sawdust for all the attention you paid to your dinner."

"Why, Nell, I was reading about our firm's patent lawsuit, you know," said Dick, light beginning to break.

"I know of no lawsuit. How should I? You tell me nothing of your world. My world is the four walls of home, and you kindly give me the scraps of your society that are left after business and the paper have had their share," she replied bitterly.

Dick put back his head and roared with laughter.

"I am glad I am a source of amusement to you," and she plumped her head in the pillow, prepared to weep afresh.

"Now, don't cry any more, Nell," and he picked her up and carried her to the bright living room. Before the blazing fire he sat down with her on his lap.

"Look here, we'll chuck this bitter rival of yours," and he wadded up the paper and stuffed it in the basket. "Now we're ready to enjoy life. If you won't sue for divorce this time, I'll promise not to read at the table again, at least after the lawsuit is settled. I must tell you about that after the peace treaty is signed."

The clock ticked away for a blissful half hour, its hands before its face. Finally Nell said, "I'm hungry, Dick."

"Come on, then; I'll help you forage."

(Note—The further adventures of Nell and Dick will be related from time to time.)

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Substitute for Eggs—When eggs are high, one hesitates to make white cake, especially if she does not care to use up the yolks for something else. It is not necessary to use egg whites at all. Simply use gelatine instead. One tablespoon of the dry gelatine equals three eggs. Dissolve it in cold water and add enough boiling water to make a cupful. Beat with an egg beater and add to cake.

In making peanut butter sandwiches for the children's lunch boxes, put butter and peanut butter in a sauce pan together, put on the stove a moment, then stir together in a paste; you can save time these cold mornings, as well as spreading the butter easier.

To Subdue Light in Sick Room—Make a strong solution of epsom salts and vinegar, dip the lamp chimney or electric bulb (glass part only) in this and let it dry. It will be stained a frosty white, through which the light will be restful to the eyes. The frost can be removed by washing.

Snowball Mittens—These are very warm and serviceable for children in "snowball weather" and can easily be made by them when shut in or on rainy days. Take old underwear or old stockings, and cut out four mitten-shape forms, and two forms from some rubberized material. Sew them together with a back stitch, putting the rubberized material between the two layers of the other and overcast the raw edges. A good plan to follow is to use the black stocking for the outside and the underwear for the inside. Also have the outside mitten forms overlap the others by about one inch, so same may be turned down into a hem and elastic inserted which will solve the problem of keeping the mittens from falling off when playing in deep snow.

For Ferns, Etc.—A tablespoonful of castor oil poured on the ground around the roots of palms and ferns once a month will give them a rapid growth and make them look fresh and green.

Before using new gas mantles, soak them in vinegar and hang them up to dry. When quite dry, put them on the burners. A brilliant white light is obtained, and the burners will last twice as long as usual, even in draughty places.

THE TABLE

Delicious Salt Pork—First freshen sliced salt pork by placing in cold water and letting come to a boil; remove from the pan, drain, dip each slice in flour, fry slowly until a light brown on both sides; then dip each slice in beaten egg, return to pan and let cook a minute or so on each side, or until the egg is set. The egg will puff up like a souffle. Then add two tablespoons flour to fat left in pan, when nicely browned add a bowl of milk, let come to boil or until evenly thickened; salt and you have a delicious cream gravy.

Leftover Mashed Potatoes—To one cup mashed potatoes add cup flour to which three teaspoons baking powder has been added; mix same as pie crust, then add one tablespoon melted butter and enough milk to make a biscuit batter, spread in greased pans about 1½ inches thick and bake in quick oven.

Rabbit Sausage—Cut meat from the bones of rabbits and slice one-third bacon or fresh fat pork to the amount of rabbit meat; run all through sausage grinder; add salt and pepper to taste and a few onions if liked. Mix well, make into small cakes and fry brown on both sides. The bacon will make grease to fry in.

Onion Pudding (very tasty)—Sift four cups flour in bowl with half teaspoon salt and cup of suet. Mix as for pie crust. Roll out an inch thick about half of the paste; put a cloth in bowl to spread paste on. Chop one dozen onions, lay on paste. Put a few pieces of salt pork in, roll out other half of paste to cover, pinching dough real tight around edges so as to keep juice in. Boil 1½ hours or steam two hours.

Syrup for Hot Cakes—Place one pint of granulated sugar in steel pan (without water), stir until a light scorched brown—do not burn. When well browned, add one cup water, boil till consistency of cream, then add spoonful of vanilla. This is like a delicious syrup and will not turn back to sugar.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Proctor's bill for the first half of the week, commencing yesterday, produced two big feature acts in addition to the other vaudeville offerings. These were Aneta, an exceptionally clever novelty dancer, presenting the beautiful mirror fire, and butterfly effects through a combination of skillfully arranged reflectors and lights. The other number was Carmen's Minstrel Troupe, a company of seven people presenting a rapid-fire black face first part, teaming with good singing, new jokes and eccentric dancing. Both of these acts received several curtain calls at the finishes. The other numbers are in keeping with the headliners and were enthusiastically applauded at frequent intervals. They were Aneta & Willisch, comedy juggling and novelties; Hilton & Roberts, character singing and dancing, and Joe Holland, a clever singer and reciter. The feature photo-play for yesterday was "The Deep Purple," and it will be repeated this afternoon and tonight. The picture feature tomorrow will be the preceeding episode of the Thanhouser serial, "Zudora," which is now known as "The Twenty Million Dollar Mystery." A new author is now writing a story and several new features will be introduced to make "The Twenty Million Dollar Mystery" even more absorbing than it has been before.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

David Higgins' greatest play, "His Last Dollar," produced in picture form at the Plainfield Theatre, delighted large audiences yesterday afternoon and last night. It will be shown again this afternoon and evening and it behooves lovers of good screen dramas to make certain they see it. Tomorrow the Plainfield Theatre will offer another popular drama in picture form, under the title of "What's His Name," based on the novel written by George Barr McCutcheon. It has been dramatized by Cecil B. DeMille, and in addition to telling a strong, likable story, contains some fifty thrilling moments. The theme of "What's His Name" provides a vivid demonstration of the snares and pitfalls that confront a girl who, in an instant jumps from obscurity to fame, but as in McCutcheon's charming book, "Nellie Duluth" and "Harvey" are re-united at the finish. The Plainfield Theatre's feature film for Friday and Saturday will be the Nonpariel Feature Film Corporation's production of that immortal dream of childhood, "Alice in Wonderland" from the whimsical text of Louis Carroll and the delightful drawings of Sir John Tenniel. Miss Viola Savoy, the charming young actress, poses the leading role. The film is being handled throughout the country by Messrs. Counihan and Shannon and they unhesitatingly pronounce it to be one of the greatest moving picture novelties that has ever come to their notice.

EVERY holder of a matured Prudential Endowment policy has just one regret when he receives his cash.

He is sorry that he didn't apply for twice as much when he started.

GEORGE H. POUND SERIOUSLY HURT

Victim Found Lying in Lonely Road Early Today Remains Unconscious.

MISHAP IS A MYSTERY

Relatives Cannot Account for Accident—Was Driving Horse and Wagon and Runaway Theory is Advanced.

Suffering from concussion of the brain and exposure to climatic conditions such as prevailed in this section last night, George H. Pound, twenty-five years old, is lying between life and death at the home of his mother, Mrs. William A. McClurg, 695 West Seventh street, having remained in an unconscious state for twelve hours. Pound was found in the roadbed about 200 yards south of the Lehigh Valley railroad tracks on Lehigh avenue, South Plainfield, by William Randolph at 2 o'clock this morning, having apparently been rendered unconscious by a blow of some kind.

According to the story related by relatives of the victim this morning the young man, in accordance with a frequent custom, had visited Plainfield yesterday and was returning to his home about 9:30 o'clock last night when the accident occurred. Relatives advance the supposition that the gates over the Lehigh tracks were down when he approached the crossing with his horse and wagon and they assert that Mr. Pound was told to get out and raise the warning rails by the towerman. They also claim he had to do this in order to reach the other side of the tracks and after raising the gates he is said to have led his horse and wagon across.

Although nothing definite could be learned this morning owing to the condition of the victim, his friends hold the opinion that his horse was frightened and started to run away, Pound being caught in the reins. He was apparently dragged a distance of 200 feet from the rails and laid in the road at least three hours before assistance arrived.

It is probable that he would have been left there to freeze to death had it not been for the intuition of Randolph, who is employed at Pound's farm in South Plainfield. When Mr. Pound failed to return Randolph became suspicious and was prompted to start out on a search when the horse and wagon came home minus the driver. The farmhand walked along the usual route followed by Pound and stumbled across his body in the center of the road. There is little traffic on that thoroughfare between the hours of one and four in the morning and this probably saved the victim from being run over by an automobile or other vehicle, the spot where the body was found being secluded from light.

Relatives of the victim allege negligence on the part of the towerman. It is probable that nothing definite will be known concerning the circumstances surrounding the mishap until the victim regains consciousness. He is a nephew of A. M. and George Griffen, of this city.

ROTHBERG REMOVAL SALE BEGINS TOMORROW MORNING

Samuel Rothberg will begin tomorrow a removal sale of his entire stock or men's clothing and furnishings at his present store, next door to Proctor's Theatre. On April first, Mr. Rothberg will move his store two doors below his present location, into the building which he owns at No. 206 West Front street. Since he has been in business in the last three years, Mr. Rothberg has built up a large list of patrons, and the character of the goods which he has always carried assumes some splendid bargains for those who take advantage of the sale. The store was closed yesterday and today in order to prepare stock for the sale, and it will be reopened tomorrow morning, at which time the prices advertised in today's Press will become effective.

ABRAMS' ANNUAL SALE.

Abrams' shore store is a busy place nowadays, as the annual February clearance sale of winter goods is in progress. Through the many years that Mr. Abrams has been established in business in this city, he has always conducted one of the most up-to-date and largest shoe businesses in Union county, and at the sale which is advertised elsewhere in today's Press will be found many substantial bargains.

LOCAL MAN SOUGHT IN NEW YORK STATE

C. H. Schumacher Arrested at His Home in This City Yesterday Afternoon.

Under a New York State indictment charging him with embezzlement, C. H. Schumacher, who has been living for the past six months at 356 Sumner avenue, was taken into custody by Sergeant Maurice Higgins, of the local police force, and Detective James Godley, of the District Attorney's office in Queens County, yesterday afternoon. According to the detective Schumacher is charged with selling real estate located at Amityville, L. I., to Gustav Miller, of Woodhaven, L. I., it being alleged that he never owned the tract disposed of at a big figure.

The accused was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, this being a formality demanded by the law, and he was held in $2,500 bail to await extradition to New York State. Schumacher requested the court to make immediate provision for extradition but the local magistrate had no jurisdiction to exercise this power. He will be committed to the Union county jail in default of bonds for thirty days, during which the New York State authorities will make application to Governor Fielder for requisition papers.

Information given out by the Queens County officer stamps the prisoner as a real estate "sharp." His short residence in Plainfield has been without significant features and he is practically unknown here.

WILL INSPECT AUTO PATROLS IN NEWARK

Chief Kiely and Councilman Babcock Will Take First Steps This Week.

Councilman Juan Babcock, chairman of the councilmanic police committee, has returned following a three weeks' trip to Bermuda and it is expected that he will accompany Chief of Police Kiely to Newark the latter part of the week with a view to examining certain department equipment, especially the automobile police patrols. The City Council recently appropriated $2,000 for the purchase of a motor-driven combination patrol and ambulance, with the proviso that the patrol now in use be taken as part payment.

Automobile police and hospital equipment is now in use in Newark and has met with marked approval. Nothing is known concerning the make of car which the city contemplates purchasing, but it is likely that several demonstrations by various concerns will be made here before the contract is awarded. In a number of municipalities it has been deemed advisable to purchase separate vehicles for police and city hospital work but in view of the fact that the Muhlenberg Hospital ambulance is housed in the police department stables the Council has deemed it advisable to buy a combination apparatus.

For sometime past there has been an agitation prevalent here for motorizing the present police patrol and using it as a police wagon and ambulance, but the present state of repairs of both vehicles now in use makes it more advantageous to buy a new vehicle to serve in a double capacity.

COMMISSION TO TAKE UP INDIVIDUAL CASES

The Commission for the Relief of the Unemployed at a meeting in the Babcock building, last night, decided to take up the individual cases of the unemployed on the Commission's list for the purpose of learning what they can do and then finding employment for them wherever possible. The present list of unemployed is quite large, although the Commission has from time to time been able to find work for a number of men.

FLORET WORMSER.

Floret Wormser, a life long resident of this vicinity, died at her home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Sprague, of 32 Linden avenue, last night. Mr. Wormser was well known in this city. He was born in Stony Hill. The deceased is survived by six children, three daughters, Mrs. Frank Sprague, Mrs. Failer and Cecelia, and three sons, Lawrence, Theodore and Anthony, and two brothers in Stirling, Bartel and John. The funeral will be held Saturday.

23D ANNIVERSARY OF GRACE CHURCH

Methodists of the Borough Plan a Week's Celebration Beginning Sunday.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

Rev. C. C. Cain, the Pastor, Will Be Assisted by Former Ministers of the Congregation—Various Organizations to Have Part.

The celebration of the twenty-third anniversary of Grace Methodist church, the borough, will be held for one week beginning Sunday afternoon and continuing until February 21. Services will be held every night at the church under the auspices of the various organizations and each will review the work accomplished since the beginning of the church.

Rev. C. C. Cain, pastor of the church, has arranged an attractive program including addresses by most of the former pastors. The church was organized by members of the First M. E. church, who felt the need of such a house of worship in the borough. The charter membership comprised sixty persons and the present membership of over 400 indicates a steady growth and progress.

All branches of the church have been prosperous and the Sunday-school now has an average attendance of about 100. Seventy-five new members have been admitted to the church since last May.

The celebration services will begin Sunday afternoon at the session of the Sunday-school. Mr. Cain will speak at the morning service on the subject, "One Hundred Years of Peace Between the United States and Great Britain." The program for

"THE VALUE OF A MAN" DISCUSSED

Prof. Paul E. Titsworth Lectures at the Seventh Day Baptist Church.

"The Value of a Man," was the subject of an interesting lecture given by Prof. Paul E. Titsworth, at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, last night. Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the church, who presented the lecturer, humorously remarked that any person bearing the name of Titsworth needed no introduction in this city.

In the opinion of Prof. Titsworth the greatest value to the universe is man and after he is gone there is nothing to take his place. The speaker gave a good example of man's work and his place in the world. He said that in an automobile works there is a long assembling platform on which a number of men are placed. Each has his work to do in building a car and in less than one minute the machine stands complete. In this illustration he showed how every man has his work cut out for him.

Prof. Titsworth spoke of the influence on man of men like Lincoln and Martin Luther. There are times when a man has a strong desire to be rid of a professional title and just be a man, said the speaker. In the building of a man those in authority are often blamed for the poor results obtained. The parents often take their children out of school at an early age for the purpose of bringing more money into the home, while employers and lazy teachers forget their employes' or pupils' interests for their own. The church, the speaker said, also sometimes forgets its real object. Prof. Titsworth concluded by saying that the greatest recompense a man can have is to have conquered a problem through his own efforts. People are often too near sighted and never see the advantages of the future and look back rather than ahead.

GAVE ENJOYABLE TEA.

PERSONAL VIEWS OF BIG CONFLICT

Professor Robert McElroy, of Princeton, Delivers Talk at P. H. S.

CAUSES OF THE WAR

Speaker Gives Vivid Account of the Mobilization of German Soldiers—What the Result Means to Europe.

Displaying a thorough knowledge of his subject and delivering his points in a graphic manner, Professor Robert McElroy, of Princeton University, entertained an interested audience in the Plainfield High School auditorium last night, when he related his "Personal experiences during mobilization in Germany." The lecture, given under the auspices of the Princeton Club of Plainfield, was thoroughly enjoyed and the numerous anecdotes lent added interest.

The speaker dwelt on the characteristics of the German race as a whole and of notable men of that nation whom he encountered during his survey of Germany. Mr. McElroy "hiked" from one end of the country to the other and has had many personal experiences which bear repeating in fiction. Taking the standpoint of a neutral individual the professor said that the Germans could not be made to shoulder the blame for the present uprising in Europe, the situation being filled with many complex causes. He declared that there lurk-

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. J. W. REMPPIES

Succumbs to Heart Trouble During Absence of Her Husband.

Mrs. Della Theresa Remppies, wife of John W. Remppies, of 311 Madison avenue, died suddenly at her home, last night, following an attack of heart trouble. She was apparently in her usual health up to 7:30 last night, when her husband bade her goodbye previous to going to the city night school where he is a pupil. At the time of his leave-taking she was in an unusually happy mood and the couple indulged in considerable joking between themselves.

Mr. Remppies returned home at 9:45 and finding the door locked rang the bell several times without any answer. He finally gained an entrance by means of a window, only to discover his wife lying on the floor in an unconscious condition. He immediately summoned Doctors Frederick Hughes and C. A. Gesswein, but when they arrived the stricken woman was beyond aid.

Mrs. Remppies was a native of Ireland, where she was born twenty-five years ago and where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, still reside. She was a communicant of St. Mary's church and a member of the League of the Sacred Heart connected with the parish. She was also a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Joseph's church, having been a communicant of the latter during a former residence in the borough. Beside her husband, Mrs. Remppies is survived by two children, Catherine, who celebrated her third birthday by entertaining a large party of children, last week, and Raymond, an infant. There are also two sisters, Mary and Julia Sullivan, of New York, and one brother, Patrick Sullivan, of Newark.

The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church Saturday morning at 9 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

COMPANY H FAIR KEEPS MERRILY ON ITS WAY

The fair being conducted by Company H, Uniformed Rank, Jr. O. U. A. M., in Sebring's Auditorium, drew another large crowd to the building last night. All the booths were well patronized and practically everybody enjoyed the dancing under the direction of Forster Hartpence and his efficient corps of floor managers. Tomorrow night the general committee will entertain a large delegation of Juniors from New Brunswick and a number of special features are being arranged to make things lively.

The fair will come to a close next Saturday night at which time it is expected a banner crowd will be present. The expected guests include delegations of Juniors from surrounding towns and also the Liberty Fife and Drum Corps, of Newark, with its full regalia. The corps will dispense music during the evening.

JERSEY MAYORS FORM A LEAGUE

Mayor Calkins Named on Organization Committee and Also Makes Address.

OBJECT OF MEETINGS

Home Rule and Municipal System of Accounting Proposed—Local Executive in Accord With Work—Next Meeting in Jersey City.

Mayor Leighton Calkins, of this city, was appointed a member of the organization committee at the conference of New Jersey Mayors, in Trenton, yesterday, his co-workers being named as follows: Commissioner Breuringer, of Jersey City; Mayor Ellis, of Camden; Mayor Segar, of Passaic, and Seymour Frazier, corporation counsel of the city of Newark. The selections were made by Mayor Donnelly, of Trenton, who presided. This body was authorized to draft necessary legislation and constitution and will meet in Jersey City next Monday.

In his statement of the reasons for the formation of a State league of New Jersey municipalities, Mayor Donnelly emphasized the need for home rule and a municipal system of accounting. Mayor Calkins made a short address to the gathering, saying in part:

"We are rapidly learning that there is a clear line of distinction between the essential spheres of State and municipal activity. What is needed is a broad general grant of power, reversing the usual presumption that a municipality has no powers except those expressly conferred and such as may be incidental thereto, in order that cities in the conduct of their in-

U. S. COMMISSIONER TO LECTURE AT P. H. S.

Philander Claxton Will Be Central Figure in Clinic Meeting Tonight.

An informal reception is being held in the rooms of the Education Clinic in the Frost building this afternoon, the occasion being the opening of the new feature of the National Association for the Study and Education of Exceptional Children's work in this city. Tonight in the Plainfield High School auditorium a public meeting will be held at which time Hon. Philander P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, will speak. Mr. Claxton is an authority on the nation's educational work among all classes of children and his address tonight will be of interest to all Plainfielders. Although he will be the principal speaker, a number of short addresses will be made by those interested in the local work.

In the local clinic special attention will be given to the study of individual capacities, temperaments, talents, mental types and vocational aptitudes and the purpose of the new feature is to apply physiological, psychological and mental tests to children of all ages and to determine as far as possible, their exact combination as to physical and mental conditions, aptitudes and handicaps, and the causes of eventual difficulty.

The work will tend to separate the so-called "average" from the mentally defective child and analyze the excellencies and difficulties of those children who have strong native abilities.

THIEVES GOT LITTLE IN VISIT TO LOCAL STATION

Sometime after 11:30 o'clock last night, thieves entered the Grant Avenue Central Railroad depot and committed minor depredations in the waiting room. The slot machines and the telephone pay-station were broken into and small quantities of money taken.

Entrance was gained by prying open a rear window and when the robbery was discovered the culprits had made a clean getaway. The work is thought to have been that of a novice.

SESAME CLUB.

The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at 10:30 at the home of Mrs. Sandford, East Seventh street and Franklin place.

WOMAN'S EXCHANGE FUND GAINS $40

Subscriptions Since Yesterday Give Worthy Cause a Good Boost.

Subscriptions totalling $270 have now been pledged to the fund for the Woman's Exchange, which is being raised through The Daily Press. As has been told several times, William L. Smalley last week wrote a letter to this newspaper, in which he agreed to be one of 100 Plainfielders to contribute $10 each, so that $1,000 could be raised to make possible the continuation of the work. Last night the total pledges amounted to $250.

The contributors today are O. G. Waring, Mrs. Angus McKenzie, R. Henry Depew and Dr. Frank C. Ard.

In sending his pledge, Mr. Depew says: "I should be very sorry to see this useful institution close," while Mrs. McKenzie "wishes success in the endeavor to raise the amount."

It has been suggested that as the managers of the Exchange voted yesterday to continue the work, subscriptions others than for $10 would be welcomed, and The Daily Press would be pleased to receive sums for the cause in any amount whatsoever. They may be sent direct to The Press office, or to Mrs. Frederick W. Goddard, treasurer of the Exchange, 205 East Ninth street.

According to statistics made public yesterday at the annual meeting of the Exchange, there are 90 families in Plainfield and its vicinity helped by the work. In all there are 158 consignors. During 1914, $6,662.43 was paid to local consignors, while only $900 was paid to those living beyond a radius of ten miles. To close the Exchange, therefore, would mean to deprive 90 families of part of their livelihood—in some cases their only means of earning a living. It is therefore hoped that enough money will be raised through The Daily Press fund to enable the Exchange to weather this difficult year and to continue to be of service to those people who depend on it for work.

The list of contributors to date follows:

W. L. Smalley	$10
George S. Clay	$10

QUICK SHIFT OF BATTLE LINE

German Mobility Makes It Possible to Menace Russian Left Wing.

IS ZEPPELIN LOST?

London Hears That One Has Been Missing Four Days—Battle Front in Belgium and France is Quiet—Russians Retire at Bukowina.

Petrograd, Feb. 10.—By a quick shift of troops, which illustrates the mobility of the German army more than anything which has happened since the war started, the scene of heavy fighting has been shifted from central Poland to the northern part of East Prussia, and to Bukowina.

The activity of the Russians north of the Mazurian Lakes threatens the entire front of the German position, which follows the line of a great curve from Tilsit on the north, extending south along the western bank of the Angerapp River, thence southwest through the Mazurian Lakes, and turning west to Thorn on the Vistula.

The lull before Warsaw is also accentuated by fierce fighting along the whole of southern Galicia. The Russians hold a long line on the crest of the Carpathians and they are being re-inforced daily.

The appearance of formidable forces of the enemy in Bukovina has caused the Russians to contract their extended front in that province. The Austro-German armies advancing toward Madvorna and Kaloza threaten the Russians in Bukovina, and from present indications the latter have the alternative of being isolated or evacuating the province. The advantage would appear to lie in the latter course as it would draw heavy forces after them into open battle fields and employ troops which might otherwise be used against the Russians further north in the Carpathians and in Hungary.

On the Hungarian frontier the Austro-German forces attacked the Russians at three passes—Dukla, Uzok and Beskid. The battle was continuous and of most desperate character, fought in a blinding snowstorm. In hand to hand encounters the Russians showed their superiority with the bayonet. Both sides are suffering from the extreme cold and the issue is still undecided, with ample Russian reserves being rushed into the conflict.

On the northern wing of the grand battle front the operations are rapidly being unified. The stubborn character of the fighting north of Serpec shows that numbers of both sides are increasing. Further east the contact between the Russian and German armies is unbroken across the Mlawa region, the stretches of the Province of Lomza into east Prussian near Johannisburg and the southern Mazurian Lakes region. Although numerically superior the Germans have failed to break the Russian line and their repeated attacks have been repulsed with heavy losses in killed, wounded and prisoners.

The activity of the Germans has been redoubled now that the central column of the Russian eastern army has thrown its entire strength west of the Angerapp with no natural obstacle between it and the fortres of Koenigsbueg save the Alle River in the heart of East Prussia. The hurried movements of Marshal von Hindenburg's armies show the German anxiety for this area. The Kaiser's forces are also feeling the pressure of the Russians from the wide, trackless region from Mlawa to Johannisburg. Von Hindenburg, by his rapid concentration north of the Mazurian Lakes will try to forestall a Russian drive at Koenigsburg.

London, Feb. 10—A despatch from Petrograd says that the Russian General Staff has issued a statement saying that violent hand to hand fighting with the bayonet, which characterized as without precedent in history, has given the Czar's forces victory in a battle at the Tukholka pass. The German columns moved forward in full front several miles deep and assailed the Russians 22 times in a single day. Under a cross fire from the Czar's troops the Germans captured a height but were driven back by counter atack of Russian infantry. The losses of the Germans in these engagements are declared to be enormous.

London, Feb. 10.—There is as yet no confirmation of the report sent via Geneva that one of Count von Zeppelin's latest and greatest Zeppelin dirigibles has been missing for four days and is believed to have fallen into the sea off the Danish coast with the loss of the aircraft and its crew.

The report came from the Geneva correspondents of the Chronicle and

All the Happenings of the Day In Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

J. NEWTON APGAR'S FUNERAL IS HELD

Many Relatives and Friends Attend Obsequies at the Late Home.

The funeral of J. Newton Apgar was held at the late home yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended by relatives and friends of the departed. Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Apgar was a member, was in charge of the service. Mr. Brown, in a brief address, spoke with deep feeling of Mr. Apgar's sterling qualities as a husband, father and citizen and emphasized what such a life meant to a community. He drew some important lessons from Mr. Apgar's life and made fitting references to his membership in the church and his long faithful services as secretary of the Sunday-school.

Mrs. Apgar's cousin, Prof. Roland Randolph, of Newark, sang two hymns, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and "Some Day We'll Understand." Both hymns were beautifully sung. Their rendering touched the hearts of all.

There were floral tributes in profusion. Among the contributors of pillows and wreaths were: Defender Fire Company, No. 1; W. G. Holton Council, No. 55; Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M.; I. O. E., Court Dunellen, 1123; Baraca class, of the Presbyterian Sunday-school, Lydia Chapter, Order Eastern Star Lodge; Presbyterian Sunday-school; Home Building and Loan Association of Dunellen; the employes of the departed, and the Presbyterian choir. Besides the wreaths and pillows, which numbered twenty-nine, there were many other beautiful tributes from friends and members of the family, including a sickle made of pink and white carnations wired with violets and hyacinthes.

The burial was at Hillside cemetery, Plainfield. A touching evidence of the deep esteem in which Mr. Apgar was held by his fellow-men was the transformation of the open grave into a beautiful floral bed by the members of the Watchung Investment Company. The interior of the grave had been lined with evergreens sprinkled with roses, which flowed up and over the sides, presenting a never to be forgotten sight. A photograph of the grave was taken by Prof. Randolph. The pallbearers were Albert N. Randolph, Arthur J. Hamley, Charles B. Mattis, John P. Fenner, Mahlon R. Dayton, and Charles Loizeaux, of Plainfield.

Henry McManus has returned to his home at Montana, Pa., after spending three weeks in the borough as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Krom, of Penfield place.

WILL NOT ADVANCE THE PRICE OF BREAD

George Zink, the North avenue baker, when asked yesterday whether he contemplates raising the price of his products as the Plainfield and New York bakers have done, replied that he would not raise the price as long as his present stock of flour holds out. Mr. Zink anticipated, to a certain extent, the present drastic appreciation of wheat per bushel and purchased three cars of flour in August and another car in October. The car which he purchased in October cost him a doller more a barrel than his August purchase. Mr. Zink figures that his present supply will last him until the first of June. When asked whether he thought wheat would advance to the $2 mark, Mr. Zink said he didn't think it would, but if it did by reason of our enormous exports then it would be the duty of the government to place an embargo against all further exports. The failure of the government to do this Mr. Zink said would result in riots in the large cities.

MEN WERE RELEASED.

Two men whom it was thought were involved in the robbery at the Petit home at Conover's Corner on Sunday morning, in which, while the family were at church, $15 in bills, an overcoat and a gold ring were taken, were given a hearing before Councilman R. M. Ryan in the Borough Hall. They were released, however, as Mrs. Conover, who had seen the robbers, was unable to identify them as the men. The men were Alfred Bennett, 23, of Goodrich, Canada, who said that he was employed on the Great Lakes as a steamboat fireman, and William Turner, of Syracuse, N. Y. The men were arrested by Marshals Mohan and Smalley. Marshal Mohan had received a telephone message from Conover's Corner apprising him that it was thought that the men whom were implicated in the robbery were headed this way. They were arrested as they were about to cross Jefferson avenue into Plainfield.

WAR NEWS

the Express.

Two Parsevals and a Zeppelin, accompanied by members of the German Staff, are reported to have passed through Munich yesterday on the way to Vienna. It is understood they are to be used in the campaign against Servia.

Paris, Feb. 10.—The French War Office gave out the following this afternoon:

"The day of February 9 was marked only by some artillery combats which were of great intensity at certain points on the front, particularly on the Aisne and in Champagne.

"One infantry action of slight importance was elsewhere reported in Lorraine, northeast of Mononiller, where one of our detachments rolled back the enemy's posts from Remanbois to Leintrey."

Berlin, Feb. 10(by wireless).—The following statement was given out at German headquarters today:

"There is nothing to report as to the operations in the western theatre except the minor successes we obtained in the Argonne, on the western slope of the Vosges in the Ban De Sapt region, and in the forest of Wuerzbade.

"In the eastern theatre separate engagements on the eastern Prussian frontier have developed at certain places into a battle or engagement of greater extent. Their course is normal everywhere. In Poland on the right and left bank of the Vistula no change occurred yesterday."

PERSONAL VIEWS OF CONFLICT

ed in the back-ground old and unhealed wounds, racial jealousies and England's greed for the control of the seas.

He classed Germany purely and simply as a military nation and reviewed the history of that country from the origination of the representative form of government when the Germans were recognized as Slavic tribes. According to the speaker no human mind could conceive all the things in the back-ground which led up to the war. Germany, like other countries, has the natural greed for new territory and the present war will probably result in new territorial acquisitions.

Mr. McElroy stated that personal liberty in Germany was limited, the aim of the German government being to make good soldiers of all humanity and be ever ready for the time of war. He showed how well this ambition had been carried out in the present struggle and told of the calibre of men engaged in the fight to preserve Germany's cause.

"A victory in the great conflict for the Allies means free government for all nations," said Mr. McElroy, "but if Germany wins it means that she will dominate the continent. The war is a struggle between the exponents of two forms of government, one for the mass of people by the Allies and the other by nobility. This is the essence of the great struggle on the continent of Europe."

Professor McElroy arrrived in Schwalbach, Germany, July 3, and soon afterwards the Austrian ultimatum was sent out and the order to mobilize came as a thunderbolt from a clear sky. Within twenty-four hours 235,000 horses had been collected, leaving just enough to till the soil and work the farms. People immediately started to migrate toward the border and all trains but one were taken from the railroad corporations and used for military purposes. While getting a drink Professor McElroy was arrested by German officers and accused of poisoning the well. He afterwards established an alibi and was allowed to go free and finally received passports to Frankfort. After five days of travel down the Rhine River his party crossed the water into Holland and then went to England on a ship with the Belgium refugees. When in Cologne he visited the great cathedral at that place, which was crowded to the doors with praying soldiers who were asking God's blessing on what they believed was to be a Holy War.

SPEAKER URGES HOME INFLUENCE

William D. Murray Outlines Parents' Duties at Parent-Teachers' Meeting.

PLEA FOR SQUARE DEAL

Children of Today Need a Catering to Individual Tenderness—Social Hour Followed Meeting Which Was Largely Attended.

An interesting address by William D. Murray on the subject of "What a Home Should Mean," was the feature of the annual evening session of the Bryant-Lincoln Parent Teacher Association, in the auditorium of the Bryant School, last night. It was heard by many interested parents who, undoubtedly profited by the instructive points brought out by the speaker. Mrs. Alex Vars, president of the association, was in charge of the meeting and at its conclusioun refreshments were served by a volunteer corps of members. Excellent music was furnished by VanEps' Brothers, whose banjo playing is known throughout the country.

One of the principal ideas brought out by Mr. Murray in his talk was the fact that in altogether too many homes the child, be it boy or girl, is not given a square deal. In their anxiety to instill conventionalities in the minds of the children, the individual needs of the latter are overlooked. There is altogether too much regard for what friends and neighbors think rather than what will help the boy or girl in preparing for adult life.

"One of the most glaring mistakes in bringing up children," said Mr. Murray, "is the fact that too many fathers and mothers practically let the youngsters shift for themselves. All the parents think about is getting through the routine of one day. With a mother, her program consists of getting the children's breakfast, pushing them off to school, preparing luncheon, a card party or visit in the afternoon and dinner at night. The father has a corresponding routine mapped out for himself from one week's end to the other. Neither sets marks a goal, neither one places any special stress on preparation for the future, consequently the children fall into the same methodical habits They gain the idea that their sole reason for going to school is to get just so much compulsory knowledge and after they have reached the age where they can leave off their education without transgressing the laws of the State, they believe that somehow or other the future will provide something for them without any special effort on their part."

Another fact brought out by Mr. Murray is that parents too often misunderstand their children. Through various sources of reasoning that are their heritage they absorb bits of knowledge that incline them to the proper angle. Through a lack of conception, the fathers and mothers fail to understand why they do it and incorrectly compel them to stop. The half formed habit is ascribed to stubborness or some form of self-willed trait. To illustrate this point, the speaker told the story of a little boy who had been put to bed at a certain time every night. After this had been done regularly for many months, he suddenly declined to retire and when pressed for an explanation said:

"Well, mother, it says in the book that I have to get up in the dark in the winter time."

In answer to the parents' query as to what book had said that, he pointed to a copy of Robert Louis Stevensons "Child's Bible of Verse." It developed that he had been reading the volume and had absorbed numerous ideas that hitherto had been entirely foreign to the childish brain.

Mr. Murray also said that there is too much inconsistency in many homes, or in other words in the desire to teach children something of value the parents abrogate everything by an inconsistent act. To make his point clear he told of a family in very poor circumstances that wanted the children to have an education especially with the idea of learning to be thrifty and economical. At Christmas time a visitor went to the house with provisions that were actually needed and found the family enjoying music from a phonograph that had been purchased by individual contributions from parents and children.

Altogether, Mr. Murray's address was a helpful and instructive one, bringing profit to many of the parents and attendants. Several new members were added to the association during a brief session. There will be no further evening affairs under the auspices of the organization, but regular meetings will be held once a month in the afternoon. In conducting the affair last night, Mrs. Vars was assisted by Miss Charlotte Griffin, principal of the Bryant School, and the teachers from the two buildings.

A PUBLIC DEFENDER.

Reference has been made from time to time to the need in New Jersey for a public defender—an attorney regularly employed and paid by the State to attend to the interests of persons charged with crime, who are unable to raise funds to employ counsel. The plan has been tried very successfully in other States, and has been found to cost no more than under the former method (still in use in New Jersey) of having the court appoint a lawyer in each separate case, as it is brought to trial

Assemblyman Henry, of Hudson county, has introduced a bill at Trenton to provide for the appointment of a public defender in first and second class counties in the State, at salaries of $4,800 and $2,000 respectively, Union county being in the latter class. In an explanatory note attached to the bill Mr. Henry says:

The State employs a prosecutor to prosecute people who are alleged to have committed crime, and should provide for persons unable to procure counsel, a person who will represent them properly and see that justice is done to them and to the State. A plea of non vult is practically a plea of conviction, and many plead the pleas of non vult and nolo contendere, not knowing their meaning, many of them being before the court for the first time, without money, without friends, and knowing nothing about procedure.

The court now assigns counsel, but pays them only in capital cases. In other cases they are not paid, and are sometimes assigned just as the case comes on for trial. The counties of the first and second class at the present time are spending considerable money for counsel assigned in murder cases. This bill would cost the counties but comparatively little more than they are now spending, and would provide a capable lawyer to properly defend all poor criminals.

The idea advanced by the bill is a good one, and with one objectionable feature changed, it should be made a law. As drafted it is provided that "in all counties where the office of public defender is hereby established, such public defender shall be nominated and elected in the same manner as members of the General Assembly," for a term of five years. Should such a method be provided it would be contrary to the very excellent practice now used in New Jersey of the Governor naming all the judges and prosecutors. That method has always been used in New Jersey, and the high type of men who have been chosen in the past have gained for the State an enviable reputation for its administration of justice. The public defender should be of the opposite political faith from the prosecutor. It is to be hoped that Mr. Henry's bill will be amended in this respect, and then reported by the Judiciary Committee for a quick passage.

Up to the minute as a compendium of information about matters regarding the State government Fitzgerald's Legislative Manual has put in an appearance for 1915, and as usual, it is bigger and better than ever before. Published for well over a score of years by Thomas F. Fitzgerald, a veteran newspaperman of the capital, who personally does all the compiling, the book is declared by those who know to be the best document of its kind in any State in the Union. This year there are 650 pages, and everyone of them is as authoritative as any encyclopedia. The book is indispensible to the man in public life, and in a year's time no publication is so heartily welcomed by the newspaper man as this comprehensive book.

We had hoped to be able to report by tonight that at least $350 had been pledged in $10 subscriptions toward the $1,000 which is hoped to be raised to continue the work of the Woman's Exchange. The encouraging response received on Monday, when $110 was pledged, would lead to the belief that the responses would continue to be liberal, but there has been a material drop. Surely there are 100 people in Plainfield enough interested in this splendid work, to assist it over the present crisis to the extent of $10 each. The list is not growing fast enough, and we hope by tomorrow night to be able to record several more pledges of $10 each. Who will be the next?

People cannot be too careful about names nowadays. The Colorado Court of Appeals has rendered an opinion that the middle name or initial in a person's name has become quite material as a distinguishing identification of the person. The opinion says that "many persons now have the same Christian, or given, name, and the same family or surname, and it is by the middle name or initial only, in many instances, that the person may be distinguished or identified in writing." All a person needs to do to realize this is to inspect a directory or telephone book in any city. There are cases in Plainfield of exactly the same initials, in which the first and last names are the same.

Chief Justice William S. Gummere, of the State Supreme Court, is to be reappointed by Governor Fielder, who recognizes the fact that Mr. Gummere is one of the ablest jurists in the country, as has been demonstrated during his twenty years' service to the State. There is not a judge on the bench of the State more able than Justice Gummere and were he to enter private practice he would be able to earn many times the salary which is now paid him. He should be rewarded by continuation in office.

Departing from the usual custom, the contributed editorial this week will appear in Friday's paper, instead of on Saturday. Friday being the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, it is peculiarly fitting that he should be the subject of this week's contribution, and we have been particularly fortunate in securing as the writer a man who is an authority on the subject, and who has one of the finest "Lincoln collections" in the United States.

MAYORS FORM NEW LEAGUE

ternal affairs may by law be presumed to have all powers not expressly denied by the State constitution and laws validly enacted thereunder. The State should have power to legislate on matters of real State concern within the municipality; for example, the debt-contracting power, public safety, public health, honest elections, a minimum standard of education, generously adequate for good citizenship, the ordinary pursuits of life, the intelligent recognition of opportunity for higher pursuits, and for the cultivation of healthy ambition.

"Each city should be free to adopt the precise form of government or organization which it believes best suited to its own needs and should be secure against legislative interference with its internal affairs; while at the same time the right and power of the State to legislate for State welfare as a whole should not be impaired. Our State laws regulating cities of the various classes are numerous and very conflicting. It seems to me that the time has come for co-operation and organized effort on the part of our cities in New Jersey for the purpose of advancing the cause of genuine home rule by whatever means may be necessary, even through constitutional amendment. I believe it to be true that the laws themselves are largely responsible for the inefficiency which permeates municipal government."

This statement was made in explanation of Plainfield's participation in the movement to organize the State league of cities. At the proper time Mayor Calkins proposes to bring the matter before the league in more concrete form. He is in accord with the general purposes of the league and thinks that a great deal can be accomplished by conference and interchange of views as to the needs of the various municipalities. The needs of one city will not necessarily be the needs of another. The cause of home rule should concern all of the municipalities of the State; and through home rule legislation all of the municipalities can best benefit by an organized league of municipalities, according to the Mayor.

In a statement to a Daily Press representative, this morning, the Mayor said:

"An approved standard of municipal accounting will also greatly facilitate inter-city comparisons which would be very valuable as tests of efficiency. It is impossible for municipalities to make comparisons unless the accounting is standardized; and sound accounting is as necessary to efficiency in municipal as in private business, because all business problems require decisions, and correct information is indispensable in making decisions. The real function of accounting is to make such information immediately available. Accounting records transactions accurately and furnishes facts for comparison and for use in the determination of future plans."

PUBLIC SPEAKING CLASS WILL BEGIN TONIGHT

WILSON TO VISIT JERSEY BUILDING

Mrs. Edmond L. Burton, of Millington, is Named State Hostess.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 10.—Judge Robert S. Hudspeth, President of the New Jersey Commission at the Panama Exposition, received a letter yesterday from President Wilson accepting an invitation to enjoy the hospitality of the Jersey Building during his visit to the Exposition.

Mrs. Edmond L. Burton, of Millington, has been named as hostess of the New Jersey Building. She is expected to arrive in San Francisco on February 20.

One of New Jersey's most prominent citizens, Emerson L. Richards, of Atlantic City, was a visitor at the Exposition Grounds today and expressed himself as being greatly impressed with the New Jersey Building and the magnificent surroundings.

New Jersey may well be proud of the magnificent new "Trenton Barracks," which will serve the Garden State as host building during the Panama Pacific International Exposition. From its distinctive appearance and the impressions it creates from a historical viewpont, it easily takes first rank. It has been ready for some time and is now being used as headquarters by Colonel Mahlon R. Margerum, assistant to President Robert S. Hudspeth of the New Jersey Exposition Commission.

The building has a splendid frontage on San Francisco Bay, the suite which will be occupied by President Wilson, when he makes his trip to the Exposition, having a particularly magnificent view of the Golden Gate, the famous Marin hills and Mt. Tamalpais.

There is a large reception hall with galleries and ample accommodations for entertaining all of the distinguished visitors who will be New Jersey's guests during the exposition. A spacious room has been set aside for the Princeton University Alumni, which will be decorated by them.

Work of installing New Jersey's varied exhibits is proceeding rapidly and there are many of these exhibits that will take first rank among the 80,000 participants. The expression is heard on every hand: "I didn't know that was made in New Jersey" or this, or the other thing. It is a fact which has not been cited by any other state that of the articles advertised in the national magazines, and which are household words, New Jersey seems to have the biggest representation here.

MISS WINIFRED RAPALJE ENTERTAINS HER CLASS

Miss Winifred K. Rapalje, of Carlton avenue, of the Teachers' Training Class of Trinity Reformed church, entertained the members of her class at her home last night. The evening was spent in playing contest games, the guests being divided into two sides, the reds and bules. Miss Lelia Wherry was the leader of the reds and Mrs. Leslie Crane of the blues.

The reds won the most points and were presented with a loving cup made out of tinfoil by the hostess. Refreshments were served. Those present were Miss Winifred Rapalje, Mrs. Leslie Crane and the Misses Jennie Sears, Ethel VanZandt, Marguerite VanZandt, Margaret Tubbs, Carrie Reiter and Lelia Wherry.

There are about forty members in the class at present and nearly all were present last night. Mrs. W. J. Trembath was re-elected president of the class and the other officers chosen are as follows: Mrs. Albert Jackson, vice-president; Mrs. Stafford, secretary, and Mrs. Henry Seader, treasurer.

The business meeting was held and reports showed a prosperous year. After the meeting a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served. The members of the class have been invited to the home of Miss Etta S. Raybert, of East Second street, next Tuesday night.

TRIANGLE BIBLE CLASS GIVE A MOCK TRIAL

The Martin Triangle Bible Class entertainment in the Netherwood Reformed church last evening drew an audience that packed the house, and was received with laughter and applause throughout the program. It was in every way a success. The opening number was a solo by Arthur Kienzle. This was followed by a very entertaining mock trial, in which certain prominent members of the Plainfield bar acted as judge and counsel, and well known attaches of our city court as court officers, and a number of the young people appeared as defendant and witnesses. The proceedings kept the audience in a roar of laughter from beginning to end.

Rev. Edward S. Ralston then told the story of a trial by lynch law in the western mining country, with an unexpected ending. This was followed by a Jewish sketch by Arthur Kienzle, Everett Marsh and Miss Edith Adams, which introduced a number of popular songs. The closing number was a playlet, written and arranged by Arthur Kienzle, representing soldiers in camp after battle, introducing their dreams and songs of battle and of home, and ending with the closing scene for one slain in battle. In this the young men were assisted by Miss Billie Haines. It was a very clever sketch and well presented, and heartily applauded. Miss Elva Force, the organist of the church, presided at the piano as acompanist.

COUPLE'S WEDDING IS FOSTPONED, GIRL IS ILL

The postponement of the wedding of Miss Frances H. Newcorn and Eli D. Bernheim, which was to have taken place at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, last night, has caused considerable surprise among the relatives and friends. Miss Newcorn, who is a niece of William Newcorn, of this city, is ill, according to an announcement made at her home and that is the reason given for the postponement.

A rehearsal of the wedding was held Sunday, when the bride-elect entertained the members of the bridal party at supper. Several persons from this city had been invited to the wedding. Following the ceremony the pair had planned a trip to Palm Beach. Beside the statement that Miss Newcorn was ill no other explanation was made as to the postponement of the nuptials.

LECTURER ILLUSTRATED THE ART OF SELF-DEFENSE

Idealizing the life of Mike Donovan, the veteran athletic trainer and exponent of the art of self-defense Alpheus Geer, of New York city, gave an interesting lecture before a large audience in the Holy Cross parish house, last night, on "Physical Efficiency." The speaker was accompanied by Mr. Donovan's son, who was recently the leading figure in the activities of the New York Athletic Club and the two men gave a realistic exhibition of the fistic sport.

Mr. Geer, aided by his companion, illustrated his lecture with demonstrations of scientific "jabs" and defenses that might be brought into play in case of emergency by the every day business man.

The speaker also described a course of synthetic breathing which has proven applicable to persons of all ages, especially those afflicted with nervous troubles.

MILITARY SAPPING

Origin of the Trench Work of the Modern Battlefield.

DITCHES DUG BY PEASANTS.

In the Middle Ages Civilians Were Forced to Do the Labor to Which Soldiers Would Not Stoop—Sappers and Miners and Their Successors.

In stories and reports of modern battles the work of the sappers is often mentioned. "To sap" or "sapping" was an early way of approaching a strongly fortified position by means of a ditch. It was also a very early form of trench work. The fortified positions against which saps were employed were the stone walls of castles or of cities.

When the making of cannon had not progressed so far that solid shot could breach stone walls, but when cannon were powerful enough to keep armed men at bay or to destroy them, it became necessary to make an approach to the walled position in a way which was difficult to attack successfully and for which at that time no way of checkmating had been thought of by the defenders. A narrow ditch was dug in the direction of the wall to be assailed. This ditch, which was wide enough for one man to dig in, was called a sap, the digger a sapper, and the end of the ditch toward the enemy was the saphead. As the leading sapper dug forward he protected himself and the saphead in various ways, usually by pushing a screen ahead of him. This screen was of various forms, a bag of sand or a sheet of metal inclined to deflect arrows or gun shots.

When the saphead had reached the desired point the ditch would be widened, the excavated earth forming a parapet on each side, and the guns would be brought so close to the wall that they could not be reached by guns mounted on the wall, for in the times in which these conditions prevailed walls were high and cannon crude and they could not be sufficiently depressed to reach an enemy at the foot of the wall.

Sapping was usually done by peasants impressed or hired for that service, because soldiers in the armies of the middle ages were more skillful with weapons than with tools and the work of digging trenches was beneath their dignity, while it also savored of a disinclination to close with the enemy, even though that enemy was behind stone walls with cannon—cannon at which men armed with modern weapons would smile, but which in their day were weapons of great effect.

Vauban, the great military engineer, refined sapping and brought it into a system by which any fortified place could be approached, reached, mined and breached.

These saps after awhile were dug in a number of ways. Many forms of the approach trench were devised. Uncovered trenches were cut forward, deflected at right angles and then cut forward to be again deflected further along, each of these deflections from the straight course of the trench forming a transverse for the protection of the trench. Some trenches were roofed in with timber and earth as they were cut forward, thus forming a bombproof covered way. Some saps were cut or dug in the fashion of a tunnel, the surface of the earth not being disturbed at all. Double saps or numerous parallel saps were dug close up to the position to be attacked.

Mining of castle and city walls or city gates is as old as the use of gunpowder in war, and "undermining" of walls was practiced in war before the use of gunpowder. When sapping had become systematized and generally employed in offensive operations against fortified positions the military work of sapping and mining was combined and instead of being done by peasants or "civilian" labor was committed to special troops. These troops became adept in this important work, and because of the extra labor involved and the hazard of this duty these, called sappers and miners, were given higher pay than other troops.

As the years and the centuries went by other duties were put upon these troops—erection of field fortifications, erection of many forms of obstacles to impede an aggressive enemy and hold him under fire at a known range, destruction of bridges, construction of bridges, demolition of buildings and many other things. Gradually the sappers and miners' duties became greatly enlarged and refined, and in many armies they came to be called engineers.

In all armies every soldier today does work that formerly fell to the laboring and hard working sappers. Every soldier today knows how to handle a pick and spade as well as to shoot a rifle, pistol, magazine gun or cannon. All soldiers now dig trenches, gun pits and the like, but construction work, requiring higher technical training, is done by the engineers, successors to the sappers of old. In many kinds of construction the engineers may be aided by troops of other branches and by civilians, hired or impressed.—Washington Star.

WHISTLER'S CLEVERNESS.

The Artist Could Fix In His Mind Any Effect In Nature.

It was Whistler's habit to memorize an effect in nature, and Mr. T. R. Way, in his "Memoirs," gives an example of his cleverness at it.

I shall never forget a lesson he gave me one evening. We had left the studio when it was quite dusk and were walking along the road by the gardens of the Chelsea hospital, when he pointed to a group of buildings in the distance, an old public house at the corner of the road, with windows and shops showing golden lights through the gathering mists of twilight.

"Look!" he said.

As he did not seem to have anything to sketch or make notes on, I took out my notebook and offered it to him.

"No, no; be quiet!" he said, and after a long pause he turned and walked back a few yards; then, with his back to the scene, he said:

"Now, see if I have learned it," and then he gave a description of the scene, perfect in every detail of arrangement and color, as he might have repeated a poem he had learned by heart.

Then we went on, and soon there came another picture that appealed to me even more than the former. I tried to call his attention to it, but he would not look at it.

"No, no," he said; "one thing at a time."

In a few days I was at the studio again, and there on the easel was the picture.

FINALLY SHE BALKED.

It Was a Good Scheme, but She Thought It Was Going Too Far.

It was an extraordinary notice:

"Eleemosynary Typewriting Institution.—Anybody wishing typewriting done, but having no money to pay for same, will be accommodated in this office between the hours of 5 and 10 p. m."

A young woman was tacking the sign on the office door when the man in a plaid suit stopped.

"Who is the public benefactor?" he asked.

"Me," she said. "I thought I might as well advertise and save my employer's friends the trouble of hunting me up. They always have something for me to do. Even on days when I am so busy that I hardly have time to breathe they come in with rolls of manuscript and ask the manager if I have time to copy it. Sometimes that makes the manager squirm.

"'Are you quite busy, Miss Jones?' he asks. 'Quite,' I say. Then the manager thinks. But he always gives in. 'Oh, well,' he says, 'I guess that isn't very important. Just let it go and copy this for Mr. ——.' So I copy it, and Mr. —— says, 'Thanks; you are very kind.' He never thinks of paying. It is the easiest way in the world to get typewriting done. I was afraid there might be a few men who had never heard of the scheme, so I have put this sign out for their benefit."—New York Post.

Catching a Thief.

In Dewsbury several years ago a gentleman present at a public gathering had the misfortune to have his watch stolen, a magnificent gold repeater. Standing up, he announced his loss and added: "It is now two minutes to 9. At 9 o'clock the watch will strike the hour, and as it is loud I ask every one to keep quiet. We shall then be able to put our hands on the thief." A dead silence ensued, and one individual, seized with a bad fit of coughing, endeavored to leave the room. He was promptly accosted, searched and the missing property found in his pocket. It afterward transpired that the watch would not have struck, as it was out of order.—London Express.

A Thorough Case.

Every schoolroom is supposed to have its romancer, or boaster.

There was a mild epidemic of mumps in an uptown school not long ago, and a teacher asked the pupils in her room how many remembered having the disease.

A few remembered it, but most of them had never heard of it.

Then the romancer attracted the teacher's attention.

"I get the mumps, teacher," he smilingly said. "I get it around my face so. And I get one by each eye—and one under my neck."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Crude Petroleum.

Roumania holds the honor for the earliest production of crude petroleum, having put it on the market in 1857. Two years later the United States produced its first petroleum, 2,000 gallons. Italy was a producer the following year, and Canada, within twelve months, entered the field. Russia quickly followed, and for years these countries were the sole producers. Russia is now second only to this country.

Hawaii's Crater Lake.

Waiapele, or Green lake, on the island of Hawaii, is a body of fresh water in the pit of an old crater near Kapoho. This lake covers an area of about five acres and is fed by springs below the surface. A pumping plant takes water from this lake for domestic use and for irrigation purposes.

Whales.

The whale is not a fish. In everything which characterizes a true fish and separates it from other classes, as reptiles, birds and mammals, the whale resembles the last named (the mammals) and differs radically and fundamentally from the fish.—New York American.

ANOTHER BIG GATHERING AT K. OF C. CARNIVAL

A still larger crowd than had been observed at any other night was present at the Knights of Columbus indoor carnival, when it was at its height last evening. Dancing was the big feature and the program of accompaniments provided by Dunn's orchestra, of New York, was a delight to all. A special feature will be given tonight in the one act playlet, "The Interrupted Burglary," which will be presented by the same cast which gave it at the St. Mary Alumni entertainment last week. It made a big hit at the time and the reproduction is the result of an insistent demand on the part of many of those who missed seeing it. Tomorrow night's added attraction will be a crackerjack amateur minstrel show, with a big company of singers, dancers and comedians.

ANDREW LOVE OBSERVES EIGHTY-SECOND BIRTHDAY

Andrew Love, of Duer street, who is one of Plainfield's oldest and best known retired business men, celebrated the eighty-second anniversary of his birth yesterday. In the afternoon Mr. Love received a large number of beautiful bouquets from neighbors and friends, and at night the event was formally observed by a family gathering and dinner at Mr. Love's home. Mr. Love is a native of Scotland, but has been a local resident for more than forty years. He conducted a grocery business for a long time at what is now 137 West Front street. He afterward erected a large building on the premises which is now occupied by the A. and P. Tea Company. He was active in Plainfield's civic life and in the days of the volunteer fire department was one of its most enthusiastic members. Mr. Love has one daughter, Miss Margaret Love, with whom he lives, and three sons, Andrew Love, Jr., Robert Love and James Love, all living in the borough.

THINK FIRE WAS STARTED IN EAMES' STORE BY "BUG"

With a view to satisfactorily clearing up what is now claimed to be an enigma, the National Board of Fire Underwriters has offered a reward of $250 in cash for the "detection, conviction and punishment of the party or parties who may on trial be found guilty by a court of the crime of incendiarism or arson in firing the premises at 239 West Front street, occupied by the Eames Hat and Cap Store." It is the opinion of the Underwriters that the conflagration which occurred at that place December 27 last was the work of a "firebug" and efforts are being made to place the responsibility.

The offer is being made at the order of the executive committee of that body through W. E. Mallalieu, the general manager. Posters describing the offer have been placed in conspicuous places about the city. The fire in question did damage amounting to about $1,000 to the hat store and the Warnock bakery.

SEVERAL LOCAL BAKERS INCREASE BREAD PRICES

Several local bakers today raised the price of bread from five to six cents a loaf and rolls from ten cents a dozen to twelve cents, in accordance with the decision arrived at Monday, when a meeting of the Plainfield producers was held. This rise has been necessitated by the increase in the wholesale cost of commodities essential in making this foodstuff and the soaring quotation of wheat.

How long the higher rates will prevail is a matter of conjecture but local bakers have promised to resume normal rates as soon as the market retains its usual form.

PERSONAL.

Alfred K. Willett, the Park avenue shoe merchant, is detained at his home on Craig place, the borough, by illness.

Harvey Morrison, of East Second street, has gone on a western business trip for the Vitaphone Company, and will probably be gone a month.

Mr. and Mrs. James Henderson, of West Front street, are the parents of a son, born to them a few days ago.

TOLD OF MISSION WORK.

Dr. L. C. Bulkley was the speaker at the meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, yesterday afternoon. His address dealt with the conditions and missionary work in Siam and Laos and was beautifully illustrated with the aid of stereopticon views. The attendance at the meeting was exceptionally good. After the lecture, routine business was conducted by the members of the society.

ANNIVERSARY SPEAKER.

Rev. C. C. Cain, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, has secured Dr. Wallace MacMullen, of Drew Theological Seminary, of Madison, to speak at the closing service of anniversary week, Sunday night, February 21.

GOSPEL ADDRESSES.

A series of gospel addresses will be given by Mrs. Samuel Ridout, at the hall, 209 East Front street, on Thursday nights at 8 o'clock. Subject for tomorrow night will be "The Resurrection."

A "Dutch Supper" will be held in Grace M. E. church, the borough, Friday night.

THE year 1915 is here. With it has come the event that will make the year's page in history stand out as in bas-relief. The Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco is the most wonderful of all celebrations, and it commemorates the most wonderful achievement of man. The great Exposition is a wonderland of fascinating color. The illumination is the most spectacular ever attempted. Forty foreign nations and forty-three states and territories are participating in this $50,000,000 monument to peace and culture. More than 300 national and international congresses and conventions are meeting in San Francisco so that the many hundred thousand members may have the advantage of the Exposition. Hundreds of great special events are on the Exposition program, making several for each day of the 288 that the Exposition gates are open to the world between Feb. 20 and Dec. 4.

GERMAN OUTPOST REPORTING TO GENERAL STAFF NEAR VERDUN.

If the telephone had existed in Napoleon's day the world might have been spared the present European conflict.

With this striking proposition The New York Telephone Review opens its monthly article upon the use of the telephone in the present war.

What might have been the result if the telephone could have been used to facilitate Napoleon's campaigns is a matter of conjecture, fascinating indeed, but futile. But what would be the result, if the telephone were not a part of the army equipment to-day, admits of no doubt. The war simply could not be conducted at all along the present lines without the agency of the telephone. The war thus far has been an artillery duel. Without the telephone the big guns would be useless, for the objective is rarely, if ever, in sight of the battery.

The gunners train their guns on the target by laying them at a fixed angle with some definite visible point. The Captain goes to a place from which he can see the enemy, and has a telephone line run out to him from the battery. Watching the fall of the shells, he telephones in the necessary corrections.

In the German artillery trenches orders and instructions are sent almost exclusively by telephone, the soldier attending it lying face downward and calling out instructions for firing, giving the range and the distance.

The perfection which has been attained in means of communication is a factor of incalculable value. For instance the possibility of such a departure from the front as that of General Sir John French recently, would have been unthinkable in other days. To-day, however, Gen. French can return to England, confer with Lord Kitchener and Premier Asquith, attend councils before the King, and in the meantime hold hourly conference over the telephone with Sir Archibald Murray at the front in France or Belgium. A direct telephone line to the base headquarters at St. Omer, France, from the home of Gen. French near Hyde Park at London, insured Gen. French's being in as close touch with conditions at the front during his three days' visit in England, as if he were present at headquarters.

Not the least valuable phase of telephone usefulness, though seemingly a very minor one, is its ability to supply entertainment to the intrenched armies. A really grave hardship of war is the entire lack of diversion suffered by the men at the front, and the strain of remaining long in the trenches without any amusement has frequently proved extremely serious. By means of the telephone, however, a way has been opened to overcome this condition, for it has been found that soldiers in the front trenches can listen to grámophone concerts being enjoyed by men in camp eight miles in the rear. The report does not specify how widely this means of diversion has been employed so far, but limited as its application must of necessity be at present, it is undoubtedly of very definite value.

In obtaining information regarding the movements of the enemy the telephone is of the greatest significance and the multitude of adaptations and skilful manoeuvres to transmit information by telephone unknown to the enemy, are practically unlimited. Examples of these various devices are manifold, but two instances warrant especial mention.

One day during a change in position the Russian troops in hundreds passed by a man in a soldier's uniform, lying in a ditch, where he complained of rheumatism but refused aid. Finally a Cossack patrol came along and, one of the Cossacks, suspecting that the man might be a spy, struck him with a whip. At this he leaped to his feet, revealing a telephone over which he had been telling the Germans of everything that had passed along the road.

The London Times quotes a report of an Austrian lieutenant who discovered three Russian peasants under a heap of beetroots telephoning all the movements of the Austrian troops in the vicinity to their colleagues.

The means by which this invaluable system of communication is made possible have been admirably adapted to the necessities of the case and are described in The New York Telephone Review. An American war correspondent describes the telephone exchange of the German army in Laon, France, where twelve soldiers were sitting before portable switchboards. With metal transmitters clamped on their heads, these soldiers were sending or receiving messages to and from all parts of the mid-battlefront. With only an hour to do it, they could disconnect the lines, pull down and reel in the wires, pack the batteries and the exchanges, and have the entire outfit loaded upon automobiles for speedy transmission elsewhere.

Thus the temporary requirements can be met wherever they are made, and the necessity for sudden changes calls forth a speed and dispatch as remarkable as they are indispensable.

LAST TRIBUTE PAID TO JUDGE JAMES D. CLEAVER

The funeral of Judge James Darby Cleaver, whose death occurred in the Masonic home at Burlington, last Saturday night, was held in the Scotch Plains Baptist church at 2:30 this afternoon. Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the church, conducted the service and two selections were rendered by Miss Marie Boice, of Fanwood. Burial was made in the Baptist cemetery, the pall-bearers being the remaining trustees of the church, Judge Cleaver having been a member of the board at the time of his death. These are Dr. F. W. Wescott, A. B. Beekan, E. W. D. Johnson, W. F. Ward, Thomas Norton and John Z. Hatfield.

Is your back lame and painful?
Does it ache especially after exertion?
Is there a soreness in the kidney region?
These symptoms suggest weak kidneys.
If so there is danger in delay.
Weak kidneys get fast weaker.
Give your trouble prompt attention.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.
Your neighbors use and recommend them.

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 1009 South Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I had a dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides that clung to me constantly and any hard work made me worse. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells, especially when stooping or lifting, and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and other remedies, but nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Drug Store. They made a lasting cure. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I did some years ago when they cured me."

In the Matter of the Application of William S. Van Nest, administrator of the estate of George W. Van Nest, Deceased, for sale of Land to Pay Debts. | Order to Show Cause

William S. Van Nest, administrator of the estate of George W. Van Nest, deceased, having exhibited to this Court under oath, a just and true account of the personal estate and debts of said deceased, whereby it appears that the personal estate of said deceased is insufficient to pay his debts, and requested the aid of the Court in the premises: It is, on this twenty-second day of January, nineteen hundred and fifteen, ordered that all persons interested in the lands, tenements, and real estate of said George W. Van Nest, deceased, appear before the Court, at the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth, on the twenty-sixth day of March next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why so much of the said lands, tenements, hereditaments, and real estate of the said George W. ALL DRUGGISTS SELLING NARCOTICS MUST REGISTER

In compliance with the National law regulating the traffic in drugs, Deputy Internal Revenue Collector Jeremiah J. McNamara will sit at his office in the postoffice building, Elizabeth, today, from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m., to register all physicians, druggists, dentists, veterinarians or any other persons who produce, import, manufacture, compound, deal in, dispense, sell, distribute or give away opium or cocoa leaves or any compound thereof.

The law requires the registration of names, place of business or residence address of all such persons before March 1. The penalty for a conviction of a violation of the law is a fine of not more than $2,000 or imprisonment for five years, or both in the discretion of the court.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

"What's His Name," the picturization of George Barr McCutcheon's novel of the same title, will be the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon and tonight and also tomorrow afternoon and night. "What's His Name" is in five parts, possesses a rare vein of romance, contains three hundred scenes and required an outlay of forty thousand dollars. Max Figman, who is best known for his legitimate work in "The Man On the Box," poses the part of "Harvey," and the other characters are interpreted by a carefully selected company. On Friday and Saturday of this week, the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre will be the Nonpareil Feature Film Corporation's marvelous production of "Alice in Wonderland," based on the whimsical text of Louis Carroll and the delightful drawings of Sir John Tenniel. Old and young are held with tense interest from start to finish and each wonderful scene only makes them hunger for more. This film is being exploited through the personal management of Messrs. Counihan and Shannon and capacity audiences have been the rule at every presentation, whether in New York or the smallest hamlet in the Middle West.

PEG O' MY HEART

CHAPTER V.

O'Connell Visits Angela.

NATHANIEL KINGSNORTH stayed only long enough in Ireland to permit of Angela's recovery. He went into the sick-room only once. When Angela saw him she turned her back on him and refused to speak to him.

For a moment a flush of pity for his young sister gave him a pang at his heart. She looked so frail and worn, so desperately ill. After all, she was his sister, and, again, had she not been punished? He was willing to forget the foolhardy things she had done and the bitter things she had said.

Let bygones be bygones. He realized that he had neglected her. He would do so no longer. Far from it. When they returned to London all that would be remedied. He would take care of her in every possible way. He felt a genuine thrill course through him as he thought of his generosity.

To all of this Angela made no answer.

Stung by her silence, he left the room and sent for his other sister. When Monica came he told her that whenever Angela wished to recognize his magnanimity she could send for him. She would not find him unforgiving.

To this Angela sent no reply.

When the fever had passed and she was stronger arrangements were made for the journey to London.

As Angela walked unsteadily to the carriage, leaning on the arm of the nurse, Nathaniel came forward to assist her. She passed him without a word. Nor did she speak to him once nor answer any remark of his during the long journey on the train.

When they reached London she refused to go to the Kingsnorth house, where her brother lived, but went at once to a distant cousin of her mother's, Mrs. Wrexford, and made her home with her, as she had often done before. She refused to hold any further communication with her brother, despite the ministrations of her sister, Monica, and Mrs. Wrexford.

Mrs. Wrexford was a gentle little white capped widow, whose only happiness in life seemed to be in worrying over others' misfortunes. She was on the board of various charitable organizations and was a busy helper in the field of mercy. She worshiped Angela, as she had her mother before her. That something serious had occurred between Angela and her brother Mrs. Wrexford realized, but she could find out nothing by questioning Angela. Every time she asked her anything relative to her attitude Angela was silent.

One day she begged Mrs. Wrexford never to speak of her brother again. Mrs. Wrexford respected her wishes and watched her and nursed her through her convalescence with a tender solicitude.

When O'Connell's letter came Angela showed it to Mrs. Wrexford, together with her reply.

"Do you mind if I see him here?" Angela asked.

"What kind of man is he?"

"The kind that heroes are made of."

"He writes so strangely—may one say unreservedly? Is he a gentleman?"

"In the real meaning of the word—yes."

"Of good family?"

"Not as we estimate goodness. His family were just simple peasants."

"Do you think it wise to see him?"

"I don't consider the wisdom. I only listen to my heart."

"You—you love him?"

"So much of love as I can give is his."

"Oh, my dear!" cried Mrs. Wrexford, thoroughly alarmed.

"Don't be afraid," said Angela quietly. "Our ways lie wide apart. He is working for the biggest thing in life. His work is his life. I am nothing."

"But don't you think it would be indiscreet, dear, to have such a man come here?"

"Why indiscreet?"

"A man who has been in prison!" and Mrs Wrexford shuddered at the thought. She had seen and helped so many poor victims of the cruel laws, and the memory of their drawn faces and evil eyes and coarse speech flashed across her mind. She could not reconcile one coming into her little home.

Angela answered her:

"Yes, he has been in prison, but the shame was for his persecutors, not for him. Still, if you would rather I saw him somewhere else"—

"Oh, no, my dear child. If you wish it"—

"I do. I just want to see him again, as he writes he does me. I want to hear him speak again. I want to wish him godspeed on his journey."

"Very well, Angela," said the old lady. "As you wish."

A week afterward O'Connell arrived in London. They met in Mrs. Wrexford's little drawing room in Mayfair.

They looked at each other for some moments without speaking. Both noted the fresh lines of suffering in each other's face. They had been through the long valley of the shadow of sorrow since they had last met.

But O'Connell thought as he looked at her that all the suffering he had gone through passed from him as some hideous dream. It was worth it—these months of torture—just to be looking at her now; worth the long black nights, the labors in the heat of the day with life's outcasts around him, the taunts of his jailers; worth all the infamy of it just to stand there looking at her.

She had taken his life in her two little hands.

He had bathed his soul all these months in the thought of her. He had prayed night and day that he might see her standing near him just as she was then, see the droop of her eye and the silk of her hair and feel the touch of her hand and hear the exquisite tenderness of her voice. He stood mute before her.

She held out her hand and said simply:

"Thank you for coming."

"It was good of you to let me," he answered hoarsely.

"They have not broken your spirit or your courage?"

"No," he replied tensely; "they are the stronger."

"I thought they would be," she said proudly.

All the while he was looking at the pale face and the thin transparency of her hands.

"But you have suffered too. You have been ill. Were you in—danger?" His voice had a catch of fear in it as he asked the, to him, terrible question.

"No. It was just a fever. It is past. I am a little weak—a little tired. That will pass too."

"If anything had happened to you—or ever should happen!" He buried his face in his hands and moaned:

"Oh, my God! Oh, my God!"

His body shook with the sobs he tried vainly to check. Angela put her hand gently on his shoulder.

"Don't do that," she whispered.

He controlled himself with an effort.

"It will be over in a moment. Just a moment. I am sorry."

He suddenly knelt at her feet, his head bowed in reverence. "God help me!" he cried faintly. "I love you, I love you!"

She looked down at him, her face transfigured.

He loved her!

The beat of her heart spoke it, "He loves you!" The throbbing of her brain shouted it, "He loves you!" The cry of her soul whispered it, "He loves you!"

She stretched out her hands to him:

"My love is yours, just as yours is mine. Let us join our lives and give them to the suffering and the oppressed."

He looked up at her in wonder.

"I daren't. Think what I am!"

"You are the best that is in me. We are mates."

"A peasant! A beggar!"

"You are the noblest of the noble."

"A convict."

"Our Saviour was crucified so that his people should be redeemed. You have given the pain of your body so that your people may be free."

"It wouldn't be fair to you," he pleaded.

"If you leave me it will be unfair to us both."

"Oh, my dear one! My dear one!"

He folded her in his arms.

"I'll give the best of my days to guard you and protect you and bring you happiness."

"I am happy now," and her voice died to a whisper.

Three days afterward Nathaniel Kingsnorth returned late at night from a political banquet.

It had been a great evening. At last it seemed that life was about to give him what he most wished for. His dearest ambitions were, apparently, about to be realized.

He had been called on as a stanch Conservative to add his quota to the already wonderful array of brilliant perorations of seasoned statesmen and admirable speakers. Kingsnorth had excelled himself. Never had he spoken so powerfully. Being one of the only men at the banquet who had enjoyed even a brief glimpse of Ireland, he made the solution of the Irish question the main topic of his speech. Speaking lucidly and earnestly, he placed before them his panacea for Irish ills. His hearers were enthralled.

When he sat down the cheering was prolonged.

When he left the gathering he was in a condition of ecstasy. Lying back amid the cushions during his long drive home, he closed his eyes and pictured the future. His imagination ran riot. It took wings and flew from height to height. He saw himself the leader of a party—"the Kingsnorth party!"—controlling his followers with a hand of iron and driving them to vote according to his judgment and his decree.

By the time he had reached home he had entered the cabinet and was being spoken of as the probable prime minister.

He poured out a liquor and stood sipping it as he turned over the letters brought by the night's post. One arrested him. It had been delivered by hand and was marked "Most Urgent." As he read the letter every vestige of color left his face.

(To be continued.)

"Then arose a picture of her sister Monica."

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

NEW JERSEY.

With New York setting us so good an example and Pennsylvania following closely in line, how can New Jersey do less than her neighboring sister States? Of course she cannot give her women less opportunity than they might enjoy by moving just across the State line. And furthermore Jersey has the privilege of pointing the way for other States since her election comes earlier than theirs. Here's success to Votes for Jersey Women next fall.

Several members of the Plainfield Equal Suffrage League spent yesterday at the Hoboken polls, where the question of Commission Government was voted upon. Most of the voters in that city are Germans, of the type that considers woman's place as inside the four walls of her home only. But yesterday, when interviewed by the Suffragists as to whether they favored giving full citizenship to the women of their State they were one and all most courteous in their attitude toward their questioners.

THE EMPIRE STATE.

It was a very neat little surprise that the New York State Senate sprang on the Suffragists last Thursday. The vote to allow the matter of Equal Suffrage to go to the voters was put through unanimously and quietly, thanks to Senator Elon R. Brown, who apparently abhors a celebration more than Nature abhors a vacuum. One wishes that every black State on the Suffrage map had an Elon R. Brown to give its Suffrage workers this same sort of surprise party—the ensuing celebrations would take care of themselves.

Editorial from N. Y. Evening Post of last evening:

"When one considers how forlorn and unpopular the cause was twenty years ago, how impossible it was to obtain an audience of any size, and reviews the sudden awakening of interest, the millions of converts, the anti-suffragists are fully justified in thinking that what they are pleased to call the 'menace' of adult suffrage is at hand in this State.

"By this we do not mean that we foresee victory for the Suffragists next fall. Mrs. Catt, who is leading the campaign, is careful to say that she predicts nothing save that the strongest organization ever put into the field will be at work.

* * * *

"If defeat comes, the public may be sure of one thing: there will be not the slightest letup in the demand for equal participation in government; for no taxation without representation. We say this advisedly, because we have been more than ever impressed of late by the spirit and determination of the women who ask for the obliteration of the sex-line in politics. It is no longer unusual to meet women in every station in life to whom this cause has become the supreme thing, whose belief is, not that here is something theoretical to be obtained, but that a grave injustice which daily stings and pains must needs be righted. It is a dangerous thing for the other side when the advocates of a cause are ready to make great sacrifices for it, and this thousands of women are preparing to do.

* * * *

"Should the New York Suffragists need encouragement, they need but look about them. On every hand come reports of unexpected Suffrage success. The most conservative strongholds of all—the Southern—are being successfully invaded.

* * * *

"As for the press, a newspaper like our own Times, with its solemn belief that our society is on the point of disintegrating, is getting to be more and more the exception. Take, for instance, a conservative and influential journal like the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer. It declares that the issue is steadily gaining support in its State, and that it cannot be stopped by indefinite postponement of its consideration by the Legislature. That it will succeed eventually, the News and Observer has no doubt. And so it will in New York; the extraordinary vitality and enthusiasm of the campaign leave no doubt as to that. Moreover, there is the Constitutional Convention to win over. The battle is on, and cease it cannot until justice is done."

THE KEYSTONE STATE.

Governor Brumbaugh, of Pennsylvania, has this to say about Equal Suffrage in his State:

"It is not only a part of the party's platform, but a part of my own personal platform, and I am in favor of having quick action upon it. Moreover, I will do all in my power to aid its speedy passage. I want to see the question of a Suffrage amendment to the State Constitution go before the people this fall. Inasmuch as Pennsylvania today has a Republican administration and that party is in power, there can be no doubt as to the favorable action on the Suffrage bill."

Last evening's papers contained the following justification of Governor Brumbaugh's hopes:

"Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 9.—The resolution to submit to the voters the Woman Suffrage amendment to the Constitution was passed finally in the House today by a vote of 130 to 71.

"The resolution now goes to the Senate, and if passed by that body the amendment will go before the people next November."

THE SOLID SOUTH.

On January 26 the West Virginia Senate voted to submit a Suffrage amendment by a vote of 29 to 1. A few minutes later the House followed suit; it gave final ratification on January 28 by a vote of 76 to 8.

On January 27 the Committee on Constitutional Amendments of the Texas House reported favorably a Suffrage amendment by a vote of 16 to 2.

On January 28 the Tennessee Senate voted to submit a Suffrage amendment, 26 to 3. The next day the House likewise passed the amendment, 74 to 14.

On February 1 the Arkansas Senate voted to submit a Suffrage amendment. The figures of the vote are not yet known.

Meanwhile, the South Carolina House, which last year laughed at the introduction of a Suffrage amendment, voted to hear Mrs. B. L. Valentine speak in favor, and frequently interrupted her with cheers.

The action in each of these Legislatures is absolutely without precedent in the South. Southern chivalry is coming of age; and the day when the women of the South will step into the opportunities and responsibilities of full citizenship cannot be far distant.

The Suffrage movement was not truly national, so long as the South, except for a few brave and devoted men and women, stood outside of it. Now it has become so. And this fact marks the beginning of the end.—Woman's Journal, Feb. 6, 1915.

What Dr. Katherine Bement Davis thinks about the "menace" of adult Suffrage:

"The indifference of some women is no reason for withholding the Suffrage. Give women the right, and then the men and the women who do care will educate the rest up to the point of seeing it. We shall raise the level only by raising men and women together. We do everything else together, as partners—in the home, in the church, in educational work and in business. Why should we not be partners in this?"

Of Interest to Women and the Home

FOR THE BUSINESS WOMAN.

The best of taste is displayed in this blouse and tailored skirt designed for the dainty but practical business woman. It has distinction and style without overstepping the mark of refined taste. The blouse is of crepe de chine which may at first thought seem hardly practicable for general wear. This, however, is an error for no material gives better service and in this instance its practicability is increased by the color which is the new shade called putty. The blouse is machine hemstitched and trimmed in large ivory buttons. The skirt is strictly tailored and is of covert cloth. The belt is of the skirt material.

RELIEF WORK.

Grace church has undertaken a share in the solution of the problem of the unemployed and needy, by which the Charity Organization Society of the city is confronted. Acting for the society, the church is at present providing for the needs of ten families and endeavoring to promote their welfare. This is a special department of work which is not in any way dependent upon our poor fund for support. The rector has otherwise secured the necessary means through the help of generous friends.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"I never judge by appearances any more. I was cured of that by a lesson I had while in the Philippines," said Paul Rogers, as he puffed at his pipe on the pleasant veranda.

"Speak up and tell us about it," came in a cheerful voice from the hammock.

"You know that Marge and I were married two days after commencement. You and all the club were there."

"I should say so," replied his companion. "I never had so much fun in my life."

"You know we went to the Islands on our wedding journey. I had charge of a school and Marge was one of my teachers. We were delighted with the appointment, for we had always wanted to see the world and here was our chance. Great Scott! George, have I ever told you how nearly we came to going under from pure homesickness? I thought those two years never would end. Finally we did get three months taken off. Glad! you can never imagine it, for you have never been in prison and had your sentence commuted," and he puffed away in reminiscent silence.

"Tell me the story," said Dawson.

"Oh, yes! Well, as white people were so rare we naturally made the most of everyone we had. We formed an American club and did all we could to relieve the insufferable tedium of that life. All the teachers who could compass it would meet at our village every two weeks. There was one man who held aloof from the bunch, after the first meetings. I remember we planned to assess ourselves a certain amount a month, and have a spread or some cheerful doings. He didn't vote on the question, and he was absent from the next meeting. He never showed up again and it seemed evident that it was the matter of expense that kept him away. Then, too, he did not dress in white, the only half way comfortable dress in that beastly climate. He was always doing the queer thing, the niggardly thing, and he became a by-word for stinginess, after one of the teachers of a neighboring town reported seeing him chopping bunches of wild bananas from the forest in dead of night. They were free for all, as there was no market for them, but only the natives gathered them for food. He went by night because he did not want it known that he was living on native diet. He could not help knowing the stories that were afloat about him and avoided meeting any Americans as much as possible.

"We had almost forgotten about him, when one evening at the club someone said, 'I hear Porter is sick; got the island fever. A native is taking care of him.'

"'I wonder why he doesn't go to the hospital,' someone said. The answer was, 'It might cost something.'

"'We ought not to let the fellow die there alone, even if he is stingy,' I said.

"'You live as near to him as anybody,' was the response. So the next day I walked over there. The native saw me coming and ran to meet me. He seemed very much frightened. I followed him into the untidy, hot room, where Porter lay in wildest delirium. He stopped his raving when I entered and seemed to recognize me.

"'For the love of God, send the money to Mary,' he cried. 'It's way past the time and the baby is sick.'

"Then he trailed off in feverish talk. Was he married? I questioned. No one knew anything about him, but I found out at the postoffice that every month he had sent nearly his entire salary to a Mrs. Porter in Vermont. This put another aspect on the situation.

"We felt very guilty to think we had let circumstances turn us against the man. I was fairly sick when I thought of the awful life he had lived, doing without every comfort that he might send his pay to the family back in God's country. We took turns caring for him after that and brought him around all right. I sat with him very often while he was convalescing and he gradually told me the whole story. He had lost his position in the school of his home town, and being unable to secure another he had applied for a Philippine job. He had four children and had not the means to bring his family with him, so he was denying himself everything to get the money to send for them.

"That sickness was a blessing to the poor fellow all right. I do not see how he escaped going crazy living there alone as he did. We took him right into the club as our guest By the end of nine months his family came. His wife was a clever little woman, a real addition to our society, and the delight of those two in getting together was good to see. You would think she had landed in paradise."

"Is he there yet?" asked Dawson.

"Yes, and doing well. He was so overjoyed to have his family with him and be able to support them that nothing else mattered," said Rogers.

"Happiness is a matter of comparison," answered his companion.

FLOWERS FOR TABLE

The cultivation of flowers for the table is a delightful task. If a woman is fortunate enough to live in the suburbs or a town she has a little corner of the garden all her own, and in the summer she raises nasturtiums and sweet peas in abundance. These she may also raise in a window box in the city. In winter she finds a sunny window for her boxes and raises mignonette, marguerites and the ever dependable geranium.

In the use of flowers there is a marked tendency toward the Japanese custom of a single perfect bloom with its own foliage. If a hostess is preparing for a pink luncheon she demands of the florist the most perfect pink rose.

UP-TO-DATE RECIPES

Bread Griddle Cakes—Add two tablespoons butter and 1½ cups hot milk to 1½ cups stale bread crumbs; soak until crumbs are soft; then add two eggs, well beaten, half teaspoon salt and half cup flour mixed and sifted with four teaspoons baking powder. Drop by spoonful on hot greased griddle. Cook on one side; when puffed full of bubbles and cooked on edges, turn and cook other side.

Brain Pancakes—Soak calf's brain in cold water for an hour or more, then squeeze it free from skin, add salt, pepper to taste and onion if preferred. Add about half cup milk, enough flour and baking powder to make a batter.

Sausage Dumpling—Make paste with one pound flour, two ounces suet, one teaspoon baking powder, as much water as will make a stiff paste. Divide paste into ten parts; roll out and put into each part a sausage, wet edges of paste and turn over; as each dumpling is ready, drop into sauce pan of boiling water and boil gently one hour. Serve very hot.

Roast Pork Tenderloin—Four pork tenderloins; cut each in three pieces crosswise. Slash each piece lengthwise, season with salt, pepper and bits of butter, fill with bread dressing, pin together with toothpicks, place in baking pan (generously buttered), add remainder of dressing, cover, bake 45 minutes, then uncover the pan and bake 15 minutes or until nicely browned. This will serve six.

Pumpkin Loaf—Two cups cornmeal, two cups white flour, one cup pumpkin (cooked and mashed), one-half cup baking molasses, one-half cup shortening, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon ground cinnamon or ginger, one heaping teaspoon baking powder mixed with flour, and scant teaspoon soda dissolved in a little cold water; cold water to make soft dough, stiffer than for cake. Bake in moderate oven about 45 minutes. Serve hot with butter or cold with milk and sugar.

Maitre d'Hotel Potatoes — Two cups potatoes cut in cubes, two tablespoons butter, one-half tablespoon chopped parsley, one teaspoon lemon juice, one-eighth teaspoon peppeh, one teaspoon salt. Wash potatoes, pare and cut in cubes, cook in boiling salted water (enough to cover), until soft; drain. Cream butter, add seasonings, lemon juice and parsley, pour over potatoes and serve hot.

Bean Salad—Excellent and is just as good prepared the day before wanted for use, which makes it convenient for Sunday or a company dinner. Drain liquid off one can red kidney beans and split beans in two with a knife. Add a little salt, one small onion scraped, two or three stems of celery cut in small pieces, a sprinkling of celery seed (either may be used alone, using more seed, if no celery), four sweet pickles cut in small pieces. Mix well with the following mayonnaise dressing, which is fine on any salad: Two eggs, one-half cup vinegar, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon sugar, one scant teaspoon ground mustard, dash of salt, two or three tablespoons cream or milk. Beat well together and let come to boil.

German Potato Salad—Boil six good-sized potatoes. Peel and slice while hot. Cut one-half pound lean bacon in small dice and fry brown. Season potatoes with salt, pepper and finely sliced onion. Mix thoroughly with the bacon and fat and one-half cup vinegar.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

BY ALICE CREW GALL

Mother McGrew and Bartholomew Bull-Frog.

If you've ever been near the water at all,
You've seen or heard Bull-Frogs, of course;
So I'm going to tell you the reason that they
Are every last one of them hoarse.

Bartholomew Bull-Frog was careless about
Remembering the things he was told;
He'd wade through mud puddles and get his feet wet,
And then have a terrible cold.

Or maybe he'd waken at night with the croup
And frighten his family a lot;
And his only excuse for the trouble he'd make
Was the very poor one, "I forgot."

This happened so often it finally became
A nuisance, and Mother McGrew
Was almost worn out; so she said, "I will teach
You a lesson, that's what I will do."

So the very next time this young Bull-Frog came in
With his little feet soaked through and through,
She gave him a tap with her magical stick
(It was really a right hard tap, too).

She said, "You shall live in a swamp all your life,
And no matter how much you tease,
I will not change my mind; you shall paddle about,
And get just as hoarse as you please."

And Bartholomew Bull-Frog hopped off to the pond;
He thought it a very good joke;
But he soon changed his mind, for he got a sore throat,
And his voice was a horrible croak.

And though from that minute his family has lived
Around in the water a lot,
They'll tell you all Bull-Frogs have had a bad cold
Since Bartholomew Bull-Frog "forgot."

I feel pretty certain you've often been told
That you never should get your feet wet;
But the fate of Batholomew Bull-Frog will show
What happens to those who forget.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The new bill at Proctor's Theatre for the last half of the week, commencing tomorrow, will have as its headliner, Willard Mack's sensational one-act playlet of the Canadian woods, "Be Game." This act is a Broadway drama in itself and has been receiving flattering press notices in all the large cities. The remainder of the offering will include Johnson and Welles, colored singers and dancers; Robert Carter and Katherine Waters, in the skit, "The Hunger Striker;" Weber and Elliott, singing and talking comedians, and Dalton and Lovera, presenting what is described as "a whirlwind of comedy and a classy cycling novelty." READY TO CHALLENGE LEAGUE'S CHAMPIONS

All Star Cast to Issue Defy to Winner of Feminine Title.

Although the girls' interscholastic basketball title is yet to be won by either the city or borough High School teams, the Y. W. C. A. aggregation is ready to issue a challenge to the winner of this series for the championship of the city as soon as the last whistle is blown in the deciding game. On February 22 the Plainfield and North Plainfield High School girls will meet in the second contest of the series, on the Saengerbund Hall court, the first game resulting in a defeat for the boroughites. If the Plainfield lassies win the second game, they will lay claim to the interscholastic honors.

The Y. W. C. A. quintet has not had much of a schedule this year, but has given a good account of itself in the games played, having walloped both the Plainfield and North Plainfield representatives. The association five is composed of former High School "stars."

A three-game series between the interscholastic champion and the Y. W. C. A. team would prove a popular event, and an exciting contest would be waged between the two for the city championship.

The Plainfield Junior Elks bowling team won the odd game from the Elizabeth leaders on the Watchung avenue alleys last night, taking the first two rolls and dropping the last of the match. None of the games were very close, the locals winning the second one by almost a hundred pins. Plainfield and New Brunswick are still tied for fourth place, each having won 14 and lost 16 games.

Captain Chauncey Stout, of the local team, rolled the first ball for Plainfield and in the first game registered a good score, falling but two points short of the two century mark. Hoyt hit for 192, while Townley rolled the lowest game for the locals, getting a 146. Causbrook and Waldorf each talled a 169, which totalled up to 874. Elizabeth's team score was 839, Van Bergen and Blythe getting the highest tallies, 179 and 175 respectively. The locals made their best score in the second game, while Elizabeth was having the hardest luck. After Stout had hit for 152 Hoyt chalked up a 202, the highest score made by the local team. Townley made up for his poor score of the first game and counted for 190, while Waldorf finished up with a 192, after Causbrook marked a 170. Captain Blythe, of the visiting aggregation, scored high for his team, getting a 183.

The last game went to Elizabeth by 61 pins, the scores being 896 to 835. Blythe made a 190, as did Stout, and Hoyt registered a 167. Feihl's score aided materially in Elizabeth's getting the game, his mark being the highest of the match, a 211.

NEWARK B. P. O. E. PINNER IS STILL A SUBURBANITE

The rumored protest which was to be lodged against Lewis VanNess, of Newark, who is the star individual pinner of the Suburban Bowling League, for rolling a game with the Newark Elks' Senior League team last Friday night, failed to materialize and VanNess is still showing the way in the Suburban League.

When he bowled with the Elks it was stated that he could be disqualified from the Suburban League for this act, but no ruling to that effect could be found. VanNess rolled good games for the Elks against New York, scoring a 200 in one game and getting an average of 180.

INTERCLASS AQUATICS.

Manager Dean Worden, of the Plainfield High School swimming team, has made arrangements for an interclass swimming meet. This will be held in the High School tank Wednesday, February 17. There will be four events, the 50-yard, 100-yard and 220-yard swims, and diving. About forty entries have been received and a close competition is expected.

ELKS' HOUSE TOURNEY.

Three matches will be rolled in the Elks' House Tourney tomorrow night, when the Hoyt, Todd and C. Woolston teams get into action. By winning both games Woolston's men can advance to a second place tie, but the other teams are occupying last and next to last places.

BOWLING TONIGHT.

Elks' Senior League—Jersey City at New Brunswick.

Elks' Junior League—Paterson at Newark.

Masonic League—Essex at Azure; Orient at Lafayette.

LAST JUNIOR ELKS' GAME.

The last game of the schedule of the Junior Elks' League will be played tonight, when Paterson pinners are due to play Newark at the latter place.

THESE CATCHERS THWARTED 100 OR MORE STEALS EACH IN 1914

Four American league catchers succeeded in thwarting 100 or more steals last season. The century men were Agnew of St. Louis and Stanage of Detroit, each of whom claimed 129 victims; Ray Schalk of the Chicago White Sox, who stopped 115 would-be pilferers, and Wallie Schang of Philadelphia, who frustrated 114 pastimers.

Of the non-century men, Steve O'Neill of Cleveland made the best record, he killing off 92 athletes who tried to pilfer. The Philadelphia receivers nailed the most men who set out to burgle—namely, 192.

JERSEY CITY JUNIOR ELKS WON ODD GAME

New Brunswick and Jersey City Junior Elk pinners met on the Jersey City drives, last night, and the home team won the last two games after dropping the initial roll. The scores of the games were 766 to 889, 859 to 816 and 875 to 835.

In the second contest, Hudson, of the Jersey City team, rolled 229, while Harding, of New Brunswick, hit for 225 in the first roll.

P. H. S. GIRLS IN ACTION.

The Plainfield High School girls' basketball team is due to meet the Roselle Park girls on the local court tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. These teams were scheduled to play last month, but the game was put off.

FEATURE ATTRACTIONS FOR COLUMBUS CLUB COURT

Lover of the court pastime will be treated to another double header on the Columbus Club court, next Tuesday night, when the Columbus Club five will lineup against a representative Westfield team and the Plainfield girls' team will appear in the preliminary against the Elizabeth Battin High feminine quintet. Although the dance that will follow this game will be the last one that the club will have before Lent, a double header basketball attraction will be staged on the new popular court for the public, by the management.

Arrangements are being made to secure the Trenton Y. W. C. A. girls' team to appear here the last week in February. This aggregation defeated the local Y. W. C. A. last week by two points and their appearance on a Plainfield court will undoubtedly prove of great interest.

ST. CHRISTOPHER'S AGAIN.

Final arrangements have been made by John R. Gates to have the St. Christopher basketball team appear here February 16. The New Yorkers will have several new men in their lineup, but the team will be fully as fast as the one that trounced the All Stars last December. The team will play against a team of local players in Saengerbund Hall.

MOST IMPORTANT CASES IN FED-O. B. TROUBLE STILL UNDECIDED

Three of the most interesting and most important cases in the trouble between the Feds and organized baseball are those of Hal Chase, Armando Marsans and George (Chief) Johnson. It happens that each one of those players was taken or came from organized baseball while the playing season was under way and each was taken into court. In none of them has a final decision been yet made.

The Plainfield Senior Elks' bowling team won the odd game from Rutherford, at that place, last night. The locals lost the middle roll by poor winning, while the home team rolled the highest score of the match. The locals pinned well ahead of their opponents in the other two games, thirty-five points separating the tallies.

Blatz rolled well in the initial game, chalking up a 204, while Captain Nash was next with a 192. Depken rolled 180 for Rutherford and the team totals were 879 to 810. The locals fell down in the second game. Blatz made a 134 and Johnny Campbell could get only a 126, which pulled the team count down considerably. A. DEFIED THE BRAHMANS.

An East Indian Prince Who Did Not Fear Losing Caste.

Mr. Coningsby Dawson, the well known English writer, tells the following anecdote of the East Indian prince Sir Pertab Singh:

A young English lieutenant had died of cholera in his palace. The boy was the son of an English friend. When the body had to be carried out to be placed on a gun carriage Sir Pertab Singh went forward to lift it up. Before he touched it he was stopped by some English officers. They reminded him that, by his religion, were he to touch the dead he would lose all his caste and perhaps, despite his wealth, never be able to buy it back. They advised him to send for the sweepers, who are outcasts. In spite of their protests he picked up the body and carried it down the palace steps to the gun carriage.

A gasp went up at the sight. Every one of his subjects knew what he had done. The next morning, when he rose, 500 Brahman priests were waiting in the courtyard. He came out, a proud figure, to face them. He knew what they had come for—to make him the lowest thing in India, a man without caste. He asked them what was their errand, and they told him. They had come to make him of as little account as the humblest sweeper in his palace.

Sir Pertab Singh laughed. "I belong," he said, "to a higher caste than any of you have ever dreamed of, and you can't take it from me; you're welcome to all the rest. I belong to the same caste as the dead son of my friend—the caste of a soldier."

With that he walked back into his palace, and the Brahman priests went away, one by one, ashamed and puzzled.

Pure Logic.

Liberty commands the highest price of all known things. Its price is so high that nobody can pay it.

Proof. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Eternal vigilance is to be ever on the job. To be ever on the job is to have no leisure or vacation. To have no leisure or vacation is to be a slave. To be a slave is not to have liberty. Therefore in order to be free we must enslave ourselves, which is absurd. Q. E. D.—Judge.

Quill Pens.

The quill pen is not quite extinct in London. The legal profession, which is very conservative, clings to it tenaciously, and none of the courts would be completely equipped without a plentiful supply of good goose quills. Have you noticed what an indispensable accessory the quill is to counsel, whether in ostentatiously taking a note, making a speech or in helping to point a warning finger at a hostile witness?—London Standard.

EXPORT CONDITIONS MUCH IMPROVED

Substantial Gains in Manufactured Foodstuffs Are Reported.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—December, 1914, exports of manufactures regained the level shown by December of the preceding year, a decrease of ten per cent. in finished manufactures being more than offset by the gains in manufactured foodstuffs.

In certain lines of manufactures, however, the exports during the month of December, 1914, show phenomenal gains over those of December a year earlier, as, for example, in the case of commercial automobiles, the value of which advanced from 101 thousand to 3 1-3 million dollars; cotton knit goods, from 295 thousand to over 2 million dollars; woolen clothing, from 183 thousand to 1 1-3 million; other woolen goods, including blankets, from 103 thousand to 2¾ million dollars, and rubber boots and shoes from 84 thousand to 864 thousand dollars.

Leather goods also made a marked advanced, sole leather exports increasing from 354 thousand dollars in December, 1913, to 3 3-5 million dollars in December of last year; upper leather, from 1¾ million dollars to over 3 million; and boots and shoes from 1,254 thousand to 1,288 thousand dollars; while harness and saddles exports increased from 43 thousand to 1½ million dollars.

Zinc continues the large export movement which began during the fall of 1914. During the month of December last 36 2-3 million pounds were exported as against only 137 thousand pounds in December a year ago. Metal-working machinery nearly doubled in value of exports, from 1,350 thousand dollars in December, 1913, to 2,432 thousand in December of last year; wire increased from 781 thousand to 951 thousand dollars; bars or rods of steel, from 777 thousand to 1,018 thousand dollars, and horseshoes, from a quarter of a million to 3¾ million pounds.

Europe is taking an unusually large proportion of the manufactures now being exported from the United States. Of the 4 1-3 million dollars worth of automobiles, including both passenger and commercial vehicles, exported during the month of December, 1914, 2½ million dollars' worth went to France and one million dollars' worth to the United Kingdom. Those two countries also took practically all of the metal-working machinery and England a preponderating proportion of the sole leather exported. Denmark was the chief market for the cottonseed oil cake and meal exported and England and the Netherlands the chief markets for the cottonseed oil which left the country during the month of December. Practically all of the 74 million pounds of sugar exported during December went to France, and England and France were the chief destinations of woolen clothing, blankets and other manufactures exported during the month to the value of over 4 million dollars.

Facts in addition to those herein enumerated will be published in the December, 1914, "Summary of Foreign Commerce" which will contain a complete survey of the year's trade, showing the significant changes in movements of specified articles and in our trade relations with the various countries.

STILL NEED AID FOR UNEMPLOYED

Demands on Committee for February Greater Than Were Expected.

CONDITIONAL OFFERS

Resident Will Be One of Group to Help Swell the Fund—Makes Offer in Letter to A. M. Harris—Few Small Contributors.

Between finding employment for which to pay wages and raising the money with which to pay them, the task of the Commission for the Relief of the Unemployed is no sinecure. Unfortunately an impression seems to have spread that the fund already secured is sufficient to continue the work until the necessity is over. At one time the Commission did hope that it had enough money in hand to last through February, and could temporarily stop its appeals for support. But disbursements for January exceeded the estimate, so that solicitation of further pledges at once is imperative.

It is still a disappointment that only 112 people have so far contributed to a cause which should interest every citizen of the community. Small amounts have been asked for repeatedly. They are heartily welcome and no one should let the size of his contribution deter him for a moment from giving what he can.

Here is a chance for a very few people to help the work of the Commission immensely by a generous subscription promptly. The following letter has been received by A. M. Harris, chairman of the finance committee, who is also treasurer:

"Believing that business optimism is far in advance of actual gains, and that any real improvement in general business will be at a very slow pace during the rest of the winter and possibly throughout the spring, makes me realize that our needy unemployed face actual distress, especially if real winter is yet to come.

"Knowing full well the most efficient way you and the Commission are handling this important matter in our city, I wish to make the following offer:

"I will take pleasure in being one of five to give $100 each to your fund, thus adding $500 to it.

"Or, I will be one of five to give $50 each, $250 in all.

"Or, I will be one of four to give $25 each, $100 in all.

"I do not limit the four other subscribers to individuals, as I believe that several of our institutions in Plainfield would subscribe on this basis. As you undoubtedly wish the money at an early date, I make this offer binding on me until Monday, February 15."

Who will meet this generous offer? Surely there are four individuals or institutions, out of nearly 30,000, who have not yet subscribed, who can afford $100 for such a cause, especially when that $100 means $120 to the Commission. The time is short. Act quickly! Send your contribution or pledge to A. M. Harris, 935 Central avenue, marked "Special Fund."

TEACHERS VISIT THE CITY GRADED SCHOOLS

Miss Emma Arleth and Miss Catherine Samsel, of Sayreville, were yesterday shown over the graded schools of Plainfield, by Miss Day, principal of the grammar school.

Several days ago Dr. Maxson received a letter from the supervisor of the Sayreville school system stating that he wished to send two of the teachers from his district to study the advanced methods in use in the Plainfield schools. The visiting teachers expressed themselves as deeply interested in the methods in use here and will probably advocate their adoption in Sayreville.

BURGLARS RANSACKED BOROUGH RESIDENCE

Jewelry Valued at $100 Taken by Daring Crooks Last Night.

Burglars entered the home of D. E. Coon, of Chatham street, early last night, and ransacked the whole house in the absence of the family. Entrance was made through a front window between 7:45 and 8:15 o'clock, and the robbers made a safe getaway without leaving any clues. The family left the house shortly before 8 o'clock and turned all the lights in the house off. About 8:15 neighbors noticed that the lights were lighted again and the shades in the front were down. However, there was nothing suspicious about this fact and no one knew of the robbery until the family returned.

The front window was pried open and the intruders went through and ransacked the place from top to bottom. On the second floor they turned out every bureau drawer and left no closet or corner untouched. Between $75 and $100 worth of jewelry was taken, including three watches belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Coon and their daughter, two of which were gold and valuable. Many pins and other valuable articles were taken. When they left the thieves failed to turn out the lights. The borough police are working on the case.

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT INDOOR CARNIVAL

"A Delayed Burglary" Scored a Big Hit at Columbus Club Last Night.

"A Delayed Burglary," the feature number of the Knights of Columbus indoor carnival program for last night, drew a record attendance to the seven-day indoor fete now in progress at the Columbus Club, on West Front street. The farce was well presented and kept the audience in a state of keen expectation from curtain rise to curtain fall, there being a number of interesting and laugh provoking incidents connected with the attempt of a railroad president's daughter to keep a prospective burglar in the house pending the arrival of the police. The production was coached by Miss Josephine Murphy and the performance of the amateur participants reflected with credit on the work of those in charge.

Included in the cast were the following characters: "Miss Alice Gardner," Miss Josephine Murphy; "Gentleman Joe Hatch," Garret Keating; "Harry Haynes," Frank Donnelly; "Reddy the Kid," William V. Sullivan; "Captain Lucus," John J. McCarthy, and "Officer Clarke," James Kyle. Charles Shirley is the property manager and Thomas McCarthy is the stage manager.

Tonight the black-face artists of the club will stage a minstrel show, plenty of local hits being injected into the production to keep an audience in continuous rounds of laughter. Dancing will be an added feature, terpischorean music will be furnished until 2 o'clock tomorrow morning.

INTEREST MANIFESTED IN PUBLIC SPEAKING CLASS

Unusual interest was manifested in the class in public speaking, which held its first meeting in the Stillman School, last night, under the personal direction of Prof. H. E. Biddle, of the Plainfield High School. The attendance was splendid and a great many 'phoned in who were unable to be present, but who fully intend to join the following week. The work of the class was outlined and plans were made to meet the individual needs of each member. Each member gave a short speech and all were enthusiastic about the prospects.

Mr. Biddle is an experienced lecturer and the work under his supervision will include training in voice production, extemporaneous speakpoise and self-confidence. Any new members will be welcomed into the class which will hold its second meeting next Wednesday.

FRIDAY SWIMMING CLASSES.

Tomorrow morning there will be the usual swimming classes at the High School, from 9-10, 10-11, 11-12. There will be no swimming in the afternoon. The classes on Saturday will meet as usual.

EDUCATOR LAUDS CLINIC'S OBJECTS

U. S. Commissioner of Education Philander Claxton Speaks at Dedication.

HUMANITY IS WASTED

Speaker Urges Proper Diagnosis of Children's Ailments and Classified Courses for Exceptional Pupils in Public Schools.

"Christ told his disciples to gather up the fragments and after nineteen hundred years men are just beginning to realize the true spirit of these holy words," said United States Commissioner of Education Philander Claxton in a short address at the dedicatory services formally opening the Education Clinic in the Plainfield High School Auditorium, last night. A small, but interested audience, heard the famous educator deliver a scathing criticism of mankind's work along educational lines up to the present era. Continuing he said:

"For hundreds of years we have wasted humanity because we failed to properly diagnose ills and the installation of an educational clinic, such as the one in Plainfield, in every respectable school system in the United States is what I hope to see ultimately accomplished. The clinic not only diagnoses the ills but suggests remedies and traces the history of the ailment. The exceptional points are followed to preceding generations

HOLIDAY WILL BE QUIETLY OBSERVED

Informal Program Will Mark Lincoln's Birthday Celebration Here.

Lincoln's Birthday, one of the two holidays recognized by patriotic Americans this month, will be observed locally and nationally tomorrow, in a quiet manner. Federal institutions and public schools will be closed, but a majority of the business houses will maintain their usual schedule. Local banks will be closed all day and the Public Library will be shut down in the morning, the adult reading-room and circulating department opening at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Newpapers will be published as usual.

Little of public nature has been arranged in commemoration of one of our national heroes. Special programs of motion pictures will be put on at Proctor Theatre and the Plainfield Theatre and good vaudeville is in store for those who elect the Front street playhouse as their recreation center.

The center of attraction for the younger generation and many parents will be the Plainfield High School gymnasium where the North Plainfield and Plainfield High School basketball teams will meet in their second game of the Interscholastic series. This will mark the first engagement of these two rivals on the new P. H. S. court and a record crowd of spectators is expected. Plainfield defeated the boroughites by a single point in the last game and a victory for the visitors tomorrow will mean the establishment of a fire place tie for the championship of the league and the silver loving cup and medals that go with it. If Plainfield wins the championship will go to the Ninth street institution for 1914-15.

The Knights of Columbus and Jr. O. U. A. M. indoor carnivals are now going full blast and special features will be put on tomorrow night at both places. The former event is being held in Columbus Hall, on West Front street, and the latter one is holding out in Sebring's Auditorium. Dancing is a leading feature at both places.

NEW BRUNSWICK JUNIORS TO VISIT LOCAL FAIR

The fair being held in Sebring's Auditorium under the auspices of Uniformed Rank, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be attended this evening by a delegation of Jr. O. U. A. M. members from New Brunswick. A special program of entertainment will be featured and dancing will be enjoyed as usual. Music is being played by Halbfoerster's band, of Elizabeth, and this aggregation of musicians is producing some real live harmony.

A special program has been arranged for tomorrow and Saturday evenings. The Liberty Fife and Drum Corps, of Newark, will attend the fair Saturday evening and give several demonstrations.

VICTIM'S INJURIES WILL NOT BE FATAL

George H. Pound Semi-Conscious With Good Chances of Recovery.

Although he continues to remain in a state of semi-consciousness at the home of his mother, Mrs. William A. McClurg, of West Seventh street, following an accident which occurred at South Plainfield, Wednesday night, the condition of George H. Pound is not considered critical, according to a statement made by the physician in charge of the case this morning. His injuries consist of concussion of the brain, numerous cuts and bruises about the body and a sprained wrist. Three hours' exposure to zero weather while he remained lying in the road have left no ill effects.

As related in this paper yesterday the mishap occurred at the Lehigh avenue crossing of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at South Plainfield. Investigation conducted by the family has revealed the fact that Pound was instructed by the towerman to raise the gates over the grade, the guard rails having become frozen, rendering the mechanical apparatus in the tower for raising and lowering them useless. The towerman could not leave his signals and Pound consented to remove the obstructions. The gates at this crossing are left down at night owing to the large amount of freight traffic on the road.

It is thought that the horse became frightened as Pound was getting back into the wagon and the victim probably became tangled in the reins, being dragged a distance of 200 feet. The horse headed for the barn and when he arrived there the buggy was missing. Investigation found the buggy lodged in a rut at the side of the road, having turned over. The horse did not appear to have been running when he entered the farmyard and was found by William Randolph, an employe of Mr. Pound's.

CARRY PROPOSITION AT SCHOOL ELECTION

$12,500 Building to Be Erected at South Plainfield This Year.

The proposition to erect an addition to the school at South Plainfield was carried at an election held in the district school at New Market, last night, by a vote of 71 to 30. John Gray acted as temporary chearman of the meeting. The polls were opened at 8:15.

Prior to the opening of the polls, President John M. Evans of the Board of Education, spoke in favor of the addition and Albert Soper against the plan. At 8:30 an opponent arrived from South Plainfield and protested most vigorously against the polls having been opened so early. The South Plainfielder wanted an opportunity of speaking against the improvement and endeavored to get Chairman Gray to rule that the polls be closed temporarily, but the chairman declined to make such a ruling.

The proposition of erecting an addition to the South Plainfield School was submitted to the voters last fall, but was defeated by a close margin. The addition will cost $12,500.

MAY PLAY OFF ELKS' TIE ON PLAINFIELD DRIVES

Owing to the fact that the Newark and Paterson bowling teams in the Junior Elks' League, were tied for first place at the finish, last night, it will be necessary for these two aggregations to play a roll-off. Secretary V. W. Nash, Jr., of the league, today mailed notices to the executive committee calling for a meeting at the Elks' clubhouse in Newark, next Tuesday night, at which time a date and place for the post-season series will be decided upon.

As the games must be played on neutral alleys, the Plainfield team has extended an invitation to come to this city and it is probable that acceptance will be made.

DANCING ACT AT JR.'S FAIR.

An added attraction at the Junior fair in Sebring's Auditorium, tomorrow night, will be a dancing specialty by Charles Pagluccia, Jr. This young artist is also a capable singer and he can be counted upon to contribute several vocal numbers. He is well-known to Plainfielders, having appeared many times at local entertainments, also at Proctor's Theatre.

PRESENTS LODGE WITH KEEPSAKE

Frank C. Langhorne Gives Plainfield Elks Copy of Original Constitution.

PRESENTATION TIMELY

Made on the 47th Anniversary of the Great Order's Organization—Donor Was One of the Original Members.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., at its regular meeting last night, received a presentation from Frank C. Langhorne, a member of the organization, of a copy of the original constitution and by-laws of the order. The gift was made at an opportune time as the original Protective Order of Elks was started in New York city on February 10, 1868, just 47 years ago. Mr. Langhorne was one of the men who aided in the foundation work and is now one of the only two living members. There were fifteen at the outset, but thirteen have since died. The other charter Elk is W. Bowran, of New York city, who is at present listed as No. 1 members of No. 1 lodge.

The copy of the by-laws which Mr. Langhorne gave Plainfield lodge, is printed in booklet form much the same as those provided today. It is in excellent state of preservation and as an Elk momento is considered invaluable. Exalted Ruler Frank H. Smith received the gift in behalf of 885 and after extending thanks turn-

MANY ATTRACTIONS FOR ICE CARNIVAL

Novel Affair to Be Held on Hyde's Pond Saturday Night.

Hyde's Pond is frozen at last and the Pine Mountain Association is optimistic enough to set Saturday night, February 13, for its long talked of ice carnival, if there is skating on Saturday night. There will be other things doing, too, at Hyde's on Green brook road. Hurdy-gurdy and hot-dogs will be there, and for those of more delicate appetite pop-corn and crullers. The drinks will be as soft as the ice is hard and we hope it will be very hard—for many to stay away.

In spite of the war Swiss fancy skaters will entertain those whose skating is not so fancy. And the entrance to this "Paradise of Skaters" is only a quarter.

The committee in charge is composed of Miss Helen Hyde, chairman; Miss Eva Browne, Miss Dorothy Burke, Miss Lillian Ring, Miss Mary Runkle, Miss Margaret Townsend, Miss Helen Joy, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite, Mrs. Francis de L. Hyde, Miss Margaret Buttfield, Miss Elizabeth McGee.

SIXTH RECEPTION WILL BE GIVEN IN THE ELKS' CLUB

Members of the local Elks' Club are planning for the sixth reception and dance in their winter series in the Watchung avenue clubhouse next Thursday night, plenty amusement of an entertaining nature being planned by the committee in charge.

Previous events of this nature at the club have been well attended and thoroughly enjoyed and each one finds aditional interest displayed. Dancing will once more be the leading feature with VanEps' orchestra furnishing the music.

ENTERTAINED "500" CLUB.

Miss Ruth E. Lewis, entertained the "500" club, of which she is a member, at her home last evening, at a very enjoyable valentine party. Honors were awarded to Mrs. Wendell Mosher, and Miss Effie Henderickson at the close of play. Refreshments were served in the dining room, which was prettily decorated in red and white. All voted Miss Lewis a most charming hostess.

COMMISSIONERS NAMED.

Trenton, Feb. 11.—Chancellor Walker today reappointed Charles P. Russ, Democrat, as jury commissioner of Union county. He also reappointed Eugene V. Cruser, Democrat, as jury commissioner for Somerset county.

FLORET WURMSER'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Floret Wurmser, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Sprague, will be held in St. Joseph's church, Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

WOMAN'S EXCHANGE GETS ANOTHER BOOST

Mrs. C. W. McCutchen and J. M. White Brings Subscriptions up to $305.

Another substantial boost was given today to the fund being raised for the Woman's Exchange, when Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, of North Plainfield, contributed $25, and John M. Whiton gave $10 to aid the cause. This makes the total to date $305, and now that the $300 mark has been passed it is the belief that many other contributions will be made in the hope of raising the required $1,000. There were four contributors to the fund yesterday, which increased the fund considerably and when it became known that it was increased today by $35 the members and friends of the Exchange were greatly encouraged.

As already stated it is absolutely necessary that $1,000 be raised to place the Exchange on a good financial basis and it is the hope of many friends that there will be at least one hundred residents of the city and borough who will be willing to contribute $10 each to the fund. There are ninety families in Plainfield and vicinity who are directly benefitted by the Exchange, there being 158 consignors, and last year $6,662.43 was paid to the local consignors, the other $900 going to others who live within a radius of ten miles of the city.

The list of contributors to date follows:

Mrs. C. W. McCutchen	$25

W. L. Smalley	$10

PLEASING RECITAL BY MUSIC PUPILS

Mrs. McNeill Hopcraft's Classes Renedered Many Selections.

Mrs. McNeill Hopcraft and several of her pupils rendered a very pleasing song recital in the parish house of the Holy Cross church, last night, which was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. There were four of Mrs. Hopcraft's pupils who took part, the Misses Adele Freeman and Irma Good and B. Harrison Fahn and Pasquale Caruso. The program, which consisted of thirteen numbers, was a well selected one and all of the numbers were rendered creditably.

The first selection on the program was a trio by Miss Erma Good, Pasquale Caruso and B. Harrison Fahn, entitled, "Te sol quest anima Attila," after which Mrs. Hopcraft gained much applause with a solo number, "Me voici dans son Boudoir Mignon." The final number, the trio and finale from the fifth act of "Faust," was the feature of the evening and was rendered by Miss Adele Freeman, B. Harrison Fahn and Pasquale Caruso. Mrs. Ida Smalley Cleveland accompanied at the piano.

The program:

Harrison Fahn; me voici dans son Boudoir, "Mignon," Thomas, Mrs. McNeill Hopcraft, "Bel ragfio Lusinghier," "Semiramis," Rossini; "Love, I Have Won You (Summer), Landon Ronalds, Miss Adele Freeman; duet, "Il Guarany," di A. German War Office Reports Capture of Six Officers, 307 Men, Together With Machine Guns and Cannon—Houses Destroyed in Belgium.

Paris, Feb. 11.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon:

"On all the front as far as Champagne there were artillery duels yesterday. In the region of the department of Nord there were numerous airship sorties on both sides. The projectiles thrown by the enemy's aeroplanes upon our lines had not the slightest effect. In Champagne a German attack upon the forest which we recently captured north of Mesnil Les Hurlus was repulsed. In the Argonne a battle around Fort Marie was very violent. According to latest reports received the Germans numbered in the neighborhood of a brigade. We maintained all our positions. The enemy's losses were considerable, ours were serious. In the Vosges there was a thick fog and heavy snow. It was during a very dark night that there occurred the infantry action reported yesterday at La Fontennelle. In the Ban De Sapt the Germans had at least two battalions in this engagement. After having yielded ground our troops regained all this by a series of counter attacks during the day of February 10."

The Temps publishes a long article setting forth the conviction of that journal that Bulgaria will only come to the aid of Germany if convinced that Germany will be successful.

A despatch from Petrograd to a news agency says that the evacuation of Lodz by the Germans has been confirmed. The message says that stores, offies, commissiart are being removed to Kalisz.

A despatch from St. Omer tells of the capture of the hill of Notre Dame de Lorette by the French as announced at headquarters there. The hill, which dominates the entire region, has been fiercely disputed for weeks.

A position captured by the British close to Violaines station was one of considerable importance as it overlooks La Bassee. The Germans made several attempts to recapture it, but the British troops held strongly fortified lines and repulsed these attacks with heavy slaughter.

The British captured on Sunday night two trenches near Festubert, taking 500 prisoners who belonged, apparently, to the newest class of German recruits. Nearly all of them were young and wore new uniforms.

Great military activity is apparent in upper Alsace, especially in the Larg valley and in the districts of Pfetterhausen and Rechesy, close to the Swiss frontier, where fire artillery duels take place every day.

Two hundred German volunteers, covering their uniforms with sheets so they would not make such excellent targets when outlined against the snow, crept up to the barbed wire entanglement in front of the French trenches Wednesday night.

They were not discovered until they were about to cut the wire. Then French machine guns opened fire and the Germans were forced to retire, leaving half their number in killed and wounded.

Berlin, Feb. 11 (by wireless).—The following was given out at German headquarters today:

"In the western theatre of war an attack in the Argonne resulted in a gain of ground for us. We captured six officers, 307 men, two machine guns and six small cannon. In the central and southern Vosges we also gained a few small local successes yesterday. In the eastern theatre on the East Prussian frontier the engagement continued yesterday with results satisfactory to us, although deep snow hindered the movement of troops. The result of these engagements cannot be seen yet. In the Polish theatre on the right bank of the Vistula our advance brought us into the district northwest of Sierpec. Our opponents were repulsed wherever found. We took several hundred prisoners when the Russians attempted to advance northwest of Sierpec. On the left bank of the Vistula nothing of importance has occurred."

Amsterdam, via London, Feb. 11.—The German garrison at Knocke has been reduced from 1,200 to 200, the remainder having been sent to the front. A frontier correspondent reports that nearly every house in southwest Belgium has been destroyed or badly damaged. A despatch from Cologne says that the population of Insterburg, East Prussia, has been advised by the military authorities to leave the town.

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day In Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

GUEST AT A NUMBER OF SOCIAL FUNCTIONS

Mrs. E. L. Field, who moves to 133rd street, New York, the first of the month, has been an honored guest at a number of occasions during the past ten days or so.

On Tuesday of last week, Mrs. Field was tendered a farewell dinner by Mrs. Edward Ayers, of Second street. Last Friday she was given another farewell dinner by Mrs. Lydia Parker, of Second street. On Tuesday evening of this week she was given a surprise party by twelve of her friends. The party was arranged by Emanuel Appert. The evening was pleasantly passed in dancing and playing cards, after which refreshments were served. This afternoon, Mrs. Field was the guest of honor at a "Coffee Klatch" arranged by the teachers of the Lincoln School, who have taught her son, Stanley, since he has been attending school.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS PLAN FOR AN ANNIVERSARY DAY

At the monthly meeting of the Sunday-school board of the Methodist church held on Tuesday evening at the home of Harry Townley, on Madison avenue, a committee composed of J. M. Barto, Harry Townley and Horace Williams was appointed to confer with the representatives of the churches of this section with the idea of having a Sunday-school anniversary day with a parade sometime during the month of June. This is no new idea as the Sunday-schools of Brooklyn and other places have observed a similar event for a good many years, and it is hoped that the movement will meet with the hearty support of the other churches. Other business was routine. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. George I. Apgar, Jr., have closed their residence on Lincoln avenue and are spending a week with Mrs. Hattie Apgar, of New Market road.

Gerald Pfeister, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Pfeister, of Front street, has the measles.

GOING TO HOLLAND.

Mrs. Cornelius Zwaan, of Dewey Park, has made arrangements to sail on March 9 for Holland, where she will spend at least six months in visiting her mother.

SEWER COMMITTEE CONFERS REGARDING SEWER SYSTEM

The collecting sewage committee of the borough, Mr. Wheeler, of the engineering firm of George W. Fuller, and Division Superintendent McDougal, of the Public Service Railway Company, held a meeting in the Borough Hall, last evening, in an endeavor to come to some agreement in regard to laying the sewer pipe along North avenue.

It seems that the borough has been in favor of having the pipe laid in the centre of the road, between the trolley tracks, while the Public Service people have expressed a desire of having the pipe laid under the east bound tracks, as it is going to be necessary for them to have these tracks elevated and they thought while that was being done that the sewer pipe could be laid. This would save money for them as the laying of the pipe in the centre of the roadway would put both the east and westbound tracks temporarily out of commission and necessitate the laying of a temporary track.

Mrs. Mary Murphy, who has been assisting about the home of T. J. Ronayne, of Front street, during the illness of his wife, is slightly indisposed.

The Baracas will bowl the crack five of the Courier-News Publishing Company, of Plainfield, on the Presbyterian alleys this evening.

MINSTREL REHEARSAL.

Those taking part in the minstrel show to be given by Messrs. Kelly and Kookegey sometime in the near future held a rehearsal at the home of Mrs. H. A. Wickham, last evening.

LAY OFF MEN.

The Levgar Structural Company laid off the men employed in its laying out and punch departments, last evening, for one week. Forty-five men are employed in these departments. The temporary laying off of these men was occasioned by the non-delivery of steel which has been ordered. Two hundred men are still in the employ of the company.

C. L. Wahl, Jr., and sister, Miss May, of Washington avenue, attended a euchre and dance at Stony Hill on Tuesday night.

Mrs. J. C. Gardner, of Washington avenue, has been suffering with a cold.

JOHN MAIER ILL.

John Maier, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Maier, of North avenue, was taken ill yesterday. It is believed that he has the measles.

BELIEVE THEIR BRAVERY SHOULD BE REWARDED

Dunellen has two citizens in her midst who, it is believed, are entitled to one of the much prized Carnegie Hero medals. A number of the citizens feel that two of these treasured deeds-of-valor medals have been already won by John P. Fenner and Frank Day, who stopped runaways at the risk of their lives recently, and to the eligible list of the above it is the opinion that the name of Arthur J. Hamley, cashier of the local bank, be added. Mr. Hamley was standing in front of his institution on Monday, when the word "runaway," which is getting to be quite familiar of late to Dunellenites, floated on the air and to the ears of Mr. Hamley. He looked up and noticed a horse attached to an unoccupied surrey coming along North avenue, due west at a good clip. At the risk of his life Mr. Hamley stepped out into the roadway directly in the path of the approaching animal and commenced waving his arms and repeating the word "whoa" and to the amazement of bystanders the animal stopped short not five feet in front of Mr. Hamley's imposing height.

Skating is said to be good on New Market pond.

The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Flaherty, of Front street, are ill with the measles.

PRESS WORKS BUSY.

The work at the Hall Press Works still continues to come in at increasing volume. For a number of weeks the company has been steadily taking on men at a rate of about three or four a week and the employment list of the company totals fully 180 now.

Goodwin Lawrence has accepted a position of manager of George H. Richter's pool parlors.

A large chicken coop recently purchased by Joseph G. Walton, of Walnut street, who is branching out into the chicken business on a big scale, was moved yesterday by John P. Hill, of the Park Hotel stables.

TO SELL STABLES.

By reason of the default in payment of certain moneys on account of a chattel mortgage given by Joseph Hill to Charles W. Vanetta, the Park Hotel stables are to be sold at public auction at 10 o'clock on Monday morning.

ROSE HAZELIN ILL.

Rose Hazelin, aged 14 years, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew S. Hazelin, was taken ill on Saturday, with a malady of the mind. It is believed that her illness has been caused by constant worrying over the recent slightly separated tragic deaths of her father and mother. A nurse is in constant attendance.

The funeral services of George W. Stryker were held at his late home on West High street, yesterday afternoon, conducted by Rev. William T. Boult, pastor of the Congregational church. Casterlin, Gains Hoffman, Joseph L. Durn, S. G. Leake, Henry J. Garretson. Interment was made in the Bound Brook cemetery.

Doubt is expressed over the recovery of Robert Schenck, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Schenck, who is seriously ill at his home on Grand street.

Satisfaction has been expressed by local citizens over the probability of having traffic posts placed at several important corners in the borough. On one of the crossings mentioned, at the intersection of Terrill road and South avenue, the local authorities cannot act, as both thoroughfares are under State supervision. Since the township officials put posts at the corner of Front street and Park avenue, and also at Springfield road and Park avenue, the daily accidents have ceased and it was on the strength of these results that an agitation was started in the borough.

A short special session of the Borough Council was held in the Fanwood firehouse on Tuesday evening, for the purpose of hearing several alleged violations of the hack ordinance, which were easily remedied.

JOHN P. M'GOVERN DIES IN TRENTON

Well Known Young Man Succumbs to Long Illness.

John Bernard McGovern, aged 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McGovern, of Greenbrook road, Dewey Park, died yesterday in the State Hospital at Trenton, where he had been an inmate since December 24 last.

Mr. McGovern received his education in the local schools. He left school at the age of fifteen and took up the trade of tinplate maker at the plant of the Levgar Structural Company. He remained in the employ of the company for seven years, during which he mastered his trade..

When he gave up his position with the Levgar Company he left home and went to Ranklin, Pa., where he followed his trade for a short time. From Ranklin, he visited Canton, Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio. From Columbus he went to Buffalo, N. Y., where he remained a short time and then went to Lockport, N. Y., where he was taken ill about three months ago.

McGovern was taken to the St. Francis Hospital at that place and remained in that institution until he was brought home on December 21. It had been the ambition of the deceased from the time he was sixteen years of age to study for the priesthood, and it is believed that constant worrying over his physical and financial inability to follow the calling resulted in his illness. He possessed exemplary habits and spent much of his spare time in study. He leaves, besides his parents, seven sisters, Mrs. Florence Vogel, and the Misses Bessie, Julia, Margaret, Francis, Marsella and Catherine, and three brothers, Samuel, Joseph and Bernard.

The funeral will be held at the late home Saturday morning at 8:30 and in St. John's church at 9:30, where a requiem mass will be said. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Attorney Given, today, took up the case of a young private from Fort Meyer, who on Saturday sought to enter the dance hall with four soldiers who were in civilian clothes. The four were acceptable to the management, but the uniformed man was told he could not enter. The War Department is preparing to see that the prosecution is pressed.

STATE SCHOOL CENSUS.

That Plainfield is ahead of other communities in the State is again demonstrated by the agitation which is being waged in the State papers for the taking of a school census at the same time the State census is taken this year. The local Board of Education announced the result of such a census in this city some months ago, and it was as thorough as any one could desire.

Secretary of State Crater is preparing for the State census to be taken in June in accordance with the act of 1905, and the Trenton Times suggests that it would be timely for the State Board of Education to try to have the law amended, so that enumerators will be able to gather facts and figures concerning the children of school age. The Times sees great value in such figures in planning new schools and for caring for certain classes of children.

As the law is at the present time the Secretary of State is limited to gathering information regarding each inhabitant as to "name, color, sex, conjugal relation, place of birth and place of parents, whether alien or naturalized, number of years in the United States ,occupation, literacy and ownership of farms and homes." Every school district should have statistics of all children of school age, and there is no sense in the State paying from $125,000 to $130,000 for a general census, without getting the statistics regarding the children at the same time.

Seeking the repeal of the "full crew law" which was passed two years ago by the legislatures of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, the officials of thirteen railroads have decided to go direct to the people, and ask their aid. Officials of the roads, which include the Central Railroad of New Jersey, are planning a wide publicity campaign in the newspapers throughout the two states, putting the whole proposition before the people in a straightforword series of arguments, in an effort to show what they consider the unjust features of the law in question. The movement will be watched with much interest. In these days corporations which take the people into their confidence, as it were, and make a clean and able presentation of their case through the one medium that reaches all the people, the newspaper, usually get what they are after, if their cause is just. There was a time when the corporations controlled the news columns of the papers, through the generous use of free transportation, and tried to mold public opinion in that way. Nowadays the publishers pay for the rides they take, just like every other citizen, and the railroads spend their money for advertising of a legitimate sort. The arguments in favor of the repeal of the "full crew" law will be drawn to the attention of the large mass of people, and if they are sound we suppose the desired repealer will be put through the Legislature. But the public want every safeguard they can get, and they will have to be shown that travelers will be protected just as much as before if the repealer is passed.

Plainfield will be put to the expense of a special election in August or September, which will run into the hundreds of dollars. The Constitutional amendments which are to be voted on at that time will entail extra work on the part of the boards of election and the city clerk's office. There is, however, some assurance that this will be the last special election for the purpose ever held in the State, for one of the proposed amendments arranges more speedy changes in the Constitution in the future. It provides that in the future all voting on proposed amendments shall take place at the same time that an election is held for members of the General Assembly. This will save money for the taxpayers, and incidentally bring out a much larger vote than is usually the case at a special election, so it is pretty safe to predict that this one amendment will be passed.

As was announced yesterday, the contributed editorial for this week will appear tomorrow, because it deals with the life of the man whose birthday anniversary we then celebrate. The subject will be "Honest 'Abe' Lincoln," and the writer will be by an authority on that subject, Judd Stuart, one of the best known residents of North Plainfield.

The Woman's Exchange $1,000 fund seems to be growing slowly but surely. Certainly there are one hundred people in Plainfield who can afford to give $10 each to so worthy a cause. If you cannot give that sum, however, send along any amount. It will help to swell the total.

If that new fire engine hadn't arrived on Monday the fire committee were planning to put want advs. in the papers along the line of the railroads over which it came.

The Paterson Call is led to remark that if bandits held up a train going to Palm Beach, they were only trying to get a little ahead of the hotel proprietors.

Just to show that it is possible the weather man seems to be giving us a week of perfectly normal weather. It's an awful shock after what we have had.

This seems to be the lecture season in Plainfield. Not less than a score have been scheduled for this week.

LAUDS CLINIC'S OBJECTS

and an effort made to unearth the original cause.

"We are in need of teachers today in the United States who specialize and I would like nothing better than to see institutions founded in which those desiring instruction in the proper methods to deal with exceptional children could receive it. If we have these expert instructors we will have to pay for them. I would like to see the salary of every teacher in the United States doubled today and if we spent half the money now expended in maintaining a navy, for educational work, we would be able to do this for our teachers.

"There is no average child, some are better and some are worse, but all are entitled to an education. In former years we wasted humanity by depriving the exceptional child of the education to which he was rightfully entitled and in after years we expected the same of him as we did of every other child. We've built cities and then destroyed them; and we've erected buildings that could be destroyed by fire. Therein dwells our wastefulness.

"In late years we have given out begrudgingly a few additional dollars in an effort to study the mental and moral parts of a child and in this way to give him the proper kind of instruction. We are fast beginning to realize that we will have to make schools for the children in the future instead of attempting to make the children fit into the schools. Children have human qualities in different proportions and it requires clinic study to ascertain their natural tendencies. Medical inspection in the schools is of the utmost importance and the United States Bureau of Education is today paying marked attention to the development of health supervision in the educational institutions of the country.

"The only thing in this world of value is the child and all other resources have value only in the proportion to the value of the people who work them. When we have mastered the art of gathering up the fragments of humanity all other social and economic problems will be solved."

Mayor Leighton Calkins, of this city, acted as chairman, and in a few introductory remarks lauded the new asset to the city's educational work and urged Plainfielders to lend their support in making it a success.

Union County Superintendent of Schools A. L. Johnson promised the co-operation of the county educators and commented favorably upon the objects of the new clinic, classing it as a step in the right direction.

Supervising Principal Fred Aungst of the North Plainfield schools; William de La R. Anderson and Somerset County Superintendent of Schools H. C. Krebs, were also speakers. Rev. F. Y. Pierce, of New York, delivered the invocation.

ed the gift over to Secretary William R. Townsend. The latter will have it suitably framed and placed among the lodge's collection of keepsakes, which has now gotten to be one of the most interesting features at the new clubhouse.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was instituted in New York city, as the result of a movement started among the members of the Jolly Corks, a metropolitan club, composed mostly of people in the theatrical profession. The majority of the men in it roomed at the same boarding-house on the East Side and during a Sunday afternoon discussion, the formation of the new order was decided upon. The fifteen men who signed the charter were the following: Charles Vivian, Richard Steirly, William Carleton, H. Vandermark, William Sheppard, E. M. Platt, W. Bowran, H. Bosworth, M. G. Ashe, John G. Kent, J. G. Wilton, F. C. Langhorne, J. H. Bloome, G. F. McDonald and T. G. Riggs.

Mr. Langhorne was an enthusiastic Elk for many years, but owing to a change of residence to this city, eventually dropped out of the New York lodge. After the one in this city was instituted he again became interested and on an order from the grand lodge was reinstated to full membership in the order as a member of Plainfield lodge. The local Elks feel justly proud of his affiliation, especially when it is considered that New York lodge is the only other branch in the country which can boast of one of the original of what is now one of the most influential fraternal organizations in the country.

MUSICAL FEATURES AT BAPTIST PRAYER MEETING

The mid-week service last night at the First Baptist church exceeded both in attendance and interest the expectations entertained before the service was held. The interest from the beginning was very deep and continued throughout the entire program. The young people responded with great enthusiasm and in large numbers, while the musical features of the evening were unusually inspiring. These special musical numbers included singing by the Probasco Male Quartet, a violin selection by Miss Florence Wohlfert, and a beautiful solo by Howard Parry.

The service was of such profound interest that it could not well be closed until far beyond the ordinary hour. After the service itself the ordinance of baptism was administered to three candidates, Mrs. Rodney Louis, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Warren. In this connection it may be stated that all the services of the First Baptist church are being largely and heartily supported. Congregations are steadily growing and interest deepening. Important announcements may be expected for next week Wednesday, February 17, both afternoon and evening.

HOSPITAL ESTABLISHES ANOTHER NEW RECORD

The activities at Muhlenberg Hospital continue to show an increasing appreciation on the part of the people of Plainfield and its environs of this great institution. The past week has marked another era in its history of activity by establishing another new record as to the number of patients being cared for.

The maximum number of patients heretofore in the institution at one time was 72 and last week the number of patients cared for in that institution was 80, divided in the various departments as follows:

Private rooms, 14; semi-private rooms, 14; wards, 52; total, 80.

The hospital has accommodations for only 27 pupil nurses and the great increase in the number of patients at the institution, and the necessary assignment of these nurses to the various departments has taxed every nurse in the hospital to her fullest capacity for work.

It is hoped that before a great while the hospital authorities will be able to increase the accommodations at the Nurses' Home to take care of a considerable number of additional pupil nurses to provide for the ever-increasing business and thus relieve the strain under which the present nurses are working.

DR. CORBUSIER ADDRESSES PARENT-TEACHER ASS'N

Other features of the program included piano solos by Miss Elsie Vail and Miss Ethel Sleight. After the meeting refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. John E. Dunn, chairman of the committee. The next meeting will be held Tuesday, March 9, at the Jefferson School.

TO FIX SALARIES OF CLERK AND ASSISTANTS

It is expected that when the Common Council holds its adjourned meeting Monday night, it will fix the salaries of City Clerk James T. MacMurray and George B. Wean, the city stenographer. Arrangements will also probably be made whereby the city will employ the assistants in the city clerk's office, paying their salaries.

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed has advised the Council that it has the right to take all fees which heretofore have been paid to city officials for one reason or another and in the adjustment of salaries the fee system will also be considered.

CHARLES CHAPLIN
The funniest man in picturedom, who is to be seen at Proctor's Theatre in a new film each week.

For the benefit of the holiday patronage, Proctor's Theatre will run continuously tomorrow (Lincoln's Birthday), from 1 p. m. to 11 p. m. Four performances will be given in all, each one carrying the full program of vaudeville and feature pictures. In addition to a complete change of acts, the offering today will include the episode of "Runaway June," the serial which has become popular with young and old, and the Pathe Weekly, the animated newspaper of which present the latest doings of the world in picture form. Tomorrow's feature picture will be the succeeding episode of the Pathe serial, "The Exploits of Elaine," in which Arnold Daly and Pearl White enact the leading roles. The latest policy at Proctor's Theatre has been to give the people the best to be had and with this idea in view another costly innovation will begin Saturday, when the first of a series of two-reel pictures featuring Charles Chaplin will be shown. Mr. Chaplin, as practically every lover of the movies knows, is the funniest man who ever posed for the pictures. He has been associated with the Keystone comedy people for a long time, but will hereafter be with the Essanay Company. Visit Proctor's Theatre, Saturday afternoon or night and see Mr. Chaplin in the screamingly funny film, "His New Job," and you will positively be a regular attendant when his other pictures are presented.

IVAN FLOOD TALKS TO YOUNG PEOPLE

"Consecration" Theme of Speaker at Gathering in Temple Baptist Church.

Iva P. Flood, of Newark, the newly appointed State secretary for Young People's Work of the Baptist church, addressed a conference of Christian Endeavorers at the midweek meeting in the Temple Baptist church, last night. Beside the members of the Temple church society, there were also delegations from the First Baptist and Park Avenue Baptist societies, together with people from various parts of the city.

Mr. Flood was in Germany at the outbreak of the present European war and he drew a lesson from the mobilization, using "Consecration" as his theme. "The German soldiers," he said, "displayed genuine enthusiasm when war was declared on that fatal Saturday in July." From Germany he proceeded to France, where he found that the soldiers displayed "Faithfulness" in rallying to the colors. In England, the cry among the volunteers was "every man must do his duty." From these three slogans, "enthusiasm, faithfulness and duty," he drew a lesson beneficial to every Endeavorer fighting for the cause of Christianity, and asserted that if these were used as their standard the spirit of the heavenly Father would be paramount the world over.

The mid-winter rally of the local Christian Endeavor Society will be conducted in the Temple Baptist church tonight and tomorrow night the Home Society will enjoy a social.

A LADY AND A BABY

And Uncle Sam's Polite Consul In a City In France.

HOW THEY MET AND PARTED.

And How Light Was Thrown on the Problem That the Woman, Who Was French and Voluble, and the Infant, Who Was American, Presented

Not very long after having taken charge of one of the consulates in France I was one morning seated at my desk busily engaged in figuring over my quarterly accounts, when suddenly a woman carrying a bundle in her arms appeared before me. I had not resided in France sufficiently long to imbibe the unadulterated French politeness, but I had progressed sufficiently to ask:

"Madame, what can I have the pleasure of doing for you this morning?"

"Monsieur," she exclaimed, walking toward me, holding out the bundle as if to deposit it on my desk, "this is an American baby. What shall I do with it?"

Abashed at the prospect of so suddenly becoming a father with the orange blossoms and rice omitted and knowing that the American government had established no precedent of maintaining orphan asylums either at home or abroad, I hesitated a moment and replied:

"Will the madame please be seated over there by the door and tell me why, being a Frenchwoman, she has become possessed of an American baby?"

It never occurred to me to examine the little bundle of humanity. I had in previous times rather prided myself on my ability to distinguish the nationality of people, had even boasted I could tell them by their shoes, but I had never tried my perceptive powers on infant physiognomies.

"Voila!" she said, seating herself.

I shall never forget that word voila. It was one of the first French words I ever learned. You know it means—oh, so many things when used exclamatorily, as it generally is. Usually, however, to the beginner in the French language it conveys the meaning of "Here it is." That was about as far as I had progressed in my French education at that time in regard to the many varied meanings of voila, and I determined that if it meant the baby then it would retain its geographical location indefinitely—that is, in the woman's lap over by the door, or preferably outside. But her voila referred not so much to the infant as to the story of how it came to be in her possession.

She talked volubly while I tried to assume the defensive power of silence. But to a Frenchwoman—well, silence simply means what the jockey gives the horse in the last heat—encouragement.

From the verbal French cyclone she hurled at me I gathered a few fragments that enabled me to understand.

For three months she had been employed as nurse by an American woman who had paid her good wages. Four weeks previously, however, the mother had returned to New York, saying she was going over for only two or three days on an urgent business matter and would return at once. She had not seen or heard of her since. Being a woman who had to work for her own living, the baby was a burden on her hands. She could hardly support herself, much less provide for the infant, and as the child was of American parentage she thought the representative of the American government ought to take care of it.

I suggested that I would write to the city authorities in New York asking as to the genuineness of the address that the woman said the mother had left with her.

"And what shall I do during all the time you are waiting for an answer—starve?"

My answer finally was a twenty franc gold piece, with which she departed, saying she would try to take care of the baby until I could hear from the New York authorities.

Now, the reasonable and the unreasonable part of the story is that since her departure, though the sun has risen hundreds of times, she has never returned. It had not risen more than seven times, however, before I learned the reason.

It was just one week later at an informal dinner of the sixteen consuls who resided in the city that in the course of a conversation with my Italian colleague I told him the story of the woman and the baby. What do you suppose he answered?

"Well, well," he laughed, "why, that same woman came to my office, only she had an Italian baby. And I thought I was fortunate to get rid of her for 50 francs."

In the general conversation that followed I discovered that the woman had visited every one of the sixteen consulates in the city, and by her ability to change the baby's nationality from English to German and from Haitian to Japanese and all the other colors of the rainbow she had extracted from the consular corps of that particular French city the sum of 775 francs.

This incident is just one of a series of similar experiences with frauds and fakers a consul has to face in the performance of his duties.—Thornwell Haynes in New York Tribune.

LEALS WALLOPED CARTARET QUINTET

Foul Shooting of Captain Stewart a Prominent Feature.

The Leal School basketball team annexed another victory on the Y. M. C. A. court yesterday afternoon, when it defeated the Carteret Academy team by the score of 35 to 13. The game was an uninteresting one and was featured by many fouls Captain Stewart was the individual star of the game, scoring six field goals and making good on nine out of eleven tries from the fifteen foot mark.

At the beginning of the game the visitors played fast and obtained a slight lead, but this was soon overcome by sensational field goals by Stewart. Dickerson played a good game, scoring five field goals. He was replaced in the last part of the second half by Larison, a second string man. The score at the end of the first half was 22 to 8.

In the last few minutes of play Coach Wardlaw put in Miller, who played a good game but failed to get into the scoring department.
